Ranchmen Lining Up For Lamb Club

The "Eat More Lamb" Club is steadily growing in strength, and below is a list of the counties and percentage of quota raised to date. Kerr County still holds the lead with 88 1/2%, but the most noticeable advancement has been made by Val Verde County, who came up from 46 1/2% to 88%, and indications are that they will pass Kerr County within a few days. This advancement is very remarkable since Val Verde County has the largest quota of any county in the State. News from the various counties is very favorable, and within the next two weeks even more marked progress is promised by county chairmen.

Name	Percentage
Kerr County	88 1/2%
Val Verde County	88%

Newsy Notes From The High School

Miss Julia Lipscomb, supervisor of primary work in Texas State College for Women at Denton, visited the public schools this week. Miss Lipscomb for several years has done outstanding work in the field of education, especially in the primary phase, and is one of the best known women educators of the South.

During her stay with us, most of her time was devoted to supervising and directing the work of our primary teachers. Her methods of teaching and her suggestions for improvements in some of our methods will be a great inspiration and help to our teachers. Because of her thorough understanding of educational problems, we feel that Miss Lipscomb's visit has been a benefit not only to the primary department, but to the other departments of our school as well.

The "Open House" at the new school building last Thursday night was well attended by both parents and students, and all seemed to have had an enjoyable as well as a profitable time. The first hour, from 7 to 8 was devoted to study. The topic for discussion in the parents' section was the Wise Use of Leisure Time. Mr. Brannan, Mrs. Stuckey and Mrs. Goldwire all gave very interesting talks on this subject. Miss Fox, head of the High School English department, gave a ten minute discussion on Letter Writing.

During this hour students were allowed to remain in the Library and read, or they were privileged to visit any teacher and secure aid on subjects in which they needed assistance.

From 8 to 9 o'clock patrons were shown over the building, while students played games in the gymnasium, at the end of which time refreshments were served to all in the Home Economics Department.

CHOIR SOCIAL FRIDAY AT METHODIST PARSONAGE

Last Friday evening the members of the choir were the special guests of Mrs. Stradley and the pastor to a social at the parsonage. The following choir members attended: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. John Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Stuckey, Miss Bernice and Beatrice Nichols, H. C. Goldwire, Mrs. H. C. Goldwire, Mrs. H. D. Brown, Mrs. D. H. McKee, Mrs. Bessie Darling, Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Utterback, William Goldwire, Charles Stuckey and Allen Owen.

Games were played and light refreshments served.

BAPTIST W. M. S. MEET

The Baptist W. M. S. met at the home of Mrs. A. D. Brown for Bible study. The following program was rendered:

Song, "I Gave My Life to Thee."

Prayer, by Mrs. H. D. Johnson.

Song, "Help Somebody Today."

The lesson was on Dorcas the Charitable.

Those present were Mms. A. D. Brown, Druse, Nance, Johnson, Strange, Ira Deaton, McAdams, Burrows, Massey and House.

Eagles Win Over Del Rio Wildcats

Friday and Saturday nights, January 16 and 17, the Sanderson Eagles met the Del Rio Wildcats in a basketball contest in the local "gym." The weather was not very favorable but a large crowd was out to see the games.

Friday night's game favored the Eagles all the way through, the boys from Del Rio seeming to have "stage fright" or something that prevented them from really getting in the game. At times they seemed on the verge of coming out of it and putting up a stiff fight against the strong Eagles, but the flurry lasted only a few moments and then they would drop back to stage-fright playing. The Sanderson boys won this game by 32 to 10.

Saturday night, however, was quite different. The Wildcats had regained their nerve and they jumped into the game with a vim and put as strong a game as has been played by any visiting team in the new gym. The stiff fight of the Wildcats roused the fighting blood of the Eagles and the two teams put up a game that was a pleasure to see. The score was 26 to 19 in favor of Sanderson.

Bandmaster Sandifer was there with his band and Opal Shelton was on hand with her cheer girls, and with the cheering and the music the Eagles' spirits were kept up.

Coach Knight has a fine team and Sanderson citizens are expecting them to make a good record during the big basketball tournament here January 30 and 31.

Wednesday night the most exciting and interesting game that Sanderson people have ever seen was played in the new gym when a picked team consisting of three members of the high school team and coach Knight and a player from last year's team beat the crack first team of Sul Ross college by a score of 25 to 24.

In the second game Wednesday night the regular high school team was defeated by the second Sul Ross team, the score being 32 to 10.

SERMON SUBJECTS FOR SUNDAY, JANUARY 25

Rev. B. M. Stradley, pastor of the First Methodist Church announces the following sermon subjects for next Sunday:

11:00 a. m., "The Transfiguration."

3:00 p. m., at Dryden School House, "Sewing and Reaping to the Flesh and Spirit."

7:30 p. m., "Walking in the Cleansing Light."

The following special music will be rendered at these services:

11:00 a. m., vocal solo by Miss Noble.

3:00 p. m. at Dryden, special male quartet: Messrs. Lattimer, Lowry, Stradley, Stuckey and Smith.

7:30 p. m., special anthem by choir, and trio by Messrs. Nichols and Stradley, and Miss Mattie Rue Newton.

Any Bible question may be handed in or mailed to Box 436 to be answered from the Scripture at the Sunday evening service. No names or intimations as to the source of questions will be made.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Spencer and family left Wednesday for Athens, Texas, where they will make their home. Mr. Spencer has been jailer here for several months and he and his estimable wife made many friends during their stay in Sanderson.

Miss Martha Thomas of Dryden is spending several days in El Paso this week visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. O'Bryant motored with Rev. Stradley to Dryden last Sunday where he preached at 3 o'clock.

Rotary Governor Visits Sanderson

Dr. R. E. McBride, Governor of the 42nd Rotary district, was a guest of the local Rotary Club last Wednesday at the regular meeting. Practically 100 percent of the Rotarians were present, and an excellent meeting was reported. One of the most important talks that has ever been given to the local club was delivered by Governor McBride.

The club also had as their guests at this meeting the members of the High School orchestra, who entertained with several numbers while they were waiting for lunch to be served.

Dr. McBride, during his stay in Sanderson, visited the High School, and at the students assembly gave a most interesting talk to the boys and girls.

MONTHLY SOCIAL AT M. E. PARSONAGE FRIDAY

Friday, January 30, from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m., all the young people who attend preaching services at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sundays, will be the special guests of Mrs. Stradley and the pastor at a social at the Methodist parsonage.

Bible drill games will be played, and light refreshments will be served.

Dedication of New High School Building

The dedication of the new High School building has been scheduled for 8 o'clock Thursday evening, January 29. A very interesting program has been arranged for this occasion, one of the most outstanding men of Texas having been secured to deliver the dedication address.

The building has been in use for the past two weeks, and each day we can appreciate its worth more and more. This building cost $150,000, the gymnasium alone of which cost $35,000. Every detail of the building is modern. It is conveniently as well as artistically arranged. No town in this section of the State has as good a school plant as Sanderson, and probably no town in Texas of this size has one to equal it.

Men's Fellowship Bible Class

We extend a cordial invitation to all men who are not regularly attending some Sunday school to attend the Men's Fellowship Bible Class meeting every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in the Fellowship Bible Class room.

You will be blessed by the prayerful study of God's word, and the fellowship of the class.

Publicity Classman.

Big Tournament Here Jan. 30-31

One of the biggest basketball tournaments that has ever been held in West Texas is staged for Sanderson on January 30 and 31, at the new $35,000 gymnasium. George B. O'Brien, Texas Conference official, will call the games throughout the meet. The towns that will be represented during the meet are Del Rio, Odessa, Alpine, Marfa, Big Lake, McCamey, Pecos, Fort Davis, Peacock Military Academy of San Antonio, and Sanderson. Other towns will also probably be here.

