Perrell County Oil Activities

Mr. Goldberg, of Los Angeles, California seeing after the drill of the well now being drilled. The Trans-Pecos Development Company and the Keck Trust on the Hamilton section in this county on section 100 Georgetown Ry. Co. reports their wells are on to the depth of 3000 feet has a good showing of oil gas, and that all you have to get the oil out of the well is to squeeze it. He says that the gas is a wet gas and will burn when ignited.

The Big Ben Oil Corporation on section 155 in Block D K. & T. E. RY. Co. survey is reported drilling with another variable showing of high gray oil.

The Transcontinental's test on section 26 in Block 161 G. C. & F. RY. Co. survey is reported to be down to the depth of 5000 feet and it is claimed by foreign geologists that this well is logging right along with the deep producing wells in the Big Lake district.

Mr. J. Calvin Stansell of this city was called to Del Rio last week end to interview several New York Jews that desired to lease the Stansell & Jones ranch in Block D 10 T. C. RY. Co. survey, but after consulting with his associates, Jones & Stansell have decided not to lease for the present due to the low market price on crude oil.

Patronize Home Industry

The other day an out-of-town peddler met us out on the street, patted us on the shoulder and informed us that his Company could sell sugar away under our local merchants here and we darn quickly "got him told" by telling him that we couldn't build Follett, by sending our money out of town and that we patronized Lime Light advertisers 100 per cent. We just kind'er wonder how many merchants in town would tell this to salesmen of out of town printing firms.—Lipscomb Lime Light.

Mrs. J. O. Scott and daughter Lula Mae, of San Marcos and A. A. Jenschke, who is with a Frigid Air Co. out of San Antonio spent the 4th with Mrs. M. L. Kellar and family. Mrs. Scott is a sister of Mrs. Kellar and the Breeding boys. Mr. Jenschke is a friend of Miss Loucile Kellar.

Mrs. L. H. Lemons accompanied by little Lewis Jr. and Mrs. Jennie Freeman departed Tuesday morning of this week for a visit in San Antonio and Lytle, Texas. While away, Mrs. Freeman will visit her son, F. P. Caldwell and Mrs. Lemons will visit her sister, Mrs. E. D. Pipes.

Mrs. John O'Dell, who underwent an appendicitis operation at the Williams Sanitarium in Del Rio two weeks ago, returned home Sunday. Mrs. O'Dell spent the last three days while in Del Rio visiting at the home of Mrs. Charles Miller Jr. Mr. O'Dell went to Del Rio Saturday, Mrs. O'Dell returning to Sanderson with him Sunday.

Mrs. John Stovell and three sons, Jack, Jim and Tom, are spending the summer in Alpine. Jack and Jim are attending Sul Ross.

Local Advertising Should Be First

People are funny. Which is the same as saying that human nature is peculiar. Everybody likes to follow the crowd. The store that attracts lots of people draws more and more people. A new store or an old one that wakes up, always draws a crowd. Folks think it is a good place to go because so many other people go there.

That is true of a newspaper. If most people are reading a paper and talking about it other folks want it too. If a paper has lots of advertising other folks conclude it must be a good advertising medium and they, too, want some of its space.

Any experienced advertising salesman will tell you that it is much easier to sell space in a paper that is already well filled with advertising than in one that carries a small amount of paid space.

These things being true we cannot blame the general advertiser for sizing up the amount of local advertising in your paper when he considers using it. If your paper carries lots of local advertising right along, issue after issue, he concludes that it may be worth using, even if some other things are against it. If it carries a small amount of local advertising he is apt to conclude that it isn't much good.

Therefore, one of the things that will help most in selling general advertising is the sale of lots of space to home folks. By the same token, if you are able to sell lots of space to home folks you are not going to care so much whether or not the general advertiser comes your way.

All of which is only another way of saying that the most important and profitable field for any paper is its own home town and surrounding territory. If its local field cannot be profitably developed it is certain that it cannot be made profitable with general advertising. General advertisers just ain't built that way.—The Wisconsin Howler.

Church of Christ Notes

Rules by which men live: By the Iron, Silver or the Golden Rule men live. The Iron rule, tersely stated: "Might Is Right." It means that if I can cheat, defraud, rob or in any way maltreat you, Might is Right, then proceed on that principle, and do so. By this ungodly rule all unholy conquests of earth have been made.

The Silver Rule is much better than the Iron Rule. It is expressed: "Whatsoever ye would not that men do unto you, do ye not unto them." While the Iron Rule embraces the cold, calculated ruin to another, the Silver Rule embraces no love.

The Golden Rule stated: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets." Mt. 7:12.

Look to Lk. 10:30-35, and you will find all of these rules acted in the lives of men. The Golden Rule and every phase of gospel teaching should be carried out in our lives. How are you living? Napoleon said, "Across the chasm of eighteen hundred years Jesus makes a demand which is beyond all others difficult to satisfy. He asks for that for which a philosopher may often seek in vain at the hands of his friends, or a father of his children, or a bride of her spouse or a man of his brethren. He asks for the human heart; He will have it entirely to Himself; He demands it unconditionally, and forthwith His demand is granted. Wonderful!" —Napoleon I.

Car Accident Near Dryden

J. R. Blackwelder, son James and James H. Nobles last Sunday met with what might have been a very serious accident.

They were in Mr. Nobles car, a Ford run-about, and were traveling at a pretty good speed on No. 90 highway just this side of Dryden when all at once a horse came in sight, but too late for them to stop and no chance to turn out either way, as the bar pit was quite deep on both sides. They lifted the animal pretty well up on the car, far enough that both park lights were torn off the radiator and hood mashed in, windshield broken and top entirely torn off.

None of the occupants of the car was hurt. Outside of the car being pretty badly disfigured and the horse dying within a short time after the accident, all come out very lucky.

The parties were returning from Del Rio, where the day previous Mr. Blackwelder's son had underwent an operation for the removal of tonsils and adenoids. The horse belonged to Son McDonald of Dryden.

It Pays to Laugh

Laugh! That's the advice of social workers, doctors and scientists. Laughter isn't just an expression of pleasure. Many of the things which we laugh at would cause an annoyance or pain if we did not laugh. When we laugh we breathe more deeply, take in more oxygen. It's good for the body and good for the mind. Don't hold back on laughter. It's a habit for health. And laughing about something may keep you from crying about it.—Ex.

