Farewell Party For MacMillans

Last Thursday night, at the Masonic Temple, Mr. and Mrs. S. Bodkin, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Caldwell, and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Griffith sponsored a delightful informal farewell party given in honor of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. MacMillan and son, Russell, who are leaving Sanderson for their home in Tulia, Texas. This pleasant surprise was timed to take place on the date upon which Rev. MacMillan received the degree of Doctor of Divinity. Miss Myrtle Harrell, assisted by Mrs. R. S. Wilkinson, Mrs. T. des Landes, and Mrs. M. B. Johnson, arranged the program, which was as follows: Opening address, Mr. J. D. Nienous; piano, "Troops on Parade," Berens and Beatrice Nichols; song, "Friendship," Mrs. Mack Lester, accompanied by Mrs. R. S. Wilkinson; address, "Friendship," Rev. E. Griffith, pastor of the church of Christ; violin solo, Harry Goldwire, accompanied by Mrs. M. B. Wilson; song, "Auld Lang Syne," by Ladies Choral Club.

Following the rendering of the program J. D. Nichols, on behalf of their many Sanderson friends, presented Dr. MacMillan and his family with a parting gift, a beautiful reading lamp.

Taken completely by surprise by the presentation of this gift, Dr. MacMillan and his wife endeavored to express their appreciation for this tangible manifestation of good will on the part of their Sanderson friends.

Mrs. S. C. Bodkin, Mrs. A. F. Griffith, and Mrs. Ray Caldwell served delicious punch and lady fingers. It was altogether a delightful occasion and was enjoyed by all present.

Highway Members Association Meet

Members of the U. S. Highway No. 90 Association (the Border Way), met at the Hotel Roswell in Del Rio last Saturday. Those from here who attended the meeting were John Stovell and Judge G. J. Henshaw. This association was organized about a year ago for the purpose of boosting travel over U. S. Highway 90 which runs from San Antonio to El Paso. The association has accomplished lots of good and hopes in the future to accomplish more. It will send out men, both east and west, distributing literature and advertising the "Border Way." At the meeting last Saturday Clay Holland of Alpine was nominated for president of the association for the ensuing year. Each county along this highway will be allowed two directors in the association; the county judge in each county is one of the directors and the other will be appointed at the meeting on July 10.

The next meeting will be held in Van Horn on July 10, at which time a big free barbecue will be had, and the general public is cordially invited to attend. A motorecade will start from San Antonio on July 8 and arrive in Del Rio that night, and will leave Del Rio on the morning of July 9 and pass through Sanderson and on to Van Horn. As many of our citizens as can possibly do so are asked to join the motorecade here and go on to the meeting and barbecue at Van Horn.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Breeding and Tom Breeding motored to San Antonio Sunday of this week. C. M. Breeding returned on train Tuesday while Mrs. Breeding and Tom motored on to San Marcos where they visited Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Dalton, who returned with them to Sanderson where they will visit about two weeks. C. M., Seth and Tom Breeding are sons of Mrs. Dalton.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dragoo and daughter from Christoval visited Ira Dragoo and family of this city from Thursday of last week until Sunday of this week. Ira Dragoo is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dragoo.

Horton Haley, Jess Haley and Ira Dragoo and wife were called to Del Rio Wednesday of last week on account of the death of Mr. and Mrs. George Haley's baby.

Little Miss Alma Merk, daughter of Mrs. H. P. Pauli, is expected to arrive in Sanderson Sunday morning from Austin, where she has been attending school.

Mr. and Mrs. Prince Dishman motored to Marathon Sunday of this week where they visited the family of Hack Dishman.

Mrs. S. A. Kernal left the latter part of last week for San Antonio where she will spend a week visiting.

W. A. Latimer attended the banquet given in honor of Rev. MacMillan and family Thursday night of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Hains and family spent Sunday at the ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Ivey.

Club Sponsors Loan Fund

The Sanderson Culture Club met with Mrs. Lee McCue for the last social meeting of the year, with Mrs. H. L. Stuckey and Mrs. Gayle Mussey as hostesses.

Mrs. H. R. Laurence led the program in Mrs. McKee's absence, and gave us a very delightful boat trip from Panama to San Diego, Calif.

An excellent paper on Burbank's life and work was read by Mrs. A. D. Brown.

Mrs. A. E. Creigh was hostess on our journey from California to El Paso, and she proved a very interesting guide, telling us many wonderful things about our home land.

The Carlsbad Cavern tour proved to be a grand climax to the club's tour of seeing America first, as it is given first place as the world's greatest and most wonderful cave.

