NO. 35.

CRUDE OIL AND GASOLINE TAX IS PROPOSED

Rep. Donnell Would Make Filling Stations Public Utilities

AUSTIN, Nov. 7. (AP)—Bills to declare the sale of gasoline and lubricating oil a public utility and to place a graduated tax on the production of crude petroleum were introduced at the special oil session of the Texas Legislature today.

Representative J. R. Donnell of Hillsboro offered the bill to declare operating of filling stations a public utility. The bill would place the marketing end of the oil industry under supervision of the Texas Railroad Commission, present administrators of oil and gas conservation laws.

The retail price of gasoline also would be fixed under the bill at not to exceed 2 1-5 cents for each 20 cents or fraction thereof of the price paid for a barrel of oil by companies producing and processing crude petroleum.

To Protect Public

The price of the oil would be determined both by the average posted price and the price actually paid.

Donnell stated the bill was necessary to prevent the consuming public from being forced to pay exorbitant prices for petroleum products in comparison with crude oil prices.

The bill to levy a graduated tax on crude petroleum production was sponsored by Representative Milton West of Brownsville. The tax would be graduated one cent being levied on the first five barrels of daily production, with the tax increasing to $1 per barrel on production in excess of 5,000 barrels in any one day.

Tax On Value Now

Under the existing law, the tax on crude petroleum is levied on its value rather than on the amount produced. West expressed belief his bill, if passed, would be effective in controlling the production of oil and would, at the same time, insure the state a steady income from oil production regardless of price fluctuations.

Both branches of the legislature continued their hearings today on a bill to insert a market demand provision in the Texas conservation statutes. The senate sitting as a committee of the whole, and the house committee on oil, gas and mining both listened to arguments as to why the bill should not be passed.

Houston Man Testifies

Steve Pinckney of Houston testified before the house committee. Contrary to popular belief, he said the United States supreme court did not specifically approve the market demand feature of an Oklahoma oil proration statute. Pinckney stated the supreme court in passing on the law, held that the orders of the Oklahoma Corporation Commission, under attack by the Champlin Refining Company, were not based on the market demand provision.

Pinckney stated that the bill to allow the Texas railroad commission to consider market demand in drafting its proration orders was "primarily a price fixing measure." Proposed Law Criticized He asserted that the three-judge federal court, which held invalid orders of the commission in the East Texas field, struck the orders down on the ground the commission did not follow the advice adduced at its hearings in fixing the allowable for the field.

Pinckney stated that under the statute the commission could, if the evidence justified, limit the East Texas field to 300,000 barrels per day or less.

Criticism also was directed at the proposed law, Pinckney stating it left the matter wide open for the Texas commission to determine what constituted the market demand while the Oklahoma law specifically pointed out the route the corporation commission must follow.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grigsby had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Scott of Alpine.

HEAVY VOTE IS CAST HERE IN ELECTION TUES.

County Goes Democratic With Few Changes In County Offices

In the general election held here Tuesday all of the present county officials were returned to office with the exception of the Justice of Peace, R. L. Henry being elected to the office in place of J. W. Haynes who was appointed last July to fill out the unexpired term of Henry Gates deceased. D. H. Cunningham was elected as Commissioner from Precinct 4, in place of R. E. Fred who was not a candidate for the office. Several names were written in on the ballot for other offices for which there were no candidates.

In the Governor's race "Ma" Ferguson carried the county by a very small majority, with Bullington being the other Governor candidate. The constitutional amendments all carried in this county, the majority of the voters casting their vote one way or the other for them. The county went decidedly Democratic.

The election officials in this precinct worked until 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon before they finished their task of counting the ballots which this year were unusually large and many split ballots were cast. Terrell county cast the largest vote that it has ever cast in the history of the county there being 714 voters going to the polls to cast their vote.

The unofficial tabulated votes, as cast in the various precincts will be found in another part of this paper.

Ranchmen Are Urged To Attend Meeting To Be Held November 21

Arrangements have been made for a mass meeting of ranchmen of this county and vicinity, to be held Monday November 21 for the purpose of demonstrating and acquainting the ranchmen with the uses of sheep sore mouth vaccine.

T. B. Wood, District Agent, and Dr. I. B. Boughton, Veterinarian, from the Experiment Station in Sonora will be here and have charge of the meeting.

