Know Your School Week By Week

Fulfillment of their debate appointments with almost a dozen best Texas high schools was made possible for the Sanderson school debaters and their coach Miss Margaret Martin, when the Rev. R. E. Griffith offered his car and time for the tour.

The first lap of the tour, which took the debaters to Stanton was begun last Sunday. The girls from the Stanton tilt, but the boys lost.

The students making the week's trip with Miss Martin and Rev. R. E. Griffith are Rosa Lee Harper, Myrian Carpenter, E. D. Johnson and D. C. Thrift.

Unusual interest in the high school debaters was aroused when the boys' team, composed of H. D. Johnson and D. C. Thrift, defeated the P. T. A representatives in a brilliant match last Friday night at the high school auditorium, the boys gaining the decision of the judges by one point.

The alertness of the boys as exhibited in their skillful refutations of their opponents' points brought praiseworthy remarks from the audience. H. D. has won for himself a two-wide reputation as a master thinker.

Youth has a just cause, but that cause must be championed by elders. Sometimes that champion bears a remote relationship to the youth concerned.

When events looked dark for the debaters as far as transportation was concerned, Reverend Griffith of the Christian church, backed by his people, gave his car and services. None of the debaters are members of his family, yet he was willing to sponsor a movement in Sanderson that will further the best interests of the school and the town.

Only men of broad vision can place themselves and their personal interests in the background to that extent.

As soon as the debaters return from their trip they will be meagered for sweaters, which will be presented them on the basis of individual achievement worthy of recognition by the school authorities.

Chautauqua Means Good Time

Fine fun and neighborly sociability are the outstanding features of Chautauqua. No other community gathering all year gives as much opportunity for pleasant, informal meetings as Chautauqua. Speakers and music from all over the world, the finest recent drama, clean wholesome entertainment are all an essential part of Chautauqua, but they are not more enjoyable than the friendly opportunity to see the same things in a festival atmosphere with ones friends. It is a big vacation that leaves the whole community "happier and wholesomer." Meet your friends there. Sanderson, April 17, 18, 19, 21.

Easter Lilies

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

AS WE read the sixth chapter of the Gospel according to St. Matthew, we find these two verses:
"And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin:
"And yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

And it is these flowers which, more than anything else, have become the symbols of Easter which we celebrate this year on April 20. As such a symbol the lily has a double significance. It is one of the earliest spring flowers. It typifies the rebirth of nature after the long winter sleep. In its dry, brown bulb life lies dormant during the winter and then when spring comes, this life begins to stir. First it pushes out the tender green leaves, and then the buds appear. Finally the white blossom comes forth in all its glory as the perfect emblem of resurrected life.

Its other significance is a religious one, its snow-white purity being emblematic of the flawless life of Christ whose resurrection from the tomb we commemorate on Easter day. In fact, no other flower has a place in the religious life and literature of the Christian world to compare to the lily. Yet its glory is not so new as Christianity, ancient though the beginnings of that religion may seem to us.
The Greeks and the Romans prized it above all flowers and in their earlier civilizations it had already come to symbolize purity and virtue. It was because of the place lilies had won in the popular esteem that they found place in the early paintings of the Virgin. The angel Gabriel was depicted carrying them in annunciation pictures and it is because of this that the most beautiful of these flowers, Lilium candidum, most used at Easter, is called the madonna lily.

Although this trumpet-like blossom is the best known of all the members of the lily family, there are others which are very interesting even though they do not have such significance for us as the madonna lily. In the high Himalayas in Asia grows a great lily ten feet tall. Agents of the United States government found a magnificent specimen of lily in China a generation ago—a lily of the madonna type, but harder—and brought it to America and they have been offering it to citizens to plant from coast to coast.

Most of the lilies that are native to America are radiant with color. There is the turk's cap, for instance, that flaunts the deep yellow of its many blooms through the waste stretches of parts of New England. Great, stalwart stalks, sometimes nine feet tall, has the turk's cap. It may have half a dozen orange blooms at its top, but those who have tamed this plant and given it care have induced it to provide as many as 40 blossoms.

A quite different American flower is the little trout lily which likes to grow along the streams or in the deep woods. With the nourishment it has saved up in its bulb it starts growing in the early spring and is likely to have bloomed before the leaves of the trees have grown to the stage of making shade to interfere with it. A radiant yellow, the trout lily stands out vividly against its background of green.

The blue flag running to purple is another American lily that has found itself a home in many gardens. The mottled tiger lily has been a favorite for many generations. In California the "leopard lily lights the heather dun," and the late shorn meadow is often red with their bloom.

The red lilies of New England, however, outshine them all and have inspired many a poet of that region. Lucy Larcom spoke of them as "red lilies blazing out of the thicket." Paul Hamilton Hayne thought that the red lily "stands from all her sister flowers apart."

An Easter Flower
"To make one petal, myriads of atoms (each in itself a planetary system of electrons) must climb and wheel to their exact stations in the design."—Statement of a scientist.
Up-whispered by what Power,
Deeper than moon or sun
Must each of the myriad atoms of this flower
To its own point of the colored pattern run;
Each atom, from earth's gloom,
A clean sun-cluster driven
To make, at its bright goal, one grain of bloom,
Or flock with rose one petal's edge in Heaven?
What blind roots lifted up,
Transmuting their dark food, in this wild cup,
Of glory, to what Heavenly bread and wine?
What Music was concealed,
What Logic in this loom,
That the Celestial Beauty here revealed
Should thus be struggling to its last home?
Whence was the radiant storm,
The still up-rushing song,
That built of formless earth this heavenly form,
Redeeming with art, the world's blind wrong.
Unlocking everywhere
The sailor's Wistery prison,
And whispering from the grave, "Not here! Not here!
He is not dead. The Light you seek is risen!"
—Alfred Noyes in the Washington Star.