Trophies at this meet will be silver basketball for winning team, gold basketballs for individuals on winning teams, gold basketballs for the runners-up, sterling silver balls for consolation winner and gold basketballs for the all-tournament five to be selected.

From 150 to 200 out-of-town people are expected to be here for this tournament, and the occasion is one that none of our citizens should miss.

Season tickets and session tickets will be on sale the first of next week.

Belting Ribbon Used as Trimming

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN costumes begin to look a bit wintery-worn, as they have a way of doing during midseason, there is a never failing solution to the problem—a perfectly new hat. To answer this call for a "first hat" milliners are advocating models either made entirely of belting ribbon or ever-so-smart looking felts which are trimmed with belting ribbon.

Early arrivals include arresting models such as are shown in this group. The most noticeable thing about the advance styles is that they are so designed as to be worn far back on the head so as to reveal a high forehead. Then, too, brim treatments are made a feature. As you see in the picture of the all-ribbon hat shown at the top the one-sided brim effect which has proved so flattering works out very pleasingly with belting ribbon. The bow at the side indicates that all ribbon hats need not necessarily have a strictly tailored look.

The all-ribbon hat just below emphasizes the effectiveness of fine knifepleating. Not only does the pleated ribbon form the sharply upturned brim, but it resolves itself into ruffles at each side which give the hat a youthful look.

Wonderfully chic are the new felts which are trimmed with belting ribbon. They are being received with considerable enthusiasm. In the hat centered to the right in the picture, the idea of trimming felt with belting ribbon is worked out with utmost success. The pleated frill at the back cleverly suggests the baby-bonnet effect which is so popular. In this instance the ribbon is brought up through slots, a treatment which milliners are adopting in many instances.

The cloche of felt shown last in the group carries the ribbon-drawn-through-slot idea very attractively.

Recent hat fashions include many of these ribbon hats, the difference being between north and south that the headwear worn in the former is in more conservative colors, while chapeaux which will sojourn under sunny skies are in not only pastel shades and pure white, but in the new algerian shades which promise to be the smart color note for spring.

HOW TO PREPARE CANDIED SWEET POTATOES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Candied sweet potatoes are a general favorite, but not everyone knows the trick of making them tender and using corn sirup as well as sugar to candy them. The parboiled sweet potatoes are baked in the sirup mixture.

Another good sweet potato dish which can also be served in a casserole or baking dish is a combination of sweet potatoes and apples. Still another is made with pineapple to furnish the sweet-acid flavor that goes so well with sweet potatoes. All three recipes are supplies by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Candied Sweet Potatoes

6 medium-sized sweet potatoes 1/4 tsp. salt
1 cup corn sirup 4 tbs. butter or other fat
1/2 cup sugar

Partially cook the sweet potatoes in boiling water, cool, and skin. Cut the potatoes in halves lengthwise, or in three pieces if the potatoes are large. Put in a greased baking dish large enough for just one layer, not packing too closely. Make a sirup by boiling the corn sirup, sugar, salt, and fat until fairly thick. Pour the sirup over the potatoes and bake in a very moderate oven for one hour or more. Turn the potatoes carefully as they are cooking.

Wool Challie Practical for Children

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While it is practically always necessary to put washable clothes on younger children, in some climates the warmth of such materials as wool challie or jersey is imperative. If handled with care, these fabrics may be washed at home, and as a rule, they do not show soil quickly. A wise mother provides special protection for them at meal-times, to reduce the number of trips to the wash tub. If lunch is carried, a large napkin should be put in the lunch box; if meals are eaten at home, an apron may be worn over the dress.

The little dress shown is a good model for developing in wool challie. It was designed by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. A circular yoke at the neckline holds the fullness in place and eliminates any bunchiness.

The dress illustrated has raglan sleeves, and the neck is flatly bound. Trimming stitches of brown and orange bring out the structural lines of the garment and emphasize the becoming lines of the yoke. The colors harmonize with the fine brown and taupe stripes of the material. The front opening is faced back with a loose facing, so strengthen the edge for loops and flat buttons. A loop and button is used at the wrist to lap the cuff a little so that it may be let out later. The dress is made full through the body because of the long sleeves, which would otherwise tend to pull if the child were very active. Such a dress for winter wear should be made knee length, with a deep hem to allow for growth, turned up by hand with invisible stitches. Under it cotton bloomers are worn, but they do not show. They may be white or the color of the background of the dress material.

Apricot Tapioca Dessert Good for Children

A dessert that is good for children as well as adults is always a satisfaction to a busy mother. Here's an old-fashioned favorite for which the ingredients may be found in any grocery store. The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture furnishes the recipe:

1/2 pound dried apricots 1 tbs. quick-cooking tapioca
3 cups water 1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 cup sugar

Wash the apricots and soak them overnight in the water. In the morning cook the apricots until tender and drain. If necessary, add water to the juice to make two cupsful, stir in the tapioca and salt and cook in a double boiler for fifteen minutes, or until the tapioca is clear. Force the apricots through a sieve and add the pulp and the sugar to the tapioca.

Evening Fairy Tale for Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Little Effie Elf came along and saw Mrs. Swallow feeding her three children.

"Hello, Mrs. Swallow," said Effie Elf.
"The swallow gave a shrill cry, and all the little swallows squealed for all they were worth—even though their eyes were not yet open and they didn't see to whom their mother was speaking."

"I'm not going to hurt your children," said Effie Elf. "I like chimney swallows—yes, I do."

"Do you really?" asked Mrs. Swallow. There was something about Effie Elf's voice that made Mrs. Swallow trust her and care for her almost at once.

"Well, then," she continued, "would you like to have a look at my nest? It is quite a beautiful one."

Effie Elf looked at the nest and admired it greatly. "How can you ever do so much with your fingers?" asked Effie. "It seems wonderful to me to think of being able to make a nest like that, and to put all that wonderful glue on it, too."

"Don't your fingers get sticky?" The little swallow almost fell off the top of the chimney where she was sitting, so hard did she laugh.

And the little swallows, in their shrill little, young, voices, laughed, too, for the first time in their young, little lives!

"Little Creature, who are you?" asked Mrs. Swallow.

"I'm Effie Elf."
"Well, and who am I?"
"You're Mrs. Chimney Swallow," said Effie.
"And will you please take another look, and tell me where my hands are that will get so sticky, and where my fingers are with which to make a nest?"

"To be sure, to be sure," said Effie.

"How very, very stupid of me!"

"Of course, you haven't any fingers at all. And you can't get your hands sticky when you haven't any hands."

"But how do you ever manage?"

"Well, I'll tell you," said Mrs. Chimney Swallow, for she liked talking to the gentle little elf.

"In the first place," she began, "I have feet to use instead of fingers.

"They do just as well! And I make that glue you see by rubbing my beak around my nest."

"The glue comes from my beak. Isn't that fine?"

"Marvelous," said Effie Elf. "I think your nest is one of the finest I have ever seen."

"I am so glad you like it," said Mrs. Chimney Swallow.

"And now I must teach my children to fly and you know I let my children shriek and talk at the tops of their voices."

"Some people want their children to have soft voices, but not Mother Chimney Swallow."

"She's a mother who has her own ideas."

"And feet instead of fingers," said Effie Elf admiringly!

Frying or Broiling Young Rabbits Best

Tender Young Domestic Rabbit Fried Like Chicken.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Most domestic rabbits are marketed at eight to ten weeks of age, and are then termed "fryers." The bones of these quickly grown rabbits are very brittle, and in preparing the meat for cooking care should be taken to break them in such a way that they do not siver. Like young chickens and tender chops and steaks, young rabbits can be cooked by the quick methods of frying or broiling.

The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture gives the following recipe for frying domestic rabbit:

Fried Rabbit.