In summing up our work for the year the members of the club think that by far the most important thing they have undertaken is the Student's Loan Fund. This money is to be loaned to some worthy student of the Sanderson High School, and will be raised by the ladies of the club in various ways among them, solicitations, gifts, etc.

A copy of the Student's Loan Fund will appear in next week's issue. However the scholarship as it stands now will be one hundred and fifty dollars, to be loaned at four per cent interest for a period of from one to two years and your recommendation of the committee may be extended for one year.

This is a worthy cause. Any gifts will be greatly appreciated. A list of the donors names will be published from time to time. —Reporter.

Minton White of this city, who is attending the University in Austin, has had the honor to be selected as one of the players on the "All-Conference Baseball Team" for 1930. The position selected for Minton is right field, and a sport writer for the Austin American has this to say: "White has been the most consistent hitter of the Texas team and has few equals in the art of playing the outfield."

Minton's numerous friends in Sanderson are glad to hear he has received this deserving honor and hope he will have good success all along the line.

THE STORY

On a pleasure trip in eastern waters, Philip Amory, English World War veteran, now a trader on the island of Papua, New Guinea, plunges overboard to save the life of a musical comedy actress, known as "Gin-Sling."

What I wanted, what I was prepared to pull the ship in pieces to get, was another talk with Pia. I knew her mother would nose us out before long; still, the dining saloon, for quiet on almost any ship, and I hoped she would be there.

She was, lingering over the last of her breakfast, alone at her table. I ordered breakfast, and asked if I might join her. She bowed her head a little cooly, and I remembered that one could see passing figures on deck, from the open scuttles above us.

I don't know what we talked about at first. It was like orchard-robbing — when you run from one tree to another, plucking, eating, cramming, hurrying, intent on getting as much as you can in the few minutes before you are found and chased out by the farmer with the cart whip.

By and by all the stewards had breakfast and were gone, and somebody was dusting at the far end of the saloon; and bells sounded, of which we took no note. We were too busy orchard-robbing. I remember about this time, that we began to tell each other the story of our lives.

"It's all such tosh, isn't it? You live a real life. Tell me some secrets and adventures in New Guinea."

Now, I don't know—or perhaps I do — what had helped her to read me as she did; but it is a fact that while she was talking, something that was both a secret and an adventure—and a big one of both kinds—had been floating about in my consciousness. I had never spoken of it, never hinted it, to a soul.

"There is an adventure," I said, glancing about the emptied, silent saloon. "I've never told anyone." Pia nodded, as if to say—"Of course; not till I came." It was amazing, how we talked without words, that morning on the sea.

"I've explored a bit," I went on. "Not much. It takes money. But I know something. There was an expedition started out, years ago, between two unknown rivers, and just as it had to turn back they saw something wonderful. It was so wonderful that the leader of the expedition just looked at it, and came away, and never said a word to anyone—his mate died on the way back—but he always meant to go back, as soon as he could get the money to fit out again, because he knew there might be a fortune in it. Well, he never did; he died, too."

"Does every one die in Papua?" cut in Pia.

"Well, it isn't exactly a sanatorium outback—but the towns—"

"Never mind about the towns. Tell me the secret. Did your friend who died give it to you?"

"No. He left it to the woman he had been engaged to, only she—she—"

"Died?"

"No. She was dead when he left it to her, and I couldn't find out anything about her people, and his diary was in my hands, so I simply kept it, partly because I didn't suppose anyone would believe it but myself, and partly because I wasn't going to have anyone else trying. No, he had no relations, either—"

"Does nobody—"

"If we have, we don't tell about 'em. They're either too bad, or too good, for you understand me. Well—"

"But the secret—what was it?" I looked round again before speaking; almost I thought I heard the tramp of feet. But that was not likely—no one came there at that hour of the day. I was going on, when Pia jumped out of her seat as if a bucket of water had been poured over her, and without a word bolted up the wide staircase. Her flying heels disappeared on deck, just at the moment when a stately procession through some unknown ship's alleyway, entered the saloon. The captain, the purser, the doctor, the chief steward, all in white, all sparkling in their several degrees with gold buttons, gold stripes, gold epaulettes, gold capbands. Eleven o'clock inspection, nothing less!

"Gosh!" I murmured, collecting myself, and standing up. The captain paused, gave me a kindly nod, and asked me if I was none the worse for yesterday's adventure; said one or two polite things, and passed on. They were all gone in a minute, and I had time to recollect myself, and bless the ready ears of Pia Laurier.

I did not go out on deck; I did not want to. What I wanted was to be alone, and remember every little thing she had said, done, and looked, in that amazing two hours. It was impossible that Pia should have fallen in love with me—impossible, I kept telling myself fiercely. A girl like that—a girl who had the world at her feet—a girl brought up—

"But the Secret—What Was It?"