All ranchmen of the county are urged to be at this meeting for an opportunity will be given them to discuss the sore-mouth, vaccination for same with actual demonstration, and order taken for the vaccine.

Some 400,000 doses have been used to date and wonderful results have been reported from the station. These treatments have proved that the vaccine will immunize lambs from the disease for a period of six months, and it is said to be one of the most outstanding achievements along this line accomplished in many years.

The meeting scheduled for this place on November 21st., will be held at 10 a. m. at the office of Joe Kerr.

Fort Davis Man Added to Board Of R. F. C. Bank

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 5.—J. W. Epsy of Fort Davis, who for a number of years has successfully operated a cattle loan company in that section has been appointed a member of the board of the San Angelo branch of the Regional Agriculture Credit Corporation, according to word from Washington announced yesterday by G. C. Magruder, manager of the bank here.

The board, some members of which have been in almost continuous session for the last week or more, is to meet at the bank's offices in the Western Reserve building today for an all day conference.

Checks issued by the corporation since Monday total approximately $122,783, the largest of which was around $39,000 and the smallest for $2,000. Total applications for loans to date are approximately $6,200,000. Of the 540 applications on hand about 60 are for feeder loans and two of the first five checks issued were for this type of loan. The local bank will accommodate all feeder loans possible, Mr. Magruder said.

ACTION ON OIL LAWS DELAYED BY ARGUMENTS

Validity Of "Lame Duck" Session's Power Is Questioned

AUSTIN, Nov. 5. (AP)—Opponents of a proposed law giving the state authority to consider market demand in regulating the production of oil to prevent waste mingled their views with ideas of proponents today before Texas legislature committees.

C. V. Terrell, chairman, and Ernest O. Thompson, member of the Texas Railroad Commission, regulator of oil and petroleum, recommended liberalization of the present statute so all phases of waste and "all other factors" could be considered in drawing proration orders.

Joe. E. Danciger, independent operator, told the House committee on oil, gas and mining, that proration was a scheme of the major companies to monopolize the industry.

Says Order Can Stand

Many legislators believed that the Legislature, assembled in extraordinary session by Governor R. S. Sterling, after three-judges federal court voided proration orders of the railroad commission applied to the East Texas field, would settle the fate of a proposed "market demand" bill early next week.

An attempt was made in the House committee to dispense with further testimony and take an immediate vote on reporting the bill. A motion to determine if the committee was ready to vote lost when the committee tied to seven each.

A motion to report the bill favorably was withdrawn when one of the proponents of the bill left the room and the hearing was recessed to Monday morning.

Attacks Plan

Representative E. H. Lawriter of Henderson opposed the motion for an immediate vote, stating he had been informed that attorneys in the suit, decided by the three judge federal court, had conferred with Federal Judge Randolph Bryant and it had been agreed that an order could be written by the commission under the existing law that would stand the test prescribed by the court and not change the present allowable.

Lawriter refused to discuss what form the proposed order would take. Representative W. E. Pope of Corpus Christi questioned the validity of any law passed by this legislature, basing his contention on a probability terms of members of the 42nd legislature expired last midnight.

He quoted from the constitution fixing terms of legislators at not to exceed two years "from their election." He pointed out that members of this legislature were elected on November 4, 1930. He asked appointment of a committee of five to investigate status of members now sitting in consideration of the oil proration legislation. His resolution incorporating the request, was ruled out of order, but Pope gave notice it would be renewed Monday.

He warned members that the question of membership terms should be settled before "any more of the people's money is spent, and before we pass any legislation that might be voided by a court decision."

An opinion written by C. M. Cureton, now justice of the Texas Supreme Court, while he was an assistant attorney general, a number of years ago read. He held that the term of a member of the legislature extended from the time he qualified until the succeeding legislature was convened. The 43rd legislature will be elected next Tuesday and will meet in regular session next January.

Witnesses who testified before the Senate, sitting as a committee of the whole, and before the House oil, gas and mining group, were questioned frequently about the bearing the price of crude oil had on the charge for gasoline. They wanted to know why gasoline did not decrease in price when crude went down.

WILL ASK MILLIONS FOR PECOS PROJECT

PECOS, Texas, Nov. 7.—Formal application for a Reconstruction Finance Corp. loan of about $4,500,000 to provide funds for construction of Red Bluff dam on the Pecos River is to be filed with the R. F. C. in 10 days.