Choose a plump young rabbit, wipe the dressed meat with a damp cloth, and cut into pieces for serving. Beat one egg yolk, add one-half cupful milk and three-fourths teaspoonful salt, and stir into one-half cupful flour to make a smooth batter. In a heavy skillet, heat four tablespoonfuls of fat until very hot, so that it will set the batter quickly. Dip the pieces of rabbit into the batter until well coated and drop into the hot fat. As soon as browned, reduce the heat and cook at moderate temperature for 25 to 30 minutes, or until the meat is tender. Serve on a hot platter and garnish with parsley.

For each cupful of gravy desired, use two tablespoonfuls of the pan drippings and one and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour. Blend fat and flour thoroughly in the skillet, add one cupful of milk, and stir until thickened. Add chopped parsley, salt, and pepper to season.

Moist Bread Will Slice More Evenly

When planning an afternoon tea with fancy sandwiches or for any occasion, you will find that if the crust is cut from the whole loaf and the loaf then wrapped in a damp napkin or tea towel, and let stand for an hour or longer, that the bread will be moist and pliable and will slice more evenly. Use a very sharp knife in cutting thin slices.

Canadian Rivers

Back river is a modern name given to replace that of Great Fish river and commemorates Admiral Sir George Back, 1796-1878, the Arctic explorer who commanded an expedition to the river in 1833-35. The name Pelly lake is due to Back who named it in 1834 after Sir John Henry Pelly (1772-1852), who was governor of the Hudson's Bay company for 30 years.

Useful, but Not Wealth

Useful, material things which are not appropriated do not come under the head of wealth. Rain, wind, clouds, the Gulf stream, the heavenly bodies, are all useful and all material, but are not directly appropriated, and so are not rated to be wealth as commonly understood.

Good Things for the Family Table

By NELLIE MAXWELL

"The strongest strand in the cable that binds a man to his God is a wife's devotion."

"The purest altar from which prayers ascend to heaven is a mother's knee."

If you like the Chinese dishes this will be one to prepare for the guests who also enjoy them:

Crab and Egg Omelet.—If the fresh shrimps or crab is used, cook and cool. Shred one cupful of crab or shrimp. Cut one cupful of lean pork into inch long narrow strips. Use scissors for the cutting. Soak one-fourth of a cupful of dried mushrooms, then cut into strips. Slice one large mild onion and cut fine into strips. Fry the pork in two tablespoonfuls of peanut oil until tender and brown. Add onion, one cupful of bamboo shoots and mushrooms, a tablespoonful of soy sauce.

Just before dinner beat six eggs, add the finely cut crab or shrimp and the vegetable mixture. Fry in a small amount of peanut oil in small bits like a pancake.

Lobster Club Sandwich.—Toast bread cut one-third of an inch thick, butter and keep hot. Allow two slices for each person to be served. Sauté the lobster in a little butter, use either fresh or canned. Season well with salt, pepper and a teaspoonful of currant jelly. Fry bacon until crisp. Place slices of bacon on toast and over this a layer of pieces of lobster; cover with mayonnaise, then top with a piece of crisp lettuce or chilled watercress; make another layer of bacon and lobster and on top place a slice of toast. Garnish the sandwiches with sliced tomato, mayonnaise and lemon. Cut into triangles and serve.

Pimiento Cup With Egg and Celery.—Drain the small red peppers from their liquor, place in gem pans to fill. Fill with the following salad: Chop one cupful of celery very fine and mix with two hard cooked eggs chopped. Into this stir one-half cupful of mayonnaise and fill the cups. Decorate with mayonnaise and small shapes cut of green pepper. Serve very cold on crisp lettuce with toasted biscuit and cheese.

Casserole of Salmon.—Take two cupsful of cooked, shredded salmon, two tablespoonfuls of tapioca uncooked, one cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, a dash each of pepper and paprika. Mix in the order given and bake ten minutes, then cover with small baking powder biscuit and finish baking.

After 40 Bowel trouble is Most Dangerous

Constipation may easily become chronic after forty. Continued constipation at that time of life may bring attacks of piles—and a host of other disorders.

Watch your bowels at any age. Guard them with particular care after forty. When they need help, remember a doctor should know what is best for them.

"Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin" is a doctor's prescription for the bowels. Tested by 47 years' practice, it has been found thoroughly effective in relieving constipation and its ills for men, women and children of all ages. It has proven perfectly safe even for babies. Made from fresh, laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients, it cannot gripe; will not sicken you or weaken you; can be used without harm as often as your breath is bad, your tongue is coated; when ever a headache, bilious, gassy condition warns of constipation.

Next time just take a spoonful of this family doctor's laxative. See how good it tastes; how gently and thoroughly it acts. Then you will know why it has become the world's most popular laxative. Big bottles—all druggists.

MOTHERS ARE LEARNING USES OF MAGNESIA

From the beginning of expectancy until baby is weaned, Phillips' Milk of Magnesia performs the greatest service for many women.

It relieves nausea, heartburn, "morning sickness," inclination to vomit; helps digestion. Its mild laxative action assures regular bowel movement.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is better than lime water for neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding.

All drugstores have Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in generous 25c and 50c bottles. Always insist on the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. They make a runaway marriage. Briceland is furious, but helpless, as Ernestine is of age. Loring Hamilton, lawyer, wins Lillian's consent to be his wife. Will and Ernestine begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood. John Poole, Will's best friend, gives a birthday party for Ernestine at Ruby Pastano's resort. Pastano irritates Ernestine by criticizing Will for bringing her to such a place. Conscious of approaching motherhood, Ernestine opens a savings account. Will's father dies suddenly. Lillian and Loring are married. Will's mother dies immediately after the birth of Ernestine's baby. Changes in Will's office fail to bring advancement and Ernestine again is looking forward to motherhood. Pastano acquires a summer home near that of the Bricelands.

"It would be nice," said Ernestine vaguely, feeling hurt because she had not known about papa, or the stone merger—feeling out of things, "but I want to be with Will."

In July they went to Langley lake, where Lillian was established and where somehow she appropriated the role of hostess, although it was not her house any more than it was Ernestine's. Will refused to worry about the Pastanos living on the point, and Ernestine saw that he lacked her own snobbish prejudices about the lake colony. He took Peter and went to visit the Greeks the first morning he was there, and stayed all day, romping with the young Pastanos, teasing Alexandria, who adored him, and eating Madame Pastano's pickled fish.

Ernestine had asked John Poole to come down for the two Sundays they were at the lake. She had come to love the man as much as Will did, and had grown into the way of ignoring his bad habits. He was admirably sober the first Sunday he came down to them, and Will and Poole spent the day in the wood path and on the water, making ridiculous sketches in the sand, carrying Peter about with them.

But the second Sunday was a day of misfortunes. Ernestine was ill and could scarcely rise that morning, and it seemed to her that Will was impatient and unsympathetic.

Loring telephoned that he had stripped his gears and put the car in the garage. He would have to come on the train, and Ernestine realized with dismay that John Poole would be with him. Lillian brought the two from the station in her car. John Poole was already fuddled with drink and elaborately polite, and it was easily seen that Loring was in a state of nervous exasperation. His face was flushed, his brow furrowed.

"I've got to go right over to Pastano's to see a man that's coming out there today," he said to Lillian as soon as they had had Sunday dinner.

"If you are going to see Ruby, I'll go with you," said Mr. Poole. "I have a most important matter to discuss with Mr. Pastano. Most important. He has a nephew—yes, I know"—as Will laughed—"he has forty-seven nephews—but this is a most particular one. This boy is to study modeling. He is to be the exception—an artist in a family of clever criminals. I'm to see Mrs. Pastano about him. I'll go with you."

He rose and took a familiar hold on Loring's arm.

"Will can take you over in the boat, after while," Loring said. "I must hurry, and Pastano can't talk to both of us at once."

"No, I want to go with you," insisted Mr. Poole.

Loring no longer made the faintest effort to conceal his disgust.

"Your desire is unrequited," he said, and Will laughed and came around the table to his friend and boss and took hold of him.