Probably the most remarkable lily in the world is the yucca, or spanish bayonet, of the arid plains of the Southwest. There the lily becomes a plant that is quite tree-like and lives for years. The lily leaves become harsh, dagger-tipped implements to serve the purpose of repelling attack. These may sit close to the ground or, again, they may stand as high as a man on horseback.
From the cluster of leaf armor there springs now and again a tall stalk that may reach like a flagpole into the desert sunshine. At the top of this staff there forms and finally breaks into bloom such an assemblage of pure white, bell-like, richly perfumed, and in every way perfect lilies as nature produces nowhere else in a single cluster. It is given to the desert to grow the greatest of all the lily-bearing plants despite the fact that the chief habitat of the breed seems to be the marsh.

Lilies all grow from bulbs. This bulb-making capacity of the lily family is one of its dominant traits. It and the six petals to all lily blooms are marks of the tribe. Tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocuses, all are actually, because they spring from bulbs, members of the lily family.

But beautiful as these members of the lily family, there are others which are utilitarian rather than purely ornamental and which, although like the "lilies of the field which toil not," do furnish mankind with edible crops. Surprising though it may be, botanists will tell you that some of our common vegetables are in reality "lilies."

There is asparagus, for instance, that is bought in the market tied up in bundles of many stalks, each exactly like the other. There is nothing about this asparagus in this form that would indicate that it is a lily. Asparagus tips are but young plants just coming through the ground, if they were allowed to grow they would throw out tall, lily-like stalks and crown them with six-tipped flowers that any observer would be able to identify as lilies.

The presence of this commonplace asparagus in an idling family is rather a let down to its pretensions. This, however, is not the worst. If the truth must be told, the onion is a lily.

The onion is a lily that has been bred through centuries for the development of its bulb and the suppression of its top. So it has come about that the bulb may be three inches across and the top so insignificant that, when it has dried up, it hardly appears at all. Yet when this top is growing and flowering it is like those delicate plants of the window sills which sometimes are called tree roses, but which actually are a delicate, refined and fragrant lily that comes out of the Orient.

Onions came from the Near East and in ancient days furnished a staple food for the rural inhabitants of Greece and Italy. Not only was garlic a food, but it was reputed to have medicinal value and to be helpful to the stomach in its functions.

These two bulb vegetables, the Cinerellas of the plant food world, ride about the earth in trainloads and shiploads. The material service they render is greater than that of all the other lilies put together. One would have to look far in all the relationships of nature to find a contrast more striking than that of the Easter lily and the garlic of the Mediterranean.

Even though the lily is the one perfect symbol of Easter, there are two others which through the centuries have become so closely associated with this red-letter day in our calendars that we think of them almost as quickly, in thinking of Easter, as we do of the lily. They are the rabbit and the egg.

The association of the rabbit or hare with Easter has its foundations in the ancient belief in European and Asiatic countries that the hare is the symbol for the moon. In fact, the Chinese represent the moon as a rabbit pounding rice in a mortar, while Hindu and Japanese artists paint the hare across the face of the moon. As the time of the Easter festival is governed by the phases of the moon this may be an explanation of their connection.

Since the Resurrection of Christ occurred in the spring, it is easy to see how the symbols of the egg and revived life in the springtime came to be associated with this event in the history of Christianity. The egg as a symbol was taken over by the Hebrews as an emblem of their deliverance from bondage and next the early Christians took it over as their symbol of the resurrection.

HERE'S A CHANCE TO BE INDIAN FIGHTER

"Pay-as-You-Enter," First Requirement.

San Francisco.—The first pay-as-you-enter Indian fight in the West's history is ticketed to leave Douglas, Ariz., May 7.

It's not a private fight, this Fimbres expedition against the Apaches of Old Mexico. According to promotional material, any genuine Injun fighter, amateur or professional, may sign up and go to the war if he is possessed of good moral character and approximately $210 American gold.

The announced purpose of the expedition is to rescue from the Apaches the seven-year-old son of Francisco Fimbres, asserted to have been kidnaped at the time his mother was murdered October 20, 1923.

Regarded With Amusement.

The Apaches are camped at the Canyon of the Caves in the Sierra Madre mountains, 165 miles south of the international line. The expedition is to make a surprise march against them, confident that no Indian chieftain has read the newspapers and complicated the situation by going away from there in the interim.

The international aspect of 125 Americans marching into Mexico in pursuit of Indians who are strictly the property of the southern republic has been neatly taken care of by enlisting the entire company as a volunteer militia unit of the Mexican army.

The expedition is regarded along the border both with amusement and interest. The amusement is due principally to the Yankee promotional basis upon which the expedition is being organized and financed, and the interest attaches because of the number of prominent Douglas citizens who head the enterprise.

A Good Vacation.

Mayor A. C. Karger of Douglas is president of the Fimbres Apache expedition, and Chief of Police Leslie Gatliff is in charge of personnel.

Chief Gatliff, asked for details, said: "We have a rather unusual undertaking, but the way enlistments are coming we ought to have between 75 and 100 from the outside and there will be about 20 local men in the organization, it now seems certain."

With the true camaraderie of the West, the chief added:

"Why not join us and get the best vacation you ever had, a delightful experience, a fine comradeship, and see some of the most wonderful country God ever made?"

It is officially estimated that the expedition will be active for 30 days after the start, May 7. Best accommodations are offered visiting Indian fighters for about $7 a day—to be paid by the said Indian fighters, not the expedition nor the Mexican army—and much of the food will be obtained by killing wild game.

More than 140 Douglas business men are listed as sponsors of the expedition, of which number at least 20 will go along, according to Chief Gatliff.

Indians' Unfed Horses

Filch Hay From Cars

Yakima, Wash. — Indian horses—sflaggy, scrubby, unkempt and often lame—which roam the highways and sagebrush country of the Yakima Indian reservation, often show remarkable ingenuity in foraging for a living. Although the Indians themselves know which horses are theirs, they make no pretense to providing for them, and leave the animals to shift for themselves. If the horse dies there is always another to be had from the wild bands which pasture around Mount Adams and on the Horse Haven range.

As a result of the owners' neglect large herds congregate around the shipping points on the reservation, especially when snow covers the ground and the mercury sings low. At Parker, Bench, Ashue and White Swan, the animals gather where they can approach the freight cars being loaded with baled alfalfa, potatoes, or wheat.

