Busy Week In High School

We are on the second week of the new school year. Both teachers and pupils seem to be very well satisfied with their work, and rapid progress for a good school year is already being made. The schedules are all arranged, and after Monday no other changes are to be made. We are having some trouble in getting children to cover their books. This is one of the requirements of the State law, and, in order to enforce this law, we have made a local ruling that a fine of 15c a day will be charged on all uncovered books until they are covered or the book has been paid for.

Several new instruments have been ordered for the music department, and under the direction of M. K. Sandifer, both a band and orchestra are being organized.

The Public Speaking Department has a good enrollment, and it is interesting to note that they are already beginning work on a play, which is to be presented some time within the next month.

Football is being eliminated from our athletic schedule this year, but as basket ball practice has already begun, we are looking forward to having one of the best teams of this section.

Cactus Club

Mrs. Edward Sterrett entertained the Cactus Bridge Club at her home Wednesday afternoon of last week. Mrs. Russell Dyer was winner of high score and Mrs. Wallace Henshaw, second, while Mrs. Prince Dishman was successful in the cut.

Those enjoying the afternoon were Mesdames Horace Fletcher, J. C. Stansell, Clyde Harrell, Herbert Buchanan, S. C. Bodkin, Frank Robertson, Wallace Henshaw, Carlton White, Ben Davis, Russell Dyer, Prince Dishman, James Nance, S. A. Kernal and Harry Newton.

Parent Teacher Meeting

The executive committee of the Parent Teacher Association met with the grade teachers in the High School auditorium at 4 o'clock last Thursday afternoon. The purpose of this meeting was to discuss with the teachers the importance of having what is called a room representative, that is, a parent to represent each room. At the next regular meeting of the organization, teachers are to report on the representatives whom they have chosen. The room representative plan is a valuable aid in developing the local work. Through the close personal contact which this plan makes possible, a co-operative spirit among parents, teachers, school board members, and students is developed.

San Angelo Fair And Exposition

San Angelo, Sept. 18.—Department heads, officials and amusement directors of the greater 1930 West Texas Exposition, which will be held in San Angelo September 22 to 27, are all set to carry out their separate parts of the program, and indications now are that the varied program of entertainment and enlarged departments will attract record crowds to the six-days regional fair, according to L. B. Horton, president.

Miss Norma Sterling, daughter of Ross S. Sterling, Governor-elect of Texas, who will represent Houston as Duchess to the Queen of West Texas at the coronation ceremony to be held before the grandstand at 8:00 p. m. Friday, September 26, has named as her maid of honor, Miss Margaret Carter of Houston, according to a telegram received at exposition headquarters offices in San Angelo.

More than 35 towns already have appointed duchesses and maids of honor, and Houston will be one of several Texas cities to send representatives to the coronation ceremony, it was pointed out by R. G. Carr, superintendent of the coronation.

Announcement that a West Texas polo tournament will be held as a part of the exposition program has just been made, with more than half a dozen teams expected to enter. Already Menard, Abilene, Brady, Fredericksburg, Midland and San Angelo teams have been entered, according to John P. Lee, who is in charge of the tournament.

Eight distinct classes have been arranged for the Horse Show program, which will be held before the Grandstand Monday evening, September 22, and of which John Burnside is chairman. The Horse Show will be a parade of West Texas thoroughbreds, plus a great deal of action with girls riding clubs, men's riding clubs, polo teams and cavalry horses from Fort D. A. Russell at Marfa participating.

Already a few stables are represented with race horses at the fairgrounds, and Jess Elrod, superintendent of speed for the four days racing program which will open Tuesday, September 23, to continue through Friday, September 26, has announced that more than 100 race horses will be brought here to compete for the liberal prizes that have been offered.

A herd of 20 broncs, property of the Crockett County Fair Association, are on grain feed at the exposition grounds and already in good condition for the three rodeo performances, the first of which will be held on the opening day, Monday, September 22, beginning at 2:00 p. m. Evening rodeo performances will be given in an electrically lighted arena before the grandstand Tuesday and Wednesday.

Numerous bands will take part in the West Texas band contest that will be held Monday, September 22. The merchant's Style Show will be held before the grandstand Thursday evening, September 25, and will reflect the newest trends in what is proper for the well dressed woman to wear.

The Oklahoma Terrapin Derby, which will be held Saturday already is attracting a great deal of attention and is expected to be a great drawing card.

The Livestock Department and Agricultural Shows will be featured by exhibits that will reflect the stability of West Texas' agricultural program, with entries already booked indicating that the shows will be larger than ever. The first feeder lamb show to be held in Texas is to be a feature in the livestock department.

A special train will be operated out of Alpine to bring the Sul Ross College football team and fans to the exposition for the game that will be played Saturday afternoon with the Schreiner Institute Mountaineers.

Mrs. S. A. Kernal delightfully entertained a few of her friends with a golf party Wednesday evening of last week at the miniature golf course. The occasion being a farewell courtesy to Mrs. C. M. Breeding, who left Saturday of this week for a motor trip through the western states.

After partners were secured bids were made on the outcome of the score. Mrs. Lester winning first prize for the most accurate bid, Mrs. A. C. Clatfelter second, Mrs. R. N. Allen was consoled with a tin loving cup. Mrs. Breeding received a guest prize.

Ice cold soda "pop" was served to the following: Mesdames James Nance, Harry Newton, C. M. Breeding, Mac. Lester, J. C. Stansell, W. C. Barksdale, R. N. Allen, Jack, McKee, Herbert Buchanan, Edward Sterrett, A. C. Clatfelter, S. C. Bodkin, Mary Lue Keller and Horace Fletcher.

