Trustee Election Saturday, April 4th

At a meeting of the school board Wednesday evening it was ordered that an election be held on the first Saturday in April, which will be the 4th, for the purpose of electing one school trustee.

The polls will open at eight o'clock a. m. and close at seven o'clock p. m. All men and women qualified to vote should avail themselves of this opportunity to vote in a school election as it is something that all should take an interest in. Remember the date on which this election is to be held, Saturday, April 4th, and go to the polls and vote. The voting booth for Sanderson will be at the court house.

W. E. Stirman is the trustee whose time expires on April 4th.

Entertains

Mrs. Robert Duncan delightfully entertained her bridge club with a luncheon on Tuesday afternoon of last week at one o'clock, at her ranch home east of town. A most bountiful repast of four courses was served to the following guests: Mesdames P. E. Dishman, J. S. Nance, C. M. Breeding, B. F. Davis, P. J. Holman, D. A. Polard, F. L. Burnside, R. E. Stirman, W. A. Banner, Mary L. Kellar, Mattie S. Hicks, B. Canon, L. Hicks, E. Jessup and Miss Bessie Williams, house guest of Mrs. W. J. Banner.

The tables were cleared for bridge and five very enjoyable games were played amid gales of laughter. When scores were counted the prizes which were beautiful maderia linen napkins were awarded as follows; Mrs. C. M. Breeding, high; Mrs. L. Hicks, second and Mrs. Mary Lou Kellar, low.

The hostess served hot coffee and delicious fruit cake to the guests before they left for home at 5 p. m.

More Gas Struck In Goode Well

Transcontinental's Mid-Kansas test, Goode No. 1 on section 26 in block 161, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, is reported to be drilling in broken lime and shale and additional gas has been encountered in this well, and it is reported that this well is now gauging 25,000,000 cubic feet of inflammable gas. This well is being drilled on what is commonly called the Stone Bend Structure that covers a large portion of land in Terrell and Val Verde Counties. This structure was detailed by George A. Kroenhen and Alfred Cummins who were recommended several years ago to J. Calvin Stansell for the Grayburg Oil Company of San Antonio, Texas. Mr. Stansell was instrumental in assisting Mr. Kroenhen and Cummins secure leases on the Stone Bend Structure in Terrell County, so they could induce the major companies to sink this test. It is reported that this well will continue to drill to the depth of 8,000 feet, unless the sands of the Texon and Big Lake districts are encountered at a lesser depth. Mr. Bollen of the Texas Company was here to see Mr. Stansell last week after having made an inspection trip to the well, and he is very optimistic, and is of the opinion that high gravity oil in exceedingly paying quantities will be found in Terrell County within a very short period of time.

A letter has just been received from several parties of means in the oil business in California stating that the Keek Pecos Trust on section No. 6, Georgetown Ry. Co. survey, certificate 100, in the Cedar Springs block, would resume their drilling operations immediately. This well has been temporarily shut down in a very favorable formation.

A communication has just been received from Los Angeles, Calif., from a bunch of Jews stating that a Standard rig with Standard drilling equipment is en route to finish the Jessie McPhee well on section 76 in block D 7, E. L. & R. R. Co. survey, which spudded in some time ago with a high class drilling machine.

It is understood that Miller Brothers, Wooley & Jones, and the Big Bend Oil Corporation will resume drilling operations on their wells in the near future.

Several high powered geologists of major oil companies are now in Terrell and Val Verde Counties making a rough reconnaissance survey of land situated in both counties west of the Pecos River and south of the railroad, due to several oil seepages and asphalt outcrops having recently been found by the best Rock Hound west of the Pecos River through information furnished by a couple of one-eyed Mexican sheep herders.

A geologist who has been employed by numerous state economic geological bureaus and who has also been connected at one time with the Carter Oil Company, and who had made geology his life long study, is of the opinion that petroleum of high gravity together with ample gas to supply the industry for many years to come can be found in Val Verde and Terrell Counties west of the Pecos River and south of the railroad on numerous anticlines, plunging noses, and structures of other kinds and descriptions.

Newsy Notes From The High School

The following list of students made up the honor roll of the elementary grades for the past month:

First grade: Jimmie Wilkinson, Robert Johnson, Earl Hurst.

Second grade: Kenneth Litton.

Third grade: Amada Haass, Elizabeth Brown, Billy Louise St. Clair.

Fourth grade: Mildred Hurst, Bertha Mae O'Bryant.

Sixth grade: Mary Ferguson.

Before a student of the first, second or third grade may be listed on the honor roll his card must meet the requirements of one of the following groups of grades: first, all A's; second, one B plus and all other grades A's; third, one B with one A plus and all other grades A's; and fourth, two B pluses with two A pluses and all other grades A's.

The grades of a student of the fourth, fifth, or sixth grade must equal one of the following groups: first, all A's; second, one B plus with all other grades A's; third, one B and all other grades A's; fourth, two B pluses and all other grades A's; fifth, one B with one B plus, one A plus and all other grades A's; sixth, two B's with two A pluses and all other grades A's.

All grades including department grade are taken into consideration when determining this list.

The following is a quotation taken from a letter just received by Miss Bonnie Cox, head of Home Economics Department, from Miss Clara Tucker, supervisor of Teacher Training in Home Economics of Texas State College for Women: I am quite interested in your report of your new building and the work that you are now on. Miss Lipscomb told me quite a lot about your department. It seems to me that you are doing a very unique thing, that is, the students and parents together meeting on thursday nights. I have never heard of it as being tried in Texas before. I should like to drop in on you some Thursday night and see the work you are doing. If by chance you are writing to Miss Peek you might mention these meetings so that she might be able to visit you at this time. I think Miss Peek would be interested in this unusual type of work."

We appreciate the fact that our school system is receiving the attention of outstanding people in the field of education. The citizens of Sanderson and Terrell county have spared no effort in providing for us ideal surrounding, and making our environment that which will be best conducive to work. Our school plant is one of the best to be found in the state of Texas. When such interest is manifested by people in remote sections of the state we feel that our efforts to provide these conditions are being repaid. ***

The High School girls basketball team played the town team Monday night at the gymnasium and defeated the town team by a score of 17 to 6. The High School girls were somewhat handicapped because of the fact that there were only two experienced players on their team, but in spite of this, they played a good game. Miss Martin, coach, has been training the girls since the early part of January, and great improvement is shown with the playing of each game. By next year Sanderson should have an excellent team.

Brannan Returns From Convention

B. J. Brannan, superintendent of public schools, returned Sunday from Detroit, Mich., where he has been attending the meeting of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association for the past two weeks. Mr. Brannan states that this was one of the best meetings of this type that he has ever attended.

Men interested in education and school problems from all parts of the United States made up the representatives at this meeting. Such personages as Dr. Charles H. Judd of the University of Chicago, Dr. N. L. Engelhardt of Columbia University, Mrs. Hugh Bradford, president of National Congress of Parent-Teachers, and Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd, famous Arctic explorer, made addresses to the different sections of the meeting.

