Everything in Readiness for Visitors During 2-Day Celebration—Race For Rodeo Queen Warming Up

Everything in readiness, of good rodeo stock and an array of ropers, bulldozers and other persons, who have signified their intention of being on hand, residents of this section and visitors to Sanderson's 3rd annual rodeo, promised two full days, each night by a big dance strains of Joe Buzze's orchestra.

Days and dates are Thursday and Friday, August 5 and 6. Several departures from rodeos over years, are promised by the handler, who is promoting the rodeo. Important to the members, and especially to the fans is the fact that the capitol Legion Park will receive a sprinkle prior to the contest. This will remove an inconvenience common to most rodeos of the heavy dust.

Free Barbecue

Another feature will be a big barbecued barbecue under the trees on the courthouse. "We're going to feed 'em," said Chandler. Bees, and muttons have been done with other trimmings, should be an enjoyable in-

Good Purses

Another feature of the '37 will be a "Rattlesnake" which will be in charge of L. Brown of McCamey, the Texas expert. "Brown his snakes," said Joe, "and now is peculiarly his own. Who saw it at McCamey year, state that it is worth money. It's one feature that is seeing."

Course there will be regular events which are part of the rodeo: Calf and steer roping, breakaway, wild cow, bronc busting, etc., etc. For these events have been and are now being cared and will be in prime shape. Purses are offered for every event besides extra prizes do-

by merchants. One prize is a Stetson hat, donated by B. Stetson Co. of Philadelphia, best average in calf roping both days. Winner of this will call at Kerr Mercantile company, give size of hat and preferred, and Stetson will it to your order. A pair of vis will be donated by Kerr Mercantile company for best two average in the following: Goat roping, bronc riding, wild cow milking.

Interest is being manifested in the queen's race, and six young ladies' names have been entered in this event. They are Misses Lois Taylor, Ruby Sullivan, Dorothy Lewis, Mildred Underwood, Nelle Mary Ferguson, Ethel Laura and Ruth Murrah. All of young ladies are very popular and just who will be named will not be known until announcement is made on the Princess Theatre.

LABOR DELEGATES

Delegates are down—anybody can ride a horse is eligible every event. West Texas have a cordial invitation to guests of Sanderson for two of real jollity. Keep the in mind—August 5 and 6.

VISITS IN AUSTIN

Lattimore spent the end in Austin on business. Vaughan says that Latt went to see what the chances were to get Gib Gilchrist's job. It happened to know of a young lady attending the university of Texas, and firmly believe that she was the object of Lattimore's trip.

THE MARKET TREND IN LIVESTOCK

Fort Worth, July 21

Sheep, 2000; killing classes steady; feeder lambs strong to 25c higher; spring lambs $8@8.25; fat ewes, $4@4.25.

Cattle, 3000; calves, 1200; steer yearlings and fat cows strong to 25c higher; other classes of cattle strong; medium good yearlings $10.50; good fat cows, $5.75@ $8.50; bulls $4.25@5.25; culls $4.

Shipments and Range News

Stock shipments from this place has slowed up during the last few days, while contracting for fall delivery of lambs has been active and buyer have been busy, several sales having been reported the past week.

Local shipments since the last issue of the Times include the following:

On July 15, W. B. Mitchell and Sons of Marfa purchased from West Cattle Co., several hundred head of cattle which were shipped from Longfellow consigned to points in Illinois, Ohio and Indiana. There were 5 cars in this shipment.

On July 17 Albert Appel shipped 2 cars of sheep to the Fort Worth market.

On July 18, C. H. Arvin shipped 2 cars of sheep to Ft. Worth, and W. M. Edwards shipped 3 cars to the same market.

It is reported that the A. S. Gage Estate in Brewster county sold and delivered the first of the week 6,000 mixed calves and 2,000 mixed yearlings. The purchase was made by a California feeder and the shipment was made the first of the week from Marathon.

Jim Espy of Fort Davis has contracted 3,000 lambs for fall delivery to Warren & Vincent of Hovey at $5 a head. In the Marfa county Frank Jones has contracted 2,500 lambs for fall delivery to Ross Bros., Fort Worth, at 7½ cents a pound.

R. J. Ridley, Del Rio buyer, has purchased about 2,000 head of sheep from Shely Bros., at Tesnus and 1,800 head from Fred Turner who ranches west of Sanderson, paying 7½ cents a pound.

FATHER IMPROVING

Mr. and Mrs. Van Casey were in from their ranch west of Longfellow Wednesday. Mrs. Casey has recently returned from Santa Anna where she had been called to her father, R. N. Storey, who was injured in an automobile accident. Mr. Storey, who is in the Sealey Hospital in Santa Anna, is doing nicely according to a telegram received Wednesday by Mrs. Casey, from the attending physician.

SAN ANTONIO VISITORS

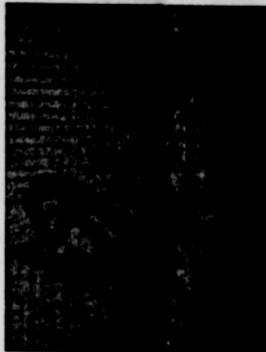

Mr. and Mrs. T. Macey Hart and two young sons, Maxey Jr., and Douglas, of San Antonio spent Saturday afternoon and night in Sanderson in the home of Mrs. Hart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. McKee, enroute to El Paso where Mr. Hart spent this week in Federal court being clerk of that court. Mrs. Hart accompanied Mr. Hart to El Paso while the two boys spent the week in Sanderson in the home of their grandparents.