The horses are shrewd. They watch the ranchers loading the cars, and when the men are near keep at a distance. However, after the farm wagons or trucks leave the car doors, the horses approach. Stretching their necks inside the cars, the animals snake out a bale of hay, a sack of potatoes or a sack of wheat. Once the forage is out of the car the horses make a rush for it, the older and stronger ones using their teeth and heels to clear their approach to the feed.

Hammer-headed Sharks

Washed Ashore in N. C.

Ocracoke, N. C.—While it is not uncommon to see various species of sharks and porpoises strewn along the surf here after heavy seas have caused high tides, it is rather unusual to see hammer-headed sharks. Two of the hammer-head species were washed ashore near Ocracoke Inlet during the last week, and because of their odd shape, attracted much attention.

Washington. — To banish "cockroaches" and help keep the building clean, the senate appropriations committee has recommended an additional $62,000 to run the senate office building. Senator Kryes of New Hampshire protested that the cockroaches had eaten the bindings of his books.

LIGHTS of NEW YORK

The True Artist

Happy is the man who has found his work—but one doesn't run across many such, in New York or anywhere else. A young soda hustler, who waited on me the other day, seemed to exemplify the proverb. Business had been brisk and he was kept on the hop. Then came a lull and he paused a moment to talk with a friend who occupied the stool next to mine.

"I'm surprised to see you back at the game, Charley," said the friend. "I thought you had quit it for good." "No," said Charley, who may have been putting over big business mergers or something like that during his absence from the fountain. "I just couldn't be happy at anything else. This game certainly has a fascination all its own. Yes, sir, pineapple soda and no whipped cream."

Incongruity

He was six feet six inches tall, if he was a foot. He was broad in proportion. When he walked from the shuttle train to the west side subway platform everybody turned to look at him. The little woman who was walking with him drew the big fellow into a quiet corner, just at the edge of the tides of travel.

"Now, honey," I heard her say to the giant as I passed the couple, "don't forget to bring home a pound of coffee."

Boothblack De Luxe

A boothblack of character is Tony, who has his stand on Canal street. Tony looks as if he had just alighted from his limousine and was on his way into a Wall street office for a day's session with the stock ticker. He wears a top hat and a cutaway coat with a rosebud bouffant, and as he slaps the polish on one's shoes he smokes a big cigar. He adopted the formal costume only recently, and declares that it has increased his business 25 per cent. He uses no push and go to drum up trade. Never does he yell. "Shine 'em up!" as all the other boothblacks do. He inquires quietly, "Will you have a shine, sir?"

One Way to Put It

A hotel guest recently made up a bundle of linen and sent it to the hotel's laundry. Accompanying it was a list of the articles. The next morning a card was delivered to the guest. It read: "Your list calls for one pair of pajamas. We received one-half pajamas."

The Sleeper

It happened the other night at an uproarious comedy. Someone, somewhere, was sleeping through it all. His snores were far from gentle, and a whole section of the orchestra was first amused, then annoyed. The buzzing of the slumberer caused waves of titters to sweep over the house, and the players on the stage, thinking the applause was for them, redoubled their efforts. Finally, when the house lights went up at the end of an act, the sleeper was located. He was a large, bald, tough-looking man. By common impulse a dozen members of the audience threw their programs at the shining bald pate. The dreamer awoke with a start, looked about him, and exclaimed, "No manners!"

Those English!

It is no doubt provincial to me to say so, but the British Who's Who provides amusing reading. Here are two of England's big men whose biographies are listed: Rear Admiral Reginald Aylmer Ranfurly Plunkett-Erle-Drax, and Sir Rustonjee Cowasjee Cursetjee Jansetjee Jeheeb-hoy.

Tells What Keeps Him So Active

It is doubtful if you could find a man who has more friends than Major General J. F. Clinkscales, Commander of Forrest's Cavalry, Western Division, and commander of the second division of Confederate Veterans in Texas. In telling how he keeps so active at his age, Gen. Clinkscales quickly launched into his favorite subject when seen at his home in San Antonio at 3000 So. New Braunfels Ave. "Nature's Remedy does it. When we disobey the laws of nature we must suffer. Nobody is immune. I am no different than anyone else, except that I know the minute anything goes wrong in my stomach or bowels, I take Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets)."
Any druggist will tell you that the little 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is what you need when your stomach becomes sour, bowels tight and you suffer from indigestion, biliousness, sick headaches. More than 3 million are used a day.

Chimes Played by Rain
Children of the vicinity of University high school, Sawtelle, Calif., can hear, when it rains, the chimes in Louis Ziegler's "singing tower." Holes carefully placed in the dome built on the top of the sheet-iron house that this veteran of the Indian war of the late sixties built for himself, permit raindrops to drip down on chimes made of discarded glass lampshades, arranged around a ring of copper tubing. Some who have heard the most pretentious chimes in the country have said this rain-drop-played instrument is better for soft, sweet, melodious tones.

CHAPTER XII

The Battle on the Carcajou

All the morning the dog-team traveled north. At noon the lake narrowed to its outlet and shortly the boys were following a ridge which paralleled a headwater branch of the Carcajou. But, to their surprise, on inspection, they found that the trail which followed the ice of this little river, had not been used in weeks. Still, the cautious Gaspard held to the timber, rather than travel the easy river road. Once seen from the hills, they could be easily ambushed from the shore, so the team held to the hard and circuitous going of the thick scrub.

All morning they had traveled under a muffled sun, and in the early afternoon the north unfurled its leaden banners of the coming snow. In midafternoon, to avoid a circle of the shore, Gaspard had followed up the shoulder of a high ridge from which the valley of the stream opened before them for miles. They stopped to rest the dogs, for even with the good going of the hard crust, the five hundred pound load of food, which would carry dogs and men through to April, maddened hauling on the hills.