My lease on The Sanderson Times with Addie Lee Lemons expires April 1st. All parties owing accounts please settle with me before the above date.

Officers Capture Two Jail Breakers

Last Tuesday morning when Rex Tomlinson went to feed the prisoners he discovered that two of them, Claude Elliott and Robert Wells, were gone.

These men were confined in the womens cell. They had been tried in justice court a few days previous for stealing Seth Breeding's car and had been bound over under $750 bond to await action of the July grand jury.

After learning of the escape of the prisoners local officers at once set about their recapture. Late Monday evening some men on a bridge gang at Fedora saw the escaped prisoners hiding in the hills. Sheriff Cook and Ranger Miller got section foreman Thomas and his motor car at Dryden and came up the track. It was then after dark and seeing a tiny light in a canyon near Baxter Curve they went to the spot and found the two men wanted. The officers brought the men to town and placed them in jail.

One of the men claims his home is in Idaho and the other one says he is from Oklahoma.

Home Boys Win From Fort Davis

Last Monday night in the new gymnasium the Sanderson high school basket ball team, the Eagles, played the strong team from Fort Davis high school.

The game was played after a contest between the high school girls team and the town girls team. The Eagles were full of pep any started the game off by getting possession of the ball, carrying it to their basket line and making the first score. The boys from Fort Davis played a mighty good game and at times threatened to tie the score or forge ahead. But the home town boys were just in a "playing mood" and trotted away with a victory of 38 to 19 over the Fort Davis team.

Miss Fleda Belle Gerinnigan who has been ill the last few week, left this week for San Antonio for several days vacation. Miss Bessie Stradley has taken up Miss Gerinnigan's duties in the school during her absence.

Unfurred Coats for Spring Wear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

If it is unfurred, is made of a stunning spongy wool weave, if it has a "tricky" scarf arrangement and an unusual sleeve, then, depend on it, the coat which answers to this description is a brand-new this-season model. Just such a coat is shown in the illustration—Rita La Roy of Radio Players pictures, posing. Both the coat and the matching beret are fashioned of tweed, the new soft, spongy kind, in mottled beige and brown tones. A scarf collar, cape sleeves and a narrow row leather belt are distinguishing features.

Spring coat collections especially emphasize the favor for spongy fabrics of nubbed mixture construction. Skipper blue, tan tones, browns, green and some red are prominent. Gray has come into its own for dressier models and white nubbed black tweed registers smartly for sports types. Odd sleeves, new-type scarfs, low-placed big square revers and all sorts of belt treatments ranging from narrow effects to wide soft-tied girdles of self fabric play their part in achieving coats of distinction.

Button fastening is another accent placed on the new models. In fact, the new and ingenious placement of buttons is a study in itself.

One of the newest gestures is the touching up of the coat with a dash of plaid silk. A coat in light navy, for instance, detailed with a plaid silk scarf collar with plaid facing the elbow-depth cuffs is as nifty as one may hope to see. By the way, scarfs must be worn smartly to be chic. Bright cravat ties are tied close up around the throat, either ascot fashion or in a natty bow with long streamers. As a rule, the scarf is set snugly on the inside of the collar. The chief mission of the scarf is to supply a splash of vivid color.

Destroying Troublesome Carpet Beetles

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

The larva of the carpet beetle or so-called "buffalo moth" is almost as great a nuisance in some parts of the country as that of the clothes moth.

It feeds on much the same thing—woolen fabrics, silks, furs, feathers, and hair in upholstered furniture and mattresses. Carpet beetles are possibly less destructive than clothes moths because they reproduce only once a year and less abundantly. Nevertheless they are troublesome when they once get into a house and may even become so generally established that the only remedy is complete fumigation with a satisfactory fumigant. As fumigation should be tried only by some one experienced in handling fumigants, other ways of controlling carpet beetles are suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The young woman in the picture is filling up cracks in the floor with a liquor crack filler. Carpet beetles can live in very small quantities of dust and lint in cracks and corners, and one of the first things to be done to get rid of them is to destroy their hiding places. Kerosene may also be used to drench the cracks and kill any live beetles or larvae that may be lodged in them, but it gives only temporary relief, and the filler should be used if possible to close the cracks entirely.

Rugs, clothes, blankets, and other articles likely to be attacked should be protected from damage in just the same ways as they are protected from clothes moths. They should be thoroughly cleaned and wrapped in tight packages with crystals of naphthalene or paradichlorobenzene, or stored in tight trunks or red cedar chests. Washing in hot soap suds and subsequent ironing will kill any larvae or eggs of the carpet beetle that may be present, but unfortunately this cannot be done to the woolen articles that are most likely to be infested.

Furniture which has become infested should be fumigated, either in the house when the entire house is being fumigated, or in the establishment of some firm which maintains a special room for the purpose. Hydrocyanic acid gas is the best known gas for speedily eliminating carpet beetles and other pests that may be present. Where a house has been generally troubled with them, nothing will give greater peace of mind and freedom from worry than one thorough fumigation carried on by a professional fumigator or by an intelligent, careful person capable of following directions.

Filling Cracks With Liquid Filler.

Evening Fairy Tale for the Children

"How can I bother about being appreciative when I can't even bother about being affectionate?" asked Mr. Hairy Armadillo of his mate.

"In fact," he added, "you are the same way. You can't be affectionate."

"I know," said Mrs. Armadillo. "I heard that we were always far from being affectionate—it runs in our family.

"I mean that it runs in our family not to be affectionate—it doesn't run in our family to be affectionate."

"I understand you. That's all right," said Mr. Hairy Armadillo, in a quiet tone of armadillo voice.

"I can understand it," said Mrs.

salem artichokes; mushrooms; and some of the dried legumes, such as lentils, dried limas, dried navy and kidney beans and peas are among the winter vegetables which vary unobtrusively. Not all of these furnish vitamins in amounts comparable to the vegetables of green or yellow color, so they are better looked upon as supplements to other foods. With a raw vegetable salad, however, any of the last list may be introduced from time to time for the sake of change.

Variety in Vegetables Is Good Plan

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

In our large city markets many of the best liked vegetables are to be had the year around. But this is not the case in smaller places, and sometimes the family gets very tired of the repetition of the few that are available. A little ingenuity, however, will dress some of these up so that they seem like entirely different foods, suggests the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Take carrots, for example. Carrots sliced and fried with apples are a pleasant change. Or scalloped in layers with apples. Or mashed carrots. Instead of sliced carrots or carrots in "shoes" pieces carrots served whole with parsley butter are attractive. The flecks of green over the yellow give a pretty color combination and the lemon in the parsley butter adds a pleasing flavor.

