KECK - PECOS WELL IS RAPIDLY PROGRESSING

McPhee Obtains New Leases; To Put Down Test Wells

J. H. Greenburg and George Schaeffer of Hollywood, California, have been in the city and at the Keck-Pecos Trust Company well, located on Lozier canyon, for the past week. These two gentlemen are formerly of Pittsburg and know the oil game fairly well.

Government geological surveys and government maps show a favorable oil structure at this location. C. E. Braley, manager at the well, stated that it was by the government reports that the company was going and the outlook for oil was very favorable.

Mrs. J. B. McPhee, prominent and well-known oil woman of Los Angeles, California, has been and is still in the vicinity of Dryden. Several new leases have been secured by Mrs. McPhee, among them being the Montgomery, Gatlin, and Kerr acreage. It is reported that she will put down three test wells, one on each of the acreages obtained.

DRYDEN BASEBALL NINE LOSES CLOSE GAME AT COMSTOCK LAST SUN.

The Dryden baseball nine went to Comstock last Sunday for a game and lost in the end to the tune of 4-3. Although Dryden held Comstock 3-0 for six innings, Salas and Dunsmoor formed the batteries for Dryden while Weaver and Thomas were the opponent's batteries. The line-up for Dryden was as follows: Salas, Pitcher; Dunsmoor, catcher; Bishop, 1st base; Haley 2nd base; J. Smith, short stop; Banner, 3rd base; Ritter, left field; M. Smith, center field; Mooney, right field.

The Dryden team has been practicing hard for these games and expect to play quite a few more before the season is over.

Sunday afternoon, July 12, the Dryden will play Marathon at the American Legion ball park at Sanderson at 3 p.m. and another good game is assured the home folks.

W. Qualtrough of Houston is here visiting his son, W. R. Qualtrough and family. Mr. Qualtrough has been here for three weeks but it was only on Wednesday of this week that he found enough courage to come in and face the editor. We are mighty glad to know this fine man and always enjoy his visits in our city.

Establishes New Mexico Lodge

J. M. Bassett Converts Ranch Into Hunting, Fishing Grounds

Julian M. Bassett, formerly a large ranch owner in this county, but who now ranches in New Mexico, recently converted one of his ranches into a hunting and fishing lodge. The lodge, known as the Lions Hunting and Fishing Lodge, is located 50 miles north of Silver City, New Mexico.

This lodge occupies 4,000 acres on the snow-fed headwaters of the east and middle forks of the Gila River in the Black Range of the Continental Divide, and adjoins Mr. Bassett's Heart-Bar-Cross ranch. The altitude is high enough to be invigoratingly cool in the summer-time. The country is rugged and deer, as well as other wild game and fish, are plentiful.

DR. A. L. MOORE WILL CONDUCT SERVICES SUNDAY AT METHODIST CHURCH

Dr. A. L. Moore, Ph. D., of El Paso, will be in Sanderson on Sunday, July 12th, and will preach at the 11 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. services at the First Methodist Church and at the 3 p.m. service of the Dryden Community Church.

Dr. Moore is here to deliver two special messages during the "Whole Family Day". Each out-of-town person attending the 11 a.m. service will be invited out to dinner in some Methodist home, while every person who does not live in Sanderson, and who attends the 8:30 p.m. service will be a special guest at supper with some member of the church.

The music committee of the Methodist church has arranged several good vocal numbers for the occasion and extra seats have been provided as a record attendance is expected.

Two Escape Jail

GRAHAM, July 9. AP—Search for two prisoners who escaped from the Young County jail early today, tonight had led officers to the hill country near here where they are thought to be hiding preparatory to fleeing from this section under the cover of darkness. Meanwhile officers investigated in an effort to locate the source of hacksaw blades which were found in their cells shortly after they escaped.

WESTERN UNION SELLS EXPRESS MONEY ORDERS

The local Western Union office began the sale last Wednesday, July 1st, of American Express money orders.

Western Union main and branch offices in all parts of the United States inaugurated this service at the same time. Offices of the American Express will act as branches of Western Union in the sale of telegrams, cablegrams, and telegraphic money orders.

This service will in no way conflict with the Western Union telegraphic money and gift order service.

BOGUSCH & CHARLTON SELL NEW BRANDS OF GASOLINE AND OILS

Roy Bogusch and Fred Charlton, managers of the Humble Filling Station, located at the west end of Oak street, announced this week that they now have for sale Esso, the new gasoline which is being manufactured by the Humble Oil Company and which was introduced into Texas for the first time on July 1.

A phenomenal success in twenty foreign countries, Esso has proved its worth in all climates and in every type of motor.

They are also handling now at their station three grades of Mobil-oil and 997, the new friction fighting oil just recently put out by the Humble Oil and Refining Company.

ROTARY CLUB MEETS

The Rotary Club held a very interesting meeting Wednesday of this week at the Kerr Hotel.

The meeting was unique in many ways, especially more so in that the members were treated to a long looked-for chicken dinner, given by Clyde McKnight. "Mc" was captain of the side that lost in the attendance contest and finally, after much ado, he paid off. Just the same, while the club hated to lose in the attendance contest, there were no complaints voiced to the chicken dinner.

Elevator At Carlsbad Caverns To Be Ready By August 15th

To the twenty-one miles underground in Carlsbad Caverns, have been added ten additional miles, recently explored, making some thirty-five miles of caverns. Into this scenic spot has been sunk an elevator shaft 753.6 feet with cementing of the sides under way. When the elevator is finally running, about August 1st, use of this improvement will mean a descent of some seventy-five ordinary building stories into the earth.

Added to the attraction of the caverns is that of a fresh water beach in the Pecos River, five minutes from Carlsbad.—Fl. Stockton Pioneer.

GREAT CROWDS EXPECTED TO ATTEND 11th ANNUAL CAMP MEET AT PAISANO JULY 31st TO AUG. 9th

Thousands of visitors are expected to attend the ten-day session of the eleventh annual Paisano Baptist encampment, to be held this year beginning July 31 and ending August 9, at the regular meeting grounds about 12 miles west of Alpine on U. S. highway 90, according to the Rev. Buren Sparks, pastor of the Baptist church in Alpine, who states that the camp sites have been beautified and that all modern conveniences installed, thus making the place almost as convenient as home.

Letters from all over this state and many others are coming in every day, Sparks added, asking for information on this meeting where the cowboys and ranchers, many of them, hear the gospel preached only once a year and then at the Paisano meeting. This year the usual program has been enhanced by the promise of Pat M. Neff to speak on the first Sunday on "Christain Education". Ollie Webb, representative of the T. & P.

TERRELL CO. TO GET TWO DEEP OIL TESTS

M. B. Wilson of this city who is associated with eastern capital, has organized and incorporated a company which will be known as Cibolo Oil Company, with capital stock of $500,000.

The officers and directors are all residents of Sanderson and the company will maintain headquarters here. It will also have an office at El Paso.

This company will drill at least two deep wells in Terrell county and will drill to a depth of 8,000 feet, if necessary. Their first location will probably be on the Joe Kerr 14,000-acre tract, near Mofeta, which is a part of their holdings of some forty-odd sections of land. Geologists have passed very favorably on this tract, and the Cibolo Oil Company will make a thorough test of their first location.

