

Interest to All Veterans

Kansas City, Mo., July 22.—A heated discussion of world war disability pension legislation enacted by the last session of congress promises some debate at the 51st national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. to convene in Baltimore August 31-September 3, according to expressions pro and con being made at national headquarters.

Wesley N. Duff, national commander, however, declares a new veteran relief policy enacted by congress will provide a more rational measure of aid to all disabled veterans of world war without going through vast reams of red tape, more than large amounts of money to a selected few.

Duff also pointed out that approximately forty million dollars will be saved in administrative expense to the government during the first year.

"This latest legislation," the national commander emphasizes, "follows out the original position enunciated by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in 1927 when this organization has consistently championed during the past four or five years."

Resolutions demanding a revision of the disability pension law on a higher scale than that finally approved by congress are certain to come before the 1930 convention, however, a campaign in this direction probably will be launched by the Baltimore encampment, according to rumbles of dissatisfaction in veteran circles.

"Show me a congressman who would like to try supporting himself, and perhaps a dependent or two, on the munificent sum of $12.00 per month, especially in the face of a 25 per cent disability that makes it practically impossible for him to hold any kind of a job," says the communication received at V.F.W. headquarters. "Then try to find one who will admit that $40.00 per month would be sufficient for his needs if he happened to be totally disabled, with wife and children crying for food and no prospects of other income. Organized veteranism must demand a square deal for the world war veteran, on a par with the veterans of previous wars and on a basis that will keep him from becoming a charge upon public charity."

If the injustices and inequalities of previous disability compensation regulations are to be eliminated, others point out, disability allowances must be increased to the point where they will at least provide ordinary benefits and care for disabled veterans and their families. Unless this is done, it is predicted, the Veterans Bureau and the government will continue to be harassed by perplexing problems in the administration of veteran relief.

Be Pat and Vote for Pat Murphy

Somebody is going to succeed Claude Hudspeth as Congressman from the 16th District. Won't you get together with the other friends of Pat Murphy today and carry your county for Pat Murphy? He deserves to win. For the past four months he has been making an honest and square fight—preaching his platform containing a program for West Texas which is the result of years of study. He can win if you will carry your box for him. Many have written and wired headquarters, "What can I do?" Just this, get out with as many of our friends as you can find, go to the business men, professional men, ranchers, farmers, clerks, day laborers and everybody and ask them to vote for Pat Murphy. They will gladly do it, if you but ask them.

During the past six weeks Mr. Murphy has made from one to three campaign speeches daily in every county in the District. Everywhere hundreds have pledged him their support. In 1919 Mr. Murphy received all but four votes in his home county of Tom Green for County Attorney. That ought to show what his home people think of him. Practically every voter in Tom Green is working for Murphy. There are over 7800 votes in Tom Green County this year—and a corresponding increase in the poll taxes in every county in the eastern part of the district. (A total of 40,000 poll taxes in the eastern part of the district). There is a decrease of 1700 poll taxes in El Paso County this year with a total of only 22,000 votes in the western part of the district. That ought to convince you that Murphy can win if you give him your active support.

Why should you vote for Murphy? What could a professional politician from El Paso, tied down to a powerful city and county political machine, do for you or your community? Murphy is free to represent you the same as any other citizen of the district. He has never forgotten a friend. His struggle from a shoe clerk in 1913 to a commanding position in a congressional race in 1930 should convince you he can do the impossible.

Refute the slanderous tales that are being spread by his opponent. In a speech at Big Lake on July 9, Murphy denounced as a lie the statement of his opponent that Murphy didn't have a poll tax. Murphy has been a continuous resident of San Angelo for over 23 years. He was born in West Texas in a $10.00 a month rent house. He spent about five years at different times in Washington, D. C., taking post graduate work, and to study the government. That should benefit you. He is thirty-six years old and was old enough to enlist in the U. S. Army in 1917 and lead a bunch of men on the firing line in France for 11 months. That certainly is more difficult than sitting in an easy chair at Austin, as did his opponent in 1917-18.

Mr. Murphy praises Claude Hudspeth, the present Congressman, as "the most outstanding statesman of the Southwest and certainly the greatest friend of the rancher and every farmer ever to sit in the National Congress." Murphy says he is proud to have such a man as Mr. Hudspeth actively supporting him for Congress.

Mr. Murphy says that he is strong for the Red Bluff Dam and promises to carry out the policies of Claude Hudspeth in aiding the Red Bluff Dam project. Claude Hudspeth he says, has done more for Red Bluff Dam than any living soul and Claude Hudspeth wanted Murphy in Congress that Red Bluff might be completed immediately.

He advocated prompt and liberal relief for the disabled soldier, also changing the date of adjusted service certificates from 1925 to 1918, by law, to enable the ex-soldier to borrow

MURPHY GETS LABOR'S O. K.

The candidacy of E. E. (Pat) Murphy of San Angelo for Congress from the Sixteenth Congressional District of Texas was endorsed in a resolution passed by the San Angelo Central Labor Union at its regular weekly session Thursday evening, July 17, 1930.

The Central Body is composed of four representatives from each of the Union Councils here. Earlier in the campaign Mr. Murphy was endorsed by the four railway brotherhoods in San Angelo. Murphy has always been fair to organized labor.

(Signed) R. E. Hughes,
President Central Labor Union,
San Angelo, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie McKee drove over from their home in Pecos, Sunday of this week. Mr. McKee returned to Pecos Sunday and Mrs. McKee remained in Sanderson for a week or ten days to visit her many friends. While here Mrs. McKee visited the Times office. about 50 per cent on the certificate without costing the government one penny more; world peace by taking the profits out of war, and making the munition factory serve with its profits in time of war as well as the manpower of the nation; a Department of Education in the Federal Government as an aid to education and to give the school teacher a decent salary and the American boy and girl a decent education; he does not favor changing the Constitution or repeal of the 18th amendment; he favored curbing the cotton exchange as a remedy of the farmer's ills, and was opposed to retaining the control of our "State railroads in the hands of the Federal Government."

Murphy is bitterly opposed to cancellation of any war debts of any foreign nation. He promises to see that Texas is given a fair share of Federal jobs.

Are you an ex-service man? Then send a Buddy to Congress to work for our disabled Buddies. Are you a rancher? Then listen to what Claude Hudspeth says, "I am for Murphy. He is capable and honest and will represent all the people. His opponent will represent only the El Paso Political Machine." Are you a clerk—then get out and fight for Pat Murphy—the former shoe clerk.

Vote For Van Haile McFarland

In another column of this paper today you will read the advertisement of Van Haile McFarland of Eagle Pass, who is a candidate for district Attorney of this the 63rd judicial district.

While the writer has never met Mr. McFarland, owing to the fact that while he was electioneering in this end of the district we happened to be out of town, we feel sure from what we can hear that he will be well represented from this end of the district on next Saturday, July 26.

Read his article in another column of the Times today and support him when you go to the polls Saturday. Surely you will be casting your vote in the right direction should you vote for Van Haile McFarland at the primary.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hardgraves motored to Alpine Saturday, and from there they will visit the Carlsbad Cavern.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Griffith and children left Monday of this week for Carlsbad, where they will visit the Cavern.