Well, but if she were not in love—a girl brought up like that—what had she been doing? Flirting outrageously, reasonably, with a man she didn't know anything about; a man of whom her family certainly disapproved. If she were not in love with me, I was bound to suppose that this sort of thing was her usual habit; that she would dodge away from her people to "carry on" below decks, with anyone and every one. There was no getting away from it; if I were not especially favored, then lovely face, pure eyes, never on earth had lied as did the face, the eyes, of Pia Laurier.

After all—after all—that plunge yesterday—the sharks—I did not want to "shake hands with myself" over an exploit that was nothing at all, compared to the things one had had to do as a matter of routine, day by day, during the not-yet-forgotten great war; still, I could not deny that it might have looked well to a girl who didn't know anything about battlefields. Certainly Jinny Treacher—

Sky and sea pale blue with a laugh in the heart of it, and a hint of coming dark that shadowed the laugh, even as some subconscious thought of time that flies, beauty that passes, was wont to shadow the sun of Jinny's merriment. Gulls screaming about the mast-heads, as they scream at break of even—who knows why? In fine, my last day almost done. My voyage over, all but the night and a useless hour or two of early morning; for we were not, after all, to run in to Thursday Island; a tender was to meet the ship, and take the passengers off.

What had I done? Where was the link that I had sworn should bridge the space between Pia Laurier's life and mine, somehow, before I left the ship? The answer was—Nothing; nowhere.

Jinny and her crew had never left me alone, from morning until now. The two other girls had been pressed into service; they with Jinny's special posse of youthful admirers, and last, never least, Gin-Sling herself, had combined to keep every moment occupied. Things had eaten, minute by minute, hour by hour, into my precious afternoon, until now it was near sunset, and the west toward which we were running, gateway of the Old World's East, was red with the lifeblood of the last day Pia and I might ever know, together.

There wasn't a man on the ship who did not envy me, I think for Jinny made me her partner in every game, and if I did not kiss her a dozen times or more, behind funnels, deck-houses, inside alleyways and down companions, it was not because she did not give me fair chance of doing so. I suppose I was freely credited with what I did not take. At any rate I caught the stinging tail of a joke or two, while passing the smoke-room windows on one of Jinny's wild "ploys."

She may have been touched also. At all events she paused, and with a self-possession I had not thought to be in her, faced me, and asked straight out—

"Why don't you like me, Mr. Phil Amory?"

"But of course I do," I answered her.

"You don't," she stated, coolly. "Not after saving my life and all."

"Liking!" I said. "No, I don't like you. If I saw more of you, I should love you. But liking, that's another thing."

Jinny puzzled this out. She was not used to subtleties. But she could jump to conclusions with fearsome swiftness, and she jumped now.

"I know what you mean by love," she said, and suddenly, coarsely, she turned and spat into the water.

"Do you know," she said—and she turned so that I could see her face; the bird-like eyes, gold eyes rimmed with dark; the devious, beautiful mouth, the circling hair—"Do you know what the square emerald ring on Pia Laurier's hand is?"

"Rings?" I said stupidly. Most men notice rings scarce at all. I remembered seeing jewels on Pia's tanned brown-satin wrist—or was it on the fingers, with the dainty white V-marks between, where the sun had spared to strike?

"Do you know who set that fashion?"

"I didn't know it was a fashion," I answered, still hopelessly at sea.

"It was Princess Mary—when she got engaged. All the smart girls have wanted square emeralds ever since. Smoke that!"

She whirled, one of her dancer whirls, and left me. "Come on, girls," I heard her crying, down the deck. "Get the gramophone going again. 'Nothin' dance—drink hearty, we'll soon be dead.'"

So little did I understand what she meant, that I was conscious, at first, only of relief. She had let me go; I could hunt up Pia Laurier, who had not been visible all afternoon. Part of my coinage of golden hours was still unspent; I must husband it, use it wisely. Pia—Jinny—

I was hurrying toward the music room, an excellent strategic point for viewing the main companion and the decks—when the full meaning of Jinny's remarks, and of her fierce "Smoke that!" broke on me.

Princess Mary had fancied a square emerald for an engagement ring. Princess Mary had made square emerald engagement rings popular with the set to which Pia Laurier belonged. Pia wore a square emerald ring—I remembered—fatally I remembered now—on her third left finger.