"You're coming with me, you old war-horse," he said. "You're drunk. I'll wager you haven't done a lick of work all week. We'll go over to see Ruby after while. Loring doesn't want you, John, so come along with me."

John Poole turned and detained Loring who was trying to escape.

"You don't want me?"

"No," said Loring nervously. "I've had enough of you—too much. I don't ever want to see you again as long as I live."

"Come outside and fight with me, and I will beat you, and then we'll go to Pastano's—together."

Loring was furious. "I won't fight with you—you old fool!—Will, for G—d's sake, take him off me. Why did you bring him down here, anyhow?"

"Don't be so hard with him," said Will, smiling wanly. "He's got a little money—he might come in handy some day. You've changed your mind about friends of mine before—Pastano and Wiston, for instance."

Loring turned to Lillian who stood, silent and grave, by her table. "If this is what I am to expect here it's the last Sunday I come down."

Will flushed. "So Ernestine is intruding now?" he said slowly. "Perhaps you have already consummated your intention of cheating her out of her privileges in this house as elsewhere—"

"Anybody could cheat Ernestine," exclaimed Loring. "She was cheated once and for good when she married you. She ruined her life then, and now she must endure anything because she lacks protection and is handicapped to boot."

Will took a step forward, his big hand raised, and though he still smiled his face was evil. He spoke low and rapidly, and with an indescribable effect of vituperation:

"You great big stuffed shirt—you imitation—you safe-player and bribe-taker, you! You coveter! Do you think I don't know what's the matter with you?"

There was a pause which lasted indefinitely. Loring had swollen to rage, and then he had collapsed, until he stood looking at Will with a dreadful, haunted face.

It was strange, Ernestine thought afterward, that none of them felt, even then, that Loring was afraid of Will. There was some other element which gave Will tremendous advantage. Before the blaze in Will's eyes, before his cursing breathless phrases, Loring fell into a strange dejection. The two men looked at each other in the stillness that swirled around them all. Will turned at last to Ernestine.

Will and Poole Spent the Day in the Wood Path and on the Water.

"Go get your things, kitten, and get the baby ready," he said in a gentle voice. "We'll all go back together. I'll go to the hotel and get a taxi to take us to the depot. We can get the afternoon train. Gather your things up again, John."

With tears running down her face, Ernestine obeyed him. Loring went off, cursing under his breath, and Mr. Poole followed him to shout unheeded threats and maledictions. Lillian helped Ernestine to get ready, both of them crying.

"It's the end," said Ernestine. "We can never see each other again now. Our lives are separated indefinitely," and Lillian was thinking, "What will mamma say?"

"I'll call you up, when I get in town. Write to me, Ernestine. Don't let them tear us apart—"

"My life is with Will—yours with Loring," said Ernestine, and wept afresh, trying to stem the tears, trying not to care, but feeling the nervous, uncontrollable necessity for weeping.

In the train, going back to Chicago, she still cried now and then. "Why

Patti Only Member of Fair Sex at Banquet

In 1859 Adeline Patti made her debut at the Academy of Music in New York in "Lucia," says a writer in the Brooklyn Eagle Magazine. Not since Jenny Lind had a singer so captivated her audience. To the end of their lives many of her admirers insisted that she was the last one entitled to be called "la diva."

Twenty-five years later, in 1884, Patti again sang at the academy. To her honor a banquet was planned by a number of prominent New York men, including Judge Daly, William Steinway and Nathan Stetson. Naturally the wives of these men were expected to be present, but they virtuously refused to sit at the table with Patti, who had been divorced from her first husband, the Marquis De Caux, and married to Niccolini, the Italian tenor.

Extremely embarrassed, the gentlemen sent a committee to put the case to Mme. Patti as delicately as possible, and ask her if she would consent to be the guest of themselves only. Patti consented unhesitatingly, and she was the only woman present at a party of some seventy masculine admirers, in the ballroom of the Hotel Brunswick.

does Loring hate us so?" she asked at last in a low tone. "Especially me? Why does he hate me? He seems to want to wound me, to strike at me. He's done it before. But I've never harmed him. Why does he hate me, Will?"

"Hate you?" exclaimed Will, and looked at her strangely, his dark bright eyes searching her pale face for guile. "He doesn't hate you, Ernestine. But forget him—I'm glad something has happened. They've only made us unhappy, anyhow."

It was nice to be home again. Ernestine went about her little house with a feeling of comfort and joy.

Will was not due at the office until the end of the week, but on Monday, as Ernestine was finishing up a washing for the baby, he got dressed to go downtown. As she kissed him good-bye and watched him go, then turned back to the routine of home, Ernestine felt a sense of well-being blot out yesterday's turmoil. She resolved not to think about it, nor to worry.

It seemed to her that Will had barely had time to go to town and come back again before he stood in the kitchen doorway, his eyes upon her with such a look in them that she gave a little cry and her hand flew to her throat.

"Will—what's happened?"

He put his hat down slowly. He hung his head, unable to speak to her, but at last he got it out.

"I've lost my job."

"Will—"

He said no more.

"Tell me—what happened?"

"Craps."

Ernestine sat down weakly in a chair by the kitchen table and gave a foolish-sounding laugh.

"Unarm, Eros—" she exclaimed and grinned at him. "I'm glad. You would never have quit, and now you'll get a job where they'll appreciate you."

"Ernestine!" he said, and choked. "I'll make good for you—I will! You'll see—some day."

Mr. Poole had not been at the office when Will was dismissed by Mr. Wiston. It was some days before he learned the details and gave them to Ernestine. The fellows had all surrounded Will with affectionate greeting on his arrival in the office unexpectedly. They had at once planned to eat supper in a crowd. Somebody produced dice to determine immediately who would have to pay. They squatted on their heels in a close ring between the sloping desks, and Tommy Tucker cried a fierce schoolboy "jiggers" at them. Will held the dice, and he straightened up and turned about boldly rattling the cubes in his big hand, and faced Mr. Wiston.

Mr. Wiston made quick work of him, almost, it seemed to Will, or so he said, as though he were glad of the chance. Within ten minutes after his arrival, Will walked out of the Sun offices, his possessions, done up in a paper package, under his arm, while half a dozen indignant but futile youngsters mourned after him.

But John Poole would not have it. "You fire my help and you fire me," he told Wiston, and he left bag and baggage.

Nobody had thought of this, Mr. Wiston remonstrated with him, but nothing would satisfy John Poole except Will's reinstatement, and that Wiston would not concede.

So Will had added to his own anxieties a sense of responsibility about John Poole, of concern over Ernestine's break with that part of her family which was in or near Chicago.

Mr. Poole let it be known in newspaper circles that he and his assistant were available, but to his astonishment he had no offers. He was old, he had been identified with the Sun for many years. The Sun's rivals were busy developing their own artists and establishing them. It was only a year or two longer, it was said, for John Poole, and anyhow he would probably be back at the Sun within a month.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Gen. John J. Pershing

The competitive examination for West Point was on. It was a close contest between two of the candidates. The Missouri congressman, conducting the examination for his district, had a hard time grading them. Finally, he decided that one of the two leaders rated just one point better than the other. He named John Joseph Pershing.

He named John Joseph Pershing and appointed him as a cadet to the United States Military academy.

It was by this narrow margin that Uncle Sam obtained the general who was to command the greatest armed host ever raised in the United States and to lead it to victory with the allies in the greatest war in the world's history.

No ambition nurtured from early boyhood prompted John Pershing to seek admission to West Point. He had no set ideas on becoming a soldier when he was a little fellow. In fact, he was headed for a career as a teacher or a lawyer, and was a student in the Kirksville Normal school when he won the appointment to the Military academy.

He saw his congressman's notice of the examination in a newspaper and asked his sister, who was also attending the Kirksville school, if she would advise him to try the test. She certainly would, she told him. This coincided with his own ideas on the subject, so his military career may be said to have had its first impetus in the reading of a newspaper advertisement.