"Sunny Side Up"

Fox Movietone Musical Opens at the Princess Theatre Monday, July 28

Two great stars, an all-star supporting cast, a delightful story, plenty of comedy and a half a dozen sensational song hits is the combination presented in Sunny Side Up.

Janet Gaynor, who reveals a voice of rare charm, sings three songs, including "If I Had a Talking Picture of You," the latter as a duet with Charles Farrell.

Farrell, in the role of a society man from Southampton, acquires himself creditably in a light comedy part and sings in a manner that stamps him as a real find in the talking picture musical comedy field.

Miss Gaynor also blossoms out as a dancer and proves she is as proficient in the terpsichorean art as she is in acting.

The story is fast, full of action and replete with excellent comedy.

Two Stoves for Farm Kitchen

Electric Range Supplements the Coal Stove.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In the roomy farm kitchen illustrated by this picture, taken in New Jersey by the United States Department of Agriculture, two stoves meet all the cooking requirements of the different seasons of the year. Obviously the large coal range is for winter and between season use. It will undoubtedly furnish considerable heat to the kitchen and adjacent rooms whenever it is going. The electric range is primarily for summer cooking, but it is a helpful accessory for quick cooking whenever the fire in the big range is out or banked. There are many times when one would not want to disturb the larger fire for a few minutes' cooking. The current in this case is supplied by a local power company, but in many farm homes there is a complete electric plant which runs the lighting of the house, and various kinds of farm machinery as well as household electrical equipment.

Because the kitchen is used for some meals, as the small sturdy table with four dining chairs indicates, there is added incentive to make it attractive. The neat white kitchen cabinet, the sunny window, the linoleum mat and the gleaming black range are all pleasing to the eye as well as useful.

Hints for Housekeepers

Keeping dust from window sills, porches, steps and walks helps to prevent its entrance into the house.

To keep shoes in good condition, always remove mud at once. If allowed to dry on the shoes, it will stain the leather.

A backyard playground equipped with slides, swings, large boxes, and a sandpile will add to the children's happiness this summer and keep them away from the danger of motor traffic.

Never wring or twist silk or other delicate fabrics in laundering. Instead, roll the garment in a thick towel and gently but firmly squeeze out the water.

A light, clean, well-ventilated clothes closet equipped with plenty of hangers and dress covers helps summer clothes stay fresh and last longer and it helps prevent destruction by moths.

Tomatoes on Toast

Tomatoes, broiled to a delicate brown on top, sliced onto crisp toast, and served with a few rashers of bacon, make the center of an ideal lunch or supper for a warm day. Another easy and appetizing way to cook tomatoes is to cut in half and bake under a sprinkling of buttered bread crumbs. The bureau of home economics tells just how to broil and bake tomatoes.

First to Map Moon

The first map of the moon was made by Riccioli in 1650.

Small Spaces Used for Closets

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sometimes there is a narrow section of a kitchen wall where a shallow closet for cleaning implements can be located. Usually a handy man or boy in the family can utilize this space by building a closet to help make house-keeping more efficient. It is always desirable to keep brooms off the floor to prevent their weight from resting on the bristles, and mops and brushes are also better hung up. Put screw-eyes in the handles or make a hole through them for a loop of string or wire to hang them by. Special clips for holding brooms may be bought, or little holders of wood made for them, or heavy hooks used. More utensils can be stored in a small closet by such careful arrangement, and when article is wanted no time is lost fumbling for it.

There should be a shelf, if possible, for cleaning materials, scouring powders, polishes, ammonia, and so on, and some receptacles for dusts and oily cloths. One of the illustrations, both of which were taken in farm homes by the United States Department of Agriculture, shows how four wire corner sink baskets have been used for this purpose in a very small closet. These wire holders permit a circulation of air and avoid the fire risk from closely packed oily cloths. The other closet has a place for a vacuum cleaner, and the additional space alongside of the cleaning closet

Some Foods the Family Will Enjoy

By NELLIE MAXWELL

For those who wish to reduce and for those who wish to gain in weight the same rules for both in many things should be followed. Both need exercise, fresh air and daily baths inside and out with plenty of water. Old Common Sense is the best of regulators. Food fads live for awhile and are forgotten. A few general health rules here will apply to the ordinary individual who need not starve or stuff. Eat moderately all of foods. Drink plenty of water, do not eat too much of any one kind of food, and be sure to eat plenty of vegetables and cut down on the meat. For the thin person, butter, cream, as well as plenty of fresh vegetables are necessities.

Heart, heavy foods like meat, vegetable proteins and nuts should always be served with fresh green foods. Heavy eaters are prone to have acidosis. Fresh vegetables and fruits counteract this tendency. Citrus fruits are invaluable in the diet. Lemons if used freely will correct the torpidity of the liver, clear the complexion and help in free elimination of waste products. A good habit to form, which is as important as brushing the teeth, is the drinking the juice of a lemon in hot water. A whole lemon is not too much, diluted with hot water to fill a glass. Drink it on rising at least half an hour before breakfast. Recent discoveries teach us that the use of lemon and orange juice arrest the decay of the teeth and retard and prevent pyorrhea, the much dreaded disease which causes the teeth to loosen.

The best results with any food may be determined when that food is not mixed with others. So it is with citrus fruits—take the lemon, grapefruit and orange by itself. However, an occasional punch of the mixed fruits can be enjoyed without trouble.

All cooks enjoy using the common things in such a manner that an unusual dish or combination is the result.

Pepper Relish.—Take two cupfuls of finely chopped peppers (green and red may be used) and pack the cup solidly full in measuring. Use a food chopper and put the peppers through the finest knife twice. Measure into the kettle, using just enough of the juice to flood the cup level. Add six and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of vinegar, mix well and bring to a boil, set aside uncovered for 20 minutes. Bring again to a boil and stir constantly, boiling hard for two minutes. Remove from the fire and stir in one bottle of pectin, stir and skim for just eight minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating.

Banana Butter.—This makes a delicious cake filling. Use ripe, mellow fruit and take three cupfuls of the crushed pulp, add six and one-half cupfuls of sugar, the juice of a lemon and one-fourth teaspoonful of butter. Mix and bring quickly to a boil, boil one minute, stirring constantly over the entire bottom, adding one bottle of pectin. Remove from the heat and stir frequently for eight minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating. Pour quickly into cups and cover with hot paraffin. It sets slowly. Make nine to ten glasses. Circular Lines Hold Favor

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

In the making of the graceful little informal afternoon frocks of dark silk print which have been so very popular and which give every promise of a continued vogue for midseason and early fall, the trend is for one circular ruffle to call for another. In other words, frocks show a tendency to adopt circular-flare movements from neckline to hemline. The frock in the picture illustrates the idea.

Here we have a very smart styling given to a green-on-black print silk, which carries out a consistent circular movement throughout the capelet, the sleeves and the skirt. This manipulation, which strives to relate the frock or costume through repetition of a given treatment, is observed by most designers. For instance a pleated capelet, let us say, calls for pleated frills on the sleeves, also a pleated flounce on the skirt if the latter be not pleated entire. In case of an ensemble wrap of matching material, it also is likely to be detailed with pleated trimming.