Celery need not always be served as raw, crisp hearts, with salt. The outside stalks are often better cooked. They may be cut in inch lengths, mixed with well-seasoned meat drippings, put in a shallow pan and baked or "braised" until tender. Celery fritters are another possibility. Have plain stewed celery once in a while, either seasoned with butter, salt and pepper, or served with a white sauce or a sauce made from the liquor in which the celery is cooked. Celery and canned tomatoes are good cooked together in about equal parts, or celery and sliced or diced white turnips.

Cabbage has no end of possibilities. Try it shredded, simmered in milk for five minutes, then thickened slightly with blended flour and butter salt and a little cream added. Scalloped cabbage and apples may be new to you. Cabbage, spaghetti and cheese, covered with buttered crumbs, will appeal to everyone. If you can get red cabbage or chinese cabbage once in a while, you have what seems like a brand new vegetable. Don't forget cabbage salads. Chopped raw cabbage with cream cheese dressing is delicious and so is pineapple and cabbage salad with mayonnaise. Cabbage slaw, hot or cold, is a form of cabbage salad.

Canned corn should be kept in mind. Besides using it in corn custard and corn fritters, you can combine it with tomato and grated cheese and serve it on toast. Corn chowder is made of milk, potatoes and canned corn, with onion, salt pork and parsley for flavor and color.

Onions we have always with us—boiled, baked, creamed, french fried, stuffed, or combined with tomatoes or fried with apples. There are still other ways in which onions can be used as the main vegetable.

Salsify or oyster plant; parsnips; beets, both stored and canned; Jeru-

"BAKED ALASKA" IS AN EXTRA DELICACY

Festive Dessert Can Be Made at Home.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

It must have been a courageous cook who first thought of putting ice cream in the oven long enough to set the crust of a meringue spread over it. At any rate, the result, which has been christened "baked Alaska," has been considered an extra delicacy by the chefs who have produced it. There is no reason, however, why this festive dessert cannot be made at home.

Ice cream of any flavor may be used. Perhaps vanilla goes best with the sweet crust, or such flavors as caramel or macaroon. Any of the mousses made without stirring, frozen thoroughly to hold their shape may be used for baked Alaska. Or ice cream made in a freezer with a dasher may be packed for two hours or more in a mold of a shape that will be suitable for turning out in a compact brick. A flat oblong mold is good, or a melon mold.

Before turning the mold of ice cream out, have ready the stiffly beaten egg whites, to which sugar, vanilla, and a small amount of salt have been added. Two tablespoonfuls of sugar per egg white will give a crisp, crusty meringue. From three to six whites will be needed, according to the amount of ice cream and its shape.

Turn the ice cream quickly onto a thin layer of cake placed on a plank or board that can be put in the oven safely. Spread the meringue over the top and sides of the ice cream, and bake quickly in a hot oven until the meringue browns lightly. Slip the baked Alaska on a serving dish and use at once.

Food Hints of Interest to All

By NELLIE MAXWELL

If the power of evil has never been so manifest in the world before as it is today, the power of God has never been so apparent.—John Jay Chapman.

To the majority a meal is not finished or at all satisfactory unless some form of dessert is served. It may be a few stuffed dates, or a bit of fruit fresh or dried, and a handful of nuts. Whatever it may be, the meal is well rounded and more enjoyed when something sweet finishes it.

Prune Whip.—Pick over, wash and cover with cold water, two dozen prunes. After soaking ten to twelve hours cook in the water in which they were soaked. Remove the stones and put the pulp through a coarse sieve. To the pulp add one-half cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, the grated rind of half a lemon and one-third of a teaspoonful of salt. Now fold in the whites of six eggs which have been beaten stiff.

Turn the mixture into a buttered baking dish, set in a pan of water and bake until firm in a moderate oven. Serve with a boiled custard or with sweet cream.

Toasted Sponge Cake With Pineapple.—Cut stale sponge cake into slices one-half inch thick, then cut with a biscuit cutter rounds the size of pineapple slices. Spread these rounds with butter and sprinkle with sugar, set into the oven until delicately toasted and glazed. Drain the pineapple slices, add to the sirup one-half cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, the grated rind of half a lemon. Add the pineapple and heat to the boiling point, cook two minutes. Reduce the heat and keep hot ready to serve. Place a slice of the pineapple on each piece of cake and pour over the sirup. Serve at once.

French Fried Onions.—Mix and sift one cupful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two-thirds of a cupful of water, beat until smooth; add two tablespoonfuls of cooking oil and fold in one stiffly beaten egg white. Slice ten or more onions one-eighth inch thick and separate into rings. Soak in milk to cover one hour. Drain and dry, dip in the batter and fry until a light brown. Drain on soft paper.

Coconettes.—Cream one cupful of sugar with one-half cupful of shortening, add two well beaten eggs and beat well. Stir in one-half cupful of coconut milk, sift one and one-half cupfuls of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of soda and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Brown two cupfuls of rolled oats, put through the food chopper, add one cupful each of chopped raisins and grated fresh coconut. Mix well and drop by spoonfuls on a buttered sheet. Bake in a moderate oven.

Cold Night Sandwich.—Chop sausages fine and combine with fried onion. Butter bread, spread with the mixture and brown on both sides in a hot frying pan. Serve with a hot drink.

Another one with the chopped sausage is prepared with a little soup and a cupful of grated cheese; stir until the cheese melts, add chopped pimiento and a few olives, ripe or green. Serve cold.

She awakened old Annie, gave her money and sent her over to the hotel with the message.

They had a long talk on the beach that afternoon. Ernestine told Will everything, all that she had thought and felt, all that had happened the day before—Loring's talk with her, the murder car at Pastano's, her revulsion of feeling, how she had come home, and how, in the night, while she slept, everything had straightened out for her. Will lay beside her in silence, her hand in his, and again and again as she talked her fingers were pressed against his lips. They were back again in the cradle of love—rocked in magic which overcame all difficulties and healed all misunderstandings.

He told her then about himself and about what he had been through.

"I've made ten or eleven different developments of Poole's cartoon, altering them all, and I've made each one up for about six weeks, and planned the continuity out beyond that time, but I can't sell them. When I sat down to write to you what was there to say? I would resolve to try again, hoping to have some wonderful news for you. I've not been eating or sleeping—I missed you so, and I repented so my selfishness with you, and my attitude toward your family. I've not been reasonable, or fair—or generous. I felt that you were slipping away from me, because I couldn't hold you—because I didn't rate you."

These pictures moved Ernestine profoundly. Weeks of work, and nothing sold. The fear of losing her and the children, and the need to stick at the thing he was trying to do until he did it. She could feel in him a sharp pain of restlessness and discouragement, and her love poured out on him.

"Darling—it doesn't matter. I can stay here with mamma all summer. She understands. I can stay here until you get your comic strip right. They understand that it's you and I together always, Will."