Reception Given By Culture Club

The ladies of the Sanderson Culture Club entertained their husbands and the teachers with a reception at the home of Mrs. McKee last Friday night. After having been welcomed by Mrs. Stuckey, who spoke in behalf of the Culture Club, guests were favored with a delightful program, which included a reading by Mary Ferguson, a piano solo by Miss Harrell, a reading by Mrs. Loehausen, a vocal solo by Mrs. Lester, a piano solo by Miss Woodlock, and a reading by Miss Jernigan. These numbers were thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Names were then distributed and families were formed by groups of persons having the same name. The head of each group then led his family to the dining room where delicious punch and lady fingers were served to about 40 guests.

Miss Willema May of Alpine, who taught here in our public schools the first week of school, left Friday night of last week for Pampa, Texas, where she was given a better paying position.

Miss Helen Watson of Alpine is visiting friends here.

Dryden Rodeo A Big Success

The citizens of Dryden gave a rodeo and barbecue at the aviation grounds last Saturday. A big crowd from the Dryden territory and also from Sanderson attended and all seemed to have enjoyed the occasion. A platform was built under the hanger and a string band from Langtry furnished music for a big dance that night. Results of some of the contests were as follows:

DASH OF COLOR OR WHITE ENLIVENS FROCK OF BLACK

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

As to the "first" autumn frock, fashion gives the answer in terms of black and white. Wherefore the well-dressed woman is starting out at the dawn of a new season in a most arresting daytime gown made of black canton crepe or of the now-so-voisuish faille silk or of satin (yes, satin is "in style" again), with the inevitable "touch of white" enhancing it with a sprightly air of chic.

It is just such good-looking frocks as the model pictured which are striking the high spots in the immediate style picture. A distinctive feature about this dress is that it is made "with a tunic." The revival of the tunic is one of the most outstanding events in present-day styling. The theme of the tunic is destined to be played in every key and with variations during the coming months.

This flare for the tunic may be easily accounted for, seeing that daytime modes have gone "Russian" this season. The coming winter fashions will dramatically declare the Russian influence in lavishness of fur, in cunning muffs and picturesque Cossack hats, in beaded tunics, in flaring skirts, and in other details too numerous to itemize.

But to return to this charming

Fresh and Canned Fruit May Be Used for Fruit Cup

Many combinations of fruit, fresh or canned, may be used for fruit cup. Use colors that blend or contrast pleasantly and combine acid fruits with sweet, and firm with juicy kinds. Cut large fruits into small, attractive pieces, mix lightly so that they keep their shape, sweeten slightly, chill before serving, and garnish the individual servings with sprigs of mint or choice brightly-colored fruits. Good combinations are: Strawberries, oranges and apples. Purple grapes with seeds removed, grapefruit and apricots. Peaches, raspberries and pineapple. Watermelon, honeydew or muskmelon and oranges. Red cherries, pears and green grapes.

black-and-white dress in the picture. It is made of faille silk, with white satin for the artfully draped collar and the unique play-at-the-elbow cuffs. It seems as if trimming on the new sleeves has a way of going to the elbow this season. At any rate, most of the fall frocks are distinguished with novel and elaborated sleeves.

When it is not black with a touch of white, then it is black with a dash of color. A favorite combination is black with turquoise blue expressed in such beguiling effects as turquoise beads worked on black canton crepe, or a blue wool lace blouse worn with a black bolero suit.

Black is also forming an alliance with blue, especially turquoise, in the new fashions. The vogue for brown with white is also declared, touches of white with deep wine also stressing the trend to unusual color schemes.

In every instance the law of related color is observed in the accessories as well as in the costume itself. The new hats in black and white, likewise in black with a note of turquoise blue, are the pride of the milliner's heart this season.

Butter, Rich in Vitamins Is Good for the Health

Because butter is rich in vitamins that are necessary for the growth of children and the well being of adults, there is no substitute for it, according to J. R. Dice, head of the dairy department at North Dakota agricultural college.

"People, both young and old, who use an adequate amount of butter in their diet will be much less susceptible to disease, especially colds and diseases of the lungs, air passages and sinuses, than those who do not use enough butter," Professor Dice says.

Experiments with rats have shown the superior food value of butter, and that animals fed butter as a part of their diet were of good size.

Moisture-Proof Fabrics Recommended for Children's Play Suits

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Children from two to four are especially in need of comfortable, warm, non-restricting garments in which they can play out-of-doors in almost any weather without catching cold or spoiling their clothes. Mothers who are planning to make most of their children's fall wardrobes will do well to include one or more play suits of fairly close, moisture-proof fabrics. The selection of the material will depend somewhat on the climate and types is shown in the accompanying picture. This play suit is made of a closely woven lightweight wool fabric, similar to kasha cloth and somewhat resembling a light flannel. It has knitted wrist and leg bands and a knitted collar. The knitted finish is recommended because it confines extra fullness and keeps out wind without restricting circulation or muscles.

Self-help in dressing is encouraged by the front opening with large flat buttons. The back drop is finished with tab extensions at the waistline, so that when the belt is fastened the placket does not gap. Notice the fullness in the leg back of the knee which helps to give roominess in the seat. In most wool fabrics this fullness is shrunk into the seam. When cutting out these suits the side line of the back section should always curve out slightly at the point where this fullness comes just above the knee. If the line were straight there would be a strain on the seam when the child sat down or squatted on the ground.

All children's play suits should have pockets placed so that they can be easily reached. Welt pockets are used on the suit illustrated.

A tam with a knitted band completes this costume. The cloth part is made in two sections. All the knitted parts of the outfit are more satisfactory, if small needles and sweater yarn are used to make them. The yarn may be of a contrasting color, but the effect is generally more pleasing if it matches the fabric in color and the contrast is one of texture.

the kind of weather the child is exposed to.