There is quite a rivalry between pleated and circular treatments this season. However, from the standpoint of that which is newest, circular cuts win out. It is interesting to note in how many directions the circular "lines" extend. One sees the undulating grace of circular ruffles in the very smart peplum effects which style so many of this season's silk frocks. The sleeve with a circular flare from the elbow is among the many quaint modes which fashion has resurrected from the past.

Even pleated skirts have gone circular. That is, while not attaining the extreme sunburst flares, yet they are cut slightly bell fashion so that the pleats are shallower at the top than the bottom. Box pleated skirts

Story for the Children at Bedtime

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Now they traveled right along the Milky Way, and of all the wonderful things Harry had ever done in his life, or ever expected to do, this was the most wonderful.

He had seen so many clusters and stars and constellations whose homes had been along here, but now the pilot traveled along this most heavenly roadway without stopping.

"The best times to see it from the earth," Cosmo told Harry, "are July, August, September and October. Don't think it divides the heavens in half, for the northern sky has more of the Milky Way than the southern. It takes a trip, too. It winds its way among the constellations and I've always thought it so nice the way Canis Minor or the Little Dog takes his place right on the border, just as a dog will sit on a doorstep."

Oh, what a sight this was, and what an unbelievable trip!

They passed by millions and millions of stars. In some parts there were not so many which made it look less populated. In fact, it seemed as though there were great cities of stars with their scattered suburbs of stars spread out beyond them.

The pilot was going slowly. Harry tried to think of ways in which to express what he felt about it, but he knew he could never possibly describe it. It was like traveling through a world of stars, or like going through fields of stars, or oceans of stars. Everywhere they gleamed, and twinkled, and shone. Everywhere they seemed to smile. And here and there were cloudy patches—like misty forests of stars.

"Oh, what a sight it is," he said to Cosmo.

"And yet," Cosmo told him, "the sky is so tremendous and the distances are so great that even if the Milky Way could be blotted out there are stars so far off that the news wouldn't reach them for thousands and thousands of years."

"It's too much for me," Harry said. As they sped along Cosmo told him stories and legends.

"Virgo—we passed her—was supposed to have scattered some of her wheat along here. Then a story has it that some magpies built a bridge in the heavens so that two separated lovers could travel over it to see each other, while in some countries they told the story of two lovers who built the bridge themselves so they could cross over it to see each other.

Just as a Dog Will Sit on a Doorstep.

"Some Indians believed that the Milky Way was the path along which the departed souls traveled and that the brighter stars along the borders were the campfires where the great spirits rested. Other Indians thought it was dust kicked up by a buffalo and horse as they raced each other across the sky.

"The Norsemen believed it was the path up which the great warriors traveled. In the ancient days it was believed that the baby Hercules dropped some of the milk he was drinking and that that made the Milky Way. Nor has science changed that name given to it by that old, old legend."

Harry was listening to all that Cosmo was telling him, but so impressed was he by the wonder and the beauty and the tremendous glory of all that he was seeing that he couldn't think of any words at all in which to express what he thought. He was glad that Cosmo didn't seem to expect him to say anything.

"The Greeks," Cosmo went on, "called this the Road to the Palace of Heaven, and they believed that along this road were the palaces of the finest of the gods.

"The Eskimos believed the Milky Way to have been made from snow that fell from the snowshoes of the great raven as he walked across the sky."

The rockets were being shot off rapidly once more. They were speeding along the Milky Way. How lucky it was that the pilot knew how to manage such a ride. But even that thought was unimportant, Harry felt. He could think of nothing but what he saw, and what he saw was too wonderful to put into any words.

Use Teaspoonful of Tea to the Cup

Brewing a social cup of tea is an art unknown to many housewives.

While the amount of tea to use will depend on the individual's taste, C. F. Hutchinson, tea examiner stationed at New York city for the federal food and drug administration, says that about a teaspoonful to the cup is a good average. Boiling water must be used or the leaves will not open fully and impart their full strength and flavor to the beverage. But tea should never be boiled nor should the leaves stand in the water longer than five or six minutes, in his opinion.

An earthenware pot should be used, and after the leaves have steeped five or six minutes the liquor should be poured into another container, or if a tea ball is used it can be removed.

Mr. Hutchinson puts the tea in an aluminum strainer, puts the strainer across the top of the teapot, and pours boiling water through the strainer until the pot is full, covering the body of the strainer. After it has drawn for three or four minutes he takes the strainer out and has a cup of tea that is just to his liking.

THE STORY

On a pleasure trip in eastern waters, Philip Amory, English world war veteran, now a trader on the island of Papua, New Guinea, plunges overboard to save the life of a musical comedy actress, known as "Gin-Sling." Amory becomes interested in Pia Laurier, member of a wealthy New South Wales family. He tells her of his knowledge of a wonderful gold field on the island. "Gin-Sling" tells him Pia is engaged to Sir Richard Fanshew. His holiday ended, Amory arrives back at Daru. He meets an Englishman, Spicer, there on development business for a syndicate of which Fanshew is head. Fanshew's name recalls to Amory a long-forgotten incident in which he witnessed the escape of Fanshew from a leper colony. He tells his friend Basset about it and decides to inform Laurier. He goes to Thursday Island to send the message. Amory hears Fanshew dictate a message which indicates that the secret of the gold field is known. Amory meets with an accident that lays him up for three weeks.

CHAPTER V—Continued

"I think you're very good indeed," I lied promptly. Dismay was the emotion that, in truth, had possession of me. I wondered how many people knew, or would know, and how soon they would be on the track of the unique, amazing place known as Tatarata. I swore to myself that, doctors or no doctors, I was off tomorrow.

Something of this I said. Gin-Sling eyed me with a satisfaction that I found almost puzzling. "Right; get off and beat him to it. That's the way, my lad; drink hearty, you'll soon be dead!" was her entirely Jinnian comment. "What way will you go?" she asked, presently.

"Way? Oh, by Daru, I suppose." She seemed to like that, and I realized, with some astonishment, that the map of Papua was no blank to her. "Well," she said, "I must be going, or the cats will begin to mew. Call and say good-by to me before you go. In out of a shop now, so I dare say I'll make back to little Sydney again. I've no idea what a lamb you look like those pink pajamas, cuddly boy! See you again soon." Her yellow stockings gleamed as she walked down the long veranda, just not dancing, out through the doorway into the smiting sun.

Next day I left the hospital. I called on Jinnay, as a matter of course, and was rather surprised to find that she had called the previous night. The hotel people didn't seem to be sure what boat she had taken or where she had gone. And the truth was, that I had too much to do to puzzle over the matter, for more than a little while. Nor did I, for even an instance, suspect what matters of grave import had lain concealed beneath the light surfaces of our talk.

I had to go to Port Moresby. It turned out, because there was no one at Daru to take charge of my store, the man on whom I counted having suddenly left. I remember I was worried at having to go, but consoled myself by remembering that Sir Richard and his lot could not possibly get away before me, since they had still to do their recruiting, and mine was as good as done. I had only to whistle, and get as many boys as I wanted, but they would have to employ a recruiter, and probably overcome a good many difficulties before they collected boys enough to carry for a large party of strange white men. As to Pia, she was safe in the East.