"Don't cry, darling." "It doesn't mean a thing," she told him and added with some whimsicality, "it's my condition, darling. I am simply weepy, and when I think how near I came to doing something that would have ruined all my life and yours—"

"You couldn't—you didn't—not even nearly, Ernestine."

Peter had come up to them, and seeing his mother's tears, he began to wail loudly, and Elaine crowded close and thrust out a trembling lip. Will drew their attention from Ernestine, and gravely, abstractedly, he began to amuse them. He marked out the old familiar squares.

"Make a cat, Daddy—make a cat," commanded Peter, and Will, listening to Ernestine, but only half attentive, began to put down the cats that Peter loved so, the squares for a drawing board, a bit of stick for a pencil, the firm wet sand making a good plaque.

The child screamed with joyous mirth, and Elaine, beside him, clapped her hands with delight.

"Tabby cat's got his head stuck in a tin can. Look, Mamma!" Will's attention swerved from Ernestine. He sat staring at what he had drawn, as though at a stranger's work. His face wore a startled look. The small squares, in which two ridiculous cats went through a ridiculous adventure. Suddenly he leaped to his feet and gave a whoop which a Comanche Indian might have envied.

"Don't worry—our fortune is made. Can't you see—there it is. Not Mr. Poole's old comic strip in any way, shape or form, but my own darned old cats? Even the children can see it. Trust me a few days longer."

The cats were a great success. When fall came Will was working on the Sun again, in Mr. Poole's old office, under a three-year contract. The cat drawings were valued at sixty dollars a strip the first year, and more the second and third. Six days a week at sixty dollars a day. A full page for the Sunday supplement, in colors, at a special price. The tide of money and prestige poured in on them in a startling way. The movie people made attractive offers. Will knew how to make animated movies.

The Todds moved into a Colonial home only about a mile from mamma's. They had rented the house "to see how they liked it" with the possibility of buying it in their minds. Will offered the West side house in on a trade, but Ernestine would not sell the little house.

"You never can tell," she insisted, and though Will laughed at this, he did not resist her tenderness toward the house.

Papa established the trust funds. Money poured in upon them in the ridiculous and unreasonable way in which money behaves. It seemed now that nothing was too nice for the Todds. The new baby was born under the most promising conditions. In the Colonial room in the modern and beautiful home. A boy, long limbed and with a pointed face, like Will's.

Lillian was with Ernestine every day, and Ernestine noticed for the first time that Lillian's beauty was fading. She hung over the new baby, she was gentle with Peter and Elaine, who visited their mother at every possible moment. Once when the two had been watching the nurse bathe the newcomer and wrap him deftly in binder and cloth, turning him about in her hands while he gave soft grunts and sighs of satisfaction, and then at last tucked him in snowy flannellette into the curve of Ernestine's arm, with a little spank and tender scolding, Lillian looked at Ernestine with tears in her eyes.

"I wish," she said, "that it had been this baby's birth that Loring knew about." Her voice trailed away and Ernestine tingled with a sense of guilt. So that was why Lillian had no children!

"It's hard for people who haven't children to understand how quickly all the woes of bearing them are forgotten. I never think of that old time any more, and I'm sure Will doesn't. Anyhow—if it had been worse, don't you think Elaine was worth it?"

"Yes," said Lillian, "of course she is. But it was a dreadful time, Ernestine. I don't believe you have ever known how near you came to dying. It was a terrible time for all of us."

"After all," smiled the younger sister, "in such a case an inch is as good as a mile. That whole dark time—it was all so wrong, apparently, for me to have that second baby, and now wild horses couldn't tear her from us. You can't always plan things out."

Later, Will came in, and found Ernestine alone.

"Remember that murder car you saw at Pastano's last summer?"

"Of course. I'll never forget it." "Well, the new district attorney has arrested six of Pastano's relatives. It seems those men were killed in a fight with another bunch of gangsters. But these fellows were Pastano's men, and the next night they got the others with a machine gun, and now they're all locked up—both gangs. Loring has undertaken to get bail for them and get them off. Of course, it's quite respectable in Chicago to defend the most notorious criminal before the bar, but mamma doesn't like this. It was too close to home."

Ernestine could not help but smile at the twist Will could give to that word "mamma." Yet strangely, her mother and her husband had arrived at a basis of mutual understanding and liking since Will had been making

Silver Hoard Put Away by Romans Unearthed

At Caerleon in Monmouthshire, where a Roman legionary fortress stood to keep the Welsh marches for the Caesars in the Third century, excavators digging there unearthed some interesting secrets.

The one that is the oddest is that of the three centuries of the Second Augustan legion whose names, Quintinus Aquila, Vibius Proculus, and Vibius Severus, have been newly found. One of them must have been a hard-faced man who had done very well out of the war (like some men of a later day).

Whether it was hidden by Quintinus Aquila or by one of the two named Vibius we may never know; but beneath the floor of the quarters of one of these three centuries was a hoard of 280 silver coins. They may have his comic strip. Will said mamma was right about things. "Of course she wanted her daughter to marry a good provider," exclaimed Will, "just as you will want Elaine to marry a man who can take care of her. Mamma Brice-land is too good a mother to be satisfied with less. And besides, she's pragmatic. She's got something to be proud of now, and delighted to have it. I tell you, Ernestine, I think Loring has worn it a bit thin, with his greediness and bossiness and always reminding them that he made papa rich."

Ernestine wondered if she would want Elaine to marry a good provider, and suddenly she felt in her heart a strong loyalty to the difficulties that had beset their ways.

"I don't care whether the children are rich or poor," she told Will. "But I want them to love and suffer, and to have hardships—I want them to live—and value life. I do, Will. I don't want it to be easy for them. Having things too easy is one form of poverty when you think about it."

CHAPTER XIII

Hankerings

Prosperity was good for Will. He worked regular hours. He looked fresh and well. He adored the children and enjoyed them more than he ever had, and no woman ever had a more lovable husband than Ernestine. Two or three times a week they went to the theater, or to concerts, satisfying a long-starved hunger for beauty of sight and sound, for movement and color. Ernestine had picked up easily the old threads of social contact, as though she had been living in another city all this while. The old friends closed around her as naturally as though she had never been far from them, and in a little while the jargon, the familiar jokes, the odd intimacies were back with her again.

The money flowed in uncontrollably. They bought a second car, and there were beautiful clothes, new jewels and furs for Ernestine, charge accounts, a pony stabled at an expensive riding academy for the children. They talked of buying the house they were in, but already it seemed small. Will thought he would like to be nearer the lake and farther north. He felt that they needed more room.

One day in the fall when "Billy the Baby" was two years old, Ernestine entertained her bridge club and that afternoon seemed to her a perfect example of what life might be for a woman. She was proud of her home, proud of her thin china, her beautiful silver, her gracious friends. The new maid was well trained. The cook, stimulated by flattery, had outdone herself. The children came in and spoke to the guests who all exclaimed over them. They went out with their nurse to walk to the lake. Even Lillian, who had become silent and remote since her last trip to New York, displayed some of her old gay spirits. The talk fell into happy reminiscence of their childhood and girlhood.