General Pershing was born in 1890 at Laclede, Mo., a hamlet of some 700 inhabitants. His father, whose ancestors had come from Alsace, had the general store at Laclede and also owned a farm on the outskirts of the town. The future commander of the A. E. F. was the oldest of six children. He assumed much responsibility in helping to care for them.

The Pershing youngsters spent considerable time on the farm. Young John developed into a capable worker in the fields even as a boy. The outdoor life and exercise made him a fine upstanding and vigorous youth. He was known as a good fighter when he had to use his fists, but he was never one to go out looking for trouble.

He could ride horseback, fish, swim and hunt when he was a little shaver. Such training fell to the lot of all boys in the West in those days. His mother taught him his first book lessons and instilled in him the desire for a good education.

If he wasn't a brilliant student, he was a conscientious one and stood well in his classes. Fellow pupils of the Laclede days can recall that when John Pershing had a problem to solve he worked at it until he had the correct answer. While he was quiet as a boy, he was full of fun and enjoyed playing pranks with the youngsters of his own age.

Before he entered the Kirksville Normal school he taught for two terms at Prairie Mound, a few miles distant from Laclede. He was eighteen at the time. Some of his pupils were older than that. One day he had to chastise an unruly pupil. The lad's father, well over six feet tall and big in proportion, appeared the next day to demand satisfaction of the teacher.

He had a gun in his pocket. He stormed about and roared threats. First the young teacher took the gun from the man. Then he handed him a sound thrashing with his fists.

Young Pershing was a leader among the students at Kirksville. He was equally prominent at West Point. They tell the story that when a group of hazers tried to put the new cadet through the mill, he thrashed two of them soundly.

He was serious, persistent and determined in his efforts to become an excellent soldier during his student days at the Military academy. He made a good record in his studies, ranking thirtieth in his class when he was graduated in 1886: He was senior cadet captain and was elected president of his class.

The newly made second lieutenant was assigned to the cavalry. He saw service as a young officer under Nelson A. Miles in the Apache, Geronimo and Wounded Knee campaigns. Then he taught military tactics at the University of Nebraska, also acting as assistant professor of mathematics.

He studied law while assigned to Nebraska, was graduated with honors and admitted to the bar. Then he was ordered to West Point as an instructor. From there he was detailed to duty in Cuba, serving under General Shafter in the Spanish-American war. He was promoted for bravery at the battle of El Caney.

He made a brilliant record in the Philippines and led the expedition into Mexico before being put in command of the A. E. F. Uncle Sam was fortunate, indeed, that John Pershing topped his rival in the West Point competitive examination for his district by the narrow margin of that single point.

Happy Again

"Nothing seemed to please Betty Jean," says Mrs. James W. Nolen, 113 Ceanter St., Dallas, Texas. "She was feverish and fretful. Her appetite was poor; she seemed bilious. A child specialist recommended California Fig Syrup and it certainly made my little girl happy, well again in a hurry. We have used it over three years for all her upsets."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it for feverish, headachy, bilious, constipated babies and children; to open the bowels in colds or children's diseases.

Appetite is increased by its use; the breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are assisted; weak stomach and bowels are strengthened.

For your protection the genuine always bears the name California.

Evil in Curiosity

Curiosity, wrote Fuller, is a kernel of the forbidden fruit, which still sticketh in the throat of a natural man, sometimes to the danger of his choking.

Colds Go Quickly

Lax-ana (double strength) relieves head colds and deep-seated colds—quickly, pleasantly. Over-night results or money back. Now can be purchased at all drug stores.

The One Sure Thing

Wrecks happen so quickly that you can't be sure of anything except that the man's accident policy lapsed a week ago.

It's easier for a woman to look as old as she is than to look as young as she feels.

Trust not in him that seems a saint.—Fuller.

 Clerk, County Court of Terrell County, Texas.

Pyle-Coates Wedding

The wedding bells that pealed
 forth in Pecos County January 15 at high noon, were, no doubt, heard throughout the great Southwest for they announced the marriage of Louise Coates and F. B. (Bucky) Pyle, one of the most popular couples in this entire section.

The ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Collins Coates was beautifully decorated for the occasion.
 In the living room behind the improvised altar evergreens were massed and smilax were twined about the windows and chandelier. Near the altar stood and arch that was covered with ivy and smilax combined with pink carnations and from which hung a group of wedding bells.
 Aisleways made for the bridal party were formed by large floor baskets which were filled with heather and pink snapdragons and tied with bows of maline.

In the dining room the smilax motif was repeated at the windows and the chandelier. Just above the table hung a huge white wedding bell filled with pink snapdragons. The table was laid with a filet cloth. Pink tapers in silver candlesticks stood at the corners while in the center lay a gorgeously decorated wedding cake.

Immediately before the ceremony Miss Floy Friend of San Angelo, a cousin of the bride, sang in her own beautiful way,
 "O Promise Me," and "At Dawning," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Paul Willoughby of Fort Stockton. Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Mrs. Vance McLymont of Sanderson, accompanied on the violin
 by Mrs. O. W. Adams of Fort Stockton. During the ceremony Schubert's serenade was rendered softly by the musicians.

The bridesmaids, Miss Lenore Milam and Ivagene Trent of Fort Stockton and Miss Gerry Coates of Rankin, wore dresses in pastel shades. The matron of honor, Mrs. Boyd Clayton of Fort Stockton, wore blue satin while the maid of honor, Miss Mary Kincaid of Ozona, wore yellow satin. All the bride's attendants wore short veils and carried arm bouquets of pink rose buds. Little Betty Coates of Ozona and Doris Coates of Rankin, cousins of the bride, acted as flower girls. They wore dainty flesh-colored chiffon dresses and carried colonial boquets of pink rose buds from which they scattered petals along the bride's pathway. Little Rose Marie Adams dressed in yellow tulle and carrying a satin pillow acted as ring bearer.

The groomsmen were Joe
 Scott of Dalhart, Texas; Scott
 Kercheville of Sanderson and P.
 C. Coates, brother of the bride,
 Horace Pyle of Van Horn, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautiful in a gown of white chiffon over satin made in the prevailing mode. Her veil of tulle and lace was held in place by a rope of pearls and orange blossoms. She carried an exquisite shower bouquet of white rose buds and lilies of the valley. The only ornament worn by the bride was a platinum wrist watch set with diamonds,
 the gift of the groom.

The impressive ring ceremony was performed by the Rev.
 Hooten, pastor of the Methodist Church of Fort Stockton.

Immediately after the ceremony the guests, some 85 in number, were served with a delicious plate lunch.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Collins Coates, prominent ranch people of this section, was reared in Ozona, moving to Fort Stockton in 1928. She graduated from the Ozona high school in 1927, and later attended Southern Methodist University at Dallas where she was a pledge of the Delta Gamma Fraternity. The bride is one of the most popular girls in this section as evidenced by the fact that she was maid of honor at the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association convention in Del Rio as well as duchess from Fort Stockton to the West Texas exposition in San Angelo.

The groom, F. B. Pyle, better known to his many friends as "Buck," is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Pyle. He is one of the most prominent ranchmen of West Texas. He is a member of the West-Pyle Cattle Company with headquarters at

The bride is the niece of Mrs.

 is a charming young lady. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs.
 J. L. Faris and is an enterprising young man with a bright future.

Just around the Corner

EVEN big-city folks must have their "neighborhood stores"! Most of them would no more think of going down town to fight their way through the crowds in search of a roast for dinner than they would of walking to the factory to get a pair of shoes.

City women know that their neighborhood stores can supply them just what they want — and that, in most cases, the service is more alert and friendly.

The same thing is true of this "neighborhood". Our merchants—the men whose ads you read in this paper — are in position to furnish your home with the best and most popular brands of goods. Not only can they save you money, but they gladly relieve you of a lot of worry and loss of time.