Stuffed Cymling is a Welcome Dish

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cymling, eggplant, green peppers, large spanish onions and cabbage, are among the vegetables often served stuffed. Usually the stuffing is made of other vegetables and some cooked starchy material such as bread crumbs, rice, or spaghetti, to give body. Two or three flavors that blend well together are generally chosen from among such vegetables as tomato, corn, celery, cabbage, spinach, string beans and carrots. Onion flavor is desirable in almost every combination. Small amounts of two or three cooked vegetable leftovers may well be used in the stuffing.

Below is a recipe for stuffed cymling, from the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. Vegetables are suggested, but not required.

- 1 large tender cymling
- 1 1/2 cups dry bread crumbs
- 1 tbs. chopped onion
- 1 tbs. chopped green pepper
- 4 tbs. butter
- Salt and pepper

1/2 cup vegetable if desired, such as cooked peas, carrots, beans or celery. Crisped bacon or cubes of salt pork if desired.

Wash the cymling. Scoop out the pulp with a spoon, being careful not to break the outer skin. Cook the cymling shell until tender in boiling salted water. Remove and drain. While the shell is still warm, rub the inside with butter so the flavor will go through the vegetable. In the meantime, brown the onion and green pepper in the fat, add the bread crumbs, and stir until well mixed. Also cook the inside of the cymling until tender and dry, add to it the seasonings and the bread crumbs. If any of the vegetables mentioned are used, or the crisped bacon or salt pork, mix with the other ingredients. Place the mixture in the shell and cover the top with buttered crumbs. Bake in the oven until hot through and golden brown on top. Cut in slices and serve at once.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Lack of appetite in a child is an indication of something wrong. He may be ill, tired, or upset.

Screens at kitchen windows should cover the entire window and permit opening at top and bottom for ventilation.

Since mildew stains are much more frequent in warm weather, the wise housewife does not leave clothes for any length of time sprinkled and rolled for ironing, or stored in any damp dark place.

Centralize the sewing equipment and save time in making the children's summer clothes. If the sewing basket and machine, ironing board, iron, cutting table, and other supplies are in one room, a great deal of effort is saved.

Vitamin A in Ripe Manzanillo Olives

Ripe Manzanillo olives may be served for their food value rather than as a mere relish, for this variety has been found to be rich in vitamin A. Manzanillo olives, which are of medium size, are grown in California, ripened on the tree, treated in the canning factory to develop flavor, and sealed and processed in air-tight containers like other canned foods. They contain from 14 to 20 per cent of oil.

Samples of commercially packed ripe olives of the Manzanillo variety were recently tested in a series of feeding experiments by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. The growth of the 50 laboratory animals given these olives as a part of their regular diet indicated that they were receiving an abundance of vitamin A. This is the vitamin essential for growth and well being at all ages, for successful reproduction, and for resisting bacterial infection.

Artificial Silk First

The output of artificial silk is now several times that of the natural silk.

To Get Rid of Pantry Insects

Cleaning Crevice with a Skewer as a Precaution Against Cereal Beetles.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are more than forty different beetles and moths that infest grains and other dry stored foods. Many of them are chiefly troublesome in granaries and warehouses and on railroad cars used for transporting such goods.

Some of them occasionally invade kitchens and storerooms in private dwellings. Among these most frequently found are the candle beetle, the mealworm beetle, the confused flour beetle, and the saw-toothed grain beetle. These beetles feed on flour, grain products, dried fruits, seeds, nuts, spices, tobacco and other starchy and woody materials. Some prefer one food and some another, while some are quite general feeders.

The bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture explains that these beetles can live on very small quantities of dry cereal that they find in cracks, corners, and crevices of flour bins, pantries, and kitchen cabinets. So it behooves the housewife to see that no food material is lodged in such places to invite these unwelcome visitors. The girl in the illustration is shown cleaning the corners of a cabinet with a skewer to remove any cereal, including flour or bread crumbs, lodged there.

The Indian meal moth is another of the cereal pests that makes a loose webbing sometimes found in cereal boxes. Cleanliness and heat are the best methods of ridding the kitchen and storeroom of meal beetles and moths. All infested material should be burned. All bags and containers in which foods are to be stored should be sterilized. Clean all lint and dust from shelves where the insects might live. Use plenty of hot water and soap in cleaning. If you are closing the house during the warm months, even for a few weeks, it is better to throw away small amounts of cereal than to store it with the likelihood that it may become infested and give trouble all through the pantry or storage closet.

Sailor Hat in Fashion Picture

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

Well, well, well, who would 'a' believed it—the sailor hat has come to life again! Not so surprising, come to think of it, rather to be expected seeing that fashion is so frankly delving into the past for inspiration—re-creating, as it were, just one old timer after another and labeling them as 1930 models.

So it is that the new straw sailors are among the proudest displays in the very most voguish shops. Women arriving from abroad are wearing them, too. Now that the sailor hat is the next play in the game of fashion, it behooves every woman who would lead in styles that are swankiest, to lose no time in choosing (for the types are many) the sailor which becomes her best.

Two of the newest sailors are shown in the picture. The model at the top to the right is in the very smart light-weight rough straw, which though arriving late in the season is proving a keen competitor to the smooth linen-like exotic straws. The sailor below in the illustration features a mushroom brim—watch mushroom brims, they are coming "in," according to latest Paris reports.

Not that the revival of the sailor is in any way retarding the popularity of the little beret. On the contrary, berets of every description are flourishing to the extent that there is no limit to the number finding way into milady's wardrobe—a beret to match each costume.

Of course every collection includes a crocheted angora beret or two, as pictured, most likely in white, for white accessories are "the thing," although the pastel angoras also are chic with summer sports outfits. Berets crocheted of chenille are very good style. Others of linen thread, being washable, have captured the fancy of the practical summer girl.

Wearing black velvet berets, too! They are ever so jaunty and worn with sheer colorful chiffons and the smart pastel silks, they are as effective as can be. In discussing berets, it will never do to omit the handsome wearable types of fine milan straw. These are certainly good looking worn with the tailored silk suit.