Explaining Bent Cross on Crown of Hungary

With reference to a question recently asked concerning the famous St. Stephen's crown of Hungary and the reason why the cross on top of it is bent, a Hungarian reader, B. S., writes as follows: "As a painter I painted signs which bear the Hungarian royal crown. My master told me they had a revolution in 1848 and some one buried the crown in the forest of Lakwa, southeast of Zlatice. Nobody knew of it for years until Franz Josef was to be crowned. The government sent men to look for it and by the help of a Serbian shepherd they found it with its cross bent."

Fruit's Double Product

The nutmeg is the pit or kernel of a tropical fruit. Inside this fruit, and bordering on the kernel, is a reddish flesh which, when dried, is known as mace. Thus we have two separate spices coming from one fruit.

SCENIC PLAYGROUNDS OF AMERICA

By G. M. KILBOURN

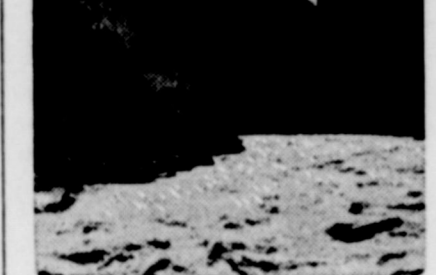

"Tightwad" Canyon That Became a Philanthropist

IF THERE were no fairy stories in the world, the hand of history would write some anyway, from a few of the actual facts of the American West.

The historic record of the taming of the Gunnison river of Colorado, for example, is the finest kind of a fairy story. First of all, of course, there's a beautiful but weeping princess in it—the sunbaked, helpless Uncompahgre river valley, a tempting sight to settlers, but watered only by a shiftless river which wastes its currents prodigally in spring, and dwindles almost to a brook in thirsty midsummer.

A few miles away, however, are great receding torrents tossed toward the princess by her football huddle of fairy godmothers, the high-hung snow-banks of the continental divide; but a cruel giant, the Black canyon of the Gunnison, has hid this rippling, live-giving birthright in a deep, black dungeon, behind walls that are miles across and nearly half a mile high.

Now, though, just as in all good fairy stories, comes the brave young prince—who in real life happens to be Gunnison River Canyon.

W. W. Torrence, a government engineer. A furious battle follows; the prince and his four companions encounter rocks, rapids, waterfalls, tremendous whirlpools, hunger, exhaustion; beaten, they run for their lives, and barely get away. But back comes the prince, this time with but one companion; and after another terrible struggle, the hero strikes the giant right through his middle—gouging a hole in him eleven feet wide and nearly six miles deep. After that little humiliation, the cautious oger reluctantly agrees to give up the stolen treasure—and today the Happy Princess Uncompahgre grows miles and miles of alfalfa, potatoes, wheat, and sugar beets (and enough onions to give internal halitosis to all North America).

The eleven-foot tunnel which drains a thousand cubic feet of water per second from the Gunnison river gorge and carries it nearly six miles under the mountain to irrigate 100,000 acres of a rival valley, is said to be the largest and longest irrigation tunnel ever constructed. This also happened to be the first irrigation project of the United States reclamation service. It is mainly interesting to outsiders because of the deep grandeur of the Black canyon as a scenic objective, and because of the stirring drama of exploration which had to precede construction of the $7,500,000 tunnel project.

The highway bridge that spans the Gunnison at Sabinero, Colo., at the head of the Black canyon, is said to be the highest auto bridge in the world. Rail travelers may ride along the rim of the canyon by taking the Gunnison-Montrose branch of the Denver and Rio Grande as part of their Royal Gorge-Salt Lake City trip.

The Gunnison-Uncompahgre tunnel was completed in 1909, with appropriate ceremonies. But anyone who cares for the real Gunnison story, the daring drama of exploring a bowlder-strewn gorge where every turn was a death threat, may find a bit of it recounted by John T. Farris in a book called "Seeing the Far West."

Fortune Came His Way

Fortunes are not always the result of hard work and good judgment, but are sometimes made by accident, says Jack McLaren in writing upon the subject in the London Daily Chronicle. One such case occurred when a roundabout was landed at Thursday Island—a cosmopolitan pearling center off the north coast of Australia—for transhipment to Japan. Finding there were a few days to wait, the proprietor decided to erect his apparatus and employ the interval by making it earn a little, instead of a few days he stayed three years.

For the island was completely lacking in entertainments, and the colored population rushed the roundabout as they would have rushed nothing else, riding it twenty hours a day, men, women and children, often three to a horse. Fare collectors had to be put on in relays.

So many were the repairs necessitated by the excessive working that before the end of the second year the whole affair had been twice completely rebuilt. Those three years gave the owner far more money than he had thought to earn in the whole of his life.