TO HOT SPRINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Harrell and daughter, Miss Lillian, left Monday for Hot Springs, N. M., and Sam will take the baths at that famous resort for the next three weeks. Before returning home they plan to visit points of interest in New Mexico and Arizona.

Will Do His Stuff at Sanderson Rodeo

P. L. Brown, rattler expert of McCamey, who will stage a "Rattlesnake Derby" at Sanderson's 3rd annual Rodeo, August 5 and 6. He is shown cuddling one of his 5-foot pets. For the novel event the reptiles are placed in metal boxes at the starting line, the doors are opened, a little shot of electricity and here they come a-buzzing, while the customers take the back-trail.

Faculty Complete With Selection of Grades Teacher

Miss Ruth Wells, who completed her college work in the West Texas State Teachers College, Canyon, was recently selected as third grade and public school music teacher in the primary grade. Miss Wells comes highly recommended both as to character and teaching ability. She majored in primary education and minored in music for her college work. Her teaching experience has been over a period of some two years in primary work. She holds special certificates in public school music and in penmanship. Miss Wells has had considerable experience in musical organization and in play ground activities. It is expected that Miss Wells will be a considerable asset to the Sanderson schools and to the community in general during the 1937-38 session of the schools. Miss Wells will have the third grade as her home room and will have the public school music course in the first four grades.

Rowland, Del Rio Equips to Care For Knitted Suits

With knits comprising 20 per cent of all garments now being sold, and leading the style parade in all parts of the country, John Rowland & Son, master cleaners and dyers of Del Rio, are prepared for perfect fitting and blocking of these garments with the Glover Knit Blocking Table used in their modern plant.

With the Glover machine they perform the difficult task of restoring the correct form and size of this particular material, eliminating guess work and troubles which have heretofore accompanied the cleaning process.

"The Glover Knit Blocking Table," said Mr. Rowland, "handles any type of knitted garments perfectly, whether it is hand or machine or hand knitted; the Glover factory method restores all its original form, size and finish, making the garment conform to every detail of style measurement."

John Rowland & Sons, with 23 years continuous service, invites the public to visit their modern plant while in Del Rio. Because of their modern facilities and careful workmanship they enjoy a large patronage from the neighboring towns. All mail orders are given careful and prompt attention. On knit garments it is necessary that the correct measurements be given.

Relative Takes Part in Search for Amelia Earhart

A very interesting letter was received this week by Miss Dorothy Lewellyn during the height of the excitement and search for Miss Earhart and her navigator, Fred Noonan. The letter was from Jerry Seffers, a member of the crew of the Airplane Carrier Lexington, and was mailed from Lahaina, near the equator, and sealed in a special envelope carrying a picture of the Lexington, and the notation that it, with other ships "Was enroute from San Diego, California, to the Howland Islands, in search of the lost Earhart plane."

An item of interest was that Mr. Putnam, husband of Miss Earhart, offered each member of the crew $100 if his wife was found and brought back safely.

The Lexington, with other naval vessels had hardly anchored in the Santa Barbara bay to spend the 4th of July when the order came from Washington to proceed to the Howland and Phoenix groups in the South Pacific for the most spectacular search in the history of aviation.

COURT HELD

A called meeting of the Terrell county Commissioners court was held on Monday for the purpose of approving the bond of Fred Yeates newly appointed Justice Peace who was appointed by the Court at their last meeting to succeed Clarence Jessup resigned. W. J. Banner, commissioner of Precinct 1, and J. C. Mitchell, commissioner of Precinct 2, were the only members present.

VISITS CAVERNS

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Cox, Misses Dorothy Sullivan and Lois Taylor and William Lea and Irvin Robbins motored to Carlsbad Sunday, and visited the caverns, returning home that night.

MRS. H. G. HOLT ILL

Mrs. H. G. Holt has been critically ill at her home for several days, but was somewhat improved, according to reports from her bedside Thursday.

To Spud In On Sam Bell Test In Next Ten Days—Leasing is Still Active

To Demonstrate Passover Rites at Baptist Church

Speaking next Sunday morning July 25, at 11 o'clock, in the Baptist church on "The Jew in Prophecy," Rev. Cohen, converted Hebrew Christian minister, promises his most impressive ceremony next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when he and his assistants will enact the Jewish Passover, ancient feast of Israel.

Brother Cohen explained that gold and silver vessels from a temple in Jerusalem will be used in the ceremony, which will be observed in elaborate setting. Included in the observance will be the Pascal lamb, unleavened bread, the eggs, empty chair, the brilliant silken robes, and the candlesticks.

Rev. Cohen was converted to Christianity about eighteen years ago and entered immediately upon the Christian ministry. He received his theological education in the Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth, and has preached continuously since that time over the country.

Brother Cohen makes his home in Greenville, S. C., but of late has been speaking in Texas. He has been in some of our larger and stronger churches, such as Waco, San Antonio, Lubbock, Amarillo, Abilene and others.

According to State Secretary Campbell, Dr. Jenkins, pastor of the First Church, Abilene, and many other of our state and denominational leaders, Brother Cohen is recognized as one of our most successful evangelists, and his mighty messages have created exceptional interest in the churches and communities where he has already been.