CHAPTER VI

I made Port Moresby on the evening of the third day. My boy was not with me; I had sent him back to Daru direct, and was alone. It was duskish when I sighted Paga Hill, with a nasty squall coming up. I thought with disgust of the trouble of seeing the doctor, and the customs, and getting pratique, all to be gone through before I could have leave to land. Very likely they wouldn't give me pratique that evening; I should have to sleep on board the tiny cutter again, just when I needed a good rest.

couldn't tell tales even if he would. Perhaps I was breaking quarantine laws—I didn't know, and did not much care. I knew that the two houses were comfortable, if one could get into them, and I reckoned I could manage that.

I found the two little houses standing up stark and pale against the velvet sky; I scrambled into one, and cautiously flashed my torch.

"Well!" was my astonished comment. Somebody had certainly been preparing the place for a stay. There was a comfortable bed, a couple of planter chairs, a box that—I guessed contained linen and oddments of various kinds. I peered into the cork-hooped. Stores; cooking utensils. "They'll be coming along tomorrow," I thought; and reflected that I was luckier than I deserved.

I Knew that Tall, Tight, Well-Set Figure, That Bearded Head.

It was very cool out there. I remember; far cooler than it would have been in little iron rooms beneath the stifling roofs of town. I had a bite of something from the locker of my boat, flung my bedding on the unknown person's bedstead, and slept magnificently.

Dawn came with a wild crying of seabirds, and a sudden wind that burst in the door. It waked me, and I slid to earth, looking for my shoes, for now it was full time I got away. I suppose I took a few seconds to slip on and tie my shoes; I never heard a sound—but when I looked up, there was some one in the doorway.

My first thought—for you could not see the man's face, so blackly was he silhouetted against the pale rose and primrose of the sky—was—"Caught; maybe it's the doctor inspecting." My second sent the blood from heart to fingertips, like leaping flame. I knew that tall, tight, well-set figure, that bearded head. I had seen it four times; once on the island of decay and death; once on the great liner in the Arafura sea, once at the hotel on Thursday, and now here.

Fanshew had seen me, he came across the floor in a couple of strides, and asked me, with profane additions, what on earth I might be doing there? I could hardly answer him at first; never, till that moment, had it occurred to me that, however well he was known to me, I was, so far, quite unknown to him, except by repute.

I answered him briefly. "I did not know anyone had the place. I got in late, and camped." "The h—I you did," answered Fanshew roughly. "Don't you know you have to get leave to land?" "There was a squall coming." "Squall be hanged. You'd better clear out of this, and be thankful if I don't report you."

carrying it, wrapped up in paper; while he was talking to me, he laid it down on a table, and the paper, being insufficiently fastened, burst open. I saw the thing, a pretty trifle of white satin and embroidered flowers crying "Wedding Present" in every stitch and thread. I saw somebody's card fastened to it. And immediately I knew what it was; for whom it had been intended. And the world, for one reeling instant, vanished behind veil of red.

I came out of that moment's madness calm and cold, as once or twice, in the war, I had found myself, before the doing of some deed that brought a medal after it.

"You are Sir Richard Fanshew," I stated. He looked at me curiously; I thought he was beginning to guess.

"It may interest you to know," I went on, that I am Philip Amory."

Now he turned scarlet; the curious honey-colored eyes flashed crescent moons of white above and below, like the eyes of a dangerous horse.

"It seems," he said, restraining himself, "that I owe you a great deal of kindly interest in what I had supposed were my affairs."

I let the gibe pass. I had one thing only in my mind, and, like a charging bull, I drove straight for it.

"Where is Miss Laurier?" I asked. I didn't expect him to answer, but he replied at once, coolly.

"About forty-five miles out at sea on today's Morinda."

"She has come back to marry you?"

"Exactly."

"You're fixing up this place for her?"

He did not reply to that; he looked at me, watchfully, as one boxer eyes another in the ring.

"Well, I want to tell you," I said, "that you won't marry her—as long as I'm above ground."

Again he was silent. Again I charged like a bull; but this time, it was as a bull charges, frantically and uselessly, upon the barrier about the ring.

"You were the man who got away from Iota Island. You're an escaped leper."

He just laughed a little; seemed to be waiting for me to have done. I had not anticipated this. He just stood there, not admitting, not denying. If I was strong, he, with his weight of added years and honors, his money, and his celebrity, to back him up, was stronger. I could feel all that—as he meant that I should feel it—almost visibly upholding and supporting him, as we stood there in the windy quarantine house, with the seabirds crying on the sands outside; Fanshew and I—"one and one, with a shadowy third"—the eternal triangle yet again.

Fanshew was entirely self-possessed. He waited till it seemed clear that I had done, and then spoke.

"Your boat is outside. You can get away as quick as you like."

"If I do," I warned him, "I'll sail straight to Port and stop your d-d marriage."

"Just as you choose," he said. He took the white cushion out of its paper, smoothed it, laid it carefully on the back of one of the planter chairs; set down some small parcels he had in his pockets, and walked out of the house. He did not seem to be paying any attention at all to me.

One used to fight in the great war sometimes, when one was almost three parts asleep; drunk with the want of rest, long continued, with the never-relaxing strain. So I fought then, drunk, drugged by Fanshew's enormous personality, his superior mental forces, yet determined, as ever one had been in the trenches, not to give in while life was life, and I was I.

We went down to the beach almost together. There was my cutter, rocking on the tide; there, long and black and slim, was what I knew to be the fastest thing afloat for a thousand miles—a speed launch capable of doing thirty miles an hour, which had lain for some good while in Port, unsailable, because she simply ate fuel. I thought I knew who had bought her now; who didn't count a tin or two of benzine, when he happened to be in a hurry.

Cured Small Boys of "Finickiness" at Meals

Meal time generally was a trying period in the Brown household. Invariably Bobby didn't like half the things that were served, and Billy expressed a dislike for the other half. Often they agreed on the same item. It required threats and persuasion to force them to partake of the food provided, but at length the Browns decided on a new method.

For weeks they compiled a list of the eatables that the boys hated, and served them exclusively for dinner. There was a howl of anguish from the two urchins as they glanced at the table. The parents passed the various dishes instead of Mr. Brown serving them, but the boys, with a pained look, took tiny helpings or passed them up entirely. They pecked at the food and went to bed hungry. For Mrs. Brown had seen to it that there was nothing in the larder to attract them.

This went on for several meals—and the boys finally had to surrender. Now they actually are fond of some of the victuals they formerly detested. However, neither has been heard since then to kick about any item of the food. They are afraid they'll have to eat it for days at a time.—New York Sun.

SCENIC PLAYGROUNDS OF AMERICA

By G. M. MILBOURN

The Highest House in the United States

VERY few Americans, probably, have ever heard that the roof of the United States is really a roof; that it is, in fact, the roof of a house.

Looking Up Lone Pine Valley to Mount Whitney.

Every schoolboy has heard that the highest point in the United States proper is Mount Whitney, Calif., which reaches an elevation of 14,501 feet. But only a few scientists, mules, and mountain climbers have taken the trouble to see if there is anything on top of the mountain; those few have been rewarded, however, with the information that on top of the mountain is a three-room stone house, and on top of the house a steel roof, with a bit of galvanized iron stove-pipe protruding which, technically, is the top of the United States. The scientists inspired and dedicated the house, the mules lifted the ten tons of material and apparatus used in its construction nearly three miles into the sky, and such mountain climbers as have been able to walk, grin, or mean after surmounting the last ledge have been doing their summit grinning and grunting in or near the cabin in the twenty-one years past.