Dyes Used to Change Colorings of Flowers

Painting the lilies is now an established fact, thanks to scientific research. Cut flowers have been colored artificially for some time past, but most common dyes are poisonous to the flowers and make them wilt almost immediately.

Sweet peas, for example, are colored a brilliant blue five minutes after the newly cut stems are placed in a water solution of the dye. Lilies and carnations are also colored by the new dyes.

It is also found that flowers so dyed behave somewhat like photographic plates, and that miniature portraits, initials or messages may be imprinted by light upon the dyed petals.

FIRST THOUGHT

It was little Jacky's first experience in a train and the succession of wonders had reduced him to a state of astonishment.
 When the locomotive plunged into a tunnel there came from his corner sundry grunts indicating dismay and suspicion. Then the train rushed into daylight again and a voice was lifted in profound thankfulness and wonder. "Mamma! It's tomorrow."

Daddy Still Pondering

About Buying That Baby
 This little miss was quite young, as may be seen from this true story. Neighbor friends had a new baby in which she was keenly interested. She ran in to see it as often as she could and she kept telling the fond parents that she wanted one, too.

One day she came home in a state of high excitement.
 "Mamma," she called, "have you got a dollar?"

"No, my dear," her mother said, "I haven't got a dollar. What do you want a dollar for?"

But the child would not tell, although she kept insisting that she wanted a dollar very badly.

"Then you'll have to ask your daddy," said her mother.

But daddy insisted on knowing all about it and finally the story came out.
 "I told 'em," said the child breathlessly, "that I wanted a little baby just like theirs and they told me there was a place up street where I could get one for a dollar down an' a dollar a week. Now come along with me quick, daddy, an' let's get one. And you know it's just wonderful. If you pay your dollar down and then don't pay your dollar a week they won't take your baby away from you because they're glad to get rid of it."

Daddy is now trying to think of a good comeback for his neighbor friends.—Springfield Republican.

Hubby Not Doing More Work; Less to Be Done

Professors can grow interested in almost anything. Now one tells us that he has learned that men are doing a greater proportion of housework than they used to.

If husbands are becoming of some practical value in the home it will be a great thing for America. But there is a suspicion that the professor's angles are slightly distorted.

It isn't that men are doing more of the home work. It's the wives who are doing less. They are taking their meals out or living in apartments in which domestic life is at a minimum.

Housework used to be a standard occupation—in fact, a career. Now it is an incident or a joke. There are so many electric or mechanical devices in the home these days that about all that is required of the housewife is the ability to push a button or turn a switch.—Los Angeles Times.

Electric Telegraph

While H. C. Oersted, a Dane, was one who laid valuable foundations on which others built, he can hardly be called the inventor of the electric telegraph. He was one of a number of men, who, when electricity was imperfectly understood, conducted successful experiments of much value. He and G. C. Romagnosi discovered the action of the galvanic current on a magnet; and the application of this to telegraphic purposes was suggested by Laplace and carried out by Ampere, Schilling, and others. The work of these men forms the foundation of much of modern telegraphy. The patent for the first electric telegraph was issued in 1837 to Sir Charles Wheatstone and W. F. Cooke.

Championship Boxing Belts

When the sport of boxing appeared to be in some danger of languishing in 1909, Lord Lonsdale drew up a new scale of weights and conditions to govern title bouts, and, with the idea of adding distinction to the bout, he donated a challenge belt for each weight. These trophies are valued at $2,500 each, and consist of leather, gold and colored enamel. The conditions make it possible for a boxer actually to possess the belt by winning the title three times, not necessarily in succession. Eleven of these belts had been won outright in 1924 and eight were up for competition.

Sleeping Sickness Checked

Medical science has prevented the population of French Equatorial Africa from being wiped out by sleeping sickness, it was asserted in an interview by Raphael Antonetti, governor general of the colony. Although the birth rate was satisfactory, he explained, the population continued to diminish through disease which caused more deaths than there were births. This went on until 1921 when the French officials recognized the peril and took energetic action against sleeping sickness and all tropical infections.

Two Towers of Babel

The tower of Babel, at the Chaldean city of Ur, in the lower Mesopotamia valley, has completely disappeared. The base of the tower was 300 by 300 feet, tapering through seven stages to the shrine at the top, which was 300 feet high. There is a smaller tower at Ur, called the Ziggurat, which is supposed to have been the sister of the tower of Babel. It is 195 by 130 feet at the base, and something more than 150 feet in height.

Kidnaped

Jack H. Smith of Los Angeles, a member of the celebrated Smith family of Jamestown, Va., and all points west, has had the temerity to step into the new thought arena, and state his views on marriage. He states it this way:
 "Many a man would still be a bachelor if his wife hadn't hated the idea of being an old maid."