Same Birthday, Same Name, Same Army, But Different Fame

Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

FEBRUARY 3 is the anniversary of the birthday of two American soldiers whose careers afford some striking similarities and some equally striking differences. They bore the same family name, yet were not related. They were graduated from the same military school, both achieved distinction as Indian fighters, both attained high ranks in both the United States army and the Confederate army, yet one rose to the heights as a military leader only to be cheated of his reward by death, while the other lived to see his fame as a soldier end in something of an anti-climax. The two were Albert Sidney Johnston and Joseph Eggleston Johnston.

Albert Sidney Johnston was born on February 3, 1803, in Washington, Ky., the son of a Connecticut country physician and was graduated from the United States Military academy, eighth in his class, in 1826. He was assigned to the Second Infantry and served as chief of staff to Gen. Henry Atkinson in the Black Hawk war in 1832. Rejoining from the army in 1834, he was a farmer for a short time near St. Louis, then in 1836 joined the Texas patriots in their struggle for freedom.

Although entering the Texan army as a private he rapidly rose through all the grades to the command of the army and in 1838 President Mirabeau Lamar of the Lone Star republic made him secretary of war. The next year he led a campaign against hostile Indians and in two brilliant battles defeated them and drove them out of Texas. Next we find him a planter in Texas but at the outbreak of the Mexican war he was in the field again as colonel of the First Texas rifles. This regiment soon disbanded but Johnston continued in the service and was inspector general of Butler's division at the battle of Monterey. Although Gen. Zachary Taylor called him "the best soldier he ever commanded," and his superiors recommended him for an appointment as brigadier-general, he was passed over (for political reasons) and again retired to his farm.

There he lived in poverty and neglect until President Taylor in 1849 suddenly appointed him a paymaster in the United States army and six years later President Pierce appointed him colonel of a new regiment, the Second Cavalry.

In 1857 he was placed in command of the expedition to restore order among the Mormons in Utah, who were in open revolt against the government. By a forced march of 920 miles in 27 days, he reached his little army of 1,100 men, to find them lost amid the snow-filled defiles of the Rockies, with the temperature at 16 below zero, their supplies cut off by the hostile Mormons and their starving teams their only food. By an extraordinary display of energy and wisdom Johnston led the army safely into winter quarters and by using equally commendable diplomacy he put an end to the rebellion without a drop of blood being shed. For this exploit he was brevetted brigadier-general and a short time later placed in command of the department of the Pacific.

Loyal to the army and the nation, the coming of the Civil war brought the deepest distress to Johnston. But when Texas seceded he resigned his commission—but he regarded his command as such a sacred trust that he concealed his resignation until he could be relieved—and went at once to Richmond where in September, 1861, he was placed in command of all the Confederate forces in the West.

The fall of Fort Henry and Fort Donelson to the Union forces under Foote and Grant followed and the new leader fell back to Murfreesboro where he began reorganizing his troops. Then he moved to Corinth, Miss., the key of the defense of the railroad system in the lower Mississippi valley, where by April 1, 1862, he had about 40,000 men, poorly armed and badly supplied. Grant, commanding the right wing of the Union army, was concentrating at Pittsburg Landing on the Tennessee river with some 40,000 men and Buell was rapidly approaching with 40,000 more. With a Napoleonic flash of genius Johnston decided to beat the enemy in detail and to attack Grant before Buell could arrive.

On April 3 he started on his 25 mile march to Pittsburg Landing but he was delayed by bad roads and did not arrive until the 5th. At a council of war General Beauregard, his second in command, protested against an attack and advised a return to Corinth. Johnston overruled him and on Sunday morning, April 6, he led his army to the attack. It was a complete surprise, for Grant was not even on the field.

The struggle lasted all day and was proceeding successfully just as Johnston had planned. The Union army was being crowded into an angle between Snake creek and the Tennessee river and was facing annihilation. About 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon Johnston, while leading a charge which crushed the left wing of Grant's forces, fell with a mortal wound. Beauregard, with enough daylight left to complete the victory, vacillated and ordered the attack to cease. That night Buell's army came up and the next day the Confederates were driven from the field. Had the bullet which struck down Albert Sidney Johnston reached another target, the history of the Civil war might have been vastly different.

Unlike Albert Sidney Johnston, who was a Southerner of Northern ancestry, Joseph Eggleston Johnston was a Southerner of the Southerners. He was born in Cherry Grove, Va., on February 3, 1807, the son of a Virginia family which had been in this country for nearly 200 years. He was graduated from West Point in 1829 in the same class that gave Robert E. Lee to the army and commissioned a second lieutenant in the Fourth artillery. With the exception of service in the Black Hawk war in 1832, most of his first six years in the army was spent in garrison duty at various posts along the Atlantic seaboard.

But in 1836 he became aide-de-camp to Gen. Winfield Scott in the war with the Seminole Indians in Florida and won a brevet as captain for gallantry in action when troops under his command fell into an ambush, from which Johnston extricated them skillfully. On this occasion his uniform was perforated with no less than 30 bullets! In 1842-43 he was again in Florida serving against the Seminoles.

In the war with Mexico he was at the siege of Vera Cruz and in the battles of Cerro Gordo, Contreras, Molino del Rey, Chapultepec and the attack on the City of Mexico. He was severely wounded at Cerro Gordo and again at Chapultepec, where he was the first to plant regimental colors on the ramparts of the fortress. For his gallantry at Cerro Gordo, he was brevetted lieutenant colonel and colonel and during the next fifteen years performed various duties in the West (including that of acting inspector-general for the Utah expedition commanded by the other Johnston—Albert Sidney) which led finally to his commission of quartermaster-general of the United States army.

Johnston resigned from the army when Virginia seceded, was commissioned a major-general of volunteers by Virginia and with Robert E. Lee organized the soldiers who poured into Richmond to defend the capital of the state. Next he was appointed commander of the army of the Shenandoah and led it to the aid of General Beauregard when McDowell attacked on July 21, 1861, at Manassas. Johnston outranked Beauregard and took command so that he is credited with the victory at Bull Run. The next month he was appointed one of the five full generals authorized by the Confederate congress (among them Albert Sidney Johnston) but was placed fourth on the list. Johnston protested against this, since he felt that his high rank in the United States army when he resigned should have placed him first on the list, and in this he was justified by a previous congressional act. This protest is said to have been the beginning and cause of the hostility towards him shown by President Jefferson Davis throughout the war. The quarrel between the two men, according to Allen Tate in his recent biography of Davis, "was to outlast the Confederacy and have a paralyzing influence upon its career."

After the Battle of Seven Pines in 1862, at which Johnston was seriously wounded, Davis replaced him in command of the Confederate forces in the East with Gen. Robert E. Lee and the eclipse of Joseph E. Johnston as an outstanding military leader began. The next year he was sent to take command of the Department of the West. "Johnston was one of the three or four best soldiers in the South," writes Tate. "But he tended to avoid assuming responsibility; he was touchy and quarrelsome; and his instinctive dislike of offensive warfare had, inconsistently enough, undermined the President's confidence in him since his retreat up the peninsula before McClellan in the spring. In the end, Davis' lack of confidence may have been sheer dislike; Johnston had not handled him, in his rancorous letters, with kid gloves. So, when Johnston went west his instructions were a little vague. . . ."

Both Davis and Johnston have their ardent partisans in the historic dispute between the two and it seems impossible to arrive at any conclusion as to who was most to blame. But the net result was disaster in the West which further weakened the "Lost Cause" and contributed its share to the downfall of the Confederacy. It fell to his lot to play a leading role in the last military scene of the great tragedy which befell the American people between 1861 and 1865. Just as he had been in command at the first major engagement of the war, so he was in command when the last important armed forces of the Confederacy laid down their arms. On April 26, 1865, Johnston surrendered his army to General Sherman on the same terms under which Lee had surrendered to Grant.