A special committee composed of representatives from the four counties most affected by the proposed irrigation project met this week.

Every governmental official or board that handles public money should publish at regular intervals an accounting of it, showing where and how each dollar is spent. This is a fundamental principal of democratic government.

SCHOOL OR PRISON

One of the most startling bits of recent news is a little announcement that came not long ago from the National Education Association.

Someone in that organization did some figuring, and found out that while it costs $300 a year to keep a man in prison, it costs only $100 a year to keep a child in school. The Nation spends about one hundred fifty million a year on its 500,000 prisoners; it spends only two billion and a half to educate its 26,000,000 school children.

It would be a good thing if that information could be placed before every American public official who has anything to do with school budgets.

It is the most eloquent preaching against cutting such budgets that could possibly be imagined.

Educated men and women do not often find their way into penitentiaries. There are exceptions to this rule, of course; but any social worker, police official, or prison warden can tell you that the youngster who goes through school and gets a decent chance to train and broaden his mind is not very apt to become a lawbreaker when he grows up.

The great recruiting ground for the underworld is the place where youngsters break off their schooling before they have enough of it to profit by it.

That, of course, is only another way of saying that the public school system is about as good a crime preventative as we have. And it is an amazingly cheap one, all things considered. It is, at any rate, infinitely cheaper than our prison system, which is no preventative at all.

These times demand strict economy in government. No city or state can afford any unnecessary expenditures. But this money we spend on our schools is not an unnecessary expenditure, nor is it an expenditure which is unduly high. Compared with that other little item—the cost of taking care of criminals—it is very low indeed.

The school budget, in short, is just about the last place to wield the blue pencil. One hundred dollars a year per child, invested now, can save us $300 a year per criminal a little later.—Del Rio Evening News.

IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN THAT

A motorist, who was picked up unconscious after a smash, opened his eyes as he was being carried into a garage close at hand. He began to kick and struggle. When he was afterwards asked the reason he explained that the first thing he saw was a Shell sign and that—"Some darned fool was standing in front of the 'S.'"

Salesman (all excited, to colored lady): "I just saw an alligator eating one of your children as I came by the creek."

Liza (to her husband): "Mose dis gentman said an alligator had just eat one ob our chillun. Ain't I done tole' you sumpin' been going with dem kids?"

TEXAS INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITIES

Growth of the darying industry in Texas that has been brought about largely by the development of butter and creamery plants over the State is indicated in the announcement that Texas dairy herds are now producing 73,565,000 pounds of milk weekly.

Texas maintained its lead in 1931 in the production of natural gas with a total of 464,580,000 cubic feet. It exported 68 billion cubic feet, of which over two billion went to Mexico. Possession of the greatest natural gas fields in the world is one of the largest industrial assets Texas has.

A steadily increasing number of textile mills are using cotton belting and most of them plan to substitute such belting entirely in their plants as a contribution to new uses for cotton. It has been found satisfactory under practically every condition except where the belt has to run in oil.

For the first time in more than three years—160 weeks to be exact—the Katy lines for the second week in October handled more revenue cars of freight than the total for the corresponding week of the previous year. It was the first week since September, 1929, that the weekly revenue freight figures were greater than the same week of the preceding year.

Lamb-Whitson Co., Denton, established in a small beginning last year, now has eighteen wage-earners and four salesman on the road. The company manufactures food products.

Construction of a $50,000 sodium sulphate plant is scheduled to start in November on Soda Lake, in Ward County, near Monahans, according to a Midland dispatch. The plant will be built by the Ozark Chemical Co., of Tulsa, Okla., to supply the chemical for the manufacture of wrapping paper, following months of experimentation at the lake with the chemicals yielded by its waters. The sodium sulphate is obtained by freezing, the chemical being deposited in practically a pure stage from the heavily impregnated water. A considerable force of workers will be employed in the plant, the dispatch says.

Five million dollars were invested in Texas milk plants in the 1928-32 period, being the principal reason for the State increasing its milk production 100 per cent. Thirty-nine creameries employ 402 workers and pay them $456,925 yearly, consuming $8,635,457 worth of raw materials and containers and increasing the value to $10,995,921—a sizeable contribution to the Texas income.

YOURSELF

(By DR. FRANK CRANE)

Your greatest enemy is yourself. The only person who can drag you down into drunkenness, thievery, or uncleanness is yourself.