Every Christian and unsaved person in the community should hear these two messages Sunday, and the pastor especially urges every Sunday school and Bible student to be present to hear and see these messages. The church extends a cordial invitation to our friends from the other churches to be with us, especially for the afternoon service. Perhaps nowhere else in a lifetime can the great feast of the Passover be so clearly seen and understood as at this afternoon service.

SOCIAL WORKER VISITS

Mrs. Consuelo Gosnell, of El Paso, social worker with WPA in District 20, which embraces Terrell county, was a visitor here for several days this week.

RECEIVES BULLETINS

Government bulletins on many phases of ranching—sheep ranching in particular have been received at the office of the county agent, Ernest Williams. Any one interested may get them at the agent's office. They're free.

Del Rio Officials Declared Innocent

CITY SECRETARY AND OTHER OFFICIAL ACQUITTED ON PLEA FOR INSTRUCTED VERDICT BY DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Laredo, Texas, July 21. — City Secretary E. F. Howard and City Commissioner Otto Koog of Del Rio, today were found innocent of charges of embezzlement and conspiracy to embezzle public funds, upon recommendation of District Attorney John A. Valls.

The defense had rested its case Tuesday afternoon and several State rebuttal witnesses testified today. The trial came to an abrupt end when Valls asked the jury to return a verdict of innocence.

A. R. Benavides, foreman, signed the verdict.

The case was tried here on a change of venue from Del Rio. The State recommended the verdict because of insufficient evidence.

Terrell county as a potential oil field continues to hold interest, and leasing of acreage continues.

A recent lease was that by Bob Adams, New Mexico oil man who secured a lease embracing 4256 acres from Clyde Higgins. The land is in the Higgins ranch located in the eastern part of the county. Several other leases have been made by Mr. Adams in this county. He plans to put down a series of test wells, and all lease contracts made by him recently call for a test to a depth of at least 4000 feet or until oil is found in commercial quantity at a lesser depth.

Reports from the Sam Bell ranch, where the D. & K. Drilling Co. of Tulsa, Okla. has secured a block of leases, is that rapid progress is being made in setting up their rig and assembling machinery for a test well. It was reported that actual spudding in will be made within the next ten days. This test is being drilled in survey 68, block D-7.

Assignments of oil and gas leases continue to be placed on record at the clerk's office here. On Wednesday of this week six assignments were filed, from the McMullen Oil and Royalty Company, Inc., at Fort Worth, to A. C. Smith. Each assignment was for 40 acres out of block D-6, in surveys 1, 37, 41, 53, 69 and 71.

Another assignment recorded was oil and gas lease, from A. C. Smith to George W. Shugers and Carl G. Grabe, 40 acres out of survey 51, block D-6.

Balmorhea Sets Dates for Rodeo; August 7 and 8

The annual Madera Valley rodeo, which will be held August 7 and 8, is expected to draw one of the largest crowd in its history. It follows on the heels of Sanderson's rodeo, making the jump from one place to the other an easy one for performers and visitors.

The show will be put on at Toyahvale, where the largest outdoor swimming pool in the world is located.

A novelty planned is an armadillo derby, the first in history. Another is boat races and surfboard riding at Balmorhea Lake, but these items are dependent upon rains to augment the lake's level.

Labor Delegates Here Enroute to Mexican Capital

A group of Mexican labor delegates, traveling by bus, passed through Sanderson Wednesday morning enroute to Mexico City, D. F., from Mexicali, Mexico, to attend a Federation of Labor convention in the Mexican capital, sponsored by the C. R. M. O. There were nineteen in the party and were accompanied by a Mexican customs officer, and they seemed to be enjoying the trip. They will cross into Mexico at Laredo.

The labor convention will convene the latter part of this month.

STETSON HAT FOR QUEEN

In the display in the window of the Kerr Mercantile Co., is an assortment of extra gifts for excellence in rodeo events. Included is a $14.50 Stetson hat, to be given the young lady chosen as queen of the rodeo. Nine young ladies are listed, the latest being Miss Ruby Lee Haines.

"Lehman Opposes Court Reorganization Measure," made big headlines this week. Now what we'd like to know is whoinell is Lehman? Sounds like dry goods to us. Well, we're for it, because every time we see a picture of the members of that court we think of a tree full of owls—and we don't like owls.

Some scribes, censuring Miss Earhart's flight, contend that it could serve no purpose even if she had been successful. We'd like to hear these same editors' opinions of this bird Piccard who is trying to fly to heaven with a bunch of circus balloons.

Bought some "mosquito dope" the other day. The clerk guaranteed it was good for 'em. Guess it was, for the darned things are healthier than a week ago, with a bigger and better bite.

His alibi was that we had to catch them and drown them in the pungent solution, we'd have purchased a swatter.

We hear remarks about the huge sum spent in the search for Amelia Earhart. Bet those who are doing the loudest wailing still owe taxes for 1936.

Don't forget the rodeo. Cooperate to make it a success. Some merchants are doing this. More power to them. Cooperation is a great thing and we'll never forget the story told by a revered friend—the late Judge J. F. Ross of Pecos. "A mule and an ox were teamed by a farmer; the ox let the mule do all the pulling. Each night he boasted to the mule how he was putting it over on the farmer. One day he bragged a little louder and asked the mule if the farmer said anything about it. 'No,' said the mule, 'but I saw him talking to the butcher this evening!'"

A judge in El Paso was painfully injured recently when his feet slipped from his roll-top desk and his chair scooted from under him. He should take lessons from these white-collared boondogglers, and wear spurs.