OIL NEWS

Geologists for the Gulf Production Company and other major companies are now doing additional detail work in this county. Several lease and royalty buyers are reported to be in the county endeavoring to purchase oil and gas leases and mineral rights. Several other parties in the oil business are here now attempting to secure drilling blocks and in some instances seem to be willing to pay a bonus and drill test wells.

J. Calvin Stansell of this county recently received an inquiry from some people in the oil business offering to drill a deep test well on the Stansell and Jones ranch situated about 11 miles south of this city, and pay a reasonable bonus also. It is reported that Mr. Stansell made a trip over to Del Rio this week to consult his associate, Hon. Walter F. Jones, relative to this particular business. Just what developments toward letting a deep test well be drilled has not been made public. Several additional samples from outcroppings on the Stansell and Jones ranch are now being submitted to the School of Mines at El Paso today.

The Keck Pecos Trust's well, Hamilton No. 1, in the southeastern portion of the county was drilling in full blast last night.

The Transcontinental's well, Goode No. 1, is reported still drilling in hard lime, exact depth not obtainable.

The Big Bend Oil Corporation's well, Bassett No. 1, is reported drilling around depth of 2000 feet with good indications of producing ample production.

Definite information from other wells drilling in the county is not obtainable at this issue of the press.

Auxiliary Meets.

The Womans Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church met at the home of Mrs. R. S. Wilkinson with Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. John Nichols as hostess.

A business session was held after which a program on the objective of this year's birthday party was given. A reading by Mary Ferguson was enjoyed. Colors of blue and gold were carried out in decorations and refreshments.

A beautiful decorated birthday cake with eight candles was lighted by different members, each one telling where the offering was sent for her year. Fifteen members and three visitors enjoyed the afternoon.

DIES AFTER AUTO CRASH

H. M. Hutchinson aged 55, who had the contract for the new school building here, died Tuesday as the result of injuries received in an automobile crash Tuesday morning near Langtry. It is said that Mr. Hutchinson and another man were going west when a tire blew out and the car turned over several times.

His home is in Del Rio and he is survived by a wife and seven children.

Tuesday Club.

Mrs. J. W. Sessions entertained the Tuesday Club with two tables of bridge. A delicious ice course was served to the following members: Mesdames Chastain, Barksdale, Burnside, Carter, Dishman, Holman, Breeding, and Nance.

High score was held by Mrs. Dishman, second, Mrs. Nance and low Mrs. Barksdale.

NOTICE

Voiced Harsh Opinion

of Colonial Morality

The scarlet letter, made famous by Nathaniel Hawthorne's novel, was a common form of punishment in colonial days, not for adultery alone but for forgery, drunkenness, cheating and other offenses, and woe to the person so adorned who was caught concealing this badge of disgrace. It may be doubted whether these harsh methods greatly increased the lawfulness of the community. In 1688 an Englishman visiting this country, perhaps one of the early lecturers, wrote back to England, describing the colonists: "For lying and cheating they outvie Judas and all other cheats in Hell. Nay, they make a sport of it; looking upon cheating as a commendable piece of ingenuity, commending him that has the most skill to commit a piece of roguery; which in their dialect they call by the name of outwitting a man and won't admit it to be cheating."—Boston Herald.

Widely Separated

Zenith and nadir are both Arabic words, the first signifying the point of the heavens directly above one, while nadir denotes the invisible point directly beneath.

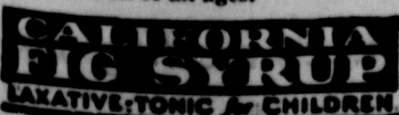

He who invests money in an tin thinks he will get more out of it.

After you get a dollar in your clutches the taint soon evaporates.

Lucky Mother

"My success with Betty Jean isn't just luck," says Mrs. D. H. Keating, 1318 Hays St., San Antonio, Texas. "It is due to a plan. She has always been in perfect health; has escaped the ill effects of colds and upsets because we have kept California Fig Syrup in our medicine cabinet, ready for the first sign of constipation. She loves its pleasant taste and we like its gentle, thorough action." Mothers by thousands now praise California Fig Syrup. For fifty years physicians have endorsed this pure vegetable product. It gives tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels; stimulates appetite; encourages digestion and assimilation. Its use helps make tall, listless children rosy, energetic and strong. Look for the name California when buying. That marks the genuine, proved safe and effective for babies and children of all ages.