No real calamity ever crushed you that did not enter the door you unlocked yourself.

All hell could not make you despair, except yourself joined in.

Every stone in the edifice of your character was laid by your own hands.

Fate, malicious people, and other factors can threaten, hurt and wound you, nothing and nobody can put you down but yourself.

You are your greatest enemy if you are a coward, but if you are brave, you are your greatest friend.

The one unquenchable light is the human soul—the one unquenchable force.

Only when you love yourself rationally are you qualified to love others helpfully.

Only when you revere yourself and fear yourself are you capable of reverence and fear toward God.

The world is but a mirror of yourself. Keep clean and you see clean men and women everywhere. Be cheerful and all mankind smiles. Be unafraid of events and men, and the stars in their course will fight for you.

Whether you be a convict or a bedridden invalid or a betrayed wife or victim of the conspiracy of men or of the accidents of fate, if you fall back upon yourself, believe in yourself, and are loyal to yourself, you will succeed.

Let all the world despise you—it makes no matter as long as you do not despise yourself.

Whatever the past may have been, begin now to stand for yourself, your best self, the high and great self that you know you are, away in the deep recesses of your heart.

Stand! Yield not an inch! Be faithful to yourself! And from this moment things shall take a turn.

Mountain sheep on which there is a perpetual closed season in Texas, are increasing in number in the Diablo, Baylor and Beech Mountains west of here, according to H. L. George, who has just returned from that section.

He said one small ranch has about 100 head on it and once he saw 22 of these sheep in one bunch. The bucks are almost the color of deer and are much larger than the domestic sheep. He also saw numerous mountain sheep with full curled horns.

In the days that killing of these animals was permitted, a head with the curled horns was a great prize.

Buck Pyle, Pecos County commissioner, has set what is believed to be an all-time record in West Texas for loading cattle. He loaded 20 cars of yearlings in one hour. Mr. Pyle, it is reported, will be manager of the J. M. West ranch at Longfellow following dissolution of the West-Pyle Cattle Company.

There are a good many bear in the Davis Mountains. These mountains also have a number of black tailed deer, as do the Guadalupe.

Pryor and Wilson, one of the former big exclusive cow outfits of Pecos County, are now sheep operators as well. They are running about 6,000 head of sheep.

Russell Menzies has sold 3,000 head of mutton lambs to the Mann Commission Company for Colorado feeders.

Fifty-three cars of calves left the Southern Pacific yesterday for Galesburg, Ill. Thirteen cars came from Ryan, 40 from Valentine. Today at Casa Piedra, W. B. Mitchell loaded 18 cars for northern points.

AN ARMY Of Salesmen Who Take Little Time

When a salesman calls upon you, your subconscious question is, "How much time will he take?"

Yet an army of salesmen comes marching into your living-room regularly. They take your time only when you can spare it. They present their products to you briefly and politely, without a single interruption during your moments of consideration. They retire at your wish, or tell you more if you desire.

Are you learning all you can from these salesmen—the advertisements in your local newspaper! They come from the market places of the world. They bring the latest facts about the things you want and need, suggest other things you might want or need. They can make life more pleasant, efficient and economical. But you—and you alone—are the judge!

Can you afford to deny an audience to THESE salesmen? They do more than try to sell you something. They bring you the news of what your neighbors and your countrymen are doing in the world of business.

Advertisements do not ring doorbells—but they receive cordial reception from intelligent, discriminating people everywhere. Again and again they point out the only true bargains—sound merchandise at fair prices. When you read the advertisements, you are helping yourself to better things!

MERCANTILE COMPANY

A SHORT SHORT STORY CUPID CONQUERS CASH

BY PAUL HAWK

"With your beauty and my brains," Dave laughed, "we'll get you a most suitable husband."

"Partnership accepted," Kay agreed, "but be it understood this is one deal tagged 'Requires cash to handle.'"

And that was in the beginning. Kay was a young woman whose dark hair, gray eyes, and general demeanor by day announced "I am a smart, competent business woman" and by night proclaimed "I am beautiful, alluring, and utterly desirable." She had learned equally well to be a capable private secretary, to manage efficiently on forty dollars a week, to desire better things than she had, and to give a convincingly reluctant negative to admiring swains of uncertain financial rating who persisted in discussing matrimony.