Still there are more to follow. The gardenia beret, for instance, with two snowy gardenias posed perkily at the topmost point of its peaked crown.

Dyeing Rugs

Rugs may be dyed at home with any of the standard dyes. Clean and dampen the rug first, then lay it flat over newspapers to prevent the dye from staining the floor, and apply the hot dye with a scrub brush. Any color may be used, depending on the shade desired, but the original color must be considered. For example, a soft red applied over a tan rug may make a rich warm shade of brown, or applied over a bright green will give an attractive gray green.

until tender. Add one-half pound of round steak (ground), salt, pepper, and a dash of cayenne to season, and cook five minutes; remove from the heat, add three-fourths of a cupful of cooked rice, one slightly beaten egg; mix well and fill the peppers. Bake until brown.

Pimiento Canapes.—Split the six pimientos after draining, using a seven-ounce can. Sprinkle the inner surface with salt and cayenne. Place a rectangular slice of cheese lengthwise of the pepper and roll up. Skewer with toothpicks securely. Roll in flour, cook in a small amount of fat three minutes or until the cheese melts and the flour browns. Serve on oval slices of toast well buttered and hot.

Food for the Family Table

By NELLIE MAXWELL

While fresh eggs are plentiful and reasonable in price, the angel cake is more often served.

For those who enjoy a delicate cake, not too sweet, the angel food is the most popular. It is a cake which may be given to children freely, and sponge cake is another.

Angel Food.—Sift one cup of pastry flour three times with one-eighth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Measure one cupful of egg whites and one cupful of sugar. Add a pinch of salt to the egg white and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, beat them until stiff but not dry, add the sugar, a very little at a time, flavor with a teaspoonful of vanilla and fold in the sifted flour and cream of tartar in the same way. Pour into an ungreased tube pan, place in a slow oven and bake at least an hour and a half. The secret of the texture and tenderness of the cake is in the baking. When baked it should be light and almost like an omelet in tenderness.

Melba Pastry.—Take one cupful of oven-dried crumbs, when a golden brown put through a food chopper. Mix well with one-third of a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and four tablespoonfuls of butter. Line a large pie plate with the mixture and bake in a slow oven for 20 minutes. Allow the crust to cool, then pour in the cooled filling.

Banana Custard.—Slice three ripe bananas. Cook two beaten eggs, one-fourth cupful of cake crumbs and one cupful of milk two minutes or until the custard lightly coats the spoon. Add two teaspoonfuls of lemon rind and stir in the bananas. Pour into a greased baking dish, set in a pan of hot water and bake until the pudding is set. Cover with a meringue and brown.

Gooseberry Pie.—Cover two cupfuls of gooseberries with cold water, heat to the boiling point and drain at once. Cool, add one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour well blended with it, a pinch of salt. Put into a lined pastry tin, dot with bits of butter, cover with another crust and bake in a hot oven at first, then reduce the heat and bake for about 35 minutes. A very pretty as well as an appetizing dessert may be prepared by slicing jelly roll and placing a rose of whipped cream, sweetened and flavored, piped in the center with a pastry tube.

The personality in food is supplied in various ways, first its appearance, next its taste, then, of course, its food value, which appeals to the calorie counter. When food is dull, lacking in color, tasting in color, tasteless, is less palatable, look to the little spanish pepper to give zest to your dishes.

The flavor of the pimiento is not its only attraction; the color adds brilliancy to an otherwise dull dish. The little pepper comes packed in several sizes so that if one serves two, a small bottle is provided, and when it is to be the chief ingredient there is the seven-ounce can. For stuffing, one may use any desired mixture. The peppers should be drained, placed in muffin pans, and they are ready to be filled.

Pimientos Stuffed, With Mushroom Sauce.—Cook one small onion (chopped), one stalk of celery also chopped in two tablespoonfuls of fat

Evening Story for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I hope you know," said the Constellation Perseus, "that my star Algol is the most noted of variable stars."

Harry was glad Perseus did not wait for an answer, for up to this moment, if the truth were known, he was not sure that he had even so much as heard of Algol.

Evidently Perseus thought he knew for he went right on with his talking. "In the old days they thought Algol was rather unlucky in spite of his brightest star, and Alpha lives in a regular stary meadow."

"Why did they think that?"

"You see Algol's name means Demon, and his light varies, which is the reason he is called a variable star. Algol has also been called the Double Eye."

"What queer names."

"They are a bit queer," Perseus admitted. "By the way, you know about Medusa, don't you?"

"Yes—but I'd just as soon hear it again." Harry was thinking how many myths he remembered just as soon as they were told to him again.

"Medusa," commenced Perseus proudly, "was one of three Gorgon sisters. If you looked at one of them you were turned to stone. That was the old tale. They had snakes for hair."

"I remember. I always thought they were horrible."

"Andromeda was the daughter of Cassiopeia—you'll notice I'm not far from Andromeda and she is just below Cassiopeia whom you've met—I want you to keep your directions. You've heard how vain Cassiopeia was. Well, her daughter was punished, too, for her mother's vanity.

She was chained to a rock so a sea monster could come and capture her."

"I think that was mean to punish a daughter for her mother's vanity."

"I didn't think it was fair, so when I came along with Medusa's head which I had taken without looking at her face, I decided then and there I'd do something for Andromeda."

"I was going to help her in the first place because I felt sorry for her, but up at her fine Nebula—the Great Andromeda Nebula it is called.

"But I've got away from my subject! I was going to tell you about Algol."

"Yes, with all his queer names."

"Algol and some other little stars nearby, make up the Medusa's head which I carried in my hand when I rescued the fair Andromeda. But Algol improved after he got up in the sky."

"Have you time to hear another little story about me?"

"I'm sure I have." Cosmo was asleep and Harry was anxious to hear all he could from this interesting Perseus.

"They said that I made the Milky Way when I stirred up so much stardust in the heavens in my hurry to perform the deeds I had set out to do."

"The brave deeds, you mean."

Perseus smiled. "I'd rather the praise come from some one else and not from me. Of course the story that I made the Milky Way is nothing more than a fanciful story, but it is a pleasing one for me to tell.