After the guests were gone and Ernestine was helping the maid to tidy the living room, putting cushions in place, folding the card table covers, as the girl set the furniture back, Lillian stayed on, lying back in a chair of red velvet, her fair head pressed against the fabric, her arm hanging laxly over the side of the chair, smoking a cigarette, watching Ernestine. As the maid went out with the tables and covers and a tray of ash boxes, Ernestine flung herself down with an exclamation of weariness. Lillian astonished her.

"What's the matter with Will, kitten?" "Why—he's all right. He's a little thin, but he'll pick up. He always loses weight in hot weather."

"But it's October now. It hasn't been really hot for weeks. I saw him on North Clark street today while I was visiting one of his Greeks. He came and talked to me. He looked very white and thin, I thought—and his eyes were too bright—feverish. You must give him milk and eggs. Will is the type, linear I think you call it, that runs easily into T. R. He's indoors too much."

Ernestine was silent, thinking swiftly. "Will's all right, I think," she said a little shortly, but she looked grave. Lillian arched her brows in disbelief, but said no more. After a while she left in her own car, while Ernestine sat on the big couch, the silk and satin pillows, the wide low room with its charming furniture and carved fireplace forgotten in an instant.

What was Will doing on North Clark street? He and Mr. Poole had had an office there long ago. Will had been strange of late.

Growers Can Reduce Loss of Potatoes

Careful Regulation of Temperature Is Important.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

Wastes and losses of potatoes in storage can be prevented in great part if growers and dealers adopt the storage methods which the United States Department of Agriculture recommends. These include careful regulation of the temperature of the storage room, controlled ventilation, and exclusion of light. Dr. William Stuart, potato specialist of the bureau of plant industry, has just revised Farmers' Bulletin 847-F to include information developed since the bulletin was first issued in 1917.

The all-year demand for potatoes has always necessitated storage of considerable quantities of the crop, and many growers and dealers have believed that considerable waste in storage was inevitable. Scientific investigation has demonstrated that much of the loss is preventable. Storage under favorable conditions offers several advantages; it assures a more uniform market supply, preserves table quality, and protects the vitality of seed.

Doctor Stuart emphasizes the value of changing the temperature to suit the storage stages of the potato. "If newly harvested potatoes," he says, "especially those somewhat immature, are subjected to a temperature of about 60 degrees for the first ten days of the storage period in a relatively high humidity, the injured tissues will quickly heal over." After the brief period of storage at 60 degrees, the temperature should be reduced to about 40 degrees, maintained there for two or three months, and then held at about 38 degrees.

Farmers' Bulletin 847-F, "Potato Storage and Storage Houses," gives details of ventilation, temperature regulation, light exclusion, and other factors desirable in potato storage, and gives practical suggestions for construction of storage houses. It may be obtained free by applying to the office of information, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Early Plowing Favored for Best Soy Bean Crop

As a general rule, the ground should be plowed for soy beans, according to results of tests by the Ohio agricultural experiment station, cited by the farm crops department of the Ohio State university. "There are a few exceptions to this general rule," says one of the bulletins issued by the experiment station, "as when the soil is naturally loose and when a good seed bed can be prepared by disking." Experiments at Wooster have yielded 10.58 bushels of grain and 1,895 pounds of straw to the acre on disked corn stubble land, while plowed corn stubble land yielded 15.79 bushels of grain and 2,052 pounds of straw.

Early plowing is recommended as the better practice, since it gives time for the seed bed to settle and opportunity to kill one crop of weeds before the soy beans are planted. Late plowing in a dry season may leave the soil so loose and dry that germination will be poor and the early growth of the soy beans stunted. Many growers prepare the seed bed for soy beans before that for corn, but do not plant the soy beans until the corn is in the ground.

Check Machinery Before Opening of Season's Work

With the severe conditions under which chains operate on most farm machinery they should be carefully checked before the opening of a new season's work. Proper alignment of sprockets should always be maintained in order to prevent side-pull causing excessive wear on the sides of sprocket teeth. Worn sprockets should be replaced when new chains are placed on drivers to prevent a difference in pitch giving improper chain action and causing excessive strains on chains.

Proper adjustment and oiling are also essential. Too much tension places unnecessary loads on the bearings and chain. Rusty chains should be cleaned with kerosene or light oil. When running they should be lubricated occasionally with a good grade of oil.

Agricultural Hints

Kale can be picked in the garden all winter. You might try a few plants another year.

Forest trees have just as many insect and fungus enemies as orchard trees and field plants.

Red raspberries are the hardest of the brambles, blackberries being most susceptible to adverse climate.

Look over the garden tools and give them a coating of oil so they won't be dull and rusty when you want them.

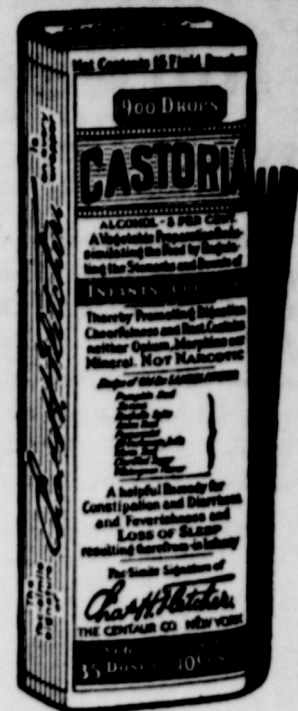

To get better pollination in a single variety pear orchard, top-work some trees to Bosc, Kieffer, Anjou, or Clapp Favorite.

In planning next year's work, try a system which will include several of the crops most profitable in the region over a period of years.

Soothes restless, wakeful CHILD

THERE are times when a baby is too fretful or feverish to be sung to sleep. There are some pains a mother cannot pat away. But there's no time when any baby can't have the quick comfort of Castoria! A few drops, and your little one is soon at ease—back to sleep almost before you can slip away.

Remember this harmless, pure vegetable preparation when children are ailing. Don't stop its use when Baby has been brought safely through the age of colic, diarrhea, and other infantile ills. Give good old Castoria until your children are in their teens! Whenever coated tongues tell of constipation; when there's any sign of sluggishness, just give them a more liberal dose. Castoria is so pleasant-tasting; all children love to take it.

Preaching Christ.

As long as sin is in the world there is the need of redemption, and need of preaching Christ. There is only one remedy for sin—the blood of Christ. He. 9:22-28; Col 1:14; 1 Jno 1:7

There is only one place to meet that blood—in the grave of water. Jno. 19:34; Eph 5:26 Hence, baptism is called "the washing of regeneration Tit 3:5. The blood of Christ is the means, and the gospel is the power of God unto salvation Ro. 1:16. Faith takes away the love of sin. Repentance destroys the practice of sin. Baptism changes the relationship from the power of Satan unto that of God. Pardon removes the guilt of sin. God forgives men when they obey His Son's law. Forgiveness of sin takes place in the mind of God, not in man.