The bureau of home economics has designed play suits of several different kinds, suitable for use in the fall and spring, in the coldest part of the winter or on rainy days. A leaflet describing them may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture. One of the most practical

Cotton, Silk, Rayon Favored by the Consumers

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

New light from the consumer standpoint is thrown on trends in the use of textiles in the home by a report recently issued by the bureau of home economics, United States Department of Agriculture. Cotton and wool growers as well as manufacturers of textiles and textile machinery are vitally concerned with the shift in textile buying habits.

The bureau has obtained replies from more than a thousand men and women, representing all sections of the United States, as to the textile fibers in use in their wardrobes and houses in 1927 as compared with 1922, and their reasons for change. The returns show that families and individuals with the larger incomes more frequently chose silk or rayon in preference to cotton for many garments. Likewise, those living in the larger cities, in many cases registered a similar change from cotton to silk and rayon. Women gave as their chief reasons for this change that silk and rayon are more attractive and easier to handle than cotton. Men based their preference for silk and rayon socks to cotton on style and comfort.

In household articles, however, cotton is more than holding its own, according to the report of 646 families. In the large cities and in homes with the higher incomes, linen, rayon, and silk were given preference to cotton for certain articles, but this was offset by the more extensive use of cotton and by the actual increase in number of cotton household articles in the majority of the homes in 1927 as compared with 1922.

Copies of the printed report may be obtained free by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for Miscellaneous Publication 31-M, "The Changing Uses of Textile Fibers in Clothing and Household Articles."

FOOD SUGGESTIONS THAT WILL APPEAL TO ALL

By NELLIE MAXWELL

True happiness is to no place confined. But still is found in a contented mind. —Shakespeare.

To direct a wanderer in the right way is to light another man's candle by one's own, which loses none of its light by what the other gains.—Grove.

Casserole of Tongue.—Wash one fresh beef tongue and cook until tender in boiling water to cover. Remove the skin and all unsightly portions and lay in a casserole. Blend two tablespoonfuls of flour and two tablespoonfuls of sweet fat, and one cupful of the broth. Add one teaspoonful each of minced onion and salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and one cupful each of diced carrots, turnip, celery, canned peas; pour around the tongue and cook in the oven well covered until the vegetables are tender.

Cucumber and Onion Sandwich.—Peel and chop fine two firm cucumbers and grate two mild onions, add pepper, salt and a half teaspoonful of sugar. Place in a sieve to drain and chill in the ice chest. At serving time add french dressing, drain and mix with mayonnaise to spread. Serve on buttered whole wheat bread and garnish with stuffed olives.

Lemon Icebox Cookies.—Cream one cupful of butter or a mixture of butter and other sweet fat, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, when well blended add three beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, one teaspoonful of the grated rind, five cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, all well blended in the flour. Add candied orange peel, chopped nuts; raisins may be added to taste. Shape into rolls and place in the ice box. Cut into thin slices and bake in a quick oven.

Onion Soup.—Chop two cupfuls of onion, cook in two tablespoonfuls of butter, stirring often. When the onions are tender add four cupfuls of vegetable stock, one teaspoonful of salt, paprika and pepper to taste and two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley.

Peanut Butter Bread.—This makes delicious sandwich bread. Take two cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one-third of a cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of peanut butter and one and one-half cupfuls of milk. Mix the peanut butter as for biscuits and bake one hour. Keep for a day before cutting.

Tomato Soup Sandwich.—Spread rye bread with creamed butter and cover with a leaf of lettuce. Cover the lettuce with canned soup undiluted, cover with another leaf and then with a slice of buttered bread.

Boston Cream Pie.—Beat the yolks of six eggs until creamy, add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and add one cupful of sugar very slowly, beating well, then add two teaspoonfuls of grated lemon peel, three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and one cupful of flour folded after the beaten egg whites have been added. Sift the flour several times to make it very light. The layers will be very thin.

Now to one cupful of whipped cream add three beaten egg whites. Sweeten and flavor and spread over the cake. Ice with a chocolate frosting.

Dried Beef and Cream.—Cut thinly sliced smoked dried beef into slivers with the kitchen shears and add to a rich cream sauce in a double boiler. Serve with baked potatoes. The real old time dish was prepared with real cream thickened. Whip the sauce with an egg beater before adding the beef.

Mesopotamian Date Pudding.—Take one cupful of flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one-half cupful of nut meats, one cupful of pitted dates, one cupful of milk, one-fourth cupful of honey, and one-fourth cupful of orange juice. Sift flour, salt and soda together. Add the dates to the milk, then the milk to the flour, add nuts and honey, stir in the orange juice. Pour into a greased baking dish and place over hot water to steam for two hours. Serve with hard or foamy sauce. This recipe serves ten.

Shrimp Omelette.—Cook one can of shrimps in boiling water ten minutes. Put through an ordinary food grinder, season with salt and pepper. Mix with egg and cook as usual.

Ripe Olives, Source of Vitamin A, Make Most Delicious Sandwich

Ripe Olives Unusual but Delicious.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are a good many varieties of club sandwiches to be found on the quick lunch menu, but here's a new one, and a very appetizing one, too. Try it the next time you want something unusual for a luncheon or supper. Probably you'd better keep to yourself the fact that ripe olives have been found to be an excellent source of vitamin A—people will like these sandwiches enough without being told they are good for them! The suggestion and proportions are from the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture and have been thoroughly tested and found satisfactory.

- 1 loaf bread
- 2 large ripe, skinned tomatoes, sliced thin
- 3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
- 6 slices cooked bacon, crisp
- 1 cup ripe olives, cut from stones
- Thick mayonnaise
- Lettuce

Slice the bread, trim off the crusts, and toast until lightly browned. Make double-decker sandwiches with the toast and other ingredients arranged in layers of lettuce, egg, bacon, tomato and olives, with enough mayonnaise to moisten. Insert toothpicks to hold the sandwiches together and garnish the tops with crisp lettuce and a few of the sliced ripe olives. With a cold beverage and a light dessert this makes an ideal hot weather luncheon or supper.