The names of the officers and directors will be announced at an early date.

MAKES HONOR ROLL AT STATE UNIVERSITY

AUSTIN, Tex., July 9.—A total of 480 students in the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Texas made grades during the spring semester entitling them to places on the official honor roll of that college. Both quantity and quality of the work done by each student were considered in compiling the honor roll.

Included in this list is the name of Miss Margaret Catherine Lattimore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Lattimore, prominent ranch people of this county. Miss Lattimore was a member of the graduating class of 1930 of the Sanderson High School.

BROWNSVILLE TO HAVE FACTORY FOR CARROT PRODUCTS MANUFACTURE

A factory, which is planned to begin operation in the late summer, is to be erected in Brownsville for the manufacture of carrot products. The first unit of the plant will consume about 16 tons of carrots daily and its products will be carrot syrup, which is said to have a flavor similar to maple syrup; carrot juice, which is said to have a particular food value; and carrot breakfast food, which will be manufactured from the pulp after the juices have been extracted.

C. N. Haskell, former governor of Oklahoma, is to head the company.—Fl. Stockton Pioneer.

Mrs. Guy Nations and son, James Robert, have returned from Kerrville where they have been the past few weeks with relatives. They were accompanied home by I. H. Elder, Mrs. Nations father, who will visit her for sometime.

16TH DISTRICT COURT WILL BE IN SESSION HERE COMMENCING NEXT MONDAY

State To Back Yates Surveys

Attorney-General Will Ask That Turner Vacancy Be Excluded

Exclusion of the Turner vacancy and establishing of the lines of the various surveys in the Yates field in Pecos county according to the theory acted upon by the land commissioner in approving the Dodd survey will be sought by the attorney general's office in a written argument or brief in the Smith-Turner case, which it intends to file, if the Supreme Court will grant permission.

In announcing this reversal of the position of a former attorney general, George T. Wilson, assistant attorney general, in a letter to the defendants in the state against R. B. Whiteside and others, also advises that it is the purpose of the attorney general's office to attempt in the Whiteside case to establish all lines in block 194 as they have been recognized heretofore by the land commissioner, and as they were on the ground when most of the oil development and most of the trading in leases and royalties took place in that area.

The attorney general's office decided to make known its position in both the Smith-Turner and the Whiteside cases when the Supreme Court deferred an expected ruling in the Smith-Turner case, which involves questions that materially affect the issues in the Whiteside case. The Smith-Turner case has been set for resubmission on Oct. 14, 1931. Mr. Wilson points out that if all survey lines in Block 194 are moved over to accommodate the vacancies which Fred Turner claim there will ensue almost endless litigation to adjust accounts between the state and persons who have collected royalties that they did not own, and the state will be under the necessity of refunding large sums that it has collected from land in which it owned no interest.

A full expression of ideas as to the best method of procedure is invited from the defendants in the Whiteside case who agree with the position of the attorney general's office.—San Angelo Standard.

Pajama Outfit Chic for Vacation

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Not by this generation can it be proved that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," nor Jill a dull girl, for that matter. Rather, would it seem according to the present program of life that most of us are leading the thought "If business interferes with pleasure, then give up the business." At any rate we are doing a lot of golfing and tennis playing and swimming and beach promenading and motoring these days and the "spectator" group in the grandstand is registering in ever increasing numbers.

It is interesting to note the enthusiastic reaction of the world of fashion to this mood for sports which now prevails. In the field of costume design, sportswear becomes first in importance in the mind of most fashionists.

Perhaps no other costume so completely falls in with this spirit of play as does that of the very modern pajama ensembles which nowadays include types for every occasion. Since pajamas go most everywhere, from beach parties to summer night dances, and it is said that they are going to attend outdoor opera during the coming months, it behooves every woman of fashion to plan her immediate wardrobe accordingly.

The shorter-length pajama and the tri-color theme are noteworthy features of the striking sports ensembles shown to the left in the picture. It is made of a silk material called geishan which is washable and extremely chic for sportswear. The double reversible jacket is in navy and the bright red reversible tie completes the patriotic three-color arrangement. The

Careful Laundering Will Keep Blankets Fluffy

Fluffy, soft wool blankets can remain fluffy and soft indefinitely if laundered carefully, says the New York state college of home economics at Cornell university.

Wash wool blankets in a lively suds made from a concentrated solution of pure mild soap. The blanket should be gently squeezed with hands or, if a washing machine is used, left in that about seven minutes with the washer at lowest speed. Wet wool should be handled gently. Feed out the blanket, bit by bit, into a pan, looking carefully to see that no spots remain. Squeeze out the water lightly by hand, leaving plenty of water in the blanket. Hang the blanket in the shade and shake it frequently to fluff it while it is drying. A breezy, sunny day is best for drying wools.

big stitched hat is of matching white geishan.

The "Dutch boy" beach pajama costume to the right is a favorite with Schiaparelli, who designed it. The trousers are knitted wool in cocoa brown and the boyish blouse is made of gay bordered scarfs.

If you are spending the summer where to be rural is to be smart before you decide on what clothes to take along, make a survey of the better shops. The clever togs you will see there for the would-be farmerette and the fair sojourner at the picturesque "dude ranch" will be a revelation—blue jeans made specially for girls, white shirts in as loud colors as fancy can picture, gaudy neckerchiefs, and when it comes to garden outfits, there's smocks and huge hats 'n' everything.

Watermelons Contain Needed Vitamins

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

Did anyone ever need an excuse for eating watermelons? Probably not. But once in a while a mother may be concerned lest this tempting and refreshing fruit is not good food for her children. Now science comes to the support of instinct and tells us that juicy, fine-flavored watermelons make a real contribution to the day's food supply because they contain vitamins, and several other kinds of vitamins, at that.

Laboratory tests have shown that watermelons are a good source of two important vitamins, A and C, and that they contain detectable amounts of vitamins B and G. Vitamin A is needed for growth and physical well-being, while vitamin C is the food factor important in the nutrition of the teeth and some other parts of the body. Vitamins B and G aid in stimulating growth and normal development.

The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture learned these facts by carrying on a series of studies with watermelons of the Tom Watson variety, feeding them to experimental animals. About 90 per cent of all commercial shipments of watermelons are of the Tom Watson variety, and as other red-fleshed varieties are similar in structure and are similarly handled, it is believed that the results of this study apply to the watermelon crop as a whole.

Any mother may therefore feel confident in serving watermelon frequently during the season, that she is providing a wholesome addition to the fruit supply. As with other tempting foods, the "eye may be bigger than the capacity," and some one may indulge a little too freely at the watermelon feast; but this might be true of ice cream or pink lemonade or "hot dogs" or many other foods.

Sandman Story for the Bedtime Hour

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Usually a man who takes around a performing bear only has one bear with him, but this man had two, and this happened quite a long while ago.

He would sing songs in a queer sort of voice and in queer sort of language, but at the end he would always say:

"Please, ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls, give pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters for the work of my fine bears."

"Fifty cents are nice, too."

The bears had always performed many tricks when the man said this.

One day a little girl said:

"How about ten cents?"

But the man didn't know what ten cents meant, he had only heard them called dimes, and in the country from which he came they had quite a different name for money.

At any rate he stayed in this town for quite a few days and made a good deal of money for his bears did very fine tricks and the people enjoyed seeing them.