The psychology of the human mind is beyond comprehension—or something. A fellow starting in business put a nice ad in the paper for patrons. He promised everything in the way of service with a smile (capital S). The first time we went to get a load of this service, we were grossly insulted for disturbing a domino game.

And there's the trailers. First intentions was to travel happy-go-lucky, dodge hotel bills, and tell the world to go to. Now the owners are howling for trailer camps, with electric lights, running water, and laundry service. Anybody with the sense of a woodpecker knows that these items run higher than would the bills at the average hotel or tourist camp.

Another twist of the human mind (if any) was during the late great war. Folks at home were buying Liberty bonds. We attended one, and in conversation with a friend, he stated: "Darned if I buy one tonight; I'm loaded up on 'em. When the two-minute speaker got through he purchased $500 worth. In a few days his patriotic ardor waned and he was cussing Uncle Sam because of the low rate of interest.

Whether the above is a desecration on psychology or the great indoor (and outdoor) American game of bellyaching, is a moot question, which our customers must decide for themselves.

Maybe WE'VE got the habit!

"Can't complain of the lack of rain any more," stated the Dispatch in its last issue, reporting that heavy rains had fallen there last week.

Fort Davis

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Alkire have taken over the Dispatch at Fort Davis, the editor and owner Marvin Hunter intending to take a course at an art institute in Chicago. The Alkires recently purchased the Hudspeth County News, operating it but a short time, when the original owner, Editor Warren, repurchased it.

Fort Stockton

R. W. Reed, in an interview reported in the Pioneer, states that he will run 400 mules on his Barrilla Spreadout ranch, near Fort Stockton. The mules belong to the Higginbotham Ranch Company, and were recently imported from Old Mexico.

Marfa

The Big Bend Sentinel reported last week that $77,000 had been appropriated for improvements at Fort D. A. Russell, receiving the okay of the House Military Committee, and that of the President. When the money is available it will be used to erect sheds for guns, machines and motors at the fort.

McCahey

The News reports that from the ashes of the recent blaze which totally destroyed the Grand Theatre and damaged a block of business buildings, will rise a new Grand, modern in every way. In the interim movie addicts of the oil town are being entertained at an open air theatre.

Barstow

The Ward County News, in its issue last week, predicts an era of prosperity for that place, based on a bumper crop of 5,000 bales of cotton; and on the equally good money crop of alfalfa seed. The threshers are now at work on the latter, and the yield is from 400 to 500 pounds of seed per acre.

Pecos

Crops in the 7 irrigated districts served by Red Bluff dam, are in excellent condition, states the Pecos Enterprise, adding that more water is being received in the reservoir that is being distributed, and that the present storage is estimated at 260,000 acre feet, estimated by officials as sufficient for another year.

Alpine

A brand new theatre, the Ritz, was scheduled to have its formal opening yesterday, according to the Avalanche. The new manager is Robert Mann, who is introducing a new scale of prices for this section, 25c being tops.

Uvalde

Bank deposits in this city, according to the Leader-News have increased this year, over those of last year, $208,000. Wool and mohair sales and the prevailing high prices are said to be responsible for the increase.

Uvalde

Sale of beer on Sunday is being made an issue in this city, reports the Leader-News, and a "gentleman's agreement" between officers and those handling the beverage is now in force "until the legal status of Sunday sales of beer is settled by the courts."

Jimmy Goodykoontz is visiting with relatives in San Antonio this week.

Ravens Larger Than Crow Larger than a crow, not as large as a vulture, ravens measure nearly two feet from beak to tip of tail. Their glossy black plumage, inky beaks and jetlike eyes give them a funereal appearance which is heightened by the hoarse croaks they emit. Ravens have been tenants of the London Tower for so long that no one knows when they first came. One may conjecture that not long after William the Conqueror founded this great fortress, ravens flew in from the then-surrounding forests to nest on its high turrets.

State Authorities Issue Traffic Control Manual

Illustrations above from "Creating Safer Communities," the manual of traffic safety activities, just published by authorities for statewide use show a variety of recommended safety procedures. J. M. MONTGOMERY

Issues Manual For Guidance To Safe Driving

Governor Allred announced this week the publication of a manual "Creating Safe Communities," and urges the cooperation of all towns in organizing safety councils.

The book of 50 pages is full of illustrations showing a variety of recommended safety procedures. The publication is divided into 6 parts: Organization of local committee, preparation and use of accident facts, the educational program, enforcement, engineering, and the rural problem.

"I have been repeatedly asked" Governor Allred said, "what can our community do about traffic accidents and how shall we do it?" The manual answers this question.

"I hope the mayor and civic organizations in towns where there is no safety council will back me in this statewide traffic safety campaign by writing for this manual and organizing to combat traffic accidents. It is up to individual communities to apply the recommended safety procedure and thus create safer communities."

Tourist Enroute To San Antonio Dies Suddenly

Edmund Deyo, 54, and a veteran of the World War, dropped dead here Friday morning at about 12:15, a few minutes after a Tour coach, enroute to San Antonio, reached Sanderson. He was one a party making the trip which originated in El Paso.

Arriving here Mr. Deyo got out of the coach, presumably for a walk, but had hardly left the vehicle when a heart attack seized him. Medical aid was summoned immediately, but the man was dead when the physician arrived. Acute dilation of the heart was, supposedly, the direct cause of death. Members of the party said he suffered a similar attack at Alpine, but rallied.