"I don't want you to think I'm conceited so I'll talk some more about Algol. I don't want you to have a bad idea of him. Nor do I want you to feel sorry for him. He has a companion and they have an excellent time traveling around. Sometimes he is brighter than his companion and sometimes his companion is brighter than he is."

"That's the way it is with humans, too," Harry told Perseus.

"Well, one of the reasons Algol was given such a bad reputation was because he is a winking star, and the Arabians thought winking was very, very shocking.

"Oh, Cosmo is awake now!"

SCENIC PLAYGROUNDS OF AMERICA

By G. M. MILBOURN

Our Only Active Volcano

RAINIER, Shasta, and many other best-known peaks of the Pacific coast region were once volcanoes, and on Rainier at least, steam jets are still present, to undermine the snowbank edges in its mile-wide crater. But the only remaining volcano which still acts that role within the United States (exclusive of Alaska or Hawaii) is Mt. Lassen, chief feature of the Lassen Volcanic National park, northeastern California.

Many Americans do not realize that there is a real volcano listed among their visible national assets; and the amateur mountain climbers of the country, in the main, have overlooked the novelty of exploring a genuine glacial crater as the climax of a strenuous but not exhaustive climb, and a rather simple one so far as difficulties of ascent are concerned.

The park lies about 100 miles north of Sacramento, capital of the state, and is most conveniently reached by auto from Redding or Red Bluff, at which train connections are also available (Shasta route of the Southern Pacific). Automobile roads approach the peak from the south, and from the north by a route which finally loops to an end on the eastern slope. Trails from both roads lead to the southern ridge up which the ascent is usually made.

The crater (unless the most recent eruptions have changed its appearance very radically) is not so much a great bowl, as it is a topsy-turvy prairie of hardened lava, much as if a gigantic plow had furrowed a field somewhat less than a quarter of a mile across, in several different directions. Thin films of smoke emerged in many places; while little lakes of molting snow and ice were frequent neighbors of the sulphurous smoke. Under cover, lying about ten miles farther northeast, and with an elevation of but 6,907 feet to Lassen's 10,409, his yawning crater that is his big brother lacks, and is also more richly colored. It is entirely across the park from Mt. Lassen, and can be reached only by trail.

A loop highway which will circle the peak is expected to be completed this year.

Mount Lassen remained dormant for about 200 years just preceding its 1914 eruptions, which continued into 1915 for a total of about 150 eruptions during the two years. In March, 1925, a lava flow covered a part of the west slope for a distance of 1,000 feet down. Then in May came clouds of smoke which towered four miles above the mountain; at night there were flashes of light which illuminated the smoke, and flying objects that looked like rockets. Eruptions less spectacular have occurred as recently as 1925 and 1926.

The 1915 activity included hot blasts which escaped from under the lid of the crater in a downward direction, with terrific force. On the deep snow-covered northeast slope toward Lost and Hat creeks, "the snow was instantly converted into water, and the mighty onrush of water and hot mass of gases swept everything before it for ten miles, forming a devastated belt from a few hundred yards to a mile in width. Trees three feet in diameter were broken off or uprooted, and the country scoured as if by a mighty sand blast. It was reported by the forest ranger that two forest fires were kindled by the eruption."

Language of Sealing Wax

The French capital has now evolved a language of sealing wax. Different colors stand for different messages. Anyone who receives a letter with gray sealing wax may be certain that it is from a friend, because gray denotes friendship. While sealing wax indicates a marriage announcement, red, a business letter; green is the color of hope, and pale green conveys a reproach. Messages of condolence carry a violet hue; a chestnut color is used for dinner engagements while pink is reserved for lovers.

His Interest Aroused

The negro was being tried and asked for time to obtain legal assistance. "Legal assistance!" snarled the judge. "You were caught in the lawyer's shop; two policemen saw you. You had the goods on you, and you have been convicted forty-two times. Now, what could a lawyer say for you?" "Well, sah, judge," said the negro, "that's just what I'll sure be interested tuh know."—Vancouver Star.

THE STORY

On a pleasure trip in eastern waters, Philip Amory, English World War veteran, now a trader on the island of Papua, New Guinea, plunges overboard to save the life of a musical comedy actress known as "Gin-Sling." Amory becomes interested in Pia Laurier, member of a wealthy New South Wales family. He tells her of his knowledge of a wonderful gold field on the island, though he does not disclose the name of the place. "Gin-Sling" tells him Pia is engaged to Sir Richard Fanshew, Amory, however, is confident that the girl is not indifferent to him. His holiday ended, he arrives back at Daru. He meets an Englishman, Spicer, there on development business for a syndicate of which Fanshew is head. Fanshew's name recalls to Amory a long-forgotten incident in which he witnessed the escape of Fanshew from a leper colony. He tells his friend Bassett about it and decides to inform Laurier. He goes to Thursday Island to send the message.

I found my usual room, and dumped my gear in it; walked round the echoing veranda, with a wary eye for ant-eaten boards; peeped into the pilot's room, and had about made up my mind that there was nobody here save myself and he, when I heard voices in the upstairs parlor. A man and a woman, talking.

"Gin-Sling, for a dunt," I said to myself. "Now what on earth?" I did not mean to listen; but standing there in the dusk of the staircase, uncertain whether to go on or go back, I caught a sentence or two, before it became clear to me that, up or down, I must move on.

"Off that infernal ship. Of course you will, Jinny. You don't expect me to believe you missed the boat by accident?"

"Missed it for a lark."

"You didn't miss it for a lark—Genevieve. If you didn't miss it for me, you missed it for some one else."

Jinny's reply was tuneless, irrelevant, and chiefly concerned with the unaccountable love adventures of a "son in Alabama."

Then the other person, the man, said something that woke me up.

"Where," he asked, with a sudden rasp in his voice, "is the beachcomber fellow who picked you out of the sea?"

"At the bottom of it, for all I know," answered Gin-Sling.

"Jinny, you're enough to—" That was all I heard. Conscious that I had already listened too long for decency, I hurried down the rubber-carpeted stairs, and out into the desolate back street behind the hotel. I wanted to see who would come out. I had half guessed already.

Yes, it was Sir Richard Fanshew's figure, thin and tall, that stalked out presently from the dusky doorway, followed by that other tall, thin figure that was Jinny.