Now one of the bears was quite happy walking around the streets and doing his tricks every day.

His master was kind and he gave him plenty of food. And he got better food than ever on the days he did his tricks best.

Of course you can understand that for on such days the man got more money and he liked to give his bears nice things to eat.

But the other bear did not like doing tricks. He was tired of performing.

He was becoming old and he felt it was a great strain for him.

He particularly disliked having to climb a pole, and that was the trick that always got the most money and the greatest amount of praise.

He wouldn't have minded climbing a tree, but he did dislike a pole. And how he did hate to dance on his hind legs.

Particularly now that he was growing asleep, too, they would talk over the day's work.

"They had to whisper very, very gently, for if they really talked it would wake up the whole country around and they would be most unpopular."

"Well," said the second, the older bear, "I am so tired of being made to dance."

"It is so silly, too."

"People like to see bears dance on two legs because they have four, and we don't ask them to dance on one leg because they have two."

"It would be just as sensible if we asked them to do this?"

The first bear laughed in a low tone. "The trouble is I am old. And these things seem very silly to me. I wish I didn't have to do any more."

And the bear's wish came true. He was given to a zoo after this and he never had to do any more work!

It was really time for him to rest. He had worked hard and long and he was too old to be asked to dance on his hind legs.

Plan for Grouping Laundry Equipment

Well Lighted Arrangement of Sink and Tubs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

While the ideal arrangement for home laundry work is to have a separate room for the laundry equipment, this is often impossible. Space for tubs, washing machine, ironing board, and laundry supplies must be provided in the kitchen. When this is necessary it is advisable to group the laundry equipment in such a way that food preparation and laundry work will not interfere with each other.

The picture shows a farm kitchen in Massachusetts where the tubs have been set next to the sink, for convenience in placing water and drain pipes, and also because of the good light from the window and the door opening on the back entry. The tubs are provided with a cover which can be used as a worktable. Such a cover may be hinged, but if there are projecting articles on the wall behind it such as the coffee mill and kitchen utensils shown in the illustration, it is probably better to lift it off entirely when the tubs are required. A piece of linoleum has been fitted to the cover in this kitchen, for easier care and imperviousness to water and grease.

It would have been better, if possible, to put the faucets for the tubs inside instead of above them, not only to get them out of the way but to prevent any annoyance from dripping, suggests the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. This bureau has made a study of both kitchen and laundry equipment and is interested in placing both to eliminate unnecessary labor and shorten the time spent in these work rooms by the homemaker.

Can vegetables as soon as possible after they are brought in from the garden. Flat-sour may develop if vegetables are allowed to stand in a warm kitchen.

Remove stains from fabrics when the stains are new.

Cook vegetables quickly in an open kettle to keep them green.

If the pots and pans and kettles are soaked during the meal it lightens the work of dishwashing afterwards.

Parents should not have family rows at the table, if only for the sake of not spoiling a child's appetite for food.

Clothes closets should be well-equipped, well-lighted, and well-used, with convenient racks for shoes, hats and garments.

With smaller houses now being built, it is often difficult to find enough closet space, points out a correspondent to the household department of the True Story Magazine. Here is how she solved the problem: "Not having much space to store winter blankets and bedding, I bought a garment bag, folded the articles to fit the bag, and hung the bag in the clothes closet. One bag will hold six or eight blankets or comforts, and stored this way they are easy to get at."

Strawberry Ice Box Cake May Stand Longer

If you are among those who prefer strawberry short cake to be made with real cake—not biscuit dough—although there's much to be said for the other variety, too—you will like strawberry ice box cake. It is composed of much the same ingredients as strawberry short cake, but has this advantage, that it improves on standing, whereas short cake, to be perfect, should be served promptly after it is made. The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture supplies the following recipe for strawberry ice box cake:

- 1 the gelatin
- 1 the lemon juice
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 1 cup cream, whipped
- 1/4 cup boiling water
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 3/4 cup strawberries, crushed

Soak the gelatin in the cold water for five minutes. Add the boiling water and the sugar and stir until the gelatin and sugar are dissolved. Mash the berries, add the lemon juice, and combine with the gelatin mixture, and chill. When partially set fold in the whipped cream to which the salt has been added. Chill again, then spread between layers of sponge cake and keep in a refrigerator several hours or overnight before serving.

An Easier Way

"You may safely reduce from five to twenty pounds in two months," says a magazine article. But we find that wearing a collar one size too large gives the same general effect

Food Suggestions for Summer Days

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Although the world is full of suffering, it is full of the overcoming of it.—Helen Keller.

I believe a man prays when he does well. I believe he worships God when his work is on a high plane.—James Whitcomb Riley.

One of the laws of a well planned meal is to see that several foods of the same nature do not appear in the same menu. When serving a fruit cocktail the entire menu should be considered, as other fruits should not appear in the same meal.

Ceylon Tomato Salad.—Peel three solid tomatoes, cut them into halves and press out the seeds. Chop the tomatoes and put into a bowl, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice, a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of onion juice and the same of green pepper, with half a teaspoonful of paprika. Mix and turn into the dish in which it is to be served. Serve with four tablespoonfuls of coconut cream.

Coconut Cream.—Prepare coconut cream by grating a good-sized nut and pouring boiling water over it. Wash and stir until all the flavor has been washed from the fiber, then press into a sieve and drain, turn into a cheese cloth to strain. Let the milk thus obtained stand over night. The cream will form on the surface. Remove this and use for the above dish. It is well to remember that a nut after draining out the milk, if placed in the oven or on a hot plate to become very hot, will come out of the shell with little difficulty.

Italian Cheese.—Take one pound of veal, one and one-half pound of calf's liver, one-half pound of ham, one small onion, one-half teaspoonful of sage, two teaspoonfuls of chopped parsley, one-fourth of a box of gelatin, two teaspoonfuls of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and a dash of cayenne. Cover the liver with boiling water and let stand five minutes, then drain and dry. Chop the liver and the other meats, all raw, add the seasonings together with one grated onion. Mix well and grease a mold, press the meat into it, packing well, cover and steam three hours. Remove the cover, pour off the broth, return the gelatin to the broth, return to the mold and let stand in cold water for an hour or more.

Rhubarb-Tapioca Dessert Is Easy to Prepare

Here's a simple, easily made dessert—one of those "mother used to make"—which is sure to be well liked. Nowadays we have quick-cooking tapioca instead of the kind that had to be soaked overnight, but the rhubarb is no different from the kind grandmother grew in her garden. The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture furnishes the recipe.

- 1 quart rhubarb cut in small pieces
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 2 cups hot water
- 1/2 cup quick-cooking tapioca
- 1 1/4 cups sugar

Put the rhubarb, water, and tapioca in the upper part of the double boiler. Cook over steam for 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Add the sugar and salt, and cook about five minutes longer, or until the tapioca is clear and the rhubarb is tender. Chill thoroughly before serving. Plain or whipped cream may be served with this dessert.

Still Ireland of Old
Ireland after eight years of independence is changed only superficially, writes Alexander J. Reynolds in Current History. The old Bohemian life and social splendor of Dublin has gone with the royal troops and the governing class.