SIMPLICITY MARKS BRIDAL DRESS; PICTURESQUE HATS FOR WEDDING

TRUE to tradition, here comes the June bride. From a fashion standpoint, she is a creature of moods this season, playing many roles. A favorite part she enacts is that of the "period bride" whose gown and those of her attendants stage quaint themes—perhaps a scene a la directoire or an exquisite classic of medieval inspiration. To successfully re-picture a bridal cortege reminiscent of the romantic yesteryears is no slight undertaking. On the part of the bride-to-be and those who are assisting in her plans, in the chapters which relate to the battling of those radiant creatures to whom is assigned the coveted role of attending the bride. Owing to the fact that millinery in general trends to the colorful, the sheer, the more elaborate and the picturesque this season, the line of distinction between hats for the bridesmaid and those for dressy occasion in the smart world, is not nearly so sharply drawn as heretofore. Wherefore in describing the fantasies which will crown the heads of the bride's

SIMPLE AND DIGNIFIED BRIDAL COSTUME

It requires no little amount of research and delving into past style history, for every detail of dress and accessory for the entire wedding group must be faithfully carried out down to the minutest item. Competing with the bride of romanticism is the bride who prides herself on being ultra modern. Rather than reclaim the past, her fancy turns to a sophisticated styling which declares the very latest. The bride in the picture registers in this class. Her gown reflects the very new silhouette which is fitted to the figure through deft shirring which traverses a vertical band of the material inset at the front of the bodice. A sweetly feminine touch is expressed in a yoke of exquisite lace, the same achieving a flattering neckline. The lower portion of the sleeves are also of lace. While the ingenu and picturesque types flaunt the new puff sleeves, and other cunning sleeve fantasies, when it comes to the classic satin wedding dress, the sleeves are usually long. The smartest brides of the season are making a feature of simplicity and this voguish lady in the picture is no exception to the rule. As ever, attendants a picture is at the same time drawn of just such headgear as women will wear with their floweriest, frilliest, and sheerest of frocks this summer. The airy fairness which is so prevailing this season in the realm of millinery reaches a climax of sheerness and transparency among hats created for the bridesmaid. Lace effects are the outstanding call of the moment. Not only lace in the usual sense of the word is employed in profusion but straw and hair laces provide an intriguing theme for the milliner. The group of chapeaux herewith illustrated tell at a glance that in addition to the wide-brim picturesque capeline, many striking novelties are being introduced into the bridal scene in the way of poke bonnets, baby bonnet types and off-the-face models. That very beautiful beribboned capeline sketched at the start of the illustration is of thinnest possible natural colored horsehair lace. The idea is to vary the color of the ribbon to tune in with the pastel tint of each bridesmaid's frock. A huge hair capeline is draped in satin either white or "altar" (a new deep ivory) is holding its own as first choice for the bridal robe. Speaking of media for the wedding gown it is very evident that quite a few brides-to-be have become that lace-conscious they are choosing a gown all of lace. A very lovely model recently completed for a spring bride was a sleeveless type of antique alien-con lace over white satin. A cape of the same lace fell from the shoulders, developing into a graceful train. Another cape of the lace draped from the fitted cap, caught under a bow at the back of the neck. Crowning the Bridesmaid. Now, as ever, millinery writes its most fascinating stories of romance off-the-face-fashion for the model at the top to the right—a silhouette which is repeated again and again this season. A bevy of lace gowned bridesmaids at a recently Paris staged wedding wore quaint baby bonnet types as centered in this group, made of lace matched to the orchid, rose, light green and pale blue of their frocks. The poke bonnet with a transparent brim is a popular theme this season, not only for the bridesmaid, but for garden party and other summery wear. JULIA BOTTOMLEY. (© 1930, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 1

CONTRAST BETWEEN FAITHFULNESS AND SLOTHFULNESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 25:14-30. GOLDEN TEXT—Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. PRIMARY TOPIC—Doing the Best for Jesus. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Rule for Promotion. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Use Our Talents. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Stewardship of Service.

This parable, like that of the ten virgins, has a vital relationship to the second coming of Christ. In both instances the unpreparedness for His coming on the part of the people is shown. In that of the ten virgins their unreadiness consisted in their lack of the inward life—absence of the Holy Spirit. In this of the talents, their failure was properly to use the gifts which God had entrusted to them. The first was failure to watch; the second was failure to work. To each of His servants, God entrusted certain gifts and will hold each responsible for their use. By talents is meant whatever faculties and powers one possesses as gifts of God—physical strength, reason, energy, knowledge, influence, time, money, the gift of speech and song.