While Gaspard smoked a pipe, Brock curiously examined through his glasses the unknown country to the north. How long and great a river was this Carcajou which flowed into the bay to the northwest of Cape Henrietta Maria, no one at Hungry House or Ekivan had known. Whether they were now on one of its headwaters, neither he nor Gaspard was sure. Somewhere to the west of the Carcajou lay the watershed of the great Winisk. This river they followed might swing to the west—might, for all they knew, be Winisk water. But of one thing they were sure. The Crees who hunted this country knew the fate of Pierre Lacroix, and to learn what that had been, was the sole object of this wild adventure.

Brock had swung the glasses far down the little valley, when suddenly, he exclaimed:

"By golly, Gaspard! There's a dog team traveling north on the river trail!"

The halfbreed sprang to his friend's side. Brock handed him the glasses. For a space, through the falling snow, Gaspard studied the black speck on the river trail. Then he returned the glasses.

"You keep on wid de dog," he said. "I go have a look at dat Cree."

With heart pounding with expectancy, Gaspard swung and slid and dodged down through the timber on his snowshoes, for in timber the crust is fickle and seldom strong. At the river shore, the halfbreed abandoned all caution and slipping out of his shoes, took to the ice, for the team he followed was traveling at a trot at least a mile below him. Downstream ran the tireless son of Pierre Lacroix through the fast thickening snow, rifle and snowshoes in his hands. At last he approached a sharp turn, and sure that his quarry was near, cut directly up through a shoulder of high shore to obtain a view of the river below him. Hurrying through the scrub he looked downstream.

"By Ga!!" gasped the panting boy, his eyes widening in astonishment.

On the river ice, hardly three hundred yards below, two dog teams lay in front of their sleds. In a group four men talked, their laughter clearly audible to the hunter watching from the timber.

"He meet den traveling upstream," muttered Gaspard. Then the deep-set eyes of the boy opened, as his lips framed the name: Gros-Pied!

Gros-Pied, Big-Foot, one of the team of the missing Pierre Lacroix, had risen and stood sniffing the air, as the heart of Lacroix's son pounded in his chest. Yes, it was Gros-Pied! There was no dog marked like him, with that black head and that single white sock. He was in the team headed down-river—good! But where he was, Gaspard was in danger from the keen noses of the huskies. He must move back and warn Brock. From where he lay he could kill or wound them all, before they got to their rifles on the sleds, but he wanted an unhurt prisoner. No, he would cut back and find Brock; then, in the morning they would ambush the sled headed south, with Gros-Pied, his father's dog.

The light was going fast as the snow thickened. Brock would already be making camp back in the timber, upstream. He must find him. Tomorrow they would have a prisoner, and then—they would have a prisoner, and then—they would have a prisoner, and then—

After four hours of blind search through the timber below the ridge where he had left Brock and the team, Gaspard saw the yellow glow of the fire.

At daylight six inches of new snow lay on the crust and to the boys, nothing was clear. If they wished to overtake the Indian heading down-river, they would have to abandon the safety of the timber and take the hazard of the river ice.

So Gaspard went ahead to the river, to reconnoiter; while Brock followed with the team. In a half hour, as the sun rose, lighting the forest, the halfbreed met Brock packing the new snow ahead of the toboggan.

"I saw dem start—free, up-rivier; one, our man, go down-stream. Een little piece you swing out to de ice and follow me. I go ahead to head been off. He got no lead, he travel fast."

With a wave of the hand, Gaspard was gone.

Carrying his loaded rifle, Brock traveled ahead for a half hour, then angled out to the river, followed closely by Yellow-Eye and the team. The three men bound up-river should now be far in their way, he thought, as he looked out to the ice where the broken snow marked the passage of sleds since the fall of the night before. Stopping the team, Brock went to the cover of some shore willows and looked up-stream. The freshly broken trail ran for a mile and disappeared behind a bend. They were miles away, by this time! So returning, he drove his dogs down to the ice and out to the river trail.

With the start of over a hour the Indian in front of him, would be far down stream. Gaspard would have to travel hard through the bush to head him off.

Brock was excited. At last they were in the enemy's country—getting some action. Any moment, now, things might happen. The safety of his friend gave him little concern. Gaspard had but one man to deal with—a man traveling with his gun cased in his sled. Gaspard would get his man, unhurt, without a fight. It was the safety of the dogs and the precious load of grub on the sled that occupied Brock's thoughts.

He had traveled for an hour, when, as he approached a sharp bend in the river, throwing the trail close to a shore, thick grown with scrub, like the case of a whip a premonition of danger flicked his nerves.

With a fierce, "Haw, Yellow-Eye!" Brock swung the team to the opposite shore, and with a rough "Marche!" led them on the opposite bank.

He had barely reached the cover of the spruce when the opposite shore roared with the explosion of rifles. A cut spruce twig fell on his shoulder.

"I knew it!" gasped the crouching boy, knife drawn to loose the dogs in a case of a rush over the ice.

Gripping the rifles beside the trembling dogs, mystified by the shots from the opposite shore, and the actions of their master, from his cover Brock watched the river ice. He had fooled the "sophie" in ambush—once! What would be their next move? For move they soon would.

If he cut the dogs loose, now, they would cross the river, only to meet a hail of lead. No, he must hold them—keep them with him, until he was rushed; if the Crees had the nerve to rush him. Then he led the traces of Flash and Yellow-Eye and show these murderers how two Ungavians could fight. And God help them, if the dogs reached them!

And Gaspard? Had he heard the shots? If he had he'd back-track on the run and his rifle would soon be singing. But suppose he traveled up the ice straight in to range of the Crees in the scrub?

Fearing his plunging dogs would snap their traces, Brock unhooked the leader and rear dog and lashed them to separate trees, within easy reach of his knife. Silt-Ear and Kona he left traced to the heavy sled. Then with elbow on knee he lined his sights on the thicket across the stream and waited for the flash and blue-wisp of smoke from the Crees' guns to give him a target. For he knew that the Indians would not hold their fire.

For minutes the boy held his sights lined on the ambush—but no rifles belched their yellow flame from the green scrub. His eyebrows knotted in surprise. Then, like a flash, he guessed the cause.