Mr. Deyo, who had been in ill health, was enroute to San Antonio for a course of treatment. Letters on his person gave the name of a San Antonio woman, a dietitian, under whose care he was to be placed. She, in turn, placed W. E. Stirman, of the local funeral home, in touch with Mrs. Leah Marquart, of New Paltz, N. Y., who instructed that the body be prepared and shipped to that place for burial. The body left here 7 o'clock p. m. Saturday.

This Week—Remember?

(From Times, July 22, 1927) Last Sunday evening at the home of Rev. Buren Sparks, Baptist minister in Alpine, Ruel Adams of this city and Miss Sarah Freeman of Marfa were united in marriage.

Approximately $5,000 worth of new pumping machinery has been purchased by the Texas Louisiana Power Co. to be used on the two new wells now in operation and on one nearing completion. A further improvement will be the erection of a 200,000-gallon storage tank.

Alton Franklin has returned from Fort Sam Houston where he attended the C. M. T. C.

Fred Charlton came in from the west of the week from San Antonio for a visit of several days with his father, N. E. Charlton.

Miss Eunice Murphree of Comstock is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Sam Harrell.

FOR SALE

I have a few choice yearling and two-year-old Rambouillet bucks for sale. Big growthy fellows.—H. C. Goldwire, Sanderson, Texas.

Capt. Jeff Vaughan, who resides in the Marfa country, spent Wednesday and Thursday visiting with his brother, Bill Vaughan, and Mrs. Vaughan.

John Stovell, engineer, and with C. E. Armstrong & Sons general contractors, came in from Odessa Wednesday night and spent the remainder of the week here. While here he did some surveying work on the Downie ranch.

"Boog" Barnett of Alpine was in Sanderson for several days this week attending to business and visiting with friends.

N. C. Rogers left Monday for Italy, Texas, where he will visit with relatives for several weeks.

MRS. ROOSEVELT LIKES FAIR "SAMPLE"

NEW YORK (Special).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, like more than 200,000 other persons from all over the world, has already sampled the New York World's Fair of 1939 by visiting the exhibit the Fair Corporation maintains for the public on the Fifth Avenue floor of the Empire State building.

"I am much interested in this Fair," said Mrs. Roosevelt, after she had seen the ingeniously illuminated models and animated displays that promise so many wonders for the "Nation's Fair."

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the garden, where bright colored lights illuminated the scene. Later in the evening the couple left on a motor trip to Monterey.

Mrs. Lewis was a frequent visitor in Sanderson last summer with her brother, Dr. P. W. Mallory, and Mrs. Mallory.

Mrs. Mata Wheeler came in Monday from her ranch near Rocksprings and is visiting with Mrs. Grace Wheeler.

DAUGHTER TO COX'S

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Cox are the parents of a daughter, which arrived at their home here on Monday, July 19.

Mrs. L. H. Lemons and daughter Miss Adair Edmiston left Monday for San Antonio.

Miss Doris Cochran left Tuesday for San Antonio where she will visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cochran.

"Maytime" is Another Spectacular Triumph for Two of Screen's Idols

Splendid in every meaning of the word, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's first lavish musical offering for 1937, comes to the Princess Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, July 28 and 29, with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy in the starring roles.

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy have not been seen together on the screen for a year. They rose to unique dual stardom in "Naughty Marietta" and then in "Rose Marie."

In the supporting cast of "Maytime," John Barrymore plays a picturesque role as the temperamental impresario, his first since the memorable "Romeo and Juliet," which was one of the sensational pictures of 1936. There is a newcomer in the cast, Lynne Carver, a delicately beautiful young singer from the Kentucky Blue Grass Region who sings and acts unusually well.

In love with Nelson Eddy, a young singer, Jeanette MacDonald, an opera star, actuated by a mistaken sense of duty, marries John Barrymore, the impresario to whom she owes her career. When circumstances bring her and the singer together again, they realize their love is stronger than before. Mad with insane jealousy the husband kills the singer. The tragedy answers the problem of the young girl who is drawn between a choice of love and a career.

Gripping Social Problem Theme Of Film Monday

Whether cut and dried court methods are sufficient to weigh the fitness of a mother to have the custody of her child is the vital problem which keys the action of "Midnight Madonna," the drama which comes to the Princess Theatre Monday night, July 26, for one night only.

Taking a long step forward toward turning the spotlight of public opinion on legal procedure notoriously limited in its ability to weigh the all-important "human factor," the new screen drama is considered one of the most thought-provoking documents to reach the screen.

Basically the plot centers about the efforts of a wastrel father, played by Robert Baldwin, to obtain the custody of his 4-year-old daughter played by Kitty Clancy, who is made heiress of a huge estate. Because the mother is a night club entertainer, she is held not to be a fit person to rear the youngster.

Mady Correll, a newcomer to the screen from the New York stage, plays the mother role. She is aided in her fight to keep her baby by Warren William, a happy go lucky gambler.

The picture fearlessly portrays the means employed by crooked lawyers to wrest children from parents in the high game of legal trickery where huge estates are involved. In this it is an exact reflection of several similar cases which have made headlines during recent months.