From what I had heard, I guessed that Fanshew had left the ship at some intermediate port, and that Jinny, at the same port, had—accidentally, or purposely abandoned her passage, and stayed behind.

She and Fanshew had returned Australia-wards in the same ship; had disembarked at Thursday Island—I didn't quite see why, but that could pass—and were staying at the Cosmopolis Grand. Fanshew, clearly, was making light love to her; she did not favor his suit, and he was inclined to blame me for the rebuff. Thought she was "gone" on me. Imagined (owing to the gossip he had no doubt heard on the ship) that she had abandoned her voyage and her contract, and headed back toward Papua—because of me. That was the situation, as I sized it up.

While I was pondering these things, no less a person than Sir Richard himself came down the steps of the hotel. I was clear in his way, but he scarcely brushed me with his glance, as he passed. In that instant, I realized, what indeed I might have known before, that to Pia's fiancé, I was nothing more than a name. I had seen him on the ship, but he had not—consciously—seen me. "Just as well," I thought, though I could not have told why.

The sight of him, busy and purposeful about I knew not what, reminded me that my telegram was still unopened. I went up to my room to concoct it; but I had scarcely got out pencil and paper, leaning over my suitcase with back to the door, when I was suddenly and not disagreeably blinded by two long cool hands that closed, without warning, over my eyes.

"Guess who," said Jinny's voice, with Jinny's own unmistakable chuckle in it.

"The prettiest girl in the Pacific," I answered, pulling down her hands, and twisting her face till it met mine. There seemed no reason—now—why I should not kiss this Jinny, and I did, with thoroughness. I had not wanted to kiss her on the boat, when the vision of Pia Laurier was still gilded with the light of not impossible future hopes. Now . . . What did it matter?

Let Pia marry, or not marry, whom she listed; there was always the mangrove wall, and what it signified to stand between us two.

Jinny broke away from me; she was flushed and laughing. I thought I had never seen her so pretty.

"Tell me what it's all about!" I said. "Why aren't you delighting the smart folk of Singapore, and why isn't Sir Richard Fanshew—well, why is he here, anyhow? I don't mean why is he with you; that's his luck—but what the deuce do the two of you want in this dead dustheap of a place?"

Jinny settled herself purring in a hammock chair like a slim kitten that curls itself on a pillow. Her eyes were half closed; she looked beneath long lashes, heavy with paint, and across the plain of sallow-blue sea, and the far-off fairy isles of Tuesday and Wednesday, and the purple crags of Prince of Wales and Horn. I think, so looking, she saw none of these things, nor yet the sky with galloping tradewind clouds, nor the near palm tree tops, that almost blew across the rail beside us. I think that she saw only rough Phil Amory, called Black Sheep, and the day, for her, ran filled with shining gold.

There's time and time for thinking, in the lands where black sheep live. Sometimes, since then, I have wondered how things might have gone; what my life, and that of another, might have been, had there been no Pia Laurier on the steamer. If there had been just Jinny Treacher, Jinny whom I had saved at the near risk of my own life; Jinny who gave me—I know—that which she never gave to anyone else.

"What am I doing?" she answered lightly. "Missed me boat in Sourabaya, stuffin' rice table at the Orange. Fanshew was there gorgin' himself too; he was booked for Sourabaya—oil business of some kind—and he lent me my fare back to Sydney. There was a boat next day, and I thought I'd get away from him by taking it, but spare me days, that wasn't his idea; he saw his man and did his business and got away in twenty-four hours, along with me. And when I got off here, he got off, so that's that."

"He got off," I said, "because he's going across to Papua; he has one of his exploring trips on."

She nodded. "I know; he told me. He's heard something about it that he didn't like, this morning; he got fair snake-headed when his letters came along in some little boat. I wouldn't have had a chance of this yarn with you, only that he went off for the telegraph office as soon as he'd read the letters."

I answered her nothing at all—silenced by a new and unpleasant thought. I had brought over a government mail bag in the cutter, as one usually did when crossing to "T. L." What was in it? Who from Daru, had been writing to Sir Richard Fanshew?

Spicer's cool indifference to my departure was easily comprehensible, if he had obtained, through that very circumstance, the chance of warning Sir Richard against myself and my ugly knowledge. It was no news to him, I dared say; he seemed to be Sir Richard's creature through and through.

It seems possible to find almost any desired object in an ancient tomb. The latest discovery is that of a zipper, that handy device for fastening tobacco pouches and galoshes, which was unearthed in a Viking burial ground near Tilsit, East Prussia. The modern age has known this contraption less than 15 years, and credits it to a Swedish engineer. Safety pins, supposedly a modern convenience, have been found in ancient Pompeii. A rubber shoe was reported from a tomb near Budapest, although the first historical account of rubber is in Columbus' story of his second voyage. Ur of the Chaldees yielded powder puffs and eyebrow tweezers, and the royal lipstick was found to have been laid to rest with the widow of King Tut.

The preacher of the Ecclesiastes spoke wisely when he said, "There is no new thing under the sun." It would not be surprising to hear of Calligula's platinum-plated radio set being fished out of Lake Nemi's mud, or Mrs. Noah's electric washing machine reposing in the debris of the ark.

Porkers Fed on Bottle
Regina, Sask.—How or where they received their daily ration was of little moment to this litter of hogs. Hence it is that the small porkers thrived on a bottle and enjoyed life in a chicken brooder, ever since their advent into this world at the H. Wallis farm in the d'Arcy district.

FARM U. S. GAVE VON STEUBEN TO BE PARK

New York Votes Fund to Establish Memorial.

Utica, N. Y.—The farm voted to him by congress in recognition of his services as drill master of Washington's continentals, will be made a memorial park to Baron Von Steuben, the Prussian officer who cast his lot with the American Colonists in the early days of the Revolution.

Assurance that the acres which Steuben held when he traded the remainder of his possessions to satisfy his debtors will be cared for for all time in his memory is given in the appropriation of $10,000 authorized by the state of New York, to acquire the ground.

Papers recently found in the archives of Onondaga county, unmistakably written in the careful hand of the baron, for the first time indicate his plans for an estate on his land grant, on Steuben creek, near here.