STORY FOR THE CHILDREN AT BEDTIME

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"To be sure," said Mr. Turtle, "we won't have to pay high prices for our food and our goodies, for we get them ourselves, and thus far there have been no grocers or butchers in the turtle world."

"In fact, we don't pay anything for our food, nor do we receive any money for anything that we do."

"In fact, there are no creatures in the turtle world who ask for turtle money."

"As a matter of fact, there is no such thing as turtle money," said Mrs. Turtle.

"Correct, my love, you are always right."

Then they both grinned, for they had been having such a foolish talk, and they liked having foolish talks once in awhile.

Then they decided they would pay a round of visits.

They thought that they would tell every creature upon whom they called that they would be at home in Turtle-Grove-Pond after the following day and that they hoped they would have the pleasure of having their calls returned.

"It will not be greedy of us to go and visit them and have tea when we merely want to be sociable and when we want to have them come to our home, too."

"Where is Turtle-Grove-Pond?" asked Mrs. Turtle.

"Our home, my love," said Mr. Turtle.

"Have we moved?"

"Oh, no, but when we go calling we must have a name for our place so

"Where is Turtle-Grove-Pond?"

It can be put on the corner of our cards.

"That is the correct thing to do," said Mr. Turtle.

"Have you the cards ready?" asked Mrs. Turtle.

And to Mrs. Turtle's surprise and delight, she saw a great many leaves Mr. Turtle had gathered near his pond. In the corner was the name Turtle-Grove-Pond, which no one could have understood unless Mr. Turtle explained it to them.

But that he was quite willing to do. The leaves had been marked by a family of bugs who like to do that work and who had made the little holes Mr. Turtle said spelled out the name of his home in Turtle language!

In the meantime, while Mr. and Mrs. Turtle went calling, the little turtles came out themselves. Their mother had buried the eggs in the sand and had left them as turtle mothers do.

They had hatched out all alone and were just as happy as could be.

When Mr. and Mrs. Turtle came back they greeted the little turtles as though they were strangers.

They liked them but they did not make any fuss over them. For, of course, how could they be sure that the little turtles were their own when they had left them to come out into the world by themselves?

They might have been, for all they knew, the turtle children of some neighbors.

But that is the way in Turtleland and the little ones got along by themselves and seemed to be perfectly happy.

And Turtleland continued to be very gay and jolly with calling and tea parties and—

On the back of this paper was the annotation that the watch was sold September 15, 1827.

MILL WORKER BENEFITED

Picked Up After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Towanda, Pa.—"I was working in a silk mill and got so tired and rundown that I weighed only 80 pounds. I was not well enough to do my work. As soon as I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to pick up. After being married for thirteen years, I had a baby boy and the next year I had another boy who now weighs 37 pounds and is healthy as a bear. The Vegetable Compound has helped me in a dozen ways and I hope others will try it too."

She did not kiss me back; almost she seemed to shiver a little, as if with cold. I loosed her, looked round, and saw that my friend Bassett was there. He was walking toward us across the marshy grass; had reached us; was looking at me; was speaking.

"Amory," he said, "I'm sorry to say I have orders to arrest you for the alleged murder of Sir Richard Fanshew."

"I turned not to him, but to Pia. In one moment I understood all. She, the fearless rider, the candid lover, had dared one more risk. She had tricked me into doing that which never, knowing, I would have done—link my life with hers, beneath the shadows of crime and death. The words were said; there was no un- saying them. Pia was married to an arrested murderer."

"Anything you say," warned Bassett, "may be used in evidence against you."

I paid no more attention to him than to the winds of the Romilly river. I faced my five minutes' wife, squarely looking her in the eyes. "You should not have done it," I said. Pia looked back at me, and her eyes did not fall before mine, in that duel. "It's my answer to you," she said. "I know about everything."

"That you don't—" I was beginning, but Bassett cut me short. "She does," he said. "I told her."

"What d-d reason had you to—?" Said Bassett in his precise manner— "You don't seem to realize that you have no private affairs left. In any case, all this is very irregular. I must ask you to come with me and the police, Amory. I'm sure you won't make trouble."

"I won't," I answered him. "Give me five minutes talk first."

He went away, remaining in sight. I turned to Pia. "What is it that you know?" I asked her.

"I know," she said calmly, "that Richard was a leper—"

"Not proved,"

"Suspected, at all events. I know you met him and told him you'd recognized him. And he said he did not care. And he was going to the mainland for the wedding. And you shot him, because you could not stop him any other way. You know you might be hanged for it—"

"Dear love, it's not might; it's will be."

"I don't believe it. But if you are, I'll go with you to prison, and I'll walk with you to the end, and I'll kiss you before you die—like this."

I met her lips before they had time to reach mine; and we clung together, caring nothing for the men on the river bank, caring nothing for who saw us, in an embrace fierce, long as if indeed the shadow of the gallows tree rose up above us, ready to end all.

She drew back; the little feet that I had swept up away from earth, in the long passion of my kiss, came down again with their white wedding shoes splashing in the mud. "They'll take you in the government launch," she said. "The Papuan Chief's down the river a little way, waiting for me."

"Where are you going?"

"Back to Port Moresby. I never went away—so many things began to happen. Mr. Spicer turned up—he went to Fisherman Island and questioned the old Solomon man who's caretaker—"

"Why, I never saw—"

"No. But it seems he was hidden away somewhere, afraid to show. Mr. Spicer got it out of him. He—Mr. Spicer—knew all sorts of things—I can't think—"

"I can," I said, remembering that night on Daru, and the meeting with Spicer, outside Bassett's house. "He set all this going, before he and the other man started up country after you. He must have known they'd be waiting for you here."

All that had puzzled me, all I had felt and feared, was plain to me now—too late. Well might they take their defeat lightly, when it meant so little! Well might they stick close to the way down to the trap that was to be sprung upon me—me, their only rival to the gold of Tatataka!