In the countryside, however, the peasant still blames the government for his misfortune, and it makes little difference that this government is Irish. He still has the same cheerful indifference to the penalties of overbreeding and the same old love for landlordship.

"Frontiers disappear, old orders change, rulers die, political creeds vary, feuds wax and wane, but certain things abide—the soul of a people whose roots lie deep in the native soil and form their real anchor."

Life Sentence Is Given Boy Killer

17-Year-Old Student Lapses From Model Youth to Brutal Murderer.

Harverhill, Mass.—Russell B. Noble, seventeen-year-old high school student who lapsed overnight from a "model" way of life to become a housebreaker who did not balk at murder, has been lodged in solitary confinement at the state prison at Charlestown on a life term sentence for the murder of Mrs. Clara E. C. Ellis, wealthy Harverhill widow, last February.

Noble's entry as a "lifer" into the gray-walled institution came as the climax to a swiftly moving series of events set in motion when the youthful defendant, suddenly abandoning his plan of contesting the state's case, appeared in Superior court at Lawrence and calmly pleaded guilty to second degree murder.

The plea being acceptable both to the court and to District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg, Noble was given the sentence prescribed by the law, life imprisonment at Charlestown.

Only One Younger. The cool, self-possessed youth whose sunny air and serene, almost smiling countenance, remained with him throughout the court proceedings and until some minutes after the gates of state prison had clanged behind him, entered the institution as the second youngest person ever committed there on a life sentence.

Among the thousands of men sentenced to life terms at the institution, only the notorious Jesse Pomeroy was younger than Noble at the time of commitment. Pomeroy, at first was sentenced to death and later receiving a commutation to life imprisonment, was just over sixteen when committed, while Noble is about seventeen and one-half years old.

Evidently intent on preserving his cool poise to the end, Noble, handcuffed to an officer of the Lawrence Jail, smiled wanly as he was hustled up the steps of the prison and passed within the door to the outer office. A few minutes later, his smile and characteristic equanimity deserted him when a prison officer, putting him through the usual questions for newcomers, asked him about his mother and father, both of whom are dead.

Guilty Plea a Surprise. Tears welled up in his eyes and he was unable to answer immediately, but after being allowed to sit down for a while he was able to submit once more to the interrogation.

The plea of guilty to second degree murder by Noble came as a distinct surprise to all except a few officials and friends. It came as a shock to a great number of supporters of the youth who had maintained faith in his innocence notwithstanding his alleged confession to the hammer slaying, made soon after his arrest and later repudiated.

Announcement that he would appear for arraignment was made a few hours before his appearance in court, with the result that no great crowd was on hand to witness the brief court scene, enacted swiftly and without dramatics.

Manacled to two other youths due to stand trial, he was taken to the court house where he was arraigned before Judge Louis S. Cox.

At the conclusion of the reading of the indictment the clerk called upon Noble to plead, and the defendant, replying in calm, clear voice, said, "I plead guilty to murder in the second degree."

Plea Is Accepted. His attorney, Mr. McCormick, rose and said, "Your honor, I approve of his plea and respectfully request the court to accept it." District Attorney Cregg then addressed the court.

"May it please your honor," he said, "never in my experience have I been called upon to make such a serious decision. Mrs. Ellis was a widow, thirty-nine years old, living in Harverhill, and she enjoyed a splendid reputation. Noble entered her home, went to her room, and struck her with a hammer three times and caused her death. He went there with the intent of committing larceny. He had tried to get into another home, but had failed. He knew Mrs. Ellis, he knew she had money, and he did steal a watch. I regard Noble as an exceptionally bright boy. He was the leader of his class in school and previous to this event had a spotless reputation.

"I feel that he is guilty of murder

Cafe Man Will Sue England for Isle

Rome.—If Guido de Lusignea, who runs a little cafe at Varallo Sesia, can get sufficient support he will immediately start proceedings against the British monarchy with a view of wresting from it the Island of Cyprus; against the Zionist government for Jerusalem, and against the Turkish republic to return Armenia to him.

He says his ancestor who held the title of Leone XIII was the rightful owner of these territories, and that he had never given up his rights to them. He now wants the property turned over to him.

In the first degree, but because of his previous reputation, and because of his youth, and because we know that juries are human and that we might have some difficulty in securing a first degree murder verdict, I recommend acceptance of this plea."

Judge Cox paused for a moment and then said: "I accept the plea." Cregg immediately moved for sentence and the Judge proceeded to impose the statutory penalty.

"I have no discretion in the matter of sentence—life imprisonment," he said simply.

London's Criminal Elite Are Now Listed in Book

London.—The murderer of tomorrow will walk from the death cell onto the gallows and then into crime's "Who's Who," the first issue of which has appeared here.

The little book contains a tasteful review of the major crimes in Great Britain during 1930, and came as an innovation to a nation that has for years merely hanged slayers and forgot about them.

The author, Robert Carson, in a preface describes it as "The Crime Annual for 1930—the fore-runner. It is to be hoped, of many such volumes." Scotland Yard, however, it is learned, believes the literary world would survive if the material for the next issue weren't available.

The machine gun murders in United States' ganglands are always the subject of front-page interest here, as are the sporadic killings in the various parts of England.

The book reviews all violations of the law, from blackmail to murder, and includes the failure of the Hatry commission in which millions of investors lost heavily. The convict who leaped to death over a prison wall rather than face "the cat" (the lash) gets a place in posterity.

Buffalo Coming Back But on Alaska Range

Washington.—Buffalo, which once swept its vast herds across the western plains, now promise to master their lost numbers in a distant range—the lowlands of Alaska.

A small band of buffalo transferred from the biological survey's Montana bison range in 1928 is reported to have increased to a herd of 20, says a bulletin of the American Game association. Their new home is in a grassy region southeast of Fairbanks.

Homes of Cave Dwellers Are Unearthed in China

Peiping.—Possible habitations of Chinese cave dwellers have been uncovered by a Chinese expedition at Changteh, in Honan province, according to reports received here. Several deep pits containing bones and earthenware were excavated. They confirm the statement of Mencius, the Chinese philosopher, that early Chinese peoples "made nests for themselves in the highlands and in the lowlands they made caves."

Bean Growers' Eye

Did you ever sort dried navy beans or soy beans? Pick out the best, grade them all and throw away those unfit for the baked bean pot?

Fatiguing, wasn't it? Sorting and grading even a pound or two grows tiresome, even if it is done in the kitchen in preparation for supper.

The scores of workers in the large food establishments where hundreds of thousands of dried beans are graded after each crop become positively weary, and their employers found by experience that the sorting of the beans suffered as a result. Toward the end of each day, beans of inferior grade were left in the package of higher grade beans, and the food packing concerns cast about for some new method of sorting and grading beans.

Science came to their rescue. The "bean growers' eye" was produced. It really cannot think, of course, but it performs its task much more accurately and swiftly than human beings, and completely does away with the carelessness of human sorters.

The "eye" is fastened above a carrier along which the beans are transported, and it is an infallible detector of inferiority. As the beans pass under it, the inferior beans are automatically cast aside, and those remaining are separated according to their grades.

The device is simply a photo-electric cell, a simple electric bulb with a coating inside of certain elements.

The sensitized mirror surface of the bulb causes it to give off electrons that are sensitive to long light waves or short light waves, whichever is desired, and the reflector or non-reflection of the inferior bean attracts the attention of the photo-electric cell.

