HUNT FOR HIJACKER ENDS IN ANGELO

ESCAPES AFTER WOUNDING OFFICER; IS CAPTURED THURSDAY MORNING

Alpine Planning To Entertain Big Crowd April 6-7

Alpine.—(TPN)—Plans are being made by Big Bend Post No. 79, and the auxiliary to entertain some 800 visitors when the district convention is held here on the 6th and 7th of April, it was stated by members of the legion this week.

A school band contest is to be one of the features of the two-day program, with nine bands already having announced their intention of entering the event. These include Alpine, Sanderson, El Paso High, Austin High, El Paso; Monahans, Wink, Midland, McCamey and Iruan. These bands will average around fifty members each, it was estimated, and with the delegates and other visitors expected, will bring the total up to around the 800-mark.

The Lion's club, chamber of commerce, Parent-Teachers association and the college are assisting the local Legionnaires and Auxiliary in securing housing accommodations for the visitors and all Alpine residents who have available rooms are urged to list them with the chamber of commerce at once.

Parade a Feature

In addition to the band contest, which is to be held at the Sul Ross auditorium, a big parade is to be one of the features of the Legion meet. Three dances are to be held Saturday night, a public dance at the courthouse, one in the college gym for college and high school students, and a Legion-Auxiliary dance for the visiting delegates and veterans at Koker's lodge.

A joint assembly of the Legion and Auxiliary, which will be open to the public, is to be held Sunday morning at which Department Commander H. Miller Ainsworth will deliver an address. Following the Legion commander's speech, Mrs. Marian G. Danforth, department president of the Auxiliary, will speak.

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning a memorial service will be held, followed by religious services. All citizens are especially invited to attend these Sunday morning meetings.

A business session will be held Sunday afternoon and citizens are also invited to attend this meeting and learn the Legion and Auxiliary policies and programs.

Late Wednesday evening Sheriff Lee Cook received a telephone message from officers in McCamey to be on the lookout for an alleged hijacker evidently headed towards Sanderson.

A hijacking job was pulled off in McCamey, and on Wednesday afternoon they started to arrest men charge with the offense. One of the suspects was placed under arrest, to which he submitted; the other objected and put up a fight, and in a pistol battle that followed, City Policeman Bales was shot in the leg, and special ranger Jim Rooney had a close call when one of the bullets creased his neck. Partly clad the man jumped into a car, headed south, with the officers in hot pursuit.

Wednesday night was pretty chilly and when the fugitive reached the Padgett ranch he held up Mr. and Mrs. Padgett, took some clothing and drained their car of gasoline. While at the ranch the telephone rang; the hunted man told the Padgetts not to be surprised if it was officers. Upon being told it was, and that they were coming to the ranch, the man told Mrs. Padgett his name and the address of his mother in Eastland, requesting her to notify his mother should anything happen to him—that he expected something would.

Early Thursday morning an airplane was sent out over the route taken by the fugitive in an endeavor to locate him. Whether or not it instrumental in his capture by San Angelo officers, the Times did not learn.

Anyhow, Sheriff Cook and his deputy, Jim Nance spent an uncomfortable night patrolling the highway between here and Fort Stockton, keeping a lookout for the fugitive, until notified that he had been captured in San Angelo.

The telephone message from the McCamey officers to Sheriff Cook did not mention the name of the fugitive, merely stating that he had been in McCamey for the past five or six months.

Princess Jackpot
$45 Monday Night

As Miss Lily McDonald was not present at the Princess Theatre last Monday night when her name was called as winner of the free cash prize of $30, that amount will be added to the regular weekly prize of $15, making a total of $45 which the management will give to some lucky person whose name may be drawn. A very nice and acceptable prize for somebody—and the only condition is that you must be in the theatre when your name is called.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

N. E. Charlton, who left here the latter part of last week for San Antonio for medical treatment, was operated upon Tuesday afternoon at the Nix hospital in that city, and reports Thursday afternoon from his bedside were that he was doing as well as could be expected. Mrs. Charlton and son, John Fisher, who have been with him since Tuesday, will not return home until the first of next week.

Slight Crackup
At Dryden Airport

A slight crackup in which, fortunately, no one was injured, occurred at the Dryden airport Tuesday morning, when the landing gear of a plane flown by Capt. Thad Foster collapsed as he was taking off. In the plane with him was Colonel Bliss. Neither was hurt.

Going at a terrific speed the ship skidded for approximately twenty-five feet before it stopped. An S. O. S. to Brooks field brought a big tri-motor plane, in which Col. Bliss and Capt. Foster flew to Brooks field. It returned Wednesday with a crew of six mechanics and repair parts, and the plane was flown back to Brooks field Thursday afternoon.