"I'm going," she said. "It has to be good-by, as I said, but I shall be near you, all the time, and if—" unusually rich area or pocket. "But it isn't likely to matter particularly; if they break my neck at Koki jail, I shan't have much time to enjoy it."

Bassett had nothing to say. I think he hated his job so much that he couldn't even be civil. I understood his frame of mind, more or less shared it, and on the run to Port Moresby, happily a brief one, we scarcely exchanged ten sentences.

On the day when we made port, the Papuan Chief, lagging a few miles behind us, I was given permission to visit the mines office more or less in custody, and make my application. So far as precaution could do it, I was holding Tatataka. But that my tenure was perilous, none knew better than I. Caxon and Spicer were in court during the trial, when it came on a day or two after. They watched every point with the sharpness of prosecuting attorneys. I don't know what they made of it. What I made of it, that first day, was that I was not, at all events, going to be hanged. I had a lawyer; he was doing his best, and making the most of Fanshew's attack on me; and his attempt to run me down. The old Solomon islander was chief witness. The boy I had hired in port, who cleaned my rifle and found one shot had been fired; a stray Hula native, who had been out fishing on the reef, and had seen me come away from Fisherman, make a long sweep, and return, were others. Spicer, when they called, told shamelessly all that he had overheard under the house in Daru, and thereby sheeted home to me the one thing wanting—motive. I was known, of course, to be in love with Miss Laurie, but that alone would hardly have fixed the crime—if crime one must call it; I have never felt inclined to do so.

The end of it was that the jury found me guilty of manslaughter, and that I was sentenced to five years. I am quite certain that these twelve good men and true of Port Moresby stretched a point in order to save my neck; and I am equally sure that the judge and the crown prosecutor—one of whom was officially doing his best to have me hanged, while the other was officially ready to pronounce the sentence—were much better pleased with the verdict than they would (officially) have admitted.

So I was sent to Koki jail, and there was no gallows built up inside the yard for me, after all. And I chose—out of a dozen who offered—a friend to go to Tatataka, and do the work that was necessary to hold my claim for me.

They did not consciously make it— I for me in jail. They were kindly, cold, coldly kind, as jail officials just are. Holly, the head jailer, with his sharp blue eyes, and the smile that wasn't a smile, and the voice that could rake the hide off a delinquent native prisoner—turn him, with two words, into a heap of shivering brown jelly—Holly wasn't my friend, kept me to the letter of the jail regulations; slacked nothing that might have been slacked, allowed nothing that could be refused. I suppose he was justified. I could learn working to order; I didn't mind piling stones by myself on the new little jetty, far removed from the black criminals who were doing similar work; I made no trouble about keeping my cell tidy, didn't grumble at the plain, sufficient food. What I could not learn was to avoid "answering back"; letting my sore and angry spirit flash out in sudden fury at the least reproach. What I did not realize, for long, was that in losing my freedom, I had also lost my rights as a human being and a man. It was so, in jails; it must be so. There were times when I could have murdered Holly, smashed his black warders into butcher-meat. Yet there was no time—I think—when right, according to prison custom, was on my side.

This had a bad result. When the three months were out, and visitors, by law, could be permitted, I got my one hour on Sunday, once a month, and not another minute. I got my letters, monthly; always read and initialed. The letters I wrote were read and initialed also. If I could have fitted myself into the prison shape so far as to behave "decently," "civilly," "remember I was in jail, and not in the Hotel Australia," (Heaven knows I was admonished often enough) I might have "wangled" many a little indulgence, such as are granted to the model—usually experienced—jail-bird.

But for Pia and for me, there were no extra visits, no unread letters. Worst of all, though perfectly legal and right, was the presence of Holly at all our interviews. He read a paper, and pretended kindly enough not to be listening; but I ask you—What is love-making, under such conditions?

I pass over months—I cannot remember for certain how many; it may have been about six—and come to a day when it was visiting day, and Pia, darling over-patient Pia, was awaiting below at the gate of the palm avenue, until the hour upon she might justly climb the hill. Always, she was a little thing, always the lovely apple-round of her cheek was a little more wasted, like a fruit that frosts have prematurely touched. She was gay, almost merry, before me; merry with the self-mastery taught the well-bred girl, as letters and languages are taught her; she strove to put aside the weariness, loneliness, despair, that ravaged her heart, even as they ravaged mine, and show a bright face throughout our little hour. We may have been the better for our pretenses; I cannot say; I only know that they were hard to keep up.

Pia's parents, I knew, maintained a ceaseless siege of her; Mrs. Laurie had even visited Port Moresby, more or less incognito, had practically gone down on her knees to Pia, begging her, as she valued the affection of her people, her place in society, her immortal welfare (characteristically, by Mrs. Laurie, placed last) to leave the black sheep into whose pastures she had so unfortunately strayed, and return to her own fold. It would be easy—according to Mrs. Laurie—to "manage" a divorce. She was sure I wouldn't be unreasonable. Evidence could always be arranged.

So Mrs. Laurie, Pia in reply—but I will let her speak for herself.

"Mum almost went on her knees. I was most frightfully sorry. I petted her, and told her she mustn't worry so; I asked her how she'd have felt if father—but that made her worse; she said I mustn't compare him to—to—never mind."

"I don't," I assured her. "There's only one person on earth I mind, and that's Mrs. Laurie's daughter." But all the same, I was sorry for my mother-in-law. According to her lights I felt she was justified.