The Crees were not there! They had crossed the river behind the cover of the bend, below him, and were staring him up his own shore! With a leap he reached Kona and Silt-Ear and cut them loose.

"Get em, Kona! Silt-Ear!" he cried and pointed down stream. Yelping madly the two dogs disappeared. "Down! Yellow-Eye!" he fiercely commanded, winding his wrist with the cut traces of the lead dog. "Shut up, Flash! Standy, Flash!" he reached the puppy, frenzied with excitement, and cut him loose, and gripping his traces with the hand carrying the gun plunged inland from the river shore.

Three Good Reasons for Study of Greek

There was once a rough and uneducated man who had made money and who entered his boy in a swell college preparatory school. The head master asked him if there was anything he was particularly desirous his son should be taught, and the uneducated one replied: "Yes, there is. I want him to take Greek."

"May I ask," inquired the head master, in considerable amazement, "why you are so insistent upon his pursuit of that particular subject?"

"Well," said the rude parent, "there are three reasons why I want him to learn Greek: First, because it's hard; second, because he don't want to; and, third, because it's no good any way. If he learns it after all that, he'll show he's got some stuff in him." Moral: This fable has morals enough to fill a book.—Edward C. Durfee in Scribner's Magazine.

DAIRY FACTS

CLEANLINESS IS CALF ESSENTIAL

Nothing but Fresh, Pure Milk and Grain Safe.

How dairy calves may be raised from infancy to breeding age so as to return the greatest possible profit to the owner is the subject of a new and timely extension circular recently prepared by John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at the North Carolina State college.

Mr. Arey tells how to care for the young calf, how to teach him to drink, how to feed during the various stages of growth, and how to mix and use the various feedstuffs available on the North Carolina farm. It is made clear that cleanliness is essential for success and that this applies to feed, buckets, stalls and bedding. Nothing but fresh, clean milk and grain should be given and the hay should be fed from racks to keep it from getting soiled.

Early dehorning is also advised. Cows with horns often damage each other and especially should all the herd be dehorned if grade animals are used. Because of the attractiveness of well-trained horns, breeders of pure bred dairy cattle usually prefer to let them grow. Mr. Arey describes the caustic soda or potash method of dehorning during the early period of growth.

One of the other interesting and vital parts of the publication is the discussion of common ailments and diseases of calves. Common scours, whelp, scour, lice, ring worm, stomach and lung worms are discussed and suggestions made for control.

Cattle Get Tuberculosis From People or Poultry

An animal which reacts to the tuberculin test is a potential source of danger, Dr. R. R. Dykstra, dean of the veterinary division of the Kansas State Agricultural college, says. Oftentimes, although the post mortem examination will not show the presence of the disease, it is actually there. Human beings may carry tuberculosis to cattle, as will poultry, Dr. Dykstra explained. A cow which has the avian or poultry tuberculosis is not seriously harmed but the test will nevertheless show the disease to be present.

"This question always comes up," he remarked. "Is the meat of a tubercular animal ever sold? If the case is a light one, the meat will be sold for food, because the germs in this case are isolated in one part of the body and are of no danger, but if the disease is spread through the system, the meat is not sold for human consumption, but is made into tankage. The germs do no harm in the tankage because the steam used in its manufacture kills them."

Clover and Alfalfa Are Excellent for Cattle

In Kansas, white sweet clover hay was compared with alfalfa hay, using 11 cows through three 30-day periods. Little difference in weight was noticed but the cows eating sweet clover consumed somewhat less hay and more grain than those receiving alfalfa hay. The alfalfa-fed cows produced 2.7 per cent more milk and 3.4 per cent more fat than those fed sweet clover.

Either of these two crops makes excellent feed for dairy cattle. In cases where sweet clover fits into the crop system better than alfalfa, sweet clover will undoubtedly prove beneficial. In view of the fact that the soil requirements are practically the same for the two crops, alfalfa is more commonly used than was formerly the case.

Satisfactory Shelter for All Dairy Cattle

There are a good many types of barns or sheds that can be used satisfactorily for dairy cattle. Perhaps the majority of new dairy barns are of the two-story type with room for hay storage above the cows. Basement barns are used in the colder climates but are not as popular as formerly, on account of the difficulty of getting sufficient sunshine, ventilation and sanitation.

The open shed may be used for dairy cows but usually the winters are so severe that there would be little comfort for the cows or the milkers with such an arrangement. A protected yard where the cows may be turned on bright days often serves to an advantage. Sheds make excellent protection for young stock if they are protected from strong winds.

Modern Parasite

The latest definition of a parasite is a man who walks through a revolving door without doing his share of the pushing. But the champion parasite in the dairy business is the man who feeds his family oleomargarine and then complains about the low price he gets for his butter fat. He usually keeps an underfed lot of cows; and if the price of butter fat takes a drop, he is the first man in the community to cry about the injustice of our marketing system to the farmer.

COMPANY TRYING TO GIVE AWAY BRIDGE

Two Cities in Quandary as to What to Do.

Omaha, Neb.—The cities of Omaha and Council Bluffs are up against an unique proposition. The street railway company wants to give its big bridge over the Missouri river connecting the two cities to them. There's no catch in the proposition. In fact, the company has placed a deed to the bridge in escrow with the presidents of five Omaha and Council Bluffs banks, without the payment of a cent by the cities, without the emission of a cent of taxes, or without payment in any way. The only condition is that the cities shall not build a municipal free bridge within 1/4 mile of the street car bridge within the six and one-half years.

That bridge is taking in approximately $40,000 every month in tolls. The company values it at more than $1,000,000 and it is paying interest on an investment of over $5,000,000. The lowest estimate placed on the structure by engineers employed by the city is something over $2,500,000.

Cities Hesitate. Both Omaha and Council Bluffs hesitate about accepting the offer of the company to give the cities that bridge. For three or four years both Omaha and Council Bluffs have been talking free municipal bridge. Two or three years ago the city tried to buy this bridge, but the company refused to sell at any price. There was an election and the voters refused to sanction bonds necessary to make a purchase by condemnation proceedings.