The cell communicates with a battery through a current of electricity. The current, becoming greatly magnified, gives forth enough energy to control a mechanical device which removes the inferior bean.

Simple, isn't it? One such device does the work of many human hands and eyes, and never becomes fatigued or careless.

The "eye" is one of the marvels of modern science, developed and adapted to the necessities of modern industry. Although conceived and produced primarily for bean growers, its use has been extended to many other industries, until now it plays an important part in the sorting and grading of many other foods and products.

It plays its part in the orange groves of California and Florida, where it sorts oranges. This little device can look at thousands of oranges passing it in the packing houses of the citrus districts, and unerringly pick and separate the green, partly green and ripe fruit.

The "eye" is becoming more and more useful, too, in the tobacco-growing areas of the country. It is rapidly abolishing the tedious job of sorting leaf tobacco. The "eye" looks over the tobacco as it comes from the curing houses, and automatically grades and sorts the leaves, and it does so much more accurately than the human hand and eye could do it.

That old prerogative of the woman shopper—matching colors—is being abolished by the electric "eye." A similar device to that used for grading beans for baking has been developed that looks at two pieces of silk, wool or cotton, and unerringly matches them.

Since no two pieces of cloth are of exactly the same shade, the builders of this modern robot deliberately made it slightly inaccurate. Instead of demanding that colors match perfectly, the "eye" declares them matched when they are only a few thousandths of a degree of shade apart in color.

The woman shopper, no matter how good her eyesight, cannot tell the difference between two pieces of cloth that are whole shades apart. The "eye" could match colors perfectly, but they won't let it.

When—and if—this device is universally adopted, what a boon it will be to women shoppers. No more running from store to store to match a piece of goods for Sally's new dress, or to match stockings for that new evening gown. All a woman will have to do will be to take a sample of the color she wants to the store, and let the "eye" do the work. She will know that the colors match absolutely, so perfectly that no human eye ever could tell any difference.

Surprise for Auntie

A schoolboy, eight years old, was giving his aunt a Bible as a birthday present. Not knowing just what to write in it as an inscription, he went to his father's bookshelves, and examined the fly-leaves of a number of the volumes arranged thereon. After a rather protracted inspection and comparison of the various dedications, he finally decided upon the following as the most suitable, and wrote on the leaf, in his best hand: "With the author's compliments."—London Evening News.

Tomato Seed of Big Importance

That From Wilt-Resistant Plants Should Be Saved for Next Year.

Home gardeners who are producing wilt-resistant tomatoes will find that the seed from these plants are as good if not better than the seed obtained from outside sources, according to G. W. Fant, extension plant pathologist at the North Carolina State college.

"This is especially true if the grower will select only the heaviest bearing and most resistant plants from which to get his seed for next year's planting," he states.

Equipment Needed. Where only a small amount of seed is to be saved, no apparatus except a small water-tight vessel is needed. The ripe tomatoes are placed in the vessel and thoroughly crushed. Sufficient water is added to cover the tomatoes and they are left over night to ferment. The next day the vessel is filled with water and the mass carefully stirred. By adding more water slowly, the skins, cores and pulp will float off and the seed sink to the bottom. The water is then drained off and the seed collected.

Mr. Fant states that seed secured from a neighbor who is growing the wilt-resistant variety will, in most cases, give better results than seed bought outside, especially of the directions for saving the seed have been followed.

Wilt-Resistant Varieties.

There are several varieties of wilt-resistant tomatoes, chief among which are the Marvona, Norduke, Marvel and Norton. Growers who have any of these varieties planted are safe in saving the seed but the Norton and Marvel are the two that are recommended by Mr. Fant. In tests conducted throughout the state the Norton has shown a greater resistance and also produces a large yield of high quality fruit. Where growers are troubled with wilt, seed from the varieties named should be secured for next year's planting.

Factors Influencing Keeping Fruit Quality

A new bulletin entitled, "Some Factors Influencing the Keeping Quality of Fruits in Transit," has been released by the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, Urbana. According to results of tests conducted by the experiment station of the college, as reported in this bulletin, damaged fruit, now a heavy drain on the profits of Illinois fruit growers, could very largely be prevented by proper precautions in picking, handling, grading and packing.

Three phases of the problem were investigated by the college workers in attempting to work out ways whereby Illinois growers could protect their profits. They compared the careful with the rough handling of strawberries, summer apples and peaches; the prompt with delayed loading of these same three commodities, and studied the use of different types of packages for strawberries and peaches.

Best Time for Cutting Corn Crop for Silage

A recent circular issued by the Kansas experiment station brings out some points on the making of silage which are of vital importance to every farmer who has a silo to fill, especially the man who is filling one for the first time. The circular points out the fact that it is desirable to cut the crop for the silo in a very green condition, before the ear and stalks had matured, and a very sour silage, high in moisture, was obtained. Of late years the tendency has been to allow the corn crop to stand until more mature. The proper time to cut corn for the silo is about a week or ten days before it is ready to put up in the shock; the ear should be well dried and the lower leaves on the stalk dry, but the stalk itself still full of sap.

Roadside Gumption Is Needed for Marketing

The path to success in roadside marketing is really so plain that it is singular how it can ever be missed. Here are the half-dozen requirements: Absolutely fresh produce. Variety and good quality. No delays—immediate service. Courtesy on every sale, however small. Prices higher than wholesale, lower than retail. If possible, a high-profit sideline. That is all there is to it, except of course that your stand must be on a highway that is traveled, or can be traveled. Customers will not plow through mud. Attractive signs help. Parking space off the highway is good, and in some states is compulsory.

Budding Cherries

Long-time tests carried on in the orchards of the New York state experiment station at Geneva have proved to the satisfaction of the station fruit men that Mazzard rootstocks are far superior to the Mahaleb rootstocks so commonly used in the budding of cherries. More vigorous and healthier trees and a longer lived and more productive orchard will be obtained with trees budded on Mazzard stocks. It is said, especially in the case of sweet cherries

NEW TREATMENT TO BANISH RICKETS, DOCTOR'S CLAIM

Milk From Cows Fed Irradiated Feed Not Only Preventive but Cure.

Philadelphia.—That rickets, a bone disease affecting more than 50 per cent of all infants, can be banished by using milk from cows fed feeds irradiated with ultraviolet rays, was the announcement made by Dr. Alfred F. Hess of New York, an international authority, before the American Medical association here.

Doctor Hess, for many years clinical professor of diseases of children at the University and Bellevue hospital medical college, told of the recent experiments with one hundred babies conducted by himself and his associates—Dr. J. M. Lewis and Dr. F. L. MacLeod, both of New York and Dr. R. H. Thomas of Iowa State college—whereby it was conclusively proved that rickets can be not only prevented but cured by the process of using the milk produced by cows which have received a special ration part of which was irradiated with ultraviolet rays.

This discovery and announcement is important, Doctor Hess suggests, because it points the way to the elimination of rickets on a large scale; that is, from the public health standpoint, rather than through the individual. The chief difficulty with present methods of treating rickets is that they require the close co-operation of the mother and the physician in each individual case. If by the simple process of using milk from cows fed irradiated feed, infants and young children can be automatically freed from rickets as Doctor Hess' demonstrations indicate, the academy to increase its production of serum. The academy replied by a short letter saying: "Give us more monkeys first."