"She said some more about criminals. And I told her that you had made yourself a criminal for me. And she said that didn't matter; she understood how I felt—oh, mum isn't half bad, when you know her—but she said the point was how would society feel? and that I was young and didn't know what I was giving up, and that I must, simply must, come back with her, and that it wouldn't be too late; I could rebuild my life, my people would stand by me. . . . She is a quite good little mother, you know, Phil, even if— Well, I told her that I was twenty-one, and had my aunt's money, and I was very sorry but I must judge for myself. I quoted that thing from the Bible—'Whether thou goest, I will go, and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. The Lord do so to me, and more also if I ought but death part thee and me. I was shaking all over when I said it. Phil, it was like pronouncing vows. And mother—"

"What did she—?"

"You can't down mum. She listened as if she had been at church, and then she said, in that clipped way of hers—'Very nice, my dear; but don't forget that all that was said by Ruth to her mother-in-law, not her husband; and don't forget that by and by she married Boaz—like a shot!'"

I couldn't help myself, I laughed. And Head Jailer Holly (sometimes that man was nearly human) got so far behind his newspaper, and cleared his throat so much and noisily that— Well, what would you have done? . . . "You had something more to tell me," I reminded her, when Holly had finished gurgling with his feelings, and Pia's hat had resumed its usual, saucy angle over one eye.

"Yes," she said, suddenly grave. "I had; I should have known about it and told you before. If mum's visit hadn't put things out so. Until she was gone, she simply absorbed me, and I didn't— Phil, I'm afraid it's something serious."

"Is it about—?"

"The gold claim—yes, it is. I made as much as I could of that to mum, but you can't get the better of her—she shoots so straight—she went to the point more than I'd dared to do myself, and said—'All very well, and people will forgive most things to millions, but, my good girl,' she said, 'do you think that gold's going to lie loose till he's ready to pick it up? And I said, 'He's sent a friend to look after it.' And she said, 'I understand' (mum does get to know everything) 'that a gold field's been proclaimed, and half the bad characters of Australia are there; what do you think's going to happen to a fortune left lying loose? Don't tell me,' she said. One never does tell her; she always does the telling, and she's so right—except about you."

English King "Held Up" Lawlessness was rampant in England during much of the Eighteenth century and the streets of London were so unsafe that even royal personages were stopped and robbed. A highwayman once dropped over the wall of Kensington gardens, and with every expression of respect took from George III, who was walking there alone, his purse, watch and shoe buckles. Mail coaches were special objects of attack and they proved vulnerable until in 1792 an armed guard for the mails was provided.—Detroit News.

Scraps of Humor

COMMON MALADY

"I say, Tom, are you ever troubled with sleeplessness?"

"I am. Some nights I don't sleep three hours."

"I pity you, then, I've got it awfully bad. I've been afflicted now about two years. The doctor calls it 'neurio insomnia paralaxitis.'"

Tom grunted and said: "I've had it about six months, but we call it a baby."

Sex Equality They were arguing about sex equality.

"Well," said the husband, "there is one good, sweet thing that a woman can never have, and which her husband (if she has one) can always possess."

"There is not," replied the wife in angry tones.

"Oh, yes, there is," he remarked quietly—"a wife."

Identity Lost "So our engagement is at an end?" said the man.

"It is," replied the girl.

"I suppose you will return the engagement ring?"

"Certainly, if you wish it. Call round some evening and we'll pick it out."

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drug store has the genuine, prescription product.

Future Fighting Planes Marvels of Efficiency

Airplanes are now able to climb to greater heights than ever before, and the air battle of the future—if there is one—will be fought eight or ten miles above land, out of the range of anti-aircraft guns. Designers have been compelled to revolutionize the airplane to enable pilots to live at such a height, and the cockpit of these machines will be totally enclosed. The cabins will be electrically heated and the pilots will wear specially heated clothing to withstand the cold. Air will be provided from cylinders of oxygen, fed through a small mouthpiece. Great care is being taken over this item, and accurate experiments will have to be made, for should the supply of oxygen fail the pilot would lose consciousness in mid-air.

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

BIG SALE FOR DR. PEPPER

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 11.—Talk of business depression and reduced sales volume finds no echo in the report of one southwestern corporation, The Dr.
 Pepper Company, Inc., of Dallas, which has just made public through its vice president and general manager, J. B. O'Hara, a statement of its sales record for the first seven months of 1930.

The statement shows net gains in sales volume for every month of 1930, from January through August, ranging from 51 to 200 percent over the corresponding months of 1929, with an average for the seven months of 72.9 percent.

"The Dr. Pepper Company has produced this increase in its sales volume by aggressive merchandising and advertising," said Mr. O'Hara. "We believe that this is the answer to talk of business depression. It is obvious that the buying public has not ceased to purchase the things that it wants, and that are aggressively and convincingly advertised. On this theory, we made large increases in our advertising appropriation for 1930, despite the economic situation which prevailed after the November stock market upset.
 Our sales results to date have fully justified our faith in the theory."

"More than 400 newspapers are carrying the advertising of Dr. Pepper this season, and our steadily mounting sales volume is the most convincing evidence of the effectiveness of this policy of increasing the advertising and sales effort during times when many other concerns are "economizing" by reducing or suspending their advertising efforts.

"Persistent advertising pays in good times and bad. The Dr.
 Pepper Company began advertising on a large scale in 1927, and our sales volume has shown a consistent growth each year since. The average increase over the whole period has been more than 600 percent. Our advertising in one form or another is continued the year 'round, in season and out."

Current conditions have made no reduction in the Dr. Pepper Company's expansion program, and more than 50 bottling new plants have been opened during the current year, taking Dr.
 Pepper into a large new territory in the South and Southwest, according to Mr. O'Hara.
 The Sweet Shop and Empress Drug Store and Confectionery of Sanderson handle Dr. Pepper drink with much success.

 ed friends in San Antonio several days this week.

Lesson for September 21

JONAH: THE NARROW NATIONAL IST REBUKED

LESSON TEXT—Jonah 3:3-5, 10; 4:1-11

GOLDEN TEXT—And Peter opened his mouth, and said, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is acceptable to him."