The idea of building an observation and shelter house on Mount Whitney was advanced by Director W. W. Campbell of the Lick observatory, who wished to observe the spectrum of Mars from a point where interference by the water vapor in the air would be least. Hoping to make the observation in September, 1909, when Mars would be near the earth and high above the horizon, Director Campbell climbed the peak in August, 1908, to determine what size instruments could be carried up on pack animals. With him went Director C. G. Abbot of the Smithsonian Institution observatory, who was interested in high-altitude studies of solar radiation. They agreed that the proposed study of Mars in 1909 would be fruitless unless protection from storms on the peak were provided, as the party would want to stay a week or more.

The house was built during the month of August, 1909, under auspices of the Smithsonian Institution, by G. F. Marsh of Lone Pine, Calif., and four workmen. The old trail up the east side of the mountain, from Lone Pine to Whitney pass, is in places only a temporary zigzag on a precipitous rockslide, and Mr. Marsh and his friends had to give a benefit haul in Lone Pine to get the trail repaired before his mules could begin the 11,000-foot climb. Once the workmen were panic-stricken in an electrical storm on strike; once Marsh and others were snow-blinded. "Marsh worked at all kinds of jobs himself," related Director Abbot's official report later, "cooking, breaking stone, carrying stone, carrying snow for water, riveting and cementing, as well as general bossing. He will never get paid in this world for the work he did on that house."

Director Campbell and five other scientists arrived at the shelter house on Saturday, August 28, in a steel storm which did not clear away until the following Wednesday. On Thursday and Friday, however, beautiful weather continued, and Director Campbell and his friends obtained evidence that there is very little, if any, water vapor on Mars.

Mount Whitney is now a part of Sequoia National park, and the park service is constructing a trail up the west side of the peak. Already completed to within 2,000 yards of the summit, it will enable horse parties as well as hikers to reach the top. (© 1930 Western Newspaper Union.)

"World Peace" Movement

Peace movements or efforts are alluded to in many of the writings of the early centuries of the present era. The earliest modern movement appears to be the efforts of George of Podiehrad, king of Bohemia, 1462, who advanced a plan for the Christian nations to form an international parliament and to create a tribunal, backed by international forces, if necessary, to hear and determine all disputes between the nations.

Artificial lightning bolts of 1,000,000 volts were recently used to test a Massachusetts high-tension transmission line for possible weak spots.

BABIES SHUNNED IN HECTIC CITY LIFE

Births Show a Decline of 78,063 in Year.

Washington.—There is a premium on babies in the United States. Last year 78,063 fewer children were born than in 1928, bearing out a theory which has become yearly more pronounced since 1921, the vital statistics division of the Commerce department reports. And this, according to Dr. T. F. Murphy, chief statistician of the division, is the price of modern social standards which move Americans to settle in cities, to share, man and wife alike, in the rigors of earning a living and to practice the principles of birth control.

To no one of these factors, nor to all combined, however, would Dr. Murphy attribute the declining birth rate which last year alone reduced the number of babies born in every 1,000 of population from 19.7 in 1928 to 19.

Due to Many Factors.

The cause underlying the surprising trend is much more complex and due to a combination of factors so involved as to become almost impossible to interpret, he believes.

He thinks that America's restrictive immigration laws are in a large measure responsible, citing statistics to show that the birthrate has always been higher among the immigrant class, the foreign-born population.

Doctor Murphy observes also that Americans are marrying later in life than in the days of the nation's youth, and that the number of marriages are decreasing year by year.

"We are becoming a nation of cliff dwellers," he said. "People are leaving the rural districts and going to work in the cities. They marry, both members of the union continue to work for a living, and there is neither time nor always the inclination to raise a family."

Results Felt in Schools.

According to the United States officers of education, the results are felt in the schools. Communities which are increasing in population are showing actual decreases in the number of children in the lower grades, the office reports.

In all but four of the states, Arizona, Michigan, Montana and Tennessee, the number of births was smaller in 1929. The greatest decrease for any one state was in Pennsylvania, where 11,245 fewer births were reported. Florida, with a decline of 9.8 per cent, reported the greatest percentage decrease.

Violet Light Expert Finds Remedy for Crime

Chicago.—A defense against forgeries is reported by Dr. A. J. Pacini, expert in ultraviolet light. To Dr. Clarence Muehlberger and the heads of the crime detection bureau of the Northwestern university, he said:

"If a business executive makes a rule of using a few drops of a particular chemical solution in the ink with which he signs all of his important documents, the fluorescence or glow peculiar to that solution will always be visible in the signature when it is placed under ultraviolet light. A forgery of that man's signature, on the other hand, would reveal an absence of this characteristic and the signature would be branded indisputably as a fake."

Find Strange, New Sect Known as "Tremblers"

Bucharest, Rumania.—There was recently discovered at Veresti, in the Botolani district in Rumania, a strange new sect styling itself the "Sect of the Tremblers." Its leader gives himself the title of patriarch. It has no many adherents. At their meetings the members lie flat on the ground trembling continually; they believe that they are able to shake off their sins in this way. They have assemblies twice a week at which they weep for many hours.

Oldest Soldier

London.—Sergt. William Brerton, ninety-two, Britain's oldest soldier, joined the army as a drummer boy in 1853, lived for months in India on salt junk and biscuits after a four months' journey on a sailing ship, and received two pence a day for "real fighting with bayonets all the time."

Parachute Jumpers Must Carry Spares

Washington.—Individuals making parachute jumps for exhibition, testing, training or demonstration will be requested to wear an auxiliary parachute, under a new amendment to the air commerce regulations announced today by Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics. The amendment becomes effective August 1, 1930.

"The auxiliary parachute must be so arranged that it can be operated in the event the first parachute either fails to function or becomes fouled on any part of the plane or body of the jumper," Mr. Young said. "While it is common practice for parachute jumpers to carry an auxiliary parachute, there have been times in the past when this has been neglected."

Canada's Pulp Production

The forest service says that the total pulp production in Canada has risen from 1,716,000 tons in 1919 to 3,098,000 tons in 1928. In the United States the production in 1919 was 3,517,000 tons and this production has risen steadily up to 1928 when it amounted to 4,510,000 tons.

Any ship equipped with a radio set may listen in.

FARM WOMAN BENEFITED

After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lickdale, Pa.—"Before I was married, my mother and sister and I did all the farming work on a 64-acre farm for eleven years. I married a farmer and now in addition to my housework and the care of my children I help him with the outside work on our farm. After my last child was born, I began to suffer as many women do. Finally our family doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did and now I am a new woman and I know that good health is better than riches."—Mrs. CLYDE I.  ment to Be Voted on November 4, 1930.

Be it resolved by the Legislature of
 the State of Texas:

Section 1. That Article VII of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended by adding thereto Section 16, which shall read as follows:

"Section 16. All land mentioned in Sections 11, 12 and 15 of Article VII, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, now belonging to the University of Texas shall be subject to taxation for county purposes to the same extent as lands privately owned; provided they shall be rendered for taxation upon values fixed by the State Tax Board; and providing that the State shall remit annually to each of the counties in which said lands are located an amount equal to the tax imposed upon said land for county purposes."