Paris.—The Academy of Medicine has asked the government to provide more monkeys to prepare sufficient serum to fight the yellow fever in Africa. The government asked the academy to increase its production of serum. The academy replied by a short letter saying: "Give us more monkeys first."

"Rickets is the most common nutritional disorder of infants in the temperate zone," says Doctor Hess. "Although it has decreased in incidence and severity it is still true that more than 50 per cent of infants suffer from this disorder to a greater or less degree. There are various remedies available for the prevention or cure of rickets, for example viosterol, cod liver oil, milk treated with ultraviolet rays and direct exposure of the infant to these rays. The main criticism of all these agents is that they require the co-operation of the mother; some likewise are difficult to give, expensive or time consuming."

CONVERTED TOO LATE

After several years of unsuccessful efforts to get a local merchant to advertise, the publisher of a Kansas weekly newspaper recently was surprised to receive an offer for a full page advertisement from the former non-advertiser.

Glancing at the copy the publisher saw that it advertised a "closing out sale." The merchant was going out of business. His advertising competitors had taken his trade and there was nothing left for him to do but quit.

The merchant recognized the power of advertising to help him get out of business, but had never tried to use it as a means of staying in business. There are a good many merchants like that.

THIS AND THAT BY JIMMINY Texas congressmen, democrats all, split up on President Hoover's plan for a moratorium on war debts.

One Texas solon advised the world—cockeyed or otherwise—he'd support the Hoover plan when, as, if and in the event Hoover would give U. S. citizens a moratorium on their debts. And "US" citizens need it, don't forget that.

Personally, we favor such a plan. We owe two bankers little sums of money, and we don't know a thing we'd enjoy more than telling them to put a couple bits of paper on ice until after the moratorium.

Then there's the grocer. We'd like to pull the moratorium stunt on him, too. And most of all the landlord—does a moratorium extend forward as well as backward? Or would we have to pay him all of the rent except the rent we owe him?

And there's the butcher—the satisfaction we'd get in writing him a little note: "Dear Butch: Am returning your bill because of a moratorium which am now enjoying. According to the terms of the moratorium I do not have to pay my bills for one year if I don't want to. See how thin you can slice that."

The fiddler. Everybody says you've got to pay the fiddler. Well, with a moratorium, he might even have to wait.

Again let us say we're strong for this moratorium idea—yes, sir! But before it goes into effect, we want to collect that $1.25 the advertising manager owes us. We're against any moratorium that becomes operative before we collect in what's owing us.

There were congressmen like Judge Mansfield, however, who wired Hoover he'd support the plan to restore prosperity. He didn't say anything about wanting a personal moratorium. He must believe in paying his bills.

Anyway, moratorium or no moratorium, let's get down to the job of wooing Prosperity again. If we don't pay her more attention, we're apt to wake up some morning and find she's eloped with the other fellow.

John Paul Jones

JOHN PAUL JONES MEMORIAL IN WASHINGTON, D.C.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ON THE sixth of July, 181 years ago, there was born in Kirkcubright, County of Kirkcubright, Scotland, to a gardener named John Paul, a son who was destined to play a role in the founding of a new nation. For the first twelve years of his life young John Paul, for he was named after his father, lived the life of any boy of his time and there was nothing to indicate the high destiny that awaited him. Then in 1759 he was apprenticed to a Whitehaven merchant, engaged in the American trade, and went to sea. And it was on the sea that this Scotch lad was to win his fame, was to become the outstanding American naval officer of the Revolution and one of our great sea captains of all time.

To most Americans the name John Paul Jones is a familiar one but the extent of their knowledge of him is usually confined to that epic battle between the Bonhomme Richard and the Serapis during which Jones uttered his immortal words, "I have not yet begun to fight." But there is so much more of interest in his career than is given in our school book histories that it deserves wider knowledge among us of his adopted country. For one thing, if for no other, his connection with the early history of our national banner should give him enduring fame. "That flag and I are twins," he once said. "Born the same day and the same hour. We cannot be parted in life or in death. So long as we can float we shall go down as one."

The Scotch boy who went to sea in 1759 rose rapidly, became a ship owner and by 1773 was making voyages to the West Indies and to India. In the meantime his brother, William Paul, had been adopted by a certain William Jones, and became a prosperous planter. When he died John Paul inherited his estate. Thereupon he added the Jones to his name and settled down as a planter in America which, as he characterized it, was "the country of his fond selection since the age of eighteen."

Jones was not long to carry forward his ambition to become a Virginia gentleman. For the outbreak of the Revolution brought with it the necessity for the rebellious colonies to organize a navy with which to cope if possible with the "Mistress of the Seas," and more especially to waylay ships bringing supplies to the British army. So one of the early acts of the Continental congress was to choose a naval commander-in-chief, four captains and a number of first, second and third lieutenants, and provide ships for them. This new navy was mainly a New England affair and the commander-in-chief was Commodore Esek Hopkins from Massachusetts. The only officers who were not New Englanders were Nicholas Biddle of Pennsylvania and John Paul Jones of Virginia.

Jones' first task was arming and manning the flagship of the fleet of eight vessels given to Commodore Hopkins. It was the Black Prince, a merchant ship, which was renamed the Alfred. In January, 1776, Commodore Hopkins arrived in Philadelphia to go aboard his flagship. As he stepped over the side Captain Saltonstall gave the signal and Lieutenant Jones, who was flag lieutenant, hoisted over the Alfred two flags. The one which he raised to the mizen peak, as the flag of the United Colonies, was the Grand Union flag of thirteen alternate red and white stripes with the Union Jack in the upper left-hand corner where in the future the field of blue with its white stars was to appear. At the main peak he ran up as the fleet flag one of the famous rattlesnake flags, the first of which had been suggested by Benjamin Franklin.

So came about John Paul Jones' first connection with our national flag. After his return from this voyage, during which he distinguished himself for boldness and skill when the commander-in-chief displayed a timidity and a lack of skill not in keeping with his high position, Jones was given en command of the Providence, a 12-gun brig. With her he captured 15 prizes along the Atlantic coast and on October 10, 1776, he was made captain and given command of the Alfred, a 24-gun vessel. On this ship he set out on his cruise which resulted in the capture of seven British vessels which he brought into port at Boston. Convinced that more good could be accomplished by harassing the British in their own waters than by attacking their shipping off the American coast, he began urging congress to allow him to carry the war against England across the Atlantic. Accordingly on June 14, 1777, congress appointed him to the command of the Ranger, a new ship of 18 guns, recently completed at Portsmouth, New Hampshire. In the very same hour that the resolution, giving him command of the Ranger, was passed there was also passed the historic resolution which brought into being the Stars and Stripes. And it was this circumstance which inspired Jones' statement that he and the flag were twins.

And it is here that the stories of John Paul Jones and our national emblem began to run in parallel channels, a story which is little known to most Americans and which has been brought out by a new book, "The National Flag," by Willis Fletcher Johnson, published recently by the Houghton Mifflin company. Upon taking command of the Ranger Jones immediately began preparing the ship for the trip across the Atlantic. Although there is no record of the date when he raised the Stars and Stripes over her, tradition says that it was on the Fourth of July.