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Love for all the World.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Love for all the World.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is True Patriotism?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Patriotism and World Brotherhood.

In teaching this lesson it will be necessary to sweep into view the entire Book of Jonah.

I. Jonah's Call and Commission (Ch. 1:1, 2).

Jonah, a Jew, was called to go and preach repentance to a Gentile city. (Gen. 12:1, 2). The story of Jonah graphically portrays the history of Israel as a nation. God separated Israel to be the channel through which his mercy and salvation are to be carried to all nations. They, like Jonah, have been recreant to duty. Because of this, God has caused them to be swallowed up by the nations which will one day spew them out upon dry ground—Palestine. After severe chastisement, they will discharge their obligation, and the nations through their ministry will repent and turn to God.

II. Jonah's Flight From Duty (1:3).

He turned his back upon God and attempted to flee from his presence. In the same way Israel has become an apostate people.

III. Jonah's Correction (1:4-2:10).

1. Overtaken by a storm (v. 4).

Trouble soon came upon the disobedient servant of God. So with the Jew, misfortune after misfortune have overtaken them because they turned from God. They are now tossed about by the surging of the nations.

2. Cast overboard (v. 15).

In their perplexity the sailors cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah. According to his own direction they cast him overboard. God had prepared a great fish which swallowed him.

3. Jonah's deliverance (Ch. 2).

Jonah in his affliction turned to God and prayed (James 5:13). God miraculously preserved him while in the belly of the fish, and he has miraculously preserved Israel in the heart of the nations. The fish could not digest Jonah, neither can the nations digest Israel. Jonah repented while in the fish. So Israel will repent as they go into the great tribulation. God made the fish to vomit out Jonah. So he will at the proper time cause the nations to cast out Israel.

IV. Jonah's Commission Renewed (Ch. 3).

His experience made him willing to do God's bidding.

1. His field (v. 3).

He was to go to Nineveh, a large city, the people of which were cruel. Israel's field is the Gentile nations.

2. His message (v. 4).

He was instructed to "preach the preaching" commanded by God. Forty days were given to the people in which to repent. God's supreme desire is that all should repent (II Peter 3:9). This message represents the heart of God in his dealing with sinners.

3. Repentance of the Ninevites (vv. 5-8).

(1) They believed God (v. 5).

They believed that God was speaking to them through Jonah about their sins, and was announcing impending judgment.

(2) They proclaimed a fast (vv. 5-8).

The king and people joined sincerely in this movement. They put on sackcloth, the sign of penitence.

(3) They reasoned that God would repent (v. 9).

The sending to them of a prophet encouraged them to believe that God would show mercy if they repented.

V. Jonah's Behavior (Jonah 4:1-11).

1. He repines at God's action (vv. 1-3).

He now makes known the real reason for his flight from duty. He knew that the gracious God would spare the people who repented. The treatment of the Israelites at the hand of the Ninevites was such that Jonah did not want God to forgive them. We have here a case of a preacher of repentance mortified when the people repent and are pardoned.

2. God reproves Jonah (vv. 4-11).

By means of the gourd God showed him his error. This closing scene affords a striking example of the patience and pity of God in contrast with the hard-heartedness of man.

Our Religion

Our religion is, indeed, a thing between God and our own soul; but it is also a thing between us and society, and to attempt to isolate and secrete it is to deprive it of a thousand influences and excitements essential to its perfection.—William L. Watkinson.

A Chapter a Day

A chapter a day may not altogether keep the tempter away, but it will put him to a great disadvantage.—Watchman Examiner.

No Short Cut in Making Good Hay

Side-Delivery Rake Will Improve Quality and Reduce Labor.

The worst obstacle to hay making in New York is the weather, but many farmers beat the weather with modern hay making machinery, according to Professor H. B. Hartwig of the New York state college of agriculture. The typical farmer is afraid of green, sappy hay; so he goes to the extreme of curing his clover too late rather than too early.

Nutritious Hay Cut Early.
The most nutritious hay is cut earlier than the full bloom stage and thereby retains the green color and the leaves. The color is needed in hay not because the color itself makes meat, wool, and milk, but because of what is normally associated with color, says Professor Hartwig. The same processes that destroy color in hay are the ones that destroy feeding value. Mold destroys feeding value and color. Wetting in the field and bleaching, with the leaf loss associated with it, also destroy the feeding value along with the color.

Clover leaves make up about 30 per cent of the weight of the hay and contain nearly half of the nutrients. Any process that shatters leaves lowers the value of the hay when fed, which explains the tendency to use the left-hand side delivery rake in place of the old type tedder. The left-hand side delivery rake throws a high proportion of the leaves to the inside of the swath where they dry more slowly. It also tends to throw the stems out where the sun can hasten their drying. The right-hand rake will do just as good work but requires a little more bother. With it one should cut the hay in lands, start to rake in the center of the land, and rake in the opposite direction of the mower.

Lessens Labor.
The side-delivery rake does not reduce the time from cutting to storing, but it enables a man to put up more acres with less labor. There is no short-cut for good curing, Professor Hartwig says.

No Difficulty to Find Good Market for Apples

At this season of the year apple growers are generally very much concerned about the proper sale or disposal of their fruit crops. The apple producer who has fine, clean, high quality fruit consisting of standard varieties will have but little, if any, difficulty in finding a profitable market. In fact, such fruit is always in demand and buyers vie with each other to obtain such apples.

There is always, however, a larger quantity of what might be called medium to inferior apples and these are the ones that are the hardest to market. From what has already been said about the apple scab disease and the unfavorable conditions for spraying, the difficulties of the grower in marketing a low grade of fruit may be somewhat worse this year than usual.

No matter what the character of the fruit is, however, it will usually pay to grade it well and to stick to established grades. There is always a market for what is known as cull apples, but the grower may have at least two or even more grades of what is generally termed "culls." For the better culls a higher price may be asked.