The picture is laid against a brilliant background of night life in New York, and in her role as entertainer Miss Correll, a sterling beauty, sings two popular songs written expressly for this film.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Williams were week end visitors on the Baylor ranch near Alpine where they visited with Mr. Williams' brother, Robert Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Walker came in Saturday night from Denton and will visit here for several weeks with Mrs. Walker's parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Lester.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Harms were business visitors in San Antonio Saturday and Sunday.

WEEKLY Health Letter

IMMUNIZE CHILDREN

Texas loses more than 300 of its children each year from diphtheria, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer. It was responsible for 351 deaths in 1936.

If you have a child six months or more old, you are advised to take him to your physician and ask that a Shick test be made to determine whether the child is susceptible or immune from diphtheria—for 75 to 90 per cent of children under 12 years of age ARE susceptible.

Information that as high as 90 per cent of children under twelve are susceptible was gained from Shick tests carried out on thousands of children during the past decade, and indicates that young children should receive immunizing treatment against diphtheria without a preliminary Shick test. Such a test should, however, be carried out six months after preventive treatment, to make certain that immunity has been established. In older children and adults a preliminary Shick test is advisable, since immunity may already be present.

Diphtheria immunization is accomplished by the injection of toxoid. Your physician can tell if the immunization was successful by giving the Shick test four to six months after the last toxoid treatment. It takes that long for protection to develop.

There is no guess work about toxoid, it is a safe and proven preventive. The wise parent will take his child to the family doctor now, before school opens and have him protected against danger of contracting diphtheria.

Mrs. Jim Kerr has returned from San Antonio where she has been visiting relatives for the past two weeks.

McDuffy Kessler, local employee of the Community Public Service Company, left the first of the week on a vacation trip to Seymour, Texas, where he will visit relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Nunn were week end visitors in San Antonio.

"KILLER SHIP"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

I've told you stories about human killers, and I've spun you tales about animal killers. This is the story of a killer ship.

Carl L. Rynning told me this story. It happened to him in 1902 when he found he was broke and out of a job in S. Africa, signed on windjammer for a trip to South America.

The windjammer was the bark Albatross, which had just brought a load of corn over from Buenos Aires and was going back to the same port in ballast. There it would pick up a load of wheat and return to East London, Cape Colony. That suited Carl's plans, so he sailed away one morning at daybreak, and six weeks later, after an uneventful trip, the Albatross entered the Plata river and docked at Buenos Aires.

So far, everything had gone smoothly, but they had no sooner began loading for the return trip than it became evident that the Albatross was none too seaworthy a craft. When the sand ballast had been taken out of the hold, the water began coming in through the seams. That didn't bother the captain any to speak of. He just let the ship settle in the mud, and when the mud got into the seams and closed them up, he began loading again.

Many a sailor would have quit the ship then and there. But Carl wanted to get back to South Africa. He stayed on for the return trip, but the ship was hardly out of the river again before he began to regret it.

These Stowaways Were Not Pleasant Ones

The weather was fair enough for the moment. It was late June and the old tub was wallowing along before a fair breeze. But it was the rats that bothered Carl. Swarms of them had come aboard while the ship was loading grain, and now they were threatening to take over the ship. "We must have half the rats in the Argentine with us," Carl says. "They were everywhere. We found them in the pockets of our clothes—in our bunks—and in short, everywhere we looked. While we were lying asleep, we were awakened by the animals crawling across our faces, and we had to lie perfectly still while we felt their cold feet and tails tickling our noses. Many a time I stepped on one when I got out of bed to go on watch.

The rats were bad enough, but as they neared Africa, things became worse. A heavy gale blew up, and quickly increased to hurricane force. The seas mounted until they seemed to be fifty feet high, and the old ship, with nothing but a storm trisail up, was plunging ahead at half again her usual speed.

For a day the ship withstood the buffeting of the gale but that night at about eight bells, the carpenter sounded the bilges and reported to the captain that there was four feet of water in the hold. The captain ordered all hands to the pumps.

No Life Preservers—They Must Stay With the Ship

The crew worked grimly at those pumps—because they knew they were working for the lives. "Four feet of water," says Carl, "is bad in any ship in a storm. It was especially bad in this rotten old tub. We had no life preservers and the lifeboats were so rotten that they would fall apart if any attempt was made to raise them off their cradles.

The men pumped for 5 hours and the carpenter sounded the bilges again. This time there was five feet of water in the bilges. In spite of all the men could do it had gained a foot. They kept on pumping, but the captain was worried. At three o'clock in the morning, when the crew was so exhausted that hardly a one of them could stand up to the pumps he called them all into his cabin. Wet and hungry, they trooped in, and the captain told them bluntly that he didn't know what to do and wanted to get the men's opinions.

There were two courses they could follow. Land wasn't far distant. In the sky they could see the reflection of the Cape of Good Hope light. They could keep on pumping and try to make port, or they could run the ship on the rocks, giving the men a chance to be washed ashore if they escaped being killed by the wreckage, or pulled to their deaths by the undertow.

Mate Discovers What the Trouble Was

There wasn't a chance of keeping the ship afloat until they reached port. The men all knew it. The chief mate was for piling the boat on the rocks, and the men agreed with him. The ship was turned about and headed for the shore. "And we were a silent crew as we worked," says Carl, "for we knew that in a few hours we would crash—then what?"

But suddenly the mate made a discovery. Before the bark had been turned toward shore she had been running on her starboard tack, with the port side deep down in the water. When they came about the wind and the seas were astern, and came up on an even keel. And now, the mate, looking over the port side, saw a stream of water coming out of a great gap in the hull of the ship at a point which had been submerged a few moments ago. It was the cause of all their troubles. A piece of floating timber had struck the side of the ship and rammed a hole in the rotten plank.