Sec. 2. The foregoing Constitutional amendment shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the State at the next general election to be held

 Proposing a Constitutional Amendment to Be Voted on November 4, 1930.

Be it resolved by the Legislature of
 the State of Texas:

Section 1. That Section 5 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended so as to hereafter read as follows:

The Legislature shall meet every two years at such time as may be provided by law and at other times when convened by the Governor.
 When convened in regular Session, the first thirty days thereof shall be devoted to the introduction of bills and resolutions, acting upon emergency appropriations, passing upon the confirmation of the recess appointees of the Governor and such emergency matters as may be submitted by the Governor in special messages to the Legislature; provided that during the succeeding thirty days of the regular session of the Legislature the various committees of each House shall hold hearings to consider all bills and resolutions and other matters then pending; and such emergency matters as may be submitted by the Governor; provided further that during the following sixty days the Legislature shall act upon such bills and resolutions as may be then pending and upon such emergency matters as may be submitted by the Governor in special messages to the Legislature; provided however, either House may otherwise determine its order of business by an affirmative vote of four-fifths of its membership.

Sec. 2. That Section 24 of Article
 3 of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended so as to hereafter
 read as follows:

Members of the Legislature shall receive from the public Treasury a per diem of not exceeding $10.00 per day for the first 120 days of each session and after that not exceeding $5.00 per day for the remainder of the session.

In addition to the per diem the members of each House shall be entitled to mileage in going to and returning from the seat of government, which mileage shall not exceed $2.50 for every 25 miles, the distance to be computed by the nearest and most direct route of travel, from a table of distances prepared by the Comptroller to each county seat now or hereafter to be established; no member to be entitled to mileage for any extra session that may be called within one day after the adjournment of a regu-

 ment to Be Voted on November 4, 1930.

Be it resolved by the Legislature of
 the State of Texas:

Section 1. That Section 11 of Article VII of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 11. In order to enable the Legislature to perform the duties set forth in the foregoing section, it is hereby declared all lands and other property heretofore set apart and appropriated for the establishment and maintenance of the University of Texas, together with all the proceeds of sales of the same, heretofore made or hereafter to be made, and all grants, donations and appropriations that may hereafter be made by the State of Texas, or from any other source, shall constitute and become a permanent university fund. And the same as realized and received into the Treasury of the State (together with such sums belonging to the fund, as may now be in the Treasury), shall be invested in bonds of the United States, the State of Texas, or counties of said State, or in school bonds of municipalities, or in bonds of any city of this State, or in obligations and pledges issued by the Board of Regents of the University

 ings for the use of the University of Texas, or in bonds issued under and by virtue of the Federal Farm Loan Act approved by the President of the United States, July 17, 1916, and amendments thereto; and the interest accruing thereon shall be subject to appropriation by the Legislature to accomplish the purpose declared in the foregoing section; provided, that the one-tenth of the alternate sections of the lands granted to railroads, reserved by the State, which were set apart and appropriated to the establishment of the University of Texas, by an Act of the Legislature of February 11, 1858, entitled,
 "An Act to establish the University of Texas," shall not be included in, or constitute a part of, the permanent university fund."

To The Voters
 In The Primary

Eagle Pass, Texas,
 July 22nd, 1930.

To the voters of Terrell county:

Saturday, the 26th of July, is the fateful day. It is then that you will go to the Democratic polls to cast your vote for one of the two candidates for the nomination for the office of District Attorney. Will you vote for the right man?

My opponent, Mr. LaCrosse, who is the present incumbent and who is known to many of you, has been in and out of politics for the last 16 years or more;
 and for the past six years he has held the office which I seek, and now he seems to consider that it belongs to him—that he owns it.
 Do you think such a man can or will be as diligent in the prosecution of his duties as will be a man who is fresh in office, with lots of vim and vigor, and who is still jealous of his spurs?

I was born in Eagle Pass in 1901, and have lived here nearly all my life. My father has been practicing medicine here for more than thirty years. My mother's people, the Townsends, were old residents of Eagle Pass and lived here many years. I come from a stock of good, reliable, energetic folks, honest
 from the word "go."

I can and will fill the office of District Attorney with dignity, able effort and dispatch. To that end I have been preparing myself for the last eleven years.
 I spent five years in college laying the full foundation for the actual practice of law; and for the past six years I have been actively engaged in court work.
 You will remember, of course, that when Mr. LaCrosse was ushered into office he had been practicing law less than six years.

In anticipation of my nomination and subsequent election, I assure you, my friends that I will devote my full time to the office, will co-operate fully with my brother officers in the apprehension of violators of the law, and will diligently and earnestly prosecute all offenders without prejudice, or favor, without regard for rank or station; wealth or influence, and wholly without the pale of corruption. And I will at all times represent the interests of the state to the best of my ability; nor will I be embarrassed, as has been my opponent, by a partner's acceptance of employment contrary to the interests of the state.

Under our present law, the terms of court throughout the 63rd Judicial District may continue in session forty weeks out of each year. That means that the District Attorney must be prepared to give that much of his time to the office. I can and will do it. Do you think that a man that owns and controls two newspapers and other business interests, and who enjoys a large private law practice as a member of one of the largest law firms in Del Rio, can conscientiously promise so to do?

And, when he is not in attendance upon court it is the duty of the District Attorney to hold himself in readiness to assist such of his brother officers as may need his aid in apprehending criminals and in otherwise enforcing the law. Can the busy business man do it? Can the busy club man do it?

Think it over, my friends, and you will see that the present District Attorney, regardless of character, should not be returned to office. He has outside interests which dictate that he should leave to another the duties of representing the public. Go to the polls next Saturday and vote for me. It will be for the best interest of the state and of the people in this judicial district.

Sincerely Yours,
 Adv. Van Haile McFarland.

"Grandpa" Banner was here several days this week shaking hands with his friends, which included everybody in town. He had just returned from a three months vacation trip and visited relatives and friends in 18 counties of the state. He attended the annual reunion of the Confederate Veterans held at Cristoval about two weeks ago. "Grandpa" is looking fine and stated that he had a most enjoyable time on his vacation. Asked as to the attitude of the people on the Governor's race in the different counties he had visited, Mr. Banner said it was very much "muddled up" but that sentiment seemed to favor Love, Sterling and Mayfield.

A few Cents

a day assures safe refrigeration in new 6 advantage Ice Refrigerator

Every home can afford these 6 distinct advantages

1. Economical operation. A few cents per day is all that is necessary to have perfect refrigeration and a plentiful supply of clear sparkling ice at all times.
2. Prices all can afford! This new Ice Refrigerator is made in all sizes to meet every home need at the price you want to pay. Why have an inferior refrigerator when you can afford to have the best?

3. Plenty of ice at all times. This new refrigerator assures a sufficiency of wholesome ice for all home uses always. Think of baby's milk.
4. Keeps inside air pure and sweet. Mixed odors condense on melting ice surface to be carried out. Prevents odor taint in all foods.
5. Keeps foods fresh. Maintains colder temperature than recommended by Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture. Thus meat and other foods retain their natural, inviting brightness without drying or shriveling.