Saw Opportunity for Wealth.
Benjamin Wright, who later drew the plans for the Erie canal, was retained by Steuben to lay out what he expected to be his country seat, far from the business world, which he could not understand, and in the midst of historic country to which he sent his troopers, well trained for battle under his own eye. Steuben had a dream of amassing millions in the virgin country, operating a sawmill and selling the lumber on his land, the 60,000 acres given him by congress.

Of this land only 50 acres remains available and this tract will be reforested and called Steuben forest to surround the grand old soldier's plain marked grave. Neither the baron's dream of millions nor his plan for a palatial home—there were to be 20 rooms on the first floor—ever came to pass. He died of a paralytic stroke in 1794, four years after congress had freed him from worry over his financial affairs.

Devoted to Country.
Steuben, however, had the comfort of peace in a country he came to love. He described the wilderness about his farm as "the most beautiful in the world."

And there he was buried, wrapped in his military cloak, with the star of knighthood on his breast. Only his servants and a few neighboring farmers attended the burial. Among them, however, were men who had shouldered muskets in the Revolution and had either seen or heard of Steuben's setting the example of frugality and privation to the rattled legions of Washington's army during the bitter winter at Valley Forge. Here he welded the troops into a perfect war machine which defeated the British the following spring at the battle of Monmouth. This began the string of victories which ended with the capitulation of Cornwallis at Yorktown which virtually ended the war.

Millions in Oil Land
Hinge on Bee's Knees
Bakersfield, Calif.—Standard Oil Company of California is now standing on "the bee's knees," dependent on them for the millions of dollars in oil under the disputed Section 36 of Elk Hill.

The government has long been seeking to recover the rich section from the company, alleging that it was known as mineral land when the survey was accepted in 1903.

Testimony to that effect was given at a recent local hearing by A. C. Veatch, geologist.

He asserted that evidence of oil was found on the nearby Section 32 as long ago as 1901—a discoloration of the ground, the rush of escaping gas, and an odor characteristic of oil seepage, which smells like a horse being shod.

Apparently left without a leg to stand on, attorneys for the oil company investigated and found the bee's knees to stand on.

On Section 32 they found a wild bee's' hanged out. The discoloration, they say, turned out to be, not seepage, but remnants of a bonfire built by honey hunters in smoking out the bees.

The "rush of escaping gas," they say, was the buzz of bees. The groma they ascribe to charred beeswax.

On the beeswax, five pounds of it, the company is basing its hopes of retaining the Elk Hill field—America's only field of oil with a beeswax base.

7,000-Acre Texas Field
Broken for Wheat Crop
Tulla, Texas.—What is thought to be the largest field under one fence in the country is being broken for the sowing of wheat this fall by Hickman Price, most extensive wheat farmer in the Panhandle of Texas. The field contains 7,000 acres, the home of roving cattle for the last 50 years and of buffaloes and Indians long before that.

The 11-section tract lies in Swisher and Castro counties and is owned by Mrs. T. F. Nanny of California, who has scarcely received enough rent money for the last several years to pay taxes.

THURINGIA, WHERE U. S. JAZZ IS BANNED

Negro Melodies Also Officially Prohibited.

Washington. — American tourists probably will hear little music from their homeland this summer when visiting Thuringia. The prime minister has issued a proclamation prohibiting jazz music and negro songs in fashionable cafes and other public places.

A bulletin from the National Geographic society deals with the little republic of central Germany.

"Thuringia is well termed the 'Green Center of Germany,'" says the bulletin. "It brings a breath of medieval times with its romantic and legend-encrusted castles, its wealth of musical atmosphere, and its great mountains and splendid forests extending for miles and miles.

"Gothic villages drowse within its boundaries and dream of the past. Even the cities seem noiseless, and silence pervades the rural districts, where everything is quiet except for the little goose girl who drives her flock as she sallies out into a century too advanced for her surroundings.

Population Mainly Teutonic.
"The population of well over 1,500,000 is mainly Teutonic and includes a smattering of the Wendish and Slavonic element. Larger cities of the republic are Gera, Jena, Gotha, Eisenach and Utenberg.

"Germany and music festivals are synonymous. Perfection in music is sought in the event of a simple folk jubilee in a hamlet, or in a lavish exhibition in an ultra-modern theater in one of Germany's capitals. The republic of Thuringia mothered such musical artists as Handel, Wagner, Bach and Liszt at different periods of their lives and almost every city of the province has its memorial to music. Wagner glorified Wartburg in his 'Tannhauser.' The home of Bach in the town of Eisenach contains an interesting museum. The little residence of the grand duke of Meiningen is famous through the music of its orchestra. The musical interest in Kassel has centered about Louis Spolier; and Gottingen, the famous university town, pays homage to Handel by its festival plays every summer.

"Thuringia claims fame also as the home of the poet, Goethe. It is rich in Goethe recollections. The visitor is reminded that the modest place on the opposite side of the street is the home of Goethe, that the park he is passing is the most beautiful monument to the artist's genius and that the opera theater is of interest because of its use in Goethe's day.

Where Constitution Was Born.
"Weimar, the republic's capital city and the birth place of Germany's new constitution following the World war, retains many of its medieval characteristics. Surviving are narrow winding streets, houses with high-pitched gables and remnants of the grand old palace with its towers. The palace was erected under the superintendence of Goethe and dedication of one of the wings has been made to Schiller, Herder and Welland, noted German writers.

"A motor ride through the republic discloses pleasing and pastoral landscape, sometimes flat and fertile and sometimes hilly, often clothed in dense woods but always charming.

"Historic Erfurt lies between the interesting old cities of Gotha and Weimar, in easy reach of the Harz river on one side and Thuringian forest on the other. It plays a dual role by being picturesque, historically memorable, silently in tune with its sister cities and yet economically important and a railroad junction. It was Luther's home in his days as a monk, from 1505 to 1508. Erfurt's sky line is dominated by fine medieval architecture and is the home of the celebrated bell, Maria Gloriosa, cast in 1497, which weighs 27,000 pounds.

"Gera is situated on the banks of the White Elster and is the home of a large university where young Thuringians prepare to carry on its famous textile industries. Ringing true to the peacefulness of the republic is Jena, a university town on the banks of the Saale. It maintains its medieval market square, the older buildings of which blend well with the inevitable newer buildings."