The wind was dying out by that time. The carpenter rigged a scaffold over the side, filled the hole with bags of oakum and nailed a heavy canvas over it. "We hove to," says Carl, "and it was with a different feeling that we manned those pumps again. It was six in the morning now, and we pumped until eleven, when the pumps began sucking air, and we knew she was empty. We were all tired, but we were happy. Six days after that we entered the harbor of East London, where the whole town turned out to view the battered looking wreck as it came limping in. And thus ended that never-to-be-forgotten voyage of the bark Albatross."

SACRIFICE HIT

By WILLIS BRINDLEY
Copyright—WNU Service

MR. J. ELWELL GREER, general manager of the Ne Plus Ultra Washing Machine Corporation had a habit of blowing off before anyone who happened to be in his presence at the time.

Astonished salesmen for type-writer ribbons thus heard from his lips diatribes on unfair competition; stenographers knew first hand what kind of a robber was the man who sold meat to Mrs. Greer, and office boys—

For example, upon the morning that this story opens, Sliver Fry, having opened in the presence of Mr. Greer a wooden box sent in by a dealer in Ne Plus Ultra machines, lifted therefrom a paper-wrapped package, oozing bolts and nuts from its torn ends and belted about its middle by a single string.

"Not the slightest bit of ingenuity," stormed Mr. Greer.

"Yessir," said Sliver.

"Never saw an assistant shipping clerk that had a lick of sense."

"Nossir," agreed Jimmy.

"He had this package ready to go with a string around it lengthwise and one around each end, and I saw it and thought it needed additional wrapping. Tie a string around the middle, and look what he went and did—took off the other string, and just tied one around the middle, and of course half the stuff lost out. What I need around this place is an assistant shipping clerk with gumption, guts and get-up."

"Yessir," said Sliver Fry, and squeezed the ends of the offending package to hold in the contents, and eased it into the wooden box and started to leave, but at the door he paused.

"You coming to the big game this afternoon?"

"What big game? No!"

Sliver Fry sagged in astonishment and barely recovered balance and the box. Then he set down the box and walked over to the edge of the table where Mr. Greer had started to paw over the papers.

"This is the final game of the season, Mr. Greer," he said, with the earnestness of a crusader. "You remember when you got us our suits and you said to me 'the motto of the Ne Plus Ultra baseball team is 'We Clean 'Em All.' You remember that, don't you? Well, we've been cleanin' 'em."

"Of course, of course, and this is Saturday, so there's another game, and this is the final, eh?"

"Yup—I mean yessir. It's us and the Merry Mundays now. We cleaned Washo-Cleano and the Little Giants and the Evercleans; and the Merry Mundays they cleaned the Nine O'Clocks and the Copper Clads and the Billion Bubbles, so that leaves it up to the Merry Mundays and N. P. Es to decide the championship, and you got to be there."

Mr. Greer smiled. Of late years he had lost track of baseball and yet—

"How's your pitcher?"

Sliver Fry teetered and regarded his boss through half closed lids.

"Pete Finn's our pitcher, Mr. Greer," he said, "and Pete's good only—"

He stopped and teetered again, wagging his head sadly.

"Pete's liable to go wild in a pinch. He can pitch against these bum teams we've been licking, all right, all right, but some of us are afraid that when he goes up against the Merry Munday bunch—there's been some talk, on the quiet, about a ringer."

"About a what?"

"A ringer. An outside guy with a wing on him that we can slip in if we need him."

Mr. Greer's lips closed in a hard line and his head shook in vigorous dissent.

"Absolutely no! I'm glad you mentioned it. We mustn't play anyone unless he's actually an employe. That must be understood."

"Yessir," said Sliver. That's what I told the guys. This guy I had in mind is just about my age only he's a foot taller and he's a southpaw. But of course—"

"Of course," said Mr. Greer, decisively. "I think I'll arrange to be there."

"Yessir," said Sliver and slunk

out with the box which he carried to the shipping room, and then used as a seat, upon which for a long time he perched unhappily, immersed in gloomy thoughts, for in his bones he felt that Pete, redoubtable among the weak batters of the teams already defeated, would be sure to blow up when he got in a tight hole against the Merry Mundays, and there was, in the force of the Ne Plus Ultra, a man worthy to take the mound in a crisis. And yet there must be some way out, for no sacrifice would be too great if only thereby the team might win.

It proved a tight game. For six innings neither side scored. Pete Finn pitched 'em in a groove, and the Merry Mundays could not connect—for six innings.

But the first man at bat in the beginning of the seventh inning caught the ball on the nose for three bags, and the second man at bat slammed out a low one that got him to first and brought in the run. Sliver Fry, his small face contorted with grief, ran to where Mr. Greer sat watching the game from his parked car and handed him a note.

"Watch me," he hissed, "and don't read it until I hold up two fingers." Then he ran back to the bench to shout encouragement to the pitcher.

"Bawl one!"

"St-r-r-ike one!"

"Bawl two!"

"Bawl three!"

"Bawl four! Take your base!"

Pete held blown up. From behind the small grandstand trotted a long, cadaverous youth who, as one acting upon instructions, well learned, stepped into the pitcher's box.