6. Ice is wholesome — always ready for use. Ice in this refrigerator provides clean, safe, care-free refrigeration.

Unique Americans

Rear Admiral Samuel P. Carter

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

CONSULT Mr. Webster's large book of words and their definitions and there you will find one characterized thus: "Unique, a. Being without a like or equal; single in kind or excellence; sole." Despite this explicit definition, "unique" is a much-misused word.

Consider now the careers of three Americans and see whether or not the characterization of "unique" is aptly applied to them. One of them was the only man who ever held the rank of rear admiral in the United States navy and the rank of brigadier general in the United States army. Another was a man who, although not a native of America, held a position in the highest legislative body of one American government and then held successively three important offices in the executive department of another American government. Even more remarkable is the record of the third—not a native of America, he held several important state offices in two states, was elected United States senator from three different states, commanded American troops in two wars and was governor of an American territory.

Tennessee gave to the nation its only admiral general. Samuel P. Carter was his name and he was born in Elizabethtown, Carter county, August 6, 1819. He became a midshipman in the navy in 1840. Six years later he was promoted to the grade of passed midshipman and assigned to the U. S. S. Ohio.

From 1851 to 1853 he was assistant instructor of infantry tactics at the naval academy and was made a lieutenant in 1855. The next year he served in one of Uncle Sam's forgotten wars, the expedition to China. On July 11, 1861, Carter was temporarily transferred to the War department for the special duty of organizing troops in his native land, eastern Tennessee.

Carter soon proved to be as able a military as he had been a naval officer. He was appointed first colonel of the Second Tennessee volunteers, then acting brigadier general of volunteers, and on May 1, 1862, he received his full commission as commander of a brigade.

As a cavalry leader Carter distinguished himself particularly. On August 28, 1863, he defeated that matchless Confederate horseman, Gen. John H. Morgan, and the next day repeated his success against General Smith. He was present at the siege of Knoxville in December of that year and then commanded a division under Gen. John Schofield in the North Carolina campaign of 1865. On March 13, 1865, Carter was brevetted major general and was mustered out of the army in January, 1866.

He immediately returned to the navy, having by this time been promoted to the rank of commander. He served as commandant at the naval academy from 1869 to 1872, having been promoted to the rank of captain in 1870. He was a member of the House board from 1873 to 1883, and was promoted to commodore in 1878. In 1881 he was honored by promotion to the rank of rear admiral in the retired list, this reward coming as a fitting climax to his extraordinary career in both branches of the United States service. In 1891 "Admiral-General" Carter, truly a unique American, died in the Capital of the country he had served so well during his lifetime of seventy-one years.

In the year 1811 a ship attempted to ascend the Mississippi river to New Orleans, but finding that port blocked by a British fleet it sailed away for the West Indies. Among its passengers, who landed on the island of Croix, was an English Jew, named Benjamin, and his wife. On August 13, 1811, the son was born to Mrs. Benjamin and given the name of Judah. Although Judah P. Benjamin was the right of being born on American soil, he was destined to become an important figure in American history. His boyhood was spent in London, N. C., until 1825, when he entered Yale. After three years he left that institution without getting a degree and went to New Orleans, where he studied law in a notary's office. He was admitted to the bar in 1832 and spent the next few years practicing that profession with a short interim of school teaching.

Politics was next to engage his attention and he allied himself to the Whig party. In 1845 he was a member of the convention which met to revise the constitution of Louisiana, and it is noteworthy that this foreign-born citizen of Louisiana was responsible for placing in the new code a provision that the governor of that state must be a citizen born in the United States.

In 1848 Louisiana elected Benjamin as presidential elector at large, and four years later sent him to the United States senate, returning him there in 1857. He took a prominent part in the slavery dispute of those times, and during one of the exciting debates in the senate a dispute with Jefferson Davis, the senator from Mississippi, brought the two men to the verge of a duel which was averted only when Davis apologized.

Although Davis had disagreed violently with Benjamin in the senate he recognized the worth of the man, and when the former was chosen as President of the Confederate States of America he selected Benjamin as attorney general in his cabinet. In August, 1861, Benjamin was transferred to the War department, where his conduct of the war aroused such bitter hostility, even including charges of incompetency and neglect of his duty, that he resigned. But Davis, to whose stubborn refusal to accept advice some historians ascribe a large share of the responsibility for the downfall of the Confederacy, again flew in the face of public opinion, and immediately offered Benjamin his third cabinet position, that of secretary of state.

When Richmond fell in 1865, Benjamin fled with the rest of the Confederate government. Making his way to the coast of Florida he escaped in an open boat to the Bahamas, and in September, 1865, reached Liverpool. After living quietly in retirement for a year in England he took up the study of English law, and in 1866 he was admitted to the bar.

In 1868, after his health had failed, Benjamin retired from active practice, and on June 30 of that year he was guest of honor at a farewell banquet given to him in the Inner temple in London by the highest legal luminaries in England. He then went to Paris to make his home and there he died on May 8, 1884.

If Benjamin's career in America was a remarkable one, even more unusual was that of another immigrant boy, James E. Shields. Born in Dunganon, County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1810, Shields came to this country at the age of sixteen and went to the frontier country of Illinois, where he studied law and began practice at Kaskaskia in 1832. Honors came rapidly to him in his adopted home. He was elected to the legislature in 1836, made state auditor in 1839 and appointed a judge on the State Supreme court bench in 1843. Two years later he was appointed commissioner of the general land office, but gave up civil life at the outbreak of the Mexican war to accept a commission as brigadier general of the Illinois volunteers in 1846.

During that conflict Shields served under General Taylor on the Rio Grande, under General Wood in Chihuahua and during General Scott's campaign. He was shot through the lung at the Battle of Cerro Gordo and brevetted major general. After his recovery he served in the Valley of Mexico as commander of a brigade of marines, New York and South Carolina volunteers, only to be wounded severely again at the storming of Chapultepec. Mustered out of the service on July 20, 1848, he was immediately appointed territorial governor of Oregon, but resigned this office when he was elected senator from Illinois as a Democrat. He served in the senate from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1855, and then moved to Minnesota.

When the state government was organized there he was again sent to the United States senate where he remained from May 12, 1858, to March 3, 1859. He next moved to California, and at the outbreak of the Civil war was acting as superintendent of a mine in Mexico. Hastening to Washington, the Mexican war veteran was commissioned a brigadier general of volunteers in August, 1861, and after the death of Gen. Fred W. Lander, Shields was placed at the head of his brigade. In 1862 he was head of a division of Gen. N. P. Banks' army, then operating in the Shenandoah valley of Virginia and opened the campaign by inflicting a stinging defeat at Winchester upon "Stonewall" Jackson, who was just then beginning to make his bid for fame as the remarkable leader of "foot cavalry." Shields was wounded in this battle, receiving a broken arm from a fragment of shell.