After the war Johnston was president of a railroad in Arkansas, president of an express company of Virginia and agent for various insurance companies. In 1877 he was elected to congress from Virginia and ten years later he was appointed United States commissioner of railroads by President Cleveland. He died in 1891.

JESUS TEMPTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus True to God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus True to God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Overcome Temptation.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Conflicting Ideals.

I. The Place (v. 1).

The wilderness of Judea. The first man, Adam, was tempted in a garden with the most pleasant surroundings. The second man, Jesus Christ, was tempted in a barren wilderness, surrounded by wild beasts (Mark 1:13). Adam shamefully failed, involving the whole race in ruin (Rom. 5:12); Christ gloriously triumphed, bringing justification of life as a free gift upon all who believe (Rom. 5:18).

II. The Purpose (v. 1).

Christ was led into the wilderness by the Holy Spirit. His temptation was Messianic. Men today are not tempted as he was, but the same methods are employed by the Evil One. The time had come for the Redeemer to enter upon his mediatorial work. Therefore, he went from the place of anointing and heavenly recognition as the Son of God to meet and to spoil the enemy of God and men (Heb. 2:14).

1. It was not a preparation for his work but rather his first conflict with the enemy. In his baptism we have the symbolic act of the dedication of himself to the work of redemption through the work of the cross.

2. It was not to see if Christ would stand fast, as to whether he would fall under the most crucial test. Being the eternal Son of God, incorporated with the perfect humanity, sin and failure were impossible.

3. It was to exhibit Christ as an object upon which we may rest our faith with unshaken confidence. He came as the second man, the head of a new race, the very source of its life. The temptation was, therefore, a demonstration of the inseparableness of the divine and human natures in the incarnation.

III. The Method (vv. 2-12).

Christ as the world's Redeemer sustained a threefold relation—Son of Man, Son of God, and Messiah. Therefore, Satan made each one a ground of attack.

1. As Son of Man (vv. 2-4). Satan made his first assault upon him as a man by appealing to the instinct of hunger. Satan urged him to use his divine power to convert a stone into bread. The temptation was in satisfying a right hunger in a wrong way. To have yielded in this case though his hunger was desperate would have been to renounce the human limitations which he had taken for our sakes. To do right in a wrong way is to sin.

2. As Messiah (vv. 5-8). Here the temptation was to grasp his rightful dominions by false means. The Devil offered to surrender unto him the world if he would adopt his methods, would worship him. The force of this temptation was in the fact that the kingdoms of the world are Christ's by God's covenant with him. Satan has forfeited his right to rule. God's method by which Jesus was to possess the world was his sacrificial death on the cross.

3. As the Son of God (vv. 9-12). Here Satan tries to induce Christ to presume upon God's care. He quoted a Messianic psalm to induce him to so act. To do the spectacular thing in order to get notice is to fall into Satan's temptation. For Jesus to have placed himself in danger in order to get God's special help in delivering him would have been to sin. To test God as to whether he will keep his promise is the greatest distrust.

IV. Christ's Defense (vv. 4, 8, 12). It was the Word of God, He met and repulsed the enemy with "It is written." In the most crucial hour of the world's history Christ quoted from the Book of Deuteronomy, which the rationalists of the day reject as not being fully inspired.

V. The Issue (v. 13).

Satan was vanquished. He could not stand against God's Word.

Let the Light Shine

Christian, rest not until thou knowest the full, the unbroken shining of God in thy heart! To this end, yield to every stirring of it that shows thee some unconquered and perhaps unconquerable evil! Let the light shine upon it, and shine it out!—Andrew Murray.

Enmity With God

Friendship of the world is enmity with God because the leadership of the world is directly against godliness; and for this reason, it is out of the question for any child of God to forsake the ways of godliness and conform to the sinful ways of the world.—Doctrines of the Bible.

The Empty Cup

Do not let the empty cup be the first teacher of the blessings you had when it was full.—Maclaren.

Wakeful restless CHILD needs Castoria

WE can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Other times it's constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked promptly. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother continues it in more liberal doses as a child grows up.

Locomotive's Travels

A sixty-year-old locomotive that started its career in helping lay the tracks of the Canadian Pacific railroad, moved down to Panama during the French attempt at digging the canal, then hauled stone for San Francisco's sea wall, on the way back to a logging railroad in the Canadian northwest.

To "Point-Up" Appetite Just Stimulate Bowels

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts; food doesn't tempt you and won't digest; breath is bad; tongue coated, just chew a candy tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

A candy Cascaret clears up a bilious, gassy, headachy condition every time. Puts appetite on edge. Helps digestion. Activates bowels.

Cascarets are made from cascaro, which authorities say actually strengthens bowel muscles. So take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascarets for a dime, and no dollar preparation could do better work.

Ancient Family Tree

In the family of the Lovells, of Minster Lovell, Oxfordshire, England, 27 generations can be traced from Robert d'Ivri, who died about 1680, to their present representative.

To keep clean and healthy take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They regulate liver, bowels and stomach.—Adv.

Society is largely based on appearances, but in a world full of frictions and irritations, appearances are everything.

FEEL MEAN?

Don't be helpless when you suddenly get a headache. Reach in your pocket for immediate relief. If you haven't any Bayer Aspirin with you, get some at the first drugstore you come to. Take a tablet or two and be rid of the pain. Take promptly. Nothing is gained by waiting to see if the pain will leave of its own accord. It may grow worse! Why postpone relief? There are many times when

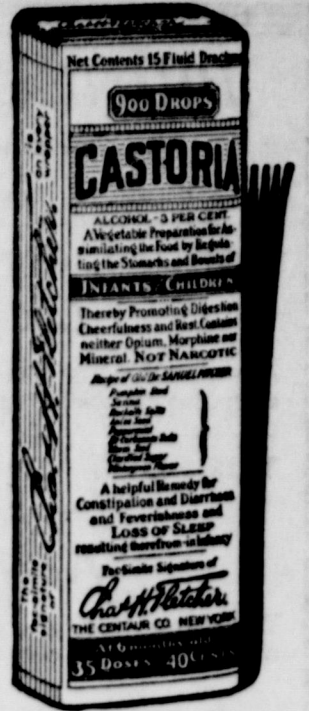

Bayer Aspirin will "save the day." It will always ease a throbbing head. Quiet a grumbling tooth. Relieve nagging pains of neuralgia or neuritis. Check a sudden cold. Even rheumatism has lost its terrors for those who have learned to depend on these tablets. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first suspicion of sore throat, and reduce the infection. Look for Bayer on the box—and the word Genuine in red. Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart.

BAYER ASPIRIN

Reasons Why You Should Use Cuticura Soap

1. It is pure and you should use the best for daily toilet use.
2. It helps to make and keep the skin clear and healthy.
3. It contains medicinal properties so is excellent for skin troubles.
4. It keeps baby's skin healthy.
5. It is excellent for shampooing the hair.
6. It is economical at 25c. a cake.

Same Birthday; Same Name; Same Army; But Different Fame

Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

FEBRUARY 3 is the anniversary of the birthday of two American soldiers whose careers afford some striking similarities and some equally striking differences. They bore the same family name, yet were not related. They were graduated from the same military school, both achieved distinction as Indian fighters, both attained high ranks in both the United States army and the Confederate army, yet one rose to the heights as a military leader only to be cheated of his reward by death, while the other lived to see his fame as a soldier end in something of an anti-climax. The two were Albert Sidney Johnston and Joseph Eggleston Johnston.

Albert Sidney Johnston was born on February 3, 1803, in Washington, Ky., the son of a Connecticut country physician and was graduated from the United States Military academy, eighth in his class, in 1826. He was assigned to the Second Infantry and served as chief of staff to Gen. Henry Atkinson in the Black Hawk war in 1832. Resigning from the army in 1834, he was a farmer for a short time near St. Louis, then in 1836 joined the Texas patriots in their struggle for freedom.