Then question of a municipal bridge died down, but about one year ago it came up again, with more energy than ever. Committees have been appointed by two or three different bodies to dicker with the railway company for the purchase of the bridge.

The most popular plan proposed is to build a competing bridge across the river one block below the street car company's bridge. Then somebody clogged the wheels by proposing three free bridges—one in the center of the city and one at the southern end, with a third bridge at the northern end.

This caught the fancy of the residents of those sections, so that Omaha found itself faced by having to build three municipal bridges, if it went into the bridge ownership at all.

Council Bluffs went ahead and voted bonds for $400,000 to pay that city's share of the bridge. Omaha was expected to put up the balance. The Supreme court has declared Council Bluffs' bond issue illegal. Omaha has not voted on the proposition but may do so this spring.

Railways Step In. Then the railway company threw a bomb by offering to make the city a present of its bridge. It is assumed there will be no toll, if the city takes over the company's bridge, and the company asks that its street cars be allowed to cross the bridge just like other vehicles, the company paying a proportion of the upkeep, but paying no tolls. The $40,000 monthly collected in tolls would go to the cities until the property is paid for, after which the bridge would be free.

The company says no formal action by the city councils is necessary. The company is going to give the bridge to the cities whether the city councils accept it or not. The only way the two cities can keep from accepting is to start building a bridge close to the old structure.

The municipalities may try building a bridge only a block from the railway bridge and thus lose the bridge already built, and which would cost the cities nothing at all.

Brest Monument Rises as Tribute to U. S. Navy

Brest, France.—A monument to the United States navy and its operations during the World War is under construction at a point overlooking the Atlantic ocean near here.

The city of Brest, port of arrival for a majority of the United States soldiers, is assisting the American Battle Monuments commission in the construction, which it is expected will be completed within 18 months. The monument will consist of a polished granite tower 40 meters high, poised on a base decorated with bronze stars entwined around a giant anchor.

A staircase will allow visitors to climb to the top of the monument, from which point an exceptional view of the Atlantic and Brest may be obtained.

Bodies of Three Indian Fighters to Be Reburied

Glendive, Mont.—Remains of three pioneer soldiers killed in Indian skirmishes in early days, will be exhumed and placed in a cemetery with proper markers. The Glendive American Legion post has written the War department for the identity of the slain soldiers, and the exact location of their last resting places, believed to be in Yellowstone valley, three miles south of Glendive.

Horse Diets for Years

Westfield, Mass.—A forty-year-old horse, owned by Dr. Eugene Shurtlett of Boston, has died here after living for several years on a specially-prepared diet required after it lost all its teeth. In its younger days the animal used to take the doctor from the rail road station here to his summer home in Blandford.

"It's all very well," Mr. Raskob ended, "to begin at the bottom of the ladder, but this fellow has got into the habit of doing it."

A STATEMENT CON-CERNING PROHIBITION

Earnest R. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, recently sent out a statement to the press which the wet element of this country might do well to ponder. Mr. Cherrington characterized the wets generally as moral cowards and declared that only by open violation of the prohibition law and voluntary acceptance of terms in prison following pleas of guilty would critics of the Eighteenth Amendment win the right to be taken seriously.

"Let wets boldly and publicly violate the laws to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment if they desire the American people to believe in their sincerity when they claim the right to break a law which they assert is a violation of liberty," his statement read.

"Let them invite the police to witness such violation, submit to arrest, plead guilty, offering in mitigation no pleas save that they believe their liberty has been invaded. Let them accept whatever sentence the court imposes, and serve such sentence without asking pardon or probation. Then they may convince some of their sincerity.
 Then, and only then, they may be accepted as martyrs to principle rather than as fettered victims of the drink habit."

The reason a good many people think the Eighteenth Amendment is unjust and can not be enforced rests not upon any conviction which they have of the matter as to the rightness or wrongness of the prohibition laws but simply because of a thirst they have in that direction.

were indulged in, the most important being the game of "pinning the donkey's tail on." Mildred Stavley won first prize and H. E. Monroe won the booby prize. The birthday cake with 13 candles, adorned the center of the table and the cutting of it provoked much merriment.

Dean Williams cut the thimble, Prince Dishman the nickle and Elmo Taylor, Jr., got the button. Refreshments of red lemonade and cake were served to 21 guests. At 6 o'clock the children departed for their various homes, after thanking their young host for a most delightful afternoon.

One of the boys who drives a gravel truck for the Dexter Construction Co. came near having a serious accident last Friday. While going down the steep grade at Prairie Creek he lost control of his truck and it ran into the concrete bridge, knocking down three of the concrete posts and plunging thirty feet to the bed of the creek. The driver jumped clear of the truck before it went off the bridge, thereby saving his life. He escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Troxie Daugherty spent the week-end in Alpine, where she visited her son, Fred, who is attending Sul Ross.

R. M. Johnson of El Paso transacted federal income tax business here Saturday of last week.

In each issue of the Sanderson Times you will find one column given to the different churches. In this week's paper you will find an article which was handed in by the Rev. W. M. Justice, pastor of the Methodist church. The Times will be glad if some of the other denominations would hand us an article for the column next week. One article each week from one of the churches, and their card each and every week. It's wise to choose a SIX!

After all, it is a perfectly simple matter to decide which automobile to buy in today's market. Only two questions must be answered to your satisfaction—

First: Which car gives the most for my money?

Second: Which car represents the soundest investment in satisfaction and pride of ownership?

Six-Cylinder Motor

In buying a low-priced car consider the following facts:

It is wise to choose a six-cylinder motor—for six cylinders are necessary to take out vibration and roughness. Six-cylinder smoothness will save the motor, the chassis, the body, the passengers and the driver.

The Chevrolet is a six. And yet it sells at a price that anyone can afford to pay.

This very low-priced car lasts longer, not only because of fine materials and oversize parts, but also because it is a six. Its big, smooth, 50-horsepower six-cylinder engine is always "taking it easy." There is no feeling of strain.