Irish Fighter

Jack Doyle, prominent heavy-weight from Ireland, now visiting in this country. He will meet various leading lights of the American ring.

CAR ABANDONED

Officers were notified last week to be on the lookout for a stolen car. The net was spread and a car answering the description was found near Dryden, but those who had driven it evidently found the trail growing warm, left it, and pulled out on foot, or hitchhiked out of the danger zone. The car was brought here and is in custody of Sheriff Lee Cook.

WILL TAKE SCHOOL CENSUS

Mrs. Theresa Dawson has been appointed by the members of the school board to take the scholastic census of Terrell county, and assumed those duties last Friday, March 1. She will have the month of March in which to complete the census.

Texas Goats Provide Material For New "Third Dimension" Art

Texas Angora goats supplied the materials with which Russell Patterson made this unique "third dimension" picture, "Beauty in Mohair." He used the new mohair velvet fabrics used on Fisher Bodies on the new General Motors cars—practically all of which comes from Texas Angora goats—for his artistic experiment which is being displayed at the current automobile shows. Patterson is seen showing the picture to Miss Constance Carpenter, musical comedy dancer and his model for the picture.

EAGLES MISS CHANCE FOR TRIP TO AUSTIN; FINE RECORD FOR SEASON

In vain we look for an alibi in the case of the Eagles failing to cop top honors in the regional basketball tourney held at Alpine last Saturday. From all angles they met, in Bowie high school of El Paso, a team superior than they. Naturally in a city of an alleged 100,000 population material, and to spare can be found.

But, the Times is perfectly contented, and so are most of our people at the showing of the Eagle cage team during the 1935 playing season. They turned in a remarkable record, only dropping three games, and these in tournaments where the going was rough all the way.

To them and to their coach, Duane Smith, all credit.

In the regional contests four teams were entered, all of proven ability, with the possible exception of Fort Davis, who did not face the hard competition the other three teams did in their respective districts. But that team had some stellar individual performers.

Others teams were Wink, Sanderson and Bowie, the latter being the favorites from the start.

The morning's play was two games in which Wink was eliminated by Bowie, while Sanderson put Fort Davis in line for consolation. This match was played in the afternoon, and won handily by the Wildcats of Winkler county.

A record crowd was on hand for the final argument between Bowie and Sanderson, but it looked like every other man or woman was a Sandersonite, making the long trip to encourage the Eagles.

The first half was a real battle, and while El Paso was out in front, it was evident that they would have tough going to hold on. But at the very beginning of the second half it was evident, also, that they had made their last spurt. Bowie began to draw on their reserve strength, and each new man sent in was just as effectual as the man he replaced. The pace was too much, and the Bears began ringing the loops at will until the final whistle, the final score being 38 to 17.

Resigns Position As Member of the Sanderson Faculty

Miss Eva Chaffin, teacher of commercial art in the Sanderson high school for the past four years, resigned her position, effective March 15, and will go to Alpine where she has accepted a secretarial position with the Alpine National Bank.

During her stay in Sanderson Miss Chaffin has made many friends who will regret to see her leave, but will wish her well in her new position.

Miss Lorene Childers who arrived Monday from her home in Lubbock will take the position left vacant by Miss Chaffin. She comes to Sanderson highly recommended and, in addition to her duties in the commercial arts department, will be secretary to Supt. B. J. Brannan.

BE CAREFUL, KIDS!

The advertisement of the Community Public Service company this week, on page 3, warns against the danger of flying kites in the vicinity of power lines. Many deaths each year are traced to this practice.

Already one youngster of Sanderson had his kite entangled in wires of the company and, fortunately, the local company men were advised, and the trouble remedied.

STORE ROOM BURNED

The store room of Sgt. Richardson at the Dryden airport caught fire Tuesday, and the building was a total loss. However, due to prompt and efficient work of the men at the airport, most of the contents were saved.

Planning Details For League Meet At Fort Stockton

Details for the district Interscholastic League meet, which will be held in Fort Stockton on April 4, 5, and 6, were worked out at a meeting of the directors held last week in that city.

The district meet will include students who are winners of the respective county meets embraced in this district, and will include participants from Crockett, Terrell, Pecos, Reeves, Loving, Ward and Brewster counties.