I. The Distribution of the Talents (vv. 14, 15).

1. It was a sovereign act. The Lord called His own servants and distributed to them His own money. He did not consult us as to our gifts. The One who created us and absolutely owns us has assigned us our place and given us our several powers, intending that we put them to the best possible use.

2. It was an intelligent act. "According to his several ability."

The God who created us knew our ability to use gifts, therefore made the distribution upon that basis.

3. It was a purposive act. The talents were given to be traded with, not to be used for one's own gain and profit, but as stock in trade for the enrichment and glory of the Master.

II. The Employment of the Talents (vv. 16-18).

1. All the servants recognized that the talents were not their own; that they were therefore responsible to the Lord for the use made of them. This is the first principle of right Christian service. We should remember that we are all stewards of the manifold blessings and grace of God.

2. Two servants used their talents. The five-talent man put his to use and gained five more, and the two-talent man put his two talents to use and gained two more. This shows that God's gifts can be increased. The exercise of any gift increases it. The faithful use of what we have in the place where we are will prepare us for greater usefulness and honor.

3. The one hid his talent.

The fact that one possesses but one talent should not discourage him, but rather make him strive the more. God does not reward according to what we possess, but according to our faithfulness. The crime of the one-talent man was not that he had but one talent, but that he hid the talent which the Lord gave him.

III. The Accounting for the Talents (vv. 19-30).

1. Its certainty (v. 19). There is a day coming when all must give account of their stewardship. Answer must be given as to the use made of God's gifts. 2. The time (v. 19). It will be at the coming of the Lord. 3. Judgments announced (vv. 21-30). (1) Reward of the faithful (vv. 21-23).

a. Praise. "Well done." All like to be praised. How blessed it will be to hear from the lips of the Lord Himself, "Well done." b. Promotion. The great consideration for all is not how many talents we possess, but as to how faithful we are in their use. (2) Punishment of the faithless (vv. 24-30). The one-talent man lied when brought to account. a. Reproach. "Thou wicked and slothful servant." To be called lazy is a reproach disliked even by a lazy man. b. Stripped. "Take therefore the talent from him." Even the talent which had been given to him was now wrenched from him. c. Cast out. "Cast into outer darkness." This servant was condemned on his own ground. The very fact that he knew the character of his Lord should have been an incentive for him to have exerted himself.

They Would Come

If we were once to live as though we had something that they (the unbelievers) have not, we would not have to press men to come to us; they would come without pressing.—F. B. Meyer.

With Christ

Without Christ life is as the twilight with dark night ahead; with Christ it is the dawn of morning with the light and warmth of full day ahead.—Philip Schaff.

Condor Outclassed in Combat With Airplane

A huge condor battled with a trimotored passenger airplane 17,000 feet in the air over the foothills of the Andes recently. L. H. Garriott, the pilot, flies the passenger ships between Mendoza in the Argentine and Santiago, Chile, for the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires line. With six passengers Garriott was flying over the foothills trying to rise to pass between two peaks, one 22,000 feet high and the other 24,000 feet high. When at an altitude of 17,000 feet a giant condor spotted the ship and came on to battle the strange wide-winged creature that persisted in roaming over its exclusive hunting domain. The condor wheeled and came straight toward the ship—heading right into the nose. Garriott swerved the ship aside a little and with a crash the bird hit the wing and dropped to the earth like a plummet. When the ship landed at its destination one wing covering was dented but not broken. A cloud of feathers followed the bird like a puff of smoke from an exploding shell.

Watch Your Step

On what basis the calculation is made is not stated, but some fellow with a sharp pencil has worked it out that the accident list of last year cost this country $960,000,000. Almost one-third of this was represented in automobile casualties.

FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. In thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripes; children liked its pleasant taste. All drug stores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

Towanda, Pa.—"I was working in a silk mill and got so tired and rundown that I weighed only 89 pounds. I was a pale and I could not do my work. As soon as I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to pick up. After being married for thirteen years, I had a baby boy and the next year I had another boy who now weighs 37 pounds and is healthy as a bear. The Vegetable Compound has helped me in a dozen ways and I hope others will try it too."—Mrs. C. B. Johnson, Webb Street, R. D. #6, Towanda, Pennsylvania.

Comedian in Difficulties

John Ansen, American movie comedian and side-show feature, had considerable difficulty in Shanghai recently, in finding a ricksha coolie who would take a chance on him. John is a fraction over nine feet high and broad and deep in proportion. Like most of us he doesn't like the rain, particularly when it is the persistent kind common there, so he sought a ricksha and the protection its hood afforded. After being turned down by scores, John found a Chinese who was willing—for a price twice the usual fare. John agreed, only to find himself in the rain once more; the hood had to be let down so that John could get in.