With all its six-cylinder smoothness and power the New Chevrolet Six uses no extra gasoline or oil. Efficient design makes this possible—overhead valves—high compression power from any fuel—very latest carburetor—close-fitting, long-wearing pistons—crankcase ventilation—air cleaner. You can really have extreme economy and still satisfy your ideal of truly modern transportation.

Chevrolet economy is also the mark of Chevrolet sincerity in manufacture. To illustrate:

Chevrolet valves are readily accessible and adjustable. This saves replacing valves, and also makes it possible to preserve the efficiency of the engine.

Fully Enclosed Brake

A similar example is found in Chevrolet's molded brake lining—reducing the necessity of frequent replacement, and consequent expense.

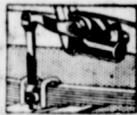

Furthermore, there is a rear axle inspection plate on the Chevrolet.

The Coach	$565
The Coupe	565
The Sport Roadster	555
The Sport Coupe	655
The Club Sedan	625
The Sedan	675

This makes it unnecessary to take the axle apart to examine or clean it.

The new Chevrolet Six is full of such evidence that true motor car economy comes from modern advancement and refinement.

Like the finest cars, the Chevrolet Six provides the comfort and protection of four springs controlled by hydraulic shock absorbers. They are mounfed lengthwise, in the direction of car travel, and self-adjusting spring shackles maintain quiet.

Delco-Lorain Shock Absorbers

With low suspension and extra wheelbase, the Chevrolet Six has excellent proportions.

Its impressive front view is distinguished by the genuine honeycomb radiator, another mark of modern cars.

Safety Gasoline Tank

The gasoline tank is in the rear, for safety and finer appearance.

Chevrolet beauty instantly says "Body by Fisher"—costly car style, with the permanent quiet of Fisher composite steel-and-wood construction.

Body by Fisher also gives you a genuine non-glare windshield, adjustable driver's seat, more space, deeper and wider cushions, clearer vision, finer fabrics and fittings.

There is just as much extra value everywhere in the car. BY ANY STANDARD the Chevrolet Six is the greatest value in the low-price field.

It is wise to choose the Chevrolet Six with its six-cylinder valve-in-head motor... with full scientific equipment... with its Body by Fisher... with four long semi-elliptic springs, long wheelbase, low suspension, rear-mounted gas tank, honeycomb radiator and all the other features of this day and age.

No "just as good" oil, says lubrication expert

In every line of endeavor there is always a leader—and countless followers. The field of household lubrication is no exception. Unfortunately the general public doesn't always appreciate the difference between the real thing and the "just as good"—but household experts do.

They know an oil intended for general household lubrication should clean and protect as well as lubricate. 3-in-One Oil does these three things, because it is a scientific compound of three high grade products—animal, mineral and vegetable oils. It is distinctly in a class by itself.

3-in-One costs more to make than ordinary oil, but less to use. If you want the best possible service from your sewing machine, vacuum cleaner, lawn mower, washer, electric fan and other household devices, insist on the old reliable 3-in-One Oil. At good stores everywhere, in 15c and 30c sizes. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.

Bars Husband From Kitchen
The shah of Persia in the course of a recent public speech ridiculed the "husband in the kitchen." The man who takes pride in his cooking is a nuisance, he stated, and advised the Persian women not to respect the man who is always too willing to help them around the house.

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1116 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puffy."

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way.

Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

ENSEMBLES OF PRINT CREPE; TINY CAPELETS DOING DUTY

FOR practicality, for comfort, for attractiveness, choose for the spring costume a three-piece ensemble of printed crepe in tweed patterning and thus be rewarded with a hundred per cent satisfaction.

It is possible to buy dainty crepe weaves which to the touch have the caress of silk, while at the same time because of their tweedlike patternings, they give the impression of handsome tuckings or other equally effective details.

Tiny Capelets Flattering.
It does not follow because a frock is sleeveless that the top of the arms will remain uncovered—not with millions of tiny capelets doing duty, as they now are, in the absence of sleeves. In almost every instance where sleeves are minus a capelet is present. Very flattering, they are, too, these wee-conservative cloth suitings. Materials of this character are admirably adaptable to spring wear, for they have that happy combination of "looks" and "feel" which assumes smartness plus perfect comfort during the fiftful changes of March winds and April showers which lead on to May flowers.

Just such an ensemble as "one loves to wear" for practical occasions is shown in this picture. This tailored ensemble is made of printed bemberg crepe, done in a green, eggshell and brown colored scheme. The cardigan jacket in brown and eggshell is trimmed with brown crepe. The tuck-in blouse is of identical patterning as that used for the skirt and jacket, but it emphasizes contrast in that green instead of brown is combined with the eggshell tint. The hat, hand bag and footwear are in matching brown.

The charm of such a suit is that when one wants to wear a different blouse it is possible to do so. Such cunning tuck-ins as one finds in the blouse section is enough to tempt to capelets, so youthful, and with a refining touch that does away with the crude lines of utter sleevelessness.

So it is, that as prettily frivolous as capelets may appear, they really are put here for a purpose, their mission being to look and to act like little sleeves, or at least to suggest them as they ripple from the shoulder, or flow and flutter about the arm with an exceeding grace.

It's the fashion for tennis frocks to be caped, the picture below showing an attractive treatment. The material for this frock is as interesting as the styling of the dress itself, being dainty wool challis. If you have not had printed challis suggested as a likable and chic material for the making of frocks to wear on the tennis court, you have missed a very important style message.

In fact, challis is an exceedingly popular fabric just now, for not only simple daytime frocks, but for the blouse to be worn with the suit, or for the entire ensemble. Paisley patterned challis is ever so smart in colorings wild indulgence. Really, one cannot have too many blouse changes, so to buy and buy is not at all an extravagance—merely the wise investment of the style-minded.

Assuming that millady be the happy possessor of an ensemble as here pictured and described, it would be the better part of wisdom to invest in several blouses to wear with it, one of brown handkerchief linen, or of orange colored bemberg pique, or a brown and white polka dotted shantung, or that which carries the utterly feminine and dainty lingerie touch—a blouse made of white or printed net, with quaint little puff sleeves and lots of lace edging with myriads of pin-duplicating those of quaint cashmere shawls.