Dave was a young man whose tilted hat said plainly "Oh, well," whose appearance admitted "Yeah, I used to play football," whose chin declared—if you happened to be in his way in a subway rush or a business deal—"I'm coming through," and whose grin told you "And you'd better like it!"

"Yes sir," Kay had said emphatically, "either the man must have money, or else I remain without benefit of clergy. No cottages for two, if I'm expected to be half of that delightful number!"

"Wise woman," Dave nodded sagely. "No eternal love and kisses with empty pockets for me either. And since mainly pride prevents my accepting pecuniary aid from one of the weaker, sex, I'll pursue my single solitary way alone, if I make myself clear."

And they looked at each other with new respect and understanding.

Dave was panting as he slipped into the seat ahead of a fellow passenger. He returned the man's glare with a grin and turned to Kay.

"It's the last spurt that counts," he explained between breaths. "Up late last night—deciding your future name."

"And?" Kay prompted.

"Rockwall," Dave explained smilingly.

Kay gasped. "Rock—Why—you mean the boss?"

"Sure," said Dave. "The trouble with most people is that they look to far ahead. Usually there is opportunity right under your nose. Now I don't miss such opportunity."

"But," Kay protested "he doesn't know I exist except as—"

"Ha!" Dave waived the exception aside. "Leave that to me. He's just at that impressionable age of forty, and the admiration of a young and beautiful woman will turn his head. I'll prepare him when I give you the wink, slip him a sweet oh-you-wonderful-man look. And I'll get him sold on the subject in my own inimitable way."

"And where," Kay asked him, "do YOU come in?"

"Who—me?" Dave grinned. "Why I'm merely the future general manager of the Rockwall interests. Old Montgomery's about ready to retire, and the boss'll need a good man to take charge while he shows you around the world two or three times. I'm that good man. Of course you'll whisper in his ear."

At the office, Dave gave Kay a meaning look and passed into the inner sanctuary of the boss. For once he appeared embarrassed.

"Why—er—Mr. Rockwall, you see it's like this," he said hesitantly, digging one toe convincingly into the rug. "I'm thinking of getting married—and—well, I want you to pay special attention to my work to see if I don't merit promotion to Montgomery's place when he leaves. As manager, I could afford to marry."

"Hm—m," said Mr. Rockwall. "And who is the lucky lady, Dave?"

"It's Kay—er—Miss Merrill." Then Dave went on with an enthusiastic rush of words, "That is—I haven't really asked her yet. And of course, she DID say she cares for another man—and older, more successful man. But she admitted that he never notices her. And I have hopes that if he keeps on being unaware of her, and if I get a promotion, maybe I can win her over. Why—she's beautiful, and she's smart, and she'd make any successful man a wonderful wife—Sorry—" he apologized abruptly.

Mr. Rockwall appeared to think it over. "Rather unusual, isn't it? Who is this—other man?"

"Well, she wouldn't tell me his name," Dave said craftily, "because she said I know him too well. I can't imagine any older man I know that it could be. You see, all my friends are my own age."

"I—er—wish you luck, Dave," the boss said absently.

Dave winked elaborately at Kay who met him on her way into the office. The door remained closed unusually long.

"He's taking me to dinner tonight," Kay whispered when she came out.

"Great!" said Dave. "It worked, didn't it?"

From that day on, things happened swiftly. Kay reported the progress on the way to the office each morning. "Mr. Rockwall's really human, Dave!" she concluded enthusiastically.

It was exactly three weeks after the first plotting that Dave was called into the office. Rockwall appeared happy and well pleased with himself.

"Good news for you, Dave. Montgomery's retiring immediately. And I—well I'm leaving on a little voyage myself. It's a—sort of affair of the heart, you see. And," he added his eyes twinkling, "anybody who is as shrewd a planner—Well, starting tomorrow, you will be in complete charge. And by the way, Dave, try out a new secretary for me, will you. Miss Merrill—well, she's going to be—er—married."

Dave leaned dazedly on Kay's desk in the outer office. "Say, Kay—I was wondering if we shouldn't do something together tonight—sort of a final celebration or something?"

"Sorry, Dave. I'll be frightfully busy."

"Well, g'luck," Dave muttered, and moved on.

Somehow his success wasn't exhilarating. He felt, instead, rather numb. But not until nine o'clock that night did the panic hit him. Then he dashed wildly out of his room. He caught a taxi and ordered full speed ahead.