Trade among Friends

No matter what some folks say to the contrary, there certainly is a lot of sentiment in business. Friendship, for instance, makes more satisfactory sales than all the cleverness and argument in the world.

You like to trade at a certain store—not because its counters are arranged in a scientific way, but because the folks who serve you are always friendly and helpful.

Just that very thing—FRIENDLY SERVICE—is the power that draws people together into communities like this, where everybody can enjoy the many benefits of neighborly cooperation.

And FRIENDLY SERVICE is the sentimental reason why you find it very much to your advantage to trade with our advertisers—to buy where you feel at home, where your friends will see that you are well satisfied.

Conveyors Carry Ford Car Parts

Trains unload in the plant.

Bodies starting through the shop.

Conveyors carry wheels with mounted tires over a line on which cars pass to completion.

The highly important part played by conveyor systems in all Ford Motor Company manufacturing and assembly plants is graphically shown in the above three pictures taken in the recently opened Edgewater, N. J., plant. One of the pictures shows how parts may be unloaded from freight cars within the plant only a few feet from the various assembly lines. Another picture shows automobile bodies starting their trip on a conveyor while the third view is of the conveyor system used to bring wheels to the chassis which are also moving on a conveyor. As indicated in the picture, a constant flow of wheels on which the tires have already been mounted moves around and over the chassis assembly line. As a chassis enters the section, workers, in groups of four, each take a wheel from the hooks and fasten it to the chassis.

TEXAS DENTAL HEALTH WEEK, MARCH 1 TO 6

The attention of the Times readers is called to the posters and display of dental health goods in the show windows of our local stores. The text of the posters is scientifically correct, having the approval of the Texas State Dental Society and the American Dental Association. "Texas Dental Health Week" is an annual observance but this is the first time it has received any local publicity.

Further emphasis on dental health is created locally because it comes at a time when most of the parents are receiving reports on the condition of their children's teeth from the school. Attention is also drawn to the fact that nearly 90 per cent of the American school children in Sanderson have decayed teeth. This condition ought not to be. It can be more easily remedied than is popularly supposed. Yet the corrections of these conditions requires the full co-operation of all the citizens of Terrell county.

It is a well known fact that children in orphan homes and similar institutions receive better dental care and general medical attention than the average child under full protection of the home and parents. This is highly reflected in their relative mortality rate and general wellbeing.

Would your child receive better dental care if he were in an orphan home. Does your school, your state and the dental profession have more interest in the dental welfare of your child than you? pd ad.

On Eastchester Road

By JANE OSBORN

THE girl who had just drawn up to the curbstone carefully drew up her emergency brake and alighted from her car—a very shiny, very new car that still bore signs in the way of dents in the fenders and other bruises here and there of an eventful if brief career.

"Will you tell me how to get to Eastchester?" she asked a white-haired, stoop-shouldered old man who looked as if he must be a native.

The old man, looking at her and her car, explained that since the Eastchester road was being repaved it was necessary for motorists to take a detour.

"But I've just been over that detour," said the girl almost tearfully. "I was in this very spot an hour ago and I followed the detour and kept going for an hour as fast as I could—and here I am back here again."

The old man chuckled and looked approvingly at the girl. Then under his breath, though there was no one listening or even looking, he told the girl that she might take the Eastchester road. To be sure it wasn't open to the public. Still folks who lived on the Eastchester road had to use it, and though she might meet a steam roller or stone mixer she could get through. "They'll think you are going to see some one that lives on the road," he said.

"What name could I use?" she asked.

"Might mention the Rockwells," said the old man, mentioning the most distinguished family in the entire county whose estate lay along the Eastchester road. He chuckled again, partly at the smartness of the girl in suggesting this and partly at his own smartness in mentioning the Rockwells.

So Catherine Terry drove on. She found the road smooth as glass and easy motoring when she kept her eyes off the deep ditch on either side.

Two or three miles along the road she met a steam digger coming along like some deliberate prehistoric monster—slowly, slowly bearing down upon her. A man walking beside the digger halted her roughly. Catherine stopped her car and alighted. "Don't you know the road is closed?" he asked.

"But I came to see friends living on the road," said the girl with a forced smile and feeling like a dreadful culprit.

"Who?" scoffed the man.

"The Rockwells," said the girl.

A high powered car had drawn up behind her and, seeing the altercation, the driver got out of his car.

The man walking beside the digger showed his deference to the young newcomer. "Here's a lady says she came along of this road because she was a friend of your folks. Says she knows the Rockwells." Then to the girl he said: "This is Mr. Rockwell," and waited for development.

"How do you do, Mr. Rockwell," said the girl. "I thought I'd drop in and see your mother."

"Yes, my aunt would be charmed to see you," corrected the young man. "The fact is, we expected you—you are coming to luncheon, you know." And the two cars drove on.

A mile further on and Tom Rockwell's car stopped and he motioned for the girl when her lagging car drew near to stop also. She stopped. She said, "Thank you," and that she would go along. "You were very good to see me through my little deception. A man at the village told me your name."

"But you're coming to luncheon," said the young man. "You'll have to see the game through now—that digger man might see you hadn't stopped. He's doubtless taken your license."

So with great fear of all possible and impossible motor laws, Catherine followed her leader through an imposing stone entrance past impressive lawns and groves to quite the most magnificent house she had ever seen.

"I must introduce you to my aunt," said Tom Rockwell. "Your name—"

"Catherine Terry," she said, and then, "It seems dreadful to be here, but I don't know what else to do." But the presence of the aunt, who came downstairs to receive her, smoothed away any difficulty, and when Catherine drove off in late afternoon Tom led the way to make explanations to the men who were repaving Eastchester road.

A year later when Catherine came to be mistress of the Rockwell estate on Eastchester road no one smiled more contentedly than the old man down in the village had given her directions on her first coming.

Ancient Babylon

The old city of Babylon was in the form of a square, with 120 stadia given as the length of one side. This would mean 15 miles. The walls were furnished with 100 brazen gates (Diodorus says the number was 250). A huge roofed bridge, made of hewn stones, fastened by iron clamps, joined the two parts of the city. In the eastern division were the hanging gardens of Semiramis, counted among the wonders of the world.

RUN-DOWN STOCK COSTS TIME, MONEY & WORRY!

High breeding, penning and overstocking are taking their toll of range livestock—but, why?

The mineral-bearing forms of range vegetation have been eaten off faster than they could be grown... and it is necessary to supply mineral elements through the salt trough or salt blocks.

DICAPHO-SALT supplies the essential minerals (CALCIUM and PHOSPHORUS) in the most available and digestible form. Builds up bone, aids digestion and increases vitality.