The following were named directors of the different departments: J. F. Reeves, Fort Stockton, director general of the meet; B. J. Brannan, of Sanderson, debate; C. S. Denham, of Ozona, declamation; Major A. E. Lang of Monahans, extemporaneous speaking; Clyde Parke of Ft. Stockton, athletic events; F. M. Crouch of Balmorhea, essay writing; Miss Lillian Edwards of Fort Stockton, typing; R. H. Blackwell of Pecos, one-act play contest.

The contest in one-act plays will be held on April 4, the only contest scheduled for that date.

In drawing for opponents in the tennis tournament, the following games in which Terrell county will be matched were scheduled:

Girls' singles—Terrell county vs. Reeves county.

In the district debating contests Terrell county girls were picked to debate with the Reeves county team.

The above, represents but a very partial list of events. Those having charge of the program are busy with the details and, possibly, by this time have the program nearly completed.

Sanderson students are preparing to enter several of the literary events, and many of the athletic contests, but an accurate list could not be procured at this time.

BAND SERENADES

The natives were treated to an impromptu serenade last Tuesday afternoon when Elmo Low loaded his charges into a truck, circled the town, and did some very effective advertising for the P. T. A. play which was staged at the high school that night.

The following clipped from the El Paso Times, is so good we want you to enjoy it:

Honorable Sir: I have been grossly insulted, sir, by those blawsted peasantry who wear leather pajamas and grasp the fleeing cow with a rope several fathoms long.

As a guest at a horse plantation I observed some cow drivers placing their monograms, as it were, on the sides of beasts in a paddock, termed a corral. They were all jolly well friendly and asked me to ride a pony after the manner of the Royal Hunt Club.

They assisted me to mount the unfriendly beast who seemed to have a permanent wave in his back. After I adjusted my monocle and appeared at ease on the animal they cast loose and waving their big hats caused my mount to plunge hither and thither in a very uneven manner, causing me to be upset in rude and uncomfortable way that greatly perturbed me. Their crude advice of grasp him by the whiskers—Remove your headlight, Your Highness—and ride him old top—was entirely ignored.

My mount vaulted the paddock wall and I was unseated. Sir, those cow servants uttered rude guffaws, well knowing I, at one time, was master of the Royal Horse. I was placed in a cottage, termed a bunk house, and even my command to fetch the hot water bottle was unheeded. I suffered great humiliation, sir, when I learned the Doctor won his title by cutting an Oregon boot from a fellow's ankle at one time, thus giving him a rating in the medical profession.

I was mentioned thrice in dispatches from the front by my colonel, and twice in the rear by those fellows in the horse paddock and, measure my word, sir, I never met such rude fellows who so enjoyed my effort to hold my seat on that unruly beast.

May the Kind Leader above deliver me to my people in Merry England, farewell.

Met a man the other day whose hands were spotlessly clean. His work is of a nature that should keep them soiled. How come? we asked. Oh, the wife has been directing a play for the last three weeks, and I've been washing the dishes. Very simply explained.

The average family thinks they have a hard time with week end pests. But they haven't seen anything yet! Wait until they make the 30-hour week a law.

Amarillo, last week, set aside a day to honor mother-in-laws. Why not? She's one of the most maligned persons on earth. Never have met one of the kind featured in old vintage jokes. In fact, found all we've met to be just regular fellers.

Slight earth tremor felt in Arkansas last week. No, not an earthquake, as first supposed. Just an echo of the Huey Long-Joe Robinson debate in the U. S. senate.

This sheet was humiliated, mortified, the other day. Looking around for a feature we thought might interest our readers we were offered a column edited by a Mr. Brisbane. Well, Arthur was good one time, but evidently he has reached Prickly Pear's deadline of 50 years, and is slipping until today he's just a "yes man" for his master, William Randolph Hearst.

Now comes a Minneapolis professor, who has it all figured out that intermarriage in this country will eventually exterminate all blondes. If that does happen, it will mean real relief for all of us, but it's going to be tough on the Tired Business Man these long evenings.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

SCHOOLS AND TAXPAYERS

A FEW days ago we referred here to the situation in which the denominational schools find themselves, and contrasted their plight with the comparatively opulent condition of the tax-supported institutions of higher learning.

After reading your editorial of the 23rd on the plight of the church schools, I raised this question: 'What benefit, if any, do the taxpayers of Texas receive from independent and denominational colleges?'

In seeking an answer to this question I have consulted a report made by the department of education of Texas for the year 1932-33, and find these figures which show that there were enrolled in the tax-supported schools and universities of Texas for the above school year, 24,130 students.

The 18,700 students in the independent colleges, had they been receiving their education in the tax-supported schools, would have caused an additional tax burden on the taxpayers of $277.97 per student, or $5,198,039.00, which would have been $11,960,476 per bi-ennium.