Although entering the Texan army as a private he rapidly rose through all the grades to the command of the army and in 1838 President Mirabeau Lamar of the Lone Star republic made him secretary of war. The next year he led a campaign against hostile Indians and in two brilliant battles defeated them and drove them out of Texas. Next we find him a planter in Texas but at the outbreak of the Mexican war he was in the field again as colonel of the First Texas rifles. This regiment soon disbanded but Johnston continued in the service and was inspector general of Butler's division at the battle of Monterey. Although Gen. Zachary Taylor called him "the best soldier he ever commanded," and his superiors recommended him for an appointment as brigadier-general, he was passed over (for political reasons) and again retired to his farm.

There he lived in poverty and neglect until President Taylor in 1849 suddenly appointed him a paymaster in the United States army and six years later President Pierce appointed him colonel of a new regiment, the Second Cavalry.

In 1857 he was placed in command of the expedition to restore order among the Mormons in Utah, who were in open revolt against the government. By a forced march of 920 miles in 27 days, he reached his little army of 1,100 men, to find them lost amid the snow-filled defiles of the Rockies, with the temperature at 16 below zero, their supplies cut off by the hostile Mormons and their starving teams their only food. By an extraordinary display of energy and wisdom Johnston led the army safely into winter quarters and by using equally commendable diplomacy he put an end to the rebellion without a drop of blood being shed. For this exploit he was brevetted brigadier-general and a short time later placed in command of the department of the Pacific.

Loyal to the army and the nation, the coming of the Civil war brought the deepest distress to Johnston. But when Texas seceded he resigned his commission—but he regarded his commission as such a sacred trust that he concealed his resignation until he could be relieved—and went at once to Richmond where in September, 1861, he was placed in command of all the Confederate forces in the West.

The fall of Fort Henry and Fort Donelson to the Union forces under Foote and Grant followed and the new leader fell back to Murfreesboro where he began reorganizing his troops. Then he moved to Corinth, Miss., the key of the defense of the railroad system in the lower Mississippi valley, where by April 1, 1862, he had about 40,000 men, poorly armed and badly supplied. Grant, commanding the right wing of the Union army, was concentrating at Pittsburg Landing on the Tennessee river with some 40,000 men and Buell was rapidly approaching with 40,000 more. With a Napoleonic flash of genius Johnston decided to beat the enemy in detail and to attack Grant before Buell could arrive.

On April 3 he started on his 25 mile march to Pittsburg Landing but he was delayed by bad roads and did not arrive until the 5th. At a council of war General Beauregard, his second in command, protested against an attack and advised a return to Corinth. Johnston overruled him and on Sunday morning, April 6, he led his army to the attack. It was a complete surprise, for Grant was not even on the field.

JESUS TEMPTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus True to God.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus True to God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Overcome Temptation.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Conflicting Ideals.

I. The Place (v. 1).

The wilderness of Judea. The first man, Adam, was tempted in a garden with the most pleasant surroundings. The second man, Jesus Christ, was tempted in a barren wilderness, surrounded by wild beasts (Mark 1:13). Adam shamefully failed, involving the whole race in ruin (Rom. 5:12); Christ gloriously triumphed, bringing justification of life as a free gift upon all who believe (Rom. 5:18).

II. The Purpose (v. 1).

Christ was led into the wilderness by the Holy Spirit. His temptation was Messianic. Men today are not tempted as he was, but the same methods are employed by the Evil One. The time had come for the Redeemer to enter upon his mediatorial work. Therefore, he went from the place of anointing and heavenly recognition as the Son of God to meet and to spoil the enemy of God and men (Heb. 2:14).

1. It was not a preparation for his work but rather his first conflict with the enemy. In his baptism we have the symbolic act of the dedication of himself to the work of redemption through the work of the cross.

2. It was not to see if Christ would stand fast, as to whether he would fall under the most crucial test. Being the eternal Son of God, incorporated with the perfect humanity, sin and failure were impossible.

3. It was to exhibit Christ as an object upon which we may rest our faith with unshaken confidence. He came as the second man, the head of a new race, the very source of its life. The temptation was, therefore, a demonstration of the inseparableness of the divine and human natures in the incarnation.

III. The Method (vv. 2-12).

Christ as the world's Redeemer sustained a threefold relation—Son of Man, Son of God, and Messiah. Therefore, Satan made each one a ground of attack.

1. As Son of Man (vv. 2-4). Satan made his first assault upon him as a man by appealing to the instinct of hunger. Satan urged him to use his divine power to convert a stone into bread. The temptation was in satisfying a right hunger in a wrong way. To have yielded in this case though his hunger was desperate would have been to renounce the human limitations which he had taken for our sakes. To do right in a wrong way is to sin.

2. As Messiah (vv. 5-8). Here the temptation was to grasp his rightful dominions by false means. The Devil offered to surrender unto him the world if he would adopt his methods, would worship him. The force of this temptation was in the fact that the kingdoms of the world are Christ's by God's covenant with him. Satan has forfeited his right to rule. God's method by which Jesus was to possess the world was his sacrificial death on the cross.

3. As the Son of God (vv. 9-12). Here Satan tries to induce Christ to presume upon God's care. He quoted a Messianic psalm to induce him to so act. To do the spectacular thing in order to get notice is to fall into Satan's temptation. For Jesus to have placed himself in danger in order to get God's special help in delivering him would have been to sin. To test God as to whether he will keep his promise is the greatest distrust.

4. Christ's Defense (vv. 4, 8, 12). It was the Word of God. He met and repulsed the enemy with "It is written." In the most crucial hour of the world's history Christ quoted from the Book of Deuteronomy, which the rationalists of the day reject as not being fully inspired.

5. The Issue (v. 13). Satan was vanquished. He could not stand against God's Word.

FEEL MEAN?

Don't be helpless when you suddenly get a headache. Reach in your pocket for immediate relief. If you haven't any Bayer Aspirin with you, get some at the first drugstore you come to. Take a tablet or two and be rid of the pain. Take promptly. Nothing is gained by waiting to see if the pain will leave of its own accord. It may grow worse! Why postpone relief? There are many times when

Bayer Aspirin will "save the day." It will always ease a throbbing head. Quiet a grumbling tooth. Relieve nagging pains of neuralgia or neuritis. Check a sudden cold. Even rheumatism has lost its terrors for those who have learned to depend on these tablets. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first suspicion of sore throat, and reduce the infection. Look for Bayer on the box—and the word Genuine in red. Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart.

Wednesday Bridge Club

Mrs. L. A. Lowe was hostess to the Wednesday Bridge Club at the Kerr hotel. A delicious four course luncheon was served. Table decorations carried out a pink and green color scheme with the centerpiece a crystal bowl of gold fish and ferns, with pink tapers in green holders. Cleverly hand tinted place cards and tallies added further to the colors. Mexican pottery hats served as nut cups and place favors.

The following menu served in green glass carried out the color scheme. Olives, celery, shrimp cocktail, wafers, molded salad, fried chicken, candied oranges, stuffed potatoes, brussel sprouts, parker house rolls, nesselrode pudding, individual cakes, punch and salted almonds.

Bridge was enjoyed by Mesdames Max Bogusch, F. B. Carter, A. E. Creigh, S. S. Daggett, John Green, Clyde Griffith, James Kerr, H. R. Laurence, Lewis Lemons, John Stovell, Sims Wilkinson, L. M. Pyle, Doc Turk, C. M. Breeding, C. V. McKnight, F. L. Burnside and P. C. Coates. At the conclusion of the games demi-tasse coffee and french pastry was served.

Mrs. A. E. Creigh was awarded first prize, a pair of silk net hose and Mrs. Clyde Griffith second, an exquisitely dainty lace and georgette handkerchief.

Mrs. Willie Banner was in from the ranch Monday, shopping and visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. House and children attended services in Dryden Sunday evening and also visited friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Buchanan from Dryden were up one day last week to have dental work done.