Run-Down, Weak, Nervous?

To have plenty of firm flesh and the ability to do a big day's work and feel "like a two-year-old" at night, you must digest your food and properly digest it. If you can't eat, can't sleep, can't work, just give Tanlac the chance to do for you what it has done for millions.

Mrs. Fred Westin, of 387 E. 57th St. North, Portland, Ore., says: "Tanlac cured my stomach trouble completely after three years suffering. It built me up to perfect health, with a gain of 27 lbs."

Tanlac is wonderful for indigestion—gas pains, nausea, dizziness and headaches. It brings back lost appetite, helps you digest food, and gain strength and weight. No mineral drugs; only roots, barks and herbs, nature's own medicines. Less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist. Your money back if it doesn't help.

Lucky Find

When we find some slight help makes a marvelous improvement in a child, we wonder why we hadn't thought of doing it long ago.

Here's a good example: "My little girl was doing fairly well," says Mrs. M. Seitenbach, 5605 Emile Street, Omaha, Neb., "but I noticed she didn't eat right and didn't have much energy."

"Our doctor had recommended California Fig Syrup, so I gave her some. She improved so much I wonder I didn't do something for her stomach and bowels before. She has a good appetite and digestion and plenty of energy, now."

To point up a child's appetite, increase energy and strength, assist digestion and regulate the bowels there's nothing like California Fig Syrup. Doctors advise it to open bowels in colds or children's diseases; or whenever bad breath, coated tongue, etc., warn of constipation.

Emphasize the name California when buying, to get the genuine.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J.V. Fitzgerald

John J. Raskob

The boys in Lockport, N. Y., snickered, back in 1900, when they heard that John J. Raskob had put a price of $1,000 a year on his services as a stenographer and secretary. Why that, as they figured it out, was more than $83 a month. Young professional men were lucky to be making as much money in Lockport in those days.

If no man is a prophet in his own country neither is the youngster, with whom we play as a lad, generally conceded to have money making traits or capabilities above our own. That was the case in Lockport when it became known that Johnny Raskob had written to the owner of an Ohio city street railway company for a job as secretary, estimating his value at a figure that seemed absurd to those with whom he had been raised.

But John Raskob got the job and at his own price. The man who hired him was Pierre S. Du Pont, then owner of the traction system in Lorain, Ohio. Lockport residents thought that the youth was lucky in landing such a plum.

Before he left Lockport young Raskob had been making $30 a month. He had asked for a raise to $10 a week. When this was refused he decided that his talents were not appreciated. He made up his mind to seek fields in which he would receive better rewards.

So he wrote to a friend, a young draughtsman, Sterling H. Bunnell by name, asking him if there was any opening for him in Lorain. He received a reply that Pierre S. Du Pont was seeking the right sort of a young man to act as his secretary and aid in the street railway business.

When John Raskob told his friends that he had applied for the job and had asked for a salary of $1,000 a year they thought at first that he was fooling. When they were convinced by the earnest young man that he actually had asked for such pay they were certain that he wouldn't get a reply even. But they were wrong and John Raskob was right. He invariably has been on financial matters ever since.

The boy who surprised his Lockport companions in the matter of getting such a big salary was born in that up-state New York city in 1879. His father, a solid and substantial citizen, was in the tobacco business.

John was an average student in school. His quick smile and pleasant manner made him popular. He early showed a liking for business and an aptitude for figures. His father died when John was in high school. Mrs. Raskob was left with four children.

The future chairman of the finance committee of General Motors didn't try to complete his education by working in his spare time. He decided that the sooner he got a real job the better. He realized that he needed special equipment to get ahead in the business world.

He left high school and took a commercial course in stenography and bookkeeping. He buckled down to his studies and soon qualified to take dictation and to keep a set of books. He got a job at $5 a week. That was considered fair wages for a beginner in Lockport in those days.

After six months he asked for an increase to $7.50 a week. His employer agreed to give it to him, but it was some months before the raise materialized. Following two years' work during which he became an expert stenographer, an excellent typist and a first class bookkeeper, he asked for $10 a week. His employer didn't think the youngster was worth such wages to him.

That was the turning point in John Raskob's life. He wrote to Pierre Du Pont and went to work for him in 1900. The next year he represented his employer as treasurer of a street car line in Dallas, Texas. His salary had been raised to $3,000 a year, proving to skeptical Lockport friends that he hadn't thought too well of his earning capacity after all.

He went to Wilmington, Del., in 1902, as assistant treasurer of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company. Later he became treasurer and then vice president of the big chemical concern. Mr. Du Pont joined him in buying General Motors stock and John Raskob soon became the directing financial genius of that vast corporation and one of the country's outstanding business leaders.

Nordics and Latins
By Nordic nations is meant the northern nations, the Norse people, such as those of Norway, Sweden and Denmark. Of course, there are no purely Latin peoples, but the nations containing a large Latin element in blood, law, and language are the Italians, the Spanish and the French. These are the leading Latin nations, but in fact they are of mixed blood, like the English-speaking people. There is considerable intermarriage between northern and Latin peoples but it cannot be said to be common.

Beekeeping Best as One-Man Task

Average Keeper Will Make Most Profit With 400 Colonies.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

The average beekeeper will make the most profit if he limits his business to 400 colonies, the number he can care for single-handed, the United States Department of Agriculture says. He may be a first-rate bee handler, but the temperament of a good beekeeper generally is not the temperament for managing employees efficiently.

What One Man Can Do.
One man can do practically all of the work required for 350 or 400 colonies, even during rush seasons, the department learned by studying for three years the records of beekeepers in widely separated regions of the country. With an apary of this size, however, he will need some additional means of income. Beekeeping is at its best, generally, as a supplement to farming. One man in New York state, who farms 100 acres and cares for 70 colonies of bees learned from experience that a 70-colony apary is equivalent to about 40 acres of land in both income and labor.

One beekeeper, who spends little time in his apary and is an inefficient employer of labor, had a labor cost of more than $6 per colony. He lost 53 cents a colony one year, and $1.75 a colony the next year. But not all good beekeepers are poor managers. One who owns 1,500 colonies reported a yield of about 250 pounds of extracted honey from each colony and a total income of $23,387 in 1928, or a net income of $11,78 for each hour he worked with the bees. He hires labor and knows how to use it. Other beekeepers have reported returns of $2.40 to $5.50 an hour for their time in the apary.

Practices Studied.
The department has studied beekeeping practices in Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Montana, Iowa, New York, Michigan, Ohio and Minnesota. During the next few years the department will complete its nation-wide survey by studying beekeeping on the Pacific coast, on the Dakota plains, in Texas, and in the South.

Scientific High Points in Plowing for Crops

(By DR. M. C. SEWELL, Associate Professor of Soils, Kansas State Agricultural College.)

The largest item of expense in producing cereal and annual forage crops is tillage.