HE'S STILL AT BAT

HISTORIANS of this present epoch will doubtless extend themselves in analyzing the remarkable phenomenon which occurred in the United States on the twenty-seventh of February, 1935.

They will recall that a nation long in suspense breathed freely again on the morning of that day; that in the quaint idiom of a well-known radio comedian, a whole people just seemed to serenely "unlax."

Instances will be given where some men, in their excitement, actually conversed with their wives at the breakfast table; that suburban commuters argued with men they didn't know as to whether the Governor of Massachusetts would throw in the ball at the opening game of the season, or whether the President of the United States himself would travel from Washington and give the signal to "Play ball."

Incidentally, it was only a couple of weeks ago that the "Babe" was showing Englishmen that he could run up a pretty good score in their national game of cricket. Alan Fairfax, Australian star, was enthusias-

"In the old days I used to dread the coming of winter. I was always shivering and feeling about half alive—trying to get warm by body rubbing and every sort of trick."

tic. "He'd make a great crickster," he said. In Japan he made America so popular that jingoistic reactionaries have just assassinated the publisher of the Tokyo newspaper responsible for his Japanese tour.

After all, it's a wholesome sign when a nation can shed its worries about gold clauses, work relief measures and Huey Long and give friendly welcome to the decision of the baseball veteran to play for at least three more years.

Now that the "Sultan of Swat," ambassador of good will, clean sport and hero of American boyhood, has lifted a load of suspense off the country, citizens can resume interest in politics, and really get to work on their income tax returns.

No. 4—The Story of the Texas Navy

—Think—Talk—Write—Texas Contender in 1830

The Texas Navy played an important part in the state's history. Early in 1836 before independence was declared, the Texas governor and council advised privateers to harass the Mexican coast in the name of Texas, to prevent landing of Mexican soldiers and supplies in Texas.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By JULIAN CAPERS, JR.

Austin.—Taxes have been the paramount issue and subject for discussion before the legislature the past week. Legislators sit up nights thinking up new taxes and new things to tax.

The argument offered for every suggested new tax is always that it will relieve those burdened by existing taxes. The trouble is it never works out that way—it simply means additional taxes, more money for the politicians to spend.

There has been only one reduction in state taxes in a decade, and that was when the people took the matter in their own hands and voted a constitutional amendment to exempt homesteads up to $3000 from state taxation.

Here is some interesting light on the tax question. It is a summary of some authoritative testimony given by one of the best informed tax experts in Texas before the senate tax survey committee—the identical committee which a few days later brought in the new tax suggestions. He said: "Present tax levies yielded enough during the biennium just completed to reduce the state deficit from $20,000,000 to $12,000,000, and to cover the $16.50 school per capita appropriation, and pay $3.35 on the previous year's deficit in the school fund. The state is about 90 days behind on its current accounts. It could easily wipe out the deficit and catch up during the coming biennium without a penny of additional taxes being raised."

Business men are familiar with the law of diminishing returns. It means you can't have your cake and eat it, too. Politicians persistently refuse to believe it. For instance:

In 1931 the tax on sulphur was upped from 60 cents a ton to 75 cents. Sulphur tax yield promptly dropped from $1,300,000 in 1931 to $435,000 in 1932, and one of the large Texas sulphur companies built a $14,000,000 plant in Louisiana, where even Huey Long is too smart to kill the goose that lays the golden egg. As a result, Texas no longer retains the proud title of sole source of America's sulphur supply.

It isn't so much a matter of finding new things to tax, as it is of collecting the taxes that are already levied. There are about $140,000,000 of delinquent taxes owing in Texas today to state, counties and local governmental bodies. If every tax collector in Texas made an honest effort to collect these overdue taxes, it is quite probable there would accrue to the state sufficient money to wipe out the deficit and operate the entire government for a year, even if no current taxes were collected during that year.

The legislature has encouraged a bad situation, of course, by passing laws remitting penalties and interest, from time to time. It seems grossly unfair to the taxpayer who has struggled and denied himself to keep his taxes paid, when his neighbor, who has gone delinquent for years, escapes all penalties and interest. But it makes the delinquent vote for the legislators who espouse their cause. Or at least the legislators think it does.

A freshman legislator from East Texas is suffering from a bad case of "jitters." Before his election, he promised the courthouse crowd in his home county he would sponsor a bill to raise the pay of certain county officials. He introduced a bill, but his heart wasn't in it, so he privately told the committee chairman: "I promised to introduce this bill, and I did. But so far as I am concerned you can let it die in committee."