On March 28, 1863, weakened by the wounds which he had suffered in two wars, Shields resigned from the army. Going to California he found that the lands granted to him for his military services had been lost by his trusted agent and he bought a farm near Carrollton, Mo., upon which to spend his declining years. Although he had decided to retire from public life, he was soon back into politics. In 1868 he was Democratic candidate for congress, and although his friends declared that he had been elected, he was not seated. Six years later they elected him to the legislature, and upon the expiration of his term, the general, aged, weakened and impoverished, sought the humble position of door-keeper of the United States senate in which he had represented two states. But this was denied him and he returned to Missouri. That state promptly honored him by electing him to the senate and he returned again as a member of the body which had denied him employment. He held this position until his death, which took place on June 1, 1879, at Ottumwa, Iowa, where he had gone to deliver a lecture on the Mexican war for the benefit of a church.

Lesson for July 27

DEBORAH, A LEADER IN A NATIONAL EMERGENCY

LESSON TEXT—Judges 4:1-24. GOLDEN TEXT—Say to them that are of a fearful heart, be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompense: he will come and save you.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Deborah a Brave Woman.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Deborah a Brave Woman.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Notable Women Patriots.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Woman's Influence in Community and National Affairs.

The book of Judges covers the period from the conquest of Canaan and death of Joshua to the judgeship of Samuel. While Joshua and the elders of his generation lived, the people in some measure remained faithful to God, but the very next generation went into apostasy. Their declension may be accounted for by:

1. Their failure to drive out the Canaanites when they took possession of the land. Their failure to carry out this command of God was their undoing.

2. Their amalgamation with the Canaanites. Their tolerance of the heathen about them was quickly followed by union in marriage.

3. Idolatry. Their intermarriage with the heathen was followed by worship of the heathen gods.

In order to teach this lesson intelligently it is necessary that the teacher have a grasp of the book of Judges from which it is taken. In chapter 2:6-19 is given a synopsis of the book. Observe (1) The sin of the people (vv. 6-13). (2) God's judgment for their sin (vv. 14, 15). (3) Their repentance (3-9). (4) God delivers them at the hands of the Judges (vv. 16-19). A repetition of sin, oppression by the enemy, repentance, and deliverance, is the story of the book of Judges.

I. The National Emergency (vv. 1-3).

1. Lapse into idolatry (v. 1).

Ehud was not only a righteous but a strong ruler. Under his judgeship, freedom had been enjoyed for many years. As soon as he was dead the people turned away from God.

2. The bondage of the people (v. 2).

The Lord abandoned them to be oppressed by Jabin, king of Canaan.

3. The people cried unto God (v. 3).

Affliction brought them to their senses.

II. The Judgeship of Deborah (vv. 4-10).

The great national emergency confronting Israel was met by a woman named Deborah. Her name means "Bee." As suggested by another, she exemplified her name by her industry, sagacity and great service to the public.

1. The place where she judged Israel (v. 5).

It was under a palm tree. She held an open air court for the administration of justice.

2. Her method (vv. 6-10). (1) Her summons to Barak (vv. 6, 7). Barak means "lightning." Deborah, being a prophetess, was able to select a man whose gifts would enable him to rally the forces needed to gain victory over the formidable foe. Deborah gave definite instruction as to the number of men and the strategy to be employed, assuring him that God would deliver Sisera into his hand. (2) Barak's reply (v. 8). He expressed an unwillingness to go unless Deborah would go with him. (3) Barak rebuked (vv. 9, 10). Deborah yielded to his request, but made it plain to him that it would detract from his honor as a conqueror. "For the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hand of a woman."

III. The Defeat of Jabin's Army (vv. 11-16).

Sisera, the captain, gathered a mighty army and went forth, confident of victory over the ill-equipped and undisciplined army of Barak, but he made one sad mistake—he did not consider that it was the Lord's battle (v. 15). Through supernatural interposition the enemy became panic-stricken (25:20).

IV. Sisera Killed by a Woman (vv. 17-24).

In his flight Sisera took refuge in Jael's tent. In the guise of friendship she committed a most heinous murder after inviting him into her dwelling.

V. The Song of Deborah and Barak (ch. 5).

This song was composed and sung in celebration of the marvelous victory which God had wrought. Deborah set forth in the most definite way that the secret of victory was the help of God.

Consecration

All truly consecrated men learn little by little that what they are consecrated to is not joy or sorrow, but a divine idea and a profound obedience, which can find their full outward expression, not in joy and not in sorrow, but in the mysterious and inseparable blending of the two.—Phillips Brooks.

God's Plan to Cleanse

God brings men into deep waters, not to drown them, but to cleanse them.—Aughhey.

Crusoe Not in It With Indian Woman Recluse

The story of a woman "Robinson Crusoe" who lived alone on an island for 20 long years is told by Dr. Roy L. Moodie, who has been delving into the records of old native life in the region of Santa Monica, Calif., in his study of prehistoric diseases in America.

The feminine Crusoe had been a member of a small group of Indians which lived on San Nicholas island, off the California coast, about 100 years ago. The Spanish fathers persuaded the group to leave their lonely island and find better protection at the Santa Barbara mission. But this woman refused to come. All alone she demonstrated her self-sufficiency in the world by making her home of whale ribs and brush, and by living off the abundant fish, abalones, birds, seals and some plant products. She made her clothing of bird skins, when at last she was brought to the mission she died within six weeks.

The island possesses many relics of aboriginal life, but none so romantic as the record of the last woman, Doctor Moodie said.—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

Indoor Weather Control

It isn't only the heat, but the humidity and the air motion that affect the destiny of whole races. Weather to primitive man was the most important factor in life. In the tropics and the subpolar regions it still remains master of the situation.

Civilized man, however, from the time of the domestication of fire, has been progressing slowly in the art of making his own weather indoors. It is now possible to control heat, relative humidity and rate of air motion in any space between four walls, a ceiling and a floor. From factories and public buildings the art of manufacturing weather and controlling it is spreading into homes and apartments. The next few years will see radical progress.

Modern

Clarence Darrow, the lawyer, related at a dinner in Chicago the story of a man whose double life had been exposed.

"The man claimed," said Darrow, "that nowadays we are all entitled to double lives. He pointed to this playwright and that novelist who advocate free love. But he was put out of the church anyhow. His claim didn't go over."

"As one of the church deacons remarked to me afterward, his claim had about as much sense to it as the bigamist's: "What is home without another?"

Dress to Match Menu

According to Percy Cadlipp, dictator of London fashions, millinery hereafter must dress to match the menu. A woman in blue should not serve strawberry ice.

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acid-digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating.

This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or fetid breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

PHILLIPS Milk of Magnesia

Flawless Crystal to Museum

Mrs. Worcester Reed Warner has given to the United States National museum a perfect sphere of flawless crystal, believed to be the largest in the world, in memory of her late husband, a manufacturer of astronomical instruments.

The ball weighs 106 3/4 pounds and is almost thirteen inches in diameter. It was cut in China from a block of Burma quartz weighing about half a ton and was polished in Japan, the final operation taking eighteen months.—World's Work.

Easy to Fool

"The capacity of people to fool themselves about themselves is amazing," says Owen D. Young. "Most people value comfort above progress, yet few will admit it."—American Magazine.

Candy

Consumption of candy in the United States totaled 1,382,243,387 pounds last year, or 117,000,000 pounds more than the previous year—an increase of nearly one pound for every inhabitant of the country.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.