Designate Two Cows as Champions of Colorado

Two pure-bred Jersey dairy cows owned by the Colorado Agricultural college have just been declared champion register of merit cows in their classes for Colorado during 1929, by the American Jersey Cattle club.

Certificates to this effect have just been received by Prof. George E. Morton, head of the animal husbandry department at the college, from Lewis W. Morley, secretary of the club.

One of the cows, Campestral Queen, has been designated as the champion register of merit cow, class AA, with a record production of 453.25 pounds of butter fat in 365 days.

The other, Fox's Leora Dewdrop, has been declared the champion register of merit cow, class AAA, for the past year, with a record butter fat production of 394.45 pounds in 284 days.

The college dairy herd is in charge of B. W. Fairbanks, associate professor of animal husbandry.

Farm Hints

Cows milking should be watered at least twice daily at all seasons.

There is some danger of causing udder troubles if heifers are kept overfat, but this condition rarely occurs. Usually they are not carrying sufficient flesh.

If a marked falling off in milk flow is allowed, it is impossible to fully regain the loss, even with the best of feeding later, and a lowered production results from the balance of the lactation period.

All persons who handle milk should realize that they have in their charge a food which is easily contaminated and therefore should take all reasonable precautions to prevent it from becoming a source of danger to themselves and others.

New Bait Effective for Beetle Control

Increase Quantities of Geraniol and Eugenol.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Japanese-beetle trappers will have better luck if they will make a slight change in the bait used in their traps by increasing the quantities of the attractive agents, geraniol and eugenol, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Two years of experimental work at the Japanese-beetle laboratory at Moorestown, N. J., has shown that traps containing the improved bait captured more than two and one-half times as many beetles as did the traps in which the old bait was used. Increasing the quantities of geraniol and eugenol will make the bait slightly more expensive, the department says, but the increased catch will more than offset this cost.

The formula for the bait recommended by the department is as follows: 4 teaspoonfuls of geraniol, one-half teaspoonful of eugenol, 1½ cups of bran, 1 tablespoonful of water, 2½ tablespoonfuls of molasses, and 1½ teaspoonfuls of glycerin. This makes about one-third of a pound, enough to bait one of the large cylindrical traps.

Certain types of traps have small bait containers which hold not more than an ounce of bait. The quantities of the attractive agents used in such traps are necessarily very small, and the department recommends for such traps the use of as much geraniol and eugenol to 5 grams of the plain bait as is recommended for the larger quantity.

Illinois Cherry Trees Now Facing Extinction

Cherry trees in Illinois face extinction by the cherry leaf spot, according to Dr. H. W. Anderson, University of Illinois.

The leaves of the cherry trees are attacked before the fruit is ripe and often drop off, stopping the storage of food for the coming winter. This weakened condition makes the tree quite subject to winter injury and causes the loss of large numbers of trees every year. Some trees put out new leaves and even blossoms in the fall and the new wood produced is not matured and is generally killed by severe winter weather.

"The disease lives over winter in the leaves that fall from the tree and the spores reinhabit the leaves the next year. Burning the leaves in the fall and winter helps to control the disease," Doctor Anderson says.

Commercial lime-sulphur, one gallon to 50 gallons of water, should be applied just after the blooms have dropped and again ten days after. The third spray should be applied about two weeks before the fruit is harvested. After the harvest another spray is advisable. The addition of one and a half pounds of arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water should be used to control the curculio in the first two sprays.

Danger Periods in Life Cycle of Dairy Heifers

College men nowadays seem to be investigating almost everything that can be investigated. The Missouri College of Agriculture has been investigating the rate of growth of dairy heifers at different ages, from conception to maturity. The investigators find that the rate of growth is not uniform but that growth is in three cycles. The first spurt of very rapid growth occurs before birth, at the fifth and sixth months. The second spurt begins two months after birth and ends at four and one-half months. The time between these spurts is a critical period for cow and calf and it is in this period that abortion is apt to occur, generally at seven months. The third period of growth begins at 12 months and ends at about 26 months. The practical application of these results of investigation is that calves and heifers should be extra well fed during the periods of greatest growth.

FARM FACTS

Clean milk will remain sweet for a longer period of time.

The best way to lower production cost is to keep only good cows, raise plenty of feed and maintain good pastures, supplementing the permanent pastures.

A very good grain mixture for calves is three parts of ground corn, three parts of ground oats, and three parts of wheat bran with 5 per cent of cottonseed meal.

During the last half of the pregnancy period the young heifers should be fed liberally so that they will be carrying some surplus flesh at the time of calving.

Cleanliness is not an absolute safeguard against disease, but it is a great factor in preventing contamination. From a health point of view, there is danger not only from milk that contains the specific disease-producing bacteria, but also from milk that contains large numbers of miscellaneous bacteria, which may cause serious digestive troubles, especially in infants and invalids, whose diet consists chiefly of milk.

Brought Business to Life

At Hickory Flat, Miss., crepe hanging on the door of the J. C. Simpson grocery store attracted pedestrians and window shoppers to enter the store and inquire as to the death in the grocer's family. "Who's dead?" they asked. "Oh, just business, that's all," said Simpson. Thereupon the shoppers undertook to revive business by making purchases. Simpson later removed the crepe.

Weakness

"SOME years ago, my health was bad and I suffered a great deal from weakness," writes Mrs. M. E. Connell, of Brewster, Fla., whose picture is printed at the right.

"I had a very tired feeling and a severe pain in my right side. I did not feel like doing my work, or getting out and enjoying myself. My pleasures being curtailed, I was blue and nervous.

"My mother had taken Cardui. Cardui had helped her and she thought it would help me. And it did. It strengthened me, and I was soon feeling well and strong. It helped my side and from then until now I have been glad to recommend Cardui."