Bell Ringer Pensioned;
Replaced by Electricity
Stockholm.—Sweden's last woman ringer of church bells, Augusta Anderson, who for 35 years has pulled the ropes in the tower of the old Katarina church here, has been pensioned and electric machinery will now be installed.

Since 1895 Miss Anderson has attended to the tolling of the bells and only been absent once, two years ago, on account of illness. The first ten years it was her duty to toll the bells on Sundays only, but later she became head bell ringer, with nine other women to assist her.

The church has four bells, the largest of which needs six persons to swing it. The bells are rung every day at eight in the morning and a five in the afternoon.

Solarium for Miners
The deficiency of sunshine which is experienced by miners is being atoned for in the case of an Idaho mining plant by subjecting these workmen to a treatment of artificial sunshine. The health-giving ultra violet rays which are absent in the lower regions are being supplied by electrical means as the men leave the mines. This is achieved through the agency of a moving platform, which will carry the men slowly through a narrow cabinet equipped with six powerful mercury-quartz lamps—the arrangement being such that the artificial sunlight will strike every part of the body. The solarium will be available to the miners' families.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips' Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

The Story of Jane McCrea

CAPTURE OF JANE MCCREA

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

MOST Americans know that the assassination of the Austrian archduke at Sarajevo, Serbia, in 1914, was the spark which set off the greatest conflagration in the history of mankind, the World War, but how many of them knew that the murder of an American girl by Indians in 1777 played a part in determining the destiny of their own nation? Yet there are historians who will agree that her death, the one hundred and fifty-third anniversary of which comes on July 27 of this year, was a factor in the so-called "turning point" in our struggle for independence.

In these years so many centennial celebrations of important battles of the Revolution are being held, it is fitting that Americans should hear again the story of Jane McCrea and her tragic fate.

In June, 1777, Gen. John Burgoyne with an army of 7,000 British and Hessians and a large force of Canadian and Indian allies swept down from Canada for the invasion of New York by the way of Lake Champlain. After he had captured Ticonderoga, Crown Point and Fort Edward, he expected Sir William Howe to come to the Hudson river from New York and join him at Albany. Thus they would drive a wedge between New England and the other colonies and put an end to the rebellion. Fort Edward was in a dilapidated condition and was held by only a small rear guard of Gen. Philip Schuyler's army, which had been forced to retreat before Burgoyne's greater numbers.

Near Fort Edward stood three cabins, one of which was occupied by a Mrs. McNeil, who is described as "a fat and talkative old woman, who had been twice widowed." She was a cousin of Brig. Gen. Simon Fraser of Burgoyne's army, and for that reason got no apprehension at the approach of the invaders, even though Burgoyne's Indian allies had been killing and scalping settlers as they advanced. On July 27 she welcomed a guest into her home—Jane McCrea, a twenty-three-year-old girl, who lived with her father, John McCrea, a lawyer and colonel of the local militia, near the mouth of Moses Kill, south of Fort Edward. Jane McCrea was noted throughout the countryside both for her beauty and for her long and lustrous hair which would reach to the floor when she stood and let it down.

Because of the near approach of the enemy, John McCrea was preparing to leave to Albany, but his sister refused to go with him or even to stay at their home on Moses Kill. The reason was that she had a lover, David Jones, a neighbor who, being a Tory, had fled to Canada soon after the outbreak of the war and was now returning as an officer in one of Burgoyne's Loyalist regiments. He had written to her, proposing that she should ostensibly be Mrs. McNeil's farewell visit, then slip away to the British lines and there have the chaplain marry them.

There are several contradictions in the various stories of the Jane McCrea tragedy. One of them is in regard to how she happened to fall into the hands of the Indians. According to the story Jones sent a party of Indians under the leadership of a half-breed to escort her to the British camp, and Burgoyne's account of the affair gives color to this version.

BEN FRANKLIN

ant of the valorous Miles Standish of Pilgrim fame. The Indians then discovered the two women in the cabin, entered it and dragged them out. Standish saw them rushing their prisoners along the trail up the hill to a place where they had two horses.

They tried to place the women on these mounts and easily seated Jane McCrea on one. But fat old Mrs. McNeil was a different proposition and, try as they could, the savages could not lift her into the saddle. Meanwhile the others led Jane McCrea away and, as she and her captors passed near the spot where Standish was held captive, he saw two of them engaged in an angry dispute. Suddenly one of them turned and shot her from the saddle, scalping her as she fell. Then, according to their savage custom, they stripped her of the wedding finery, in which she was going to meet her lover, and mutilated her body horribly. They then continued on to Burgoyne's camp, where they told what had happened and exhibited her scalp.

While this was taking place fat old Mrs. McNeil was having her troubles. Although she had not been injured by her captors, they had stripped her to a single undergarment and in this she appeared in camp where the Indian turned her over to her cousin, General Fraser. That officer was much embarrassed, for he was not able to find in camp any women's clothes large enough for Mrs. McNeil. Finally, out of his own wardrobe, he produced a great coat large enough to cover her. All the while he was forced to listen to a torrent of abuse from the irate old lady because of her treatment at the hands of his "rascally Indians."

But this comic aspect of the affair soon became a tragic one when Jane McCrea's scalp was shown to her. She recognized it at once, as did David Jones, who then learned of the fate of his bride-to-be. Upon being informed of what had taken place, General Burgoyne immediately held an inquiry, ordered the Indians to hand over the murderer, put him under arrest and announced his intention of executing him. But St. Luc, the French-Canadian leader of the Indian allies, informed the general if he did that the Indians, who were already resentful of Burgoyne's efforts to restrain them from the atrocities which they had been committing against the settlers, would desert in a body and go home, probably joining themselves by killing any whites they found, whether Loyalist or Patriot. So Burgoyne yielded to St. Luc and pardoned the slayer.

Of course, they were ignoring the fact that during the wars with the French the Colonists had been glad enough to have the aid of Indians, over whom they had little more control than had Burgoyne over his allies. They were ignoring, too, the fact that early in the struggle for freedom, they themselves, had solicited the aid of Indians and even then so-called Christian Indians from Stockbridge, Mass., were fighting on their side. But propagandists then, as ever since that time, have not always been concerned with telling the whole truth.