The word got back home somehow—possible it was because the committee chairman happened to be a good friend of the county judge.

The judge came to town, did a little lobbying and the bill rolled out of the committee with a favorable report. The judge was in Austin a week, but he never went near the legislator who introduced the bill. The legislator wonders why. He'll probably find out next election when the courthouse crowd back home casts its vote.

Politics is a strange game, but its first rule is "Never bite the hand that feeds you."

Clyde Barrow and Raymond Hamilton, No. 1 Texas bandits have rendered a notable service to their state. Friends of law and order have tried for several years to enact a law creating an effective state police force. Clyde and Ray convinced the people of Texas that modern machine-gun bandits couldn't be caught by county sheriffs with horses and buggies and six-shooters. So the senate passed the state police bill with only one dissenting vote—that of Publisher-Senator Sulak of LaGrange. House action, decisive and favorable, probably will follow.

"Transient Lady" Booked at Princess Theatre Monday

One of the fastest moving melodramas of the year "Transient Lady" has been booked for showing at the Princess Theatre Monday night, the 11th of March. Four brilliant players have leading parts in this picture—Gene Raymond, Henry Hull, Frances Drake and June Clayworth.

"Transient Lady" was filmed from the popular Octavus Roy Cohen story when ran serially in Liberty magazine, and is ideal entertainment for every member of the family. It is packed with dramatic situations, fast action and delightful romance, and punctuated with sparkling, enjoyable comedy.

The story is of three wandering promoters, two men and a girl, who come to a sleepy southern town to open a roller-skating rink. They run afoul of an evil crowd of relatives of a crooked politician. One of the gang is killed and they try to pin the guilt on one of the promoters. A brilliant young lawyer of the town comes to their defense and out of it all grows a love story hard to match for sweetness and appeal.

"Transient Lady" is a picture you will enjoy, and don't forget that on Monday night the management will try its best to give away $45, absolutely free—that being the amount of the cash accumulated during the past two weeks.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO— If you were a young man just out of college, who had suffered severe losses in the stock market... and you were in love with a girl who would inherit two million dollars? If you would marry her before she was twenty-one... and she gave you 24 hours in which to make up your mind... WHAT WOULD YOU DO? Lynn Barton solves this problem very satisfactorily in the Senior play, "South is South," to be presented at the high school auditorium Friday, March 15, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Holt were week end visitors in Fort Stockton.

Helpful Household Hints By BETTY WEBSTER

Every once in a while don't you read a book and then try to recall a comment you have seen on it? I used to do it frequently until I borrowed a novel which solved my problem. The owner is a voracious reader of newspapers as well as of magazines and books and has acquired the habit of keeping a file of literary criticisms and reviews. As he gets a book he takes from the file the articles pertaining to it and pastes them on the fly-leaf. Then he has at hand everything he has read about that particular volume. I do it now, and find it a fascinating game. Periodically I clean my file and throw away comments on books I know I shall never care to read or to remember. By thus saving these things I want to keep I find that I can take an even keener interest than before in literature, and can discuss various phases concisely and (I hope) intelligently.

Organize "Book-Nooks" Have you a "book-nook" in your community? A "book-nook" is a rental library in which each renter is a stockholder. At least one will succeed in any town even if it has a public library. You see, a "book-nook" will contain only up-to-date fiction and books that are requested by the members. It may be organized by a club with an office as its headquarters, or an individual may conduct it in her home. A fee of one dollar is charged each one who wishes a book. This fee gives each renter a share and is used to buy new books. The rental charge may range from three to five cents a day, or be a flat rate of twenty-five cents a book. Oftentimes publishers will, if requested, supply the initial volumes. They, too, will gladly send you lists of new publications. As the books become declassified, they can be donated to the public library or sold.

DANGER Do Not Fly Kites Near Electric Wires! Kite-flying is a thrilling sport but danger lurks when the kites are flown near electric wires. To avoid the possibility of trouble, boys and girls are urged to read and obey the following safety suggestions: 1. Do not use wire for kite strings. If the wire comes in contact with a power line, a severe shock will result. 2. Do not fly kites with wet string or in damp, rainy weather. Wet string will also transmit shocks. 3. Do not climb poles to get tangled kites. You may come in contact with the power lines. 4. Do not poke sticks at kites or attempt to pull them down by their tails. You may get a deadly shock or cause a short-circuit. 5. Best of all, fly your kites in playgrounds, parks or pastures, clear away from electric power lines. When kites become entangled in power lines, they should be reported to employees of this company. The latter know how to remove them without endangering anyone or causing a service interruption.