Of Jones' cruise of 28 days in British water with the Ranger it has been said, "For daring and success it was unsurpassed in the annals of naval history." In addition to capturing the Drake, he burned the shipping in Whitehaven and off Carrickfergus and made his name one of terror along the coasts of Great Britain.

But the months which followed Jones' success in the Ranger were months of anxiety for him also. Most of his troubles, however, were ashore rather than afloat. He was finding it very difficult to pay his men, sell his prizes and secure a squadron for another and greater cruise which he had in mind. At last an old East India merchant ship was secured, renamed the Bonhomme Richard, in compliment to Benjamin Franklin, and to this was joined the Alliance, a 32-gun frigate and three small French vessels. The commander of the Alliance was Capt. Pierre Dandaiz, who, as Jones wrote to Franklin, was "apparently a crazy man."

If, as Jones had complained that the Ranger was a poor fighting ship because it was "cranky, slow and of trifling force," he soon found that the Bonhomme Richard was worse. Her hull was rotten and later in his great battle with the Serapis one of the starboard guns blew up at the start forcing a whole battery to be abandoned. The crew was a mixture of Americans and Europeans and with the untrustworthy support of the "crazy" Dandaiz, his venture was a perilous one at best. But disregarding his many handicaps, Jones sailed from France on August 14, 1779. By September 22, he had nearly completed the circuit of the British Isles, had captured 17 vessels and thrown the entire coast into a state of perpetual alarm. What Jones could expect if he were defeated and captured was shown by the British authorities proclaiming him as "the pirate Jones, a rebel subject and criminal of the state."

On September 23 off Flamborough Head, Jones met the "Baltic trade," a convoy of 41 vessels, escorted by the Serapis and the Countess of Scarborough. Then followed the historic engagement of which it has been said "the annals of the American navy contain no finer example of skill, courage and leadership than that found in the duel off Flamborough Head. Rarely has a commander who won his fight contended with such overwhelming obstacles." The story of that engagement is too familiar to need retelling here—how Jones soon realized that here—how Jones soon realized that the Serapis would destroy him in a long range battle, how he outmaneuvered Pearson, the British commander, how he closed in and lashed the Richard to the Serapis, how the Alliance came to his aid, how the "crazy" Dandaiz sent a broadside into the unprotected side of Jones' ship and how, in the midst of the shambles around him with the Richard sinking under him, Jones could still hurl back his defiant "I have not yet begun to fight."

JONES' BIRTHPLACE IN KIRKUBRIGHT, SCOTLAND

So he won his battle and the Briton struck his colors. As for Jones' colors, the Stars and Stripes, they played a glorious part in the battle. For the new flag was flying at the masthead of the Richard when it closed with the Serapis. Once it was shot down, but it was immediately rescued and raised again, and there it stayed to the end, for the Bonhomme Richard was so shattered in the fight that there was no hope of saving it. So Jones transferred himself and his men to the captured Serapis. As a matter of pride and sentiment he would not allow the flag of the Richard to be lowered, but left it flying as the vessel sank with the bodies of her dead.

Jones next sailed into the Texel in Holland, with the Serapis, the Countess and his prizes. But on December 22 Holland asked him to leave. Outside a British blockading fleet was awaiting him, but in broad daylight he took the Alliance boldly out of port, outran the British vessels, sailed down the English channel and arrived safely in France. It was to be another 150 years before an American was to receive as wild a welcome in France as did Jones. And that was when the "Lone Eagle" completed his successful flight across the Atlantic. The king of France gave Jones a gold sword and made him a chevalier of France.

Jones did not return to receive the acclaim of his own countrymen until early in 1781. He reached Philadelphia February 18 of that year, where congress gave him a vote of thanks and the command of the America, a new 74-gun ship then nearing completion. But the Revolution ended before he could again put to sea. With no more fighting to be done Jones could not content himself to go back to Virginia or to settle down to the quiet of commerce on the seas. His restless spirit led him to seek naval service with Russia.

He became a rear-admiral and in 1788 continued his brilliant exploits on the water by defeating the Turkish navy at the battle of Liman. He returned to Russia to reap his reward but he did not stay long. He returned to Paris and there he died July 18, 1792.

What followed is a striking illustration of the old saying about how "a republic forgets." For more than a hundred years the republic which he had helped establish forgot John Paul Jones, at least so far as paying any honor to his ashes was concerned. In 1905 Ambassador Horace Porter, after a long search, found Jones' grave in the old St. Louis cemetery for foreign Protestants. Under instructions from President Roosevelt his remains were exhumed and brought to the United States by an American naval squadron sent especially for that purpose. They were taken to the United States naval academy and then as a final ironical touch to the way in which "the richest and sturdiest government in the world" rewards its heroes (for neither his salary, the money he had advanced to the United States government, nor his prize money was paid until a generation after his death) the casket containing his body was left behind a staircase resting on a couple of rough carpenter-horses in one of the buildings at Annapolis for seven years! Then, when the scandal of this treatment was aired in congress, he was buried with the honors due him.

Lesson for July 12

THE PREACHING OF THE APOSTLES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:11-4:31. GOLDEN TEXT—And now, Lord, behold their threatenings; and grant unto thy servants, that with all boldness they may speak thy word. PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Preaches a Sermon. JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter Preaching in Jerusalem. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Apostolic Preaching.

1. Peter Preaching Before the Multitude (Acts 2:11-20).

1. The audience secured (v. 11). In appreciation of his healing the cured cripple took hold of Peter and John, calling attention to these men as his healers.

2. Disclaimed miracle-working power (v. 12). Though the miraculous healing of the cripple focused attention upon Peter and John, Peter immediately turned attention from himself to Christ.

3. Proclaimed Jesus as the Messiah (vv. 13-18). Pointing to the healed man, Peter declared that it was through faith in Jesus that this man was given "perfect soundness." He declared that the very one whom they had "delivered up," "denied in the presence of Pilate," "and killed," God had raised from the dead.

4. A call to repentance (vv. 19-21). Despite their aggravated crime in murdering the "Just and Holy One," Peter called upon them to repent, assuring them that their sins would be blotted out and that they would enjoy refreshing seasons.

5. Appeal to the Scriptures (vv. 22-26). The warnings and promises are based upon the words of Moses and the prophets.

II. Peter Preaching to the Sanhedrin (Acts 4:1-21).

1. Peter and John arrested (vv. 1-4). The hearing of the lame man caused such a stir that the people flocked to see the man. Advantage was taken of this occasion to preach Jesus Christ to them. As a result of this preaching, five thousand believed. Such a following caused great alarm. The priests were intolerant because these new teachers were encroaching upon their ministerial functions. The Sadducees were angered to be told that the One whom they crucified had arisen from the dead and would appear again.

2. Peter and John on trial (vv. 5-12). This trial was before the Sanhedrin, the supreme court of the nation.

a. The inquiry (vv. 5-7). They asked, "By what power and what name have ye done this?" This inquiry admitted the reality of the miracle.

b. Peter's answer (vv. 8-12). Filled with the Holy Spirit, he replied to their question, showing them that he and John were not being tried as evildoers but for doing good to the needy man. He boldly declared that it was by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom they had crucified, and God had raised from the dead, that this man stood before them whole. He further declared that there was no salvation save in the name of Jesus Christ.