The most important tillage operations are plowing and cultivating.

Reduction in depth or frequency of plowing, or number of cultivations necessary for economic yields, materially reduces the cost of raising the crop.

Plowing deeper than six inches for cereals or row crops—excepting root crops—is never warranted. Timeliness—early plowing—is the important factor in wheat tillage. The important factor in wheat tillage is the important factor in wheat tillage. The important factor in wheat tillage is the important factor in wheat tillage.

Efficient tools, especially power equipment, is of utmost value in tillage in the light of discoveries as to the value of timeliness in plowing.

Soy Bean Hay Equal in Feed Value to Alfalfa

At the Indiana station soy bean hay proved to be about 8 per cent inferior to alfalfa. At the South Dakota station results from a similar test indicated soy bean hay to be 6 per cent better than alfalfa for dairy cows. At the West Virginia station soy bean hay proved to be slightly superior to alfalfa for milk production, and at the Tennessee station it was quite a bit superior. At the Wisconsin station, in one case, milk production was slightly larger when alfalfa was fed as compared with soy bean hay. The weights of the cows were also slightly better maintained on the former than on the latter. In another test at the same station the two hays were practically equal in feeding value, but more of the soy bean hay was wasted by the cows than of the alfalfa.

Thus we see that on the whole soy bean hay, when well cured and cut at the right time, is practically equal in feeding value to good alfalfa.

Intensive Campaign to Control Oriental Moth

Growers in the section in which the oriental fruit moth is already present are preparing to wage an intensive campaign to control this pest during the coming season.

As the opening gun in battle the growers will give their orchards a deep thorough cultivation. This kills those that pass the winter in the soil. This is quite a per cent of the total number that live over.

The other methods of control which are suggested by those who have worked on this insect will be used later in the season. It will be a hard battle but unless the grower wins, this year's crop in these sections seriously infected will be worth almost nothing.

Lesson for March 8

THE GOOD SAMARITAN

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, but thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself: I am the Lord.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:25-37.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Story of a Real Friend.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Story of a Real Friend.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Serving and Sharing.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Stewardship of Life.

1. How to Inherit Eternal Life (vv. 25-38).

1. The lawyer's question (v. 25). The term "lawyer" here means "one versed in religious law—the Scriptures, not lawyer in our modern sense of that term. It would more nearly correspond to our theological professor. The lawyer's object was to trip Jesus, to induce him to take such a stand as would weaken his influence as a teacher. He expected Jesus to set forth some new ceremonies which would conflict with or disparage the law of Moses.

2. Jesus' question (v. 26). Though Jesus knew the motive of the lawyer, he did not evade his question. He sent him to the law, the field which was familiar to him. He thus robbed him of his own weapon.

3. The lawyer's reply (v. 27). He made an intelligent answer, declaring that the entire content of the law was embraced in love to God and man. This expresses the whole of human duty.

4. Jesus' reply (v. 28). The straightforward answer went to the heart of the lawyer. Perfect love to God and man is truly the way of life. No man has yet had nor can have such love. His sinful condition precludes its possibility. Man's failure to measure up to this requirement is his condemnation. The lawyer keenly felt this thrust. He was defeated on his own grounds and convicted of guilt.

II. Who Is My Neighbor (vv. 29-37).

1. The lawyer's question (v. 29). This question reveals the insincerity of the lawyer. Christ's answer had reached his conscience, and now he seeks to escape the difficulty by asking a captious question. Lawyer-like he sought to get off by raising a question as to the meaning of words.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 30-37). Jesus' reply more than answered the lawyer's question. In the Parable of the Good Samaritan he makes clear who is a neighbor, and also what it means to be a neighbor and what loving a neighbor means. Christ's answer had a double meaning. He not only made clear who is my neighbor, but made it clear that the lawyer was not playing the neighbor.

a. Who is my neighbor? This destitute and wounded man, left on the wayside by the robbers, is a man who needs a neighbor. My neighbor, therefore, is the one who needs my help, whether he lives next door or on the other side of the world. It does not regard locality, nationality, or blood relation.

b. What being a neighbor means. Our supreme concern should not be "Who is my neighbor?" but "Whose neighbor am I?" To be a neighbor is:

- (1) To be on the look-out for those in need of our help (v. 33). It is keen to discern the needs of those with whom it is brought into contact.
- (2) To have compassion on the needy (v. 33). Christ's compassion was aroused as he came into contact with those who were suffering and in need.
- (3) To give to those in need (v. 34). Love does not calculate the cost of its actions. Whenever there is calculation of cost, there is the expression of selfishness. Many are willing to give money to help the poor and needy but are unwilling personally to minister to them. The true neighbor gives himself as well as his money.
- (4) To bind up wounds (v. 34). If we have eyes to discern, we shall see many wounds about us that need attention.
- (5) To set the helpless ones on our beasts while we walk (v. 34). This is the proof of the genuineness of our love. Those who are like Christ will deny themselves in order to have something to give to those who are in need.
- (6) To bring to the inn and take care of the unfortunate (v. 34). Genuine love does not leave its service incomplete. True love follows up the needy.
- (7) To give money (v. 35). It costs a good deal to be a neighbor. Love is the most expensive thing in the world. It cost God his only Son. It cost Jesus Christ his life.

This parable has been through the centuries the classic illustration of true Christian neighborliness.

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Read proven directions for neuralgia, for rheumatism and other aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless to the heart.

Ancient Swiss Hospiz Victim of Electricity

The ancient hospiz on the Grimsel pass, Switzerland, is no more; it is the latest victim to electricity, writes the Zurich correspondent of the London Sunday Observer. The wall which is being built up to block the valley of the Aare, and which will be the biggest in Europe when finished in 1932, has been raised to a level above that of the former Grimsel lake. The old stone bridge which has served the traffic of six or seven centuries was engulfed by the waters, and the hospiz had to be abandoned. The long-stretched two-story building, with its whitewashed walls, was set on fire and the ruins left to the waves. Owing to the frequent rainfalls the lake rose rapidly, as much as several yards in one day, and the building has now been completely submerged.

The hospiz was first mentioned in a document dating from 1397. It was then a primitive inn. In 1557 it was much enlarged so as to accommodate the increased traffic. It had its good times up to 1880, when the Gothard tunnel was finished and the railway absorbed the traffic.

INDIGESTION GOES—QUICKLY, PLEASANTLY

When you suffer from heartburn, gas or indigestion, it's usually too much acid in your stomach. The quickest way to stop your trouble is with Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. A spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids—instantly. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

Try Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, and you will never allow yourself to suffer from over-acidity again. It is the standard anti-acid with doctors. Your drugstore has Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, with directions for use, in generous 25c and 50c bottles.

There is no yellow peril if the white race is kept prolific enough. Remember that.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills put up 60 years ago. They regulate liver and bowels.—Adv.