Burgoyne had hoped that not only active Loyalists, but those whose allegiance was doubtful would rally to his army as it advanced. When he captured Ticonderoga so easily, it was such a blow at the Patriot cause that it began to look as though the whole rebellion might collapse, especially since there were very few Colonists who cared little for either king or congress and wanted only to be allowed to continue in their peaceful pursuits. But the unpunished murder of Jane McCrea made even those, who might be inclined to swear allegiance to the crown and receive a certificate of loyalty, waver. If the bride of an officer in his army was killed by his savages, what assurance would they have that anyone would be safe from his painted demons, they asked themselves. Among those who favored the Patriot cause her death helped fix in them a stubborn determination to resist the invader to the end and to quicken them into action. "Remember Jane McCrea!" became something of a rallying cry along the harried frontier of New York, for the fame of the victim made the story of her death spread like wildfire and greatly stimulated recruiting.

Thus the story of Jane McCrea was spread broadcast throughout the colonies. It became a leading item of Patriot propaganda.

Lesson for July 13

JACOB, A SELFISH MAN, TRANSFORMED

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 25:29-34; 28:18-22; 31:1-4, 18.
GOLDEN TEXT—For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?
PRIMARY TOPIC—Learning to Be Unselfish.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Be Unselfish.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Does It Mean to Be Honest? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Learning from Experience.

I. Jacob's Birth (25:21-26). In answer to Isaac's prayer, a seed was given unto him. Before Jacob's birth God revealed unto Rebekah the fact that she should have the place of pre-eminence. "The elder shall serve the younger." In this God reversed the ordinary law concerning the position of the elder son. The act of taking hold of Esau's heel as he was born, indicated Jacob's nature. The name Jacob means "supplanter."

II. Jacob's Schemes (25:27-34; 27:1-29). 1. He secured Esau's birthright (25:27-34). It was right for Jacob to have the birthright since it was according to God's plan as revealed to Rebekah, but his scheme to get it was reprehensible. He took advantage of a brother's weakness to drive a sharp bargain.

2. Secured his father's blessing (27:1-29). (1) Was requested to get venison for his father. (2) Rebekah's scheme (vv. 5-33). It was God's plan that Jacob should be at the head, but he did not need the sin of Jacob and his mother to bring it about.

III. Jacob's Flight to Haran (ch. 28). Jacob's deceit and cunning got him into trouble. He was compelled to flee from his outraged brother. He now began to reap what he had sown.

1. Jacob's vision at Bethel (28:10-15). Jacob not only had to flee to save his life, but he had to leave home and mother. When night overtook him, he was obliged to sleep in a field with a stone for a pillow. It was under such circumstances that the Lord gave him the wonderful vision at Bethel. (1) He saw a ladder reaching from earth to heaven (v. 12). Jesus Christ is the ladder, connecting earth and heaven for us (John 1:51). (2) He saw angels of God upon the ladder (v. 12). These angels were divine helpers to render needed assistance along life's way. (3) The Lord standing above the ladder (vv. 13-17). To show Jacob that the ladder did not reach merely into space God appeared and talked with him. a. He declared that He was the God of Abraham and of Isaac, thus assuring Jacob that the same favor that was over his fathers was over him (v. 13). b. He renewed the covenant as to the land. Though Jacob was now fleeing from the land, the covenant would not fail (v. 13). c. He assured him of a numerous seed (v. 14). d. The divine presence with Jacob (v. 15). Though he had sinned, God was with him. e. Jacob should be brought again into the land (v. 15).

2. Jacob's vow (vv. 18-22). His vow included three things. (1) Dedication of himself to God (v. 12). (2) Establishment of worship (vv. 18, 19). (3) Consecration of his substance (v. 22).

IV. Jacob's Return to Canaan (chaps. 31-33). 1. The Lord instructs him (31:11-21). Twenty years have elapsed since his experiences at Bethel. These years were spent in Padan-aram with his mother's people. Here he served Laban for twenty years. Though it was the purpose of God for him to return, he took clandestine leave of Laban. Laban pursued him in anger, but God appeared to Laban and forbade him to lay hands upon Jacob.

2. Jacob on the way (Gen. 32). Though Jacob fled from Laban's pursuit, a more formidable enemy faced him in the person of Esau. (1) Jacob meeting the angels (v. 1). (2) Jacob praying (vv. 9-12). Not receiving a reply from Esau, Jacob cast himself upon God in prayer. (3) The angel wrestling with Jacob (vv. 24-32). He continued to wrestle until the approach of morning, not knowing that it was God in human form wrestling with him. God humbled him by dislocating his thigh. When thus humbled, he quit wrestling and clung to God. He got the blessing when he, conscious of his weakness, laid hold upon God. (4) A new name (v. 28). He was no longer Jacob, the "supplanter," but Israel, a "prince of God." His new name was given him after he had a new nature.

3. Finding God (31:13-16). If we cannot find God in our house or mine, upon the roadside or the margin of the sea, in the bursting seed or opening flower, in the day duty and the night musing, I do not think we should discern Him more in the grass of Eden or beneath the moonlight of Gethsemane.—James Martineau.

4. Gratitude to God (31:17-20). Gratitude to God makes even a temporal blessing a taste of heaven.—Romaine.

Wilson Merely Amused by "Cheeky" Youngster

President Hoover is said to be fully as reserved as the man he succeeded. Although people in private conversation often referred to Mr. Coolidge as "Cal," no one ever personally addressed him that way and it is said that none of Mr. Hoover's closest friends call him "Bert" or "Herb."

This was much the case with the late President Wilson, but in his case, a few old friends continued, in correspondence, to address him as "Tommy" long after he had dropped his baptismal name of Thomas. Once, while Wilson was making a western tour, a little chap yelled "Hello, Woody."

Young America's effrontery amused Mr. Wilson. In his speech that evening he referred to it and remarked that he had no objection to being thus addressed provided it was not meant to be descriptive.

Wonderful Camera

A German has invented a camera that will snapshot objects 250 miles away, and actually below the horizon. He claims that the bending of light rays by refraction of the atmosphere enables his camera to record scenes which have solid earth between them and his camera.