3. The impression upon the Sanhedrin (vv. 13-22).

a. They marvelled (v. 13). They saw that the behavior and words of Peter were as unusual as the miracle. They were made to feel that instead of sitting as judges they themselves were on trial.

b. They took knowledge that the apostles had been with Jesus (v. 13). c. Commanded not to speak in Christ's name (v. 18). Not being able to deny the miracle or gainsay the accusation which Peter brought against them, they attempted to intimidate him.

d. The reply of Peter and John (vv. 19, 20). They openly defied the Sanhedrin and expressed determination to disobey their command. Thus they repudiated the authority of the rulers of Israel and set the Church in a place of independence from the Jewish state.

e. Their release (v. 21). Having further threatened them, they let them go.

III. The Church at Prayer (Acts 4:23-31).

As soon as Peter and John were set free they hastened to their fellow disciples and rehearsed their experience. They turned to the Holy Scriptures for comfort and strength. They praised God for deliverance and prayed for boldness to speak his Word and that their testimony might be confirmed by signs. Their prayers were answered by the shaking of the place where they were assembled, and they were filled with the Holy Spirit.

Mercy We had mercy shown us at the beginning of our Christian course. We have had mercy shown us today, and shall need mercy, if Jesus tarry, in our dying hour. Well, the way to enjoy it is to be merciful, to deal in grace with others.—W. Lincoln.

Work of the Unknown "The work an unknown good man has done is like a vein of water flowing hidden underground, secretly making the ground green."

Virtue in Many Things One Cannot Understand

"Science," said a traveler, "has at last come to recognize that there is truth in spiritualism, occultism, clairvoyance and many other old, magical, eastern things that we used to laugh at."

"Once in Peru a friend of mine fell sick. The best doctors could do nothing for him, and one day his Indian servant brought to his bedside an Indian medicine man.

"The Peruvian professor in charge of the case laughed at the medicine man.

"You know nothing about medicine. You're a bluff," he said.

"The medicine man opened his quaint sack, took a small dried leaf from it and handed it to the famous Lima doctor. 'Smell that,' he said calmly.

"The doctor smelt it and his nose began to bleed. It bled and bled. Nothing would stop it. Then the Indian took another dried leaf out. 'Now smell that.' And at once the bleeding was over.

"After this proof of his skill the Indian medicine man was allowed to prescribe for my dying friend. By Jove, he cured him in two days."

Railroad on Which No Christian May Travel

The world's strangest rail carrier, officially known as the Damascus-Medina-Hadj railroad, according to the Wall Street Journal, is to be rebuilt. At any rate, a petition to that effect is before the king of Hejaz. The road, which was destroyed during the World war, began in, traversed and ended in Near East deserts. It carried no freight and its only passengers were pilgrims going to or returning from "making the Hadj," the hope of every religious Mohammedan. The Moslems are still "making the Hadj" but by foot, and they have tired of the exhausting trek.

The railroad was ordered by the sultan in 1908, paid for by the Mohammedans, designed by a German engineer, built by Italian, Polish, Hungarian, and Turk engineers using Italian, Greek, Turk and Montenegrin labor. Its rails were made in America, France and Belgium and its engines in Germany. In other words, while Christians built and equipped the road they are barred as passengers.

Trees for Iceland

Treeless Iceland is being made into wooded fastnesses through the wholesale transplanting of trees that are secured from the northern parts of Canada. The experiment, tried some time ago, has proved successful and the Canadian trees that have been shipped so far have been warmly appreciated and carefully attended and found to be ideal for the climate. Spruce, pine, tamarack and balsam are the varieties which have proven most successful. The ability to secure wood will mean much to the inhabitants of the island, and efforts are being made to secure funds for the purpose from humanitarians of other countries.

Willing to Compromise Mrs. Dobbet—Call tomorrow, please.

Bill Collector—That's what you said yesterday.

Mrs. Dobbet—Well, make it day after tomorrow, then.

In Campaign Time "Senator," gushed the hostess to a prominent politician, "I've heard a great deal about you."

"Possibly," he answered, absently, "but you can't prove it."

The Wrong Cue Hubby—You didn't have a rag to your back when I married you.

Wife—Yes; but I've got plenty now.—The Pathfinder.

Seasoned Traveler He—Seems to me I met you somewhere before.

She—Probably—I used to be a hitch-hiker.

Automatic Tire Pump

A tire pump built into bicycle wheels, that works automatically when the pressure falls below the full inflation point, is a recent German invention. A cam mounted on the hub operates the plunger of the pump, which is held down by a latch when the pressure is high enough, but released when the tire begins to go soft.

Pains Stopped When Lady Got Stronger

"About a year ago, my health was not good," writes Mrs. W. F. Sibley, 4449 First Court, N. Birmingham, Ala. "I felt weak, tired, had pains in my back. I knew by these symptoms I needed something to build me up. My mother advised me to try Cardui, which I did. I found it was what I needed, for it built me up. The pains in my back stopped, and I felt better and stronger than I had in some time. I took about 7 bottles of Cardui in all." Sold at Drug Stores.

Juvenile Deduction

"Pop, am I human?" "Why, of course you're human." "Well, the hired man said you weren't human, and if you're not I don't suppose I am either."

Now come the hot days when we have to stand by the good words we said of them last winter.

SCOUTS! HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN!

Camp! Camp! Camp! The Scouts are camping! Many council camps are now in session. Camp Fawcett on the Nueces, our own beautiful camp site, will have the tents up, the flags flying, and the bugle blowing on Wednesday morning, August 5th.

An illustrated camp folder is being prepared and will be in the hands of every Scout in Southwest Texas, through your Scoutmaster, if available; if not, through some member of your troop committee, not later than July 15th. Everything possible is being done, under the circumstances, to have a varied camp program. Many of our old camp leaders, who have given us much of their time and services in the past, will be back on the job, and a number of new men will make a contribution to our program this year.

Hunters, Inc., a large Eastern food company, has instructed their representative, Mr. Bob Sharp, of Uvalde, to turn over to the Boy Scouts 2,500 individual packages of the ingredients for a cup of hot chocolate. This material is being stored in the ice vaults of the Central Power & Light Company at Uvalde.

A few of our big hearted ranchmen of southwest Texas have indicated that they would be glad to furnish meat for a day in camp this year—goats, mutton or beef.

We are again to have the finest milk, butter and bread that money can buy. This, with the fruit and vegetables available, makes possible a real menu for every day in camp. As this article goes to press, our good friend and Camp Director, Chaplain MacWilliams moves to the camp site, and he will welcome week-end visitors, parents, and others to the camp site throughout the month of July.

The Camp Fire Girls of Hondo, under the leadership of Miss Ruth Daderstadt, will enjoy the use of the camp site this week. We extend to the girls' organization, under proper leadership, an invitation to enjoy the camp site, with the exception of the summer Scout camp period of August 5th to 12th.

Eagle Pass Troop No. 7 reports definite arrangements for every boy to be in camp. Asherton Troop No. 4 will be represented almost 100%.

Write us if we can furnish you with any other information about Scouting in general, and camp in particular.

Scout Headquarters, Laundry called for and delivered. Phone 37, O'Bryant Home Laundry.