Bordered challis makes up stunningly into three piece costumes. Then, too, it is the fashion to wear short jackets of challis in monotone, over gay-printed challis frocks.

To return to the subject of capelets designers are not hesitating to employ them, not only for simple washable dresses, but afternoon chiffons reveal in all sorts of little frilly contraptions to give grace to the shoulder line. Sometimes, even when sleeves are employed, capelets are also included in the picture.

Lesson for April 13

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:1-14; 19:13-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto Me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus, the Children's Friend.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Friend of Girls and Boys.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Growing in the Kingdom.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Sin of Neglecting and Misguiding Children.

I. The Greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven (vv. 1-4).

The prominence given to Peter in connection with the announcement of Christ's purpose to build the church and the payment of tribute with the money in the fish's mouth, provoked jealousy on the part of the other disciples. The transfiguration scene revealed the divine person and the program of His kingdom. Seeing that the kingdom was to come to realization despite the tragedy of the cross, disciples wished to know their place of rank in the kingdom.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 2-4).

He taught them by placing a little child in their midst.

(1) Condition of entrance into the kingdom (v. 3). The great question was as to whether they were really in the kingdom. Their behavior revealed the fact that they needed conversion. Before they could even see, much less enter into, the kingdom, they must be born from above (John 3:3, 5). (2) Whoever possesses childlike humility is the greatest (v. 4). The child is dependent, lowly and modest. Those who have been born again, or converted, have these characteristics.

II. The Lord's Identification With His Believing Ones (vv. 5-9).

1. Receiving the believer in Christ's name is receiving Christ (v. 5).

Through faith in Christ we become God's children and so completely in our life interwoven with His that He regards treatment of us as treatment of Himself.

2. The peril of causing a believer to stumble (vv. 6-9).

To cause to stumble means to give occasion for a moral fall. The particular reference was to the carnality and selfishness which were expressing themselves in their contention for pre-eminence. Their behavior was not only an injury, but a stumbling block to others. Everything causing one to stumble, though it be as vital as hands and feet, should be removed.

III. Believers Are Specially Cared for by the Heavenly Father (vv. 10-14).

1. They are under angelic guardianship (v. 10).

So precious is the believer in God's sight that angelic messengers are provided (Heb. 1:10). These angelic messengers have access to the very throne of God, even beholding His face. So high is the honor bestowed upon believers that the highest angels are sent to guard them.

2. The Son came especially to save such from their lost condition (vv. 11-14).

The Heavenly Father does not will that any one of these should perish. They are objects of the Father's seeking love. The salvation of the humble believer has been secured by the incarnation and the sacrifice of the Good Shepherd.

IV. Jesus Receiving Little Children (Matt. 19:13-15).

We should carefully note the setting of this text. Jesus had been speaking of the sanctity of marriage, which is the bulwark of the home. Into the sacred enclosure of the home comes childhood to complete and ennoble it.

1. Children brought to Jesus (v. 13).

Doubtless they were brought by their parents. Many parents today who are careless as to themselves, desire to bring their children into touch with Jesus Christ.

2. Rebuked by the disciples (v. 13). They regarded children as too insignificant to engage the Lord's attention. Christ places high value upon children.

3. The disciples rebuked by Christ (v. 14).

These words uttered by the Lord have placed a peculiar dignity upon the child. It is Christlike to care for children and no service in the world pays such large dividends.

4. Christ laid His hands upon the children (v. 15).

Little "Ifs" That Might Have Changed History

The word "if" has been the cause of much reminiscing ever since Adam said, "Oh, if we had never eaten the apple."

Professor Hearnshaw, of London University, has prepared a book called "The Ifs of History," in which he says:

"If Cleopatra's nose had been an eighth of an inch longer she would have failed to excite Julius Caesar or Mark Anthony and the history of the world would have been changed."

"If the battle of Actium had not been fought, the empire of Augustus would not have been established, neither Pontius Pilate nor Herod would have ruled Syria and Rome might have remained a stranger to the Christian faith."

"If the Spanish garrison of Gibraltar had not been so pious as to be attending church when the English troops attacked, the rock would not be in English possession today."

Machinery in Industry

In the United States 45,500,000 men are employed, but electricity and machines bring the total annual man power to over 600,000,000 men, reads an article in Fortune, the business magazine. A conservative estimate of the energy output in terms of man power as compiled by Fortune follows: Electric power, 337,880,000; railroads, 127,000,000; agriculture, 73,070,000; manufacturers, 70,000,000; mines and quarries, 17,600,000; automobiles, 12,200,000. Total, 637,750,000.

Beauty's Worth It

Contrary to public opinion, most beautifying takes a lot of work and a lot of courage. Anyone who has had a permanent wave will testify to this. And any woman who has reduced her weight conscientiously will say "amen."—Woman's Home Companion.

To "Point-Up" Appetite Just Stimulate Bowels

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts; food doesn't tempt you and won't digest; breath is bad; tongue coated; just chew a candy tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

A candy Cascaret clears up a bilious, gassy, headache condition every time. Puts appetite on edge. Helps digestion. Activates bowels.

Cascarets are made from cascara, which authorities say actually strengthens bowel muscles. So, take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascarets for a dime, and no dollar preparation could do better work.

Uncle Eben

"Everybody is entitled to his own opinion," said Uncle Eben, "same as he's entitled to a dog, if he'll keep it 'fum botherin' other people."—Washington Star.

It is universally conceded that fast men are slow pay.

Naturally
"The place for bees—" began the man who had been reading up on apiculture.
"Is between the A's and the C's," growled his victim, as he made his getaway.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

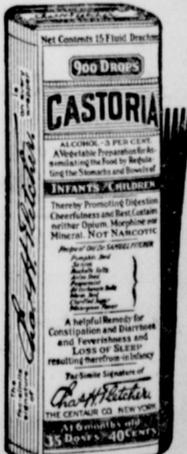

The man who does no harm in the world does but little good.

FAMILY DOCTOR
LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where had breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripes; children liked its pleasant taste. All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

When Babies CRY

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.