But Kay's windows showed no welcome lights. Gone! Frantically pacing in the dark, he bumped into somebody.

"Kay!" he exclaimed. "Look here, Kay—I've got to tell you," he blurted. "I suppose you'll think I'm silly, but—Well, I've been promoted to general manager—and I don't want it. I want YOU. Hang it all, I LOVE you!"

Without knowing how, he had got her in his arms. "What if Rockwall does get mad?" he argued breathlessly. "I can make good somewhere else. You can't marry him! Even if it does mean just a cottage for two, will you marry me?"

"That's an engaging idea," she said.

"You mean—you WILL?"

"As you once told me, there is," Kay pointed out, "opportunity right under your nose." She held up her lips.

That opportunity needed only a single little rap.

"What seemed so funny to me," Kay murmured later, "you didn't know the boss already has a wife somewhere. He's going to her tomorrow. And he thought it awfully funny too when I told him how you were plotting against him."

SHEEP AND GOAT RAISERS GROUP SET MEET DATE

Committee Decides Del Rio Convention To Be December 15-16

ELDORADO.—Annual convention of the Sheep & Goat Raisers Association of Texas is to be held in Del Rio December 15 and 16, the executive committee, meeting here Thursday, decided.

A committee consisting of Roger Gillis, Sol Mayer, James Cornell, Lee Drisdale and Roy Aldwell, was appointed to draw up a resolution addressed to the San Angelo branch of the Regional Agriculture Credit Corporation and to the membership of the Sheep & Goat Raisers Association with reference to operation of the R. F. C. bank.

Some Dissatisfaction Shown From the sentiment expressed at the meeting it was apparent that some dissatisfaction is felt in the manner in which the R. F. C. bank is making loans.

Discussion of the R. F. C. bank occupied a large part of the time of the meeting and there was a belief on the part of all that the bank, if operated liberally, can be just the thing that the sheep and goat industry needs today.

D. E. Hughes, chairman of the San Angelo branch bank's board who was to have appeared before the committee, was not present.

AUTOMOBILE LARGEST USER OF SEVEN AMERICAN INDUSTRIES

U. S. Is Largest Grower of Mohair

TODAY'S automobile is almost entirely an achievement of our natural resources or products. With the exception of rubber which is grown in Africa, India or South America but manufactured in this country, all the basic materials that go to make an automobile are produced in our midst. Steel, mohair, plate glass, nickel and lead are not only American products, but are, together with rubber, used to a greater extent in making cars than for any other purpose.

Practically every state in the Union contributes to these materials, either in their raw state or in their manufacture. For example, our youngest and fastest growing livestock industry, that of angora goats, provides the mohair which is used in making mohair velvet for automobile upholstery. Some idea of the demand for this durable fabric, otherwise known as velmo, is gained from the fact that one hundred million yards, it has been estimated, are now in service in cars on the nation's highways.

These angora or mohair goats, as they are more appropriately called, originally came from Turkey, and the United States imported millions of fleeces annually, but with the introduction of the goats into this country, the mohair industry has gradually been transferred here, with a total annual clip of well over seventeen million pounds.

The pile fabric made from this fleece in New England mills is generally accepted as being the ideal material for automobile upholstery because of its long wearing quality, usually outlasting the life of the car itself, because it is easily cleaned and because it affords the greatest riding comfort, all in addition, of course, to its lustrous and beautiful appearance.

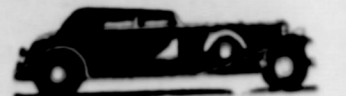

Still another commodity of which the automobile industry is its largest consumer is gasoline. Eighty per cent of all gasoline produced in this country, or twelve and a half billion gallons, is used for keeping the nation's twenty-six million motors a-wheel.

MEXICAN YOUTHS ROPE WILD BEAR THINKING IT TAME

FORT DAVIS, Nov. 7.—Several Mexican youths living here roped a nearly full grown black bear a mile from town and brought it in, thinking it was a pet bear belonging to Mac Sproul and had escaped. They received the surprize of their lives when they saw the Sproul bear safely chained to his post. They brought in a wild bear.

The animal suffocated right at the last, before the final rope could be removed. Bears, it is said, can be killed more swiftly with a rope around the neck than with bullets. One of the Mexican boys, Elias Dominguez, who has attended junior officers training camp, said, "We just got around the bear and put a rope on it—easy as easy."