Immediately ensued a mighty huzzah. Mr. Greer, straining to make out the features of the new player who towered calmly above the mob, was compelled to admit that he had never seen him before. His mind flashed back to that talk with Sliver Fry this morning—the mention of a possible ringer. And now a small figure in the edge of the knot of quarreling players, held up two fingers. Mr. Greer fumbled in his pocket for the folded note that Sliver had handed him, and as he unfolded it he saw approaching with angry strides the captain of the Merry Mundays. The words of the note danced before astonished eyes.

"The new guy is Lefty O'Brien. Sliver Fry quit today and Lefty O'Brien got his job. Don't forget."

The angry captain was upon him. Mr. Greer saw only a mighty jaw, thrust far, with lower teeth that stuck out like the teeth of a pit bull.

"You Mister Greer?" demanded the jaw. "What's the big idea bringing in a ringer at this stage in the game? Who is this new guy anyway?"

"The new guy is Lefty O'Brien," said Mr. Greer, and his jaw stuck out as defiantly as the jaw of the Merry Munday man. "Sliver Fry quit today and Lefty O'Brien got his job. How does that suit you?"

It didn't suit the Merry Munday man at all, at all, but the game went on and Lefty definitely clinched the game. Mr. Greer stood up on the seat of his car and yelled himself hoarse.

Climbing down then, he found Sliver Fry on the running board, holding out a very dirty paw and Mr. Greer wagged it joyously. And then he sobered, remembering the note, and Sliver Fry sobered too.

"I'll get a job, Mr. Greer, all right," said Sliver. "But I don't think I'll ever like to work for any other guy as much as you."

Mr. Greer hesitated for the split quarter of a minute. Then he smiled, delighted with the answer he had found.

"Your friend, Lefty O'Brien gets your job, so that there can't be any er—squawk—from the Mundays, but what did I say to you this morning about the kind of a man I wanted for assistant clerk? I said I wanted a man with gumption, guts, and get-up. You're it."

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Reese of Dallas were Sanderson visitors this week with Mrs. Reese's brother, Odie Wickliffe and Mrs. Wickliffe.

Definitions of "Dollars"
Jud Tunkins says one reason finance is so hard to understand is that the word "dollars" may have millions of definitions, ranging from ham and eggs to the equipment of an army.

RANGE ROAMING WITH County Agent

The following information was received by the county agent last week:

"Where an old tank dam has washed out, or where a tank has silted up to where the tank is worthless as a watering place, payment may be made for dirt moved in making a tank in the same location as the old tank. In border line cases the county committee shall determine whether or not the old tank is worthless as a watering place."

If a new dam is built on the old location, even though there might be some remains of the old dam, it will be considered as the construction of a tank or reservoir. If there is a dam already in place, which is holding water it would be considered a reservoir and payment for same could not be made.

Burning Cedar Under Range Building Practice No. 62

Members of the state committee have made a very thorough investigation of the question of burning cedar. At their last meeting the following resolution was passed:

"The the following policy be adopted in regard to burning cedar on ranches claiming payment for rescuing the land from this plant (1) Compliance must first be made by either cutting or pulling; (2) It is optional with the individuals as to whether or not the cedar is to be burned in whole or in part from their ranges; (3) Range must be inspected for performance prior to burning, and payment will not be certified if burned prior to inspections."

County committees should advise producers that the burning of cedar may destroy palatable plants growing on the range and increase erosion, and that this fact may seriously reduce the appraised carrying capacity for subsequent years.

There are several ranchers in the county who plan to spend all or most of their allotment under the range program for construction of spreader dams, terraces, and pasture ridges. A spreader dam is a dam built directly across a gully or wash to stop water and is similar to a dirt tank in that it will also, in some cases, make a good water hole. A terrace is built out from each end of the dam that takes water that otherwise would rush down the creek doing no good and lots of damage and spreads it out over a wide area where it soaks into the ground. This water spreads slowly and does no washing. In the wide flats north and northeast of Sanderson buffalo grass grows wherever the water is slowed down enough to allow it to soak into the ground. Roadbeds in lots of cases act as terraces. This grass ranks higher than mesquite grass and most of the grammas as a sheep feed, and anything done to slow up the water will tend to make it spread.

Many ranchers intend to spend their allotment on dirt tanks and headers. In many cases when the work is completed they will have some of the allotment left, not enough to build other tanks, but sufficient to build several miles of terraces, which cost from $5.20 to $20.80 per mile, depending on their type. It will not cost the rancher any money to try this practice, as the dirt moving outfits in the county can construct them at the rate allowed under the range conservation practice.

The county agent has all equipment necessary to locate these terraces and will be glad to assist any rancher at any time.

Know Texas

(T. S. C. W. Feature Service)
Denton.—As Texans whisk by the cement posts of modern highway bridges they seldom realize what a great number of these structures have been built to fill the needs of the state's wide-spread highway system. On January 1 of this year there were a total of 7,127 bridges maintained on state highways, and by far the largest amount of these, 4,855, were concrete. This figure does not include underpasses and overpasses, of which there are 311.

Largest Cities
Even with the friendly rivalry between several Texas cities as to population totals, surprisingly few people know the ranking of the ten largest cities in the state. According to the 1930 census the city of Houston heads the list with 292,352, Dallas and San Antonio are in second and third places, and Fort Worth, El Paso, Beaumont, Austin, Galveston, Waco and Port Arthur follow in order.

Topping Them All
Highest mountain in Texas is Guadalupe Peak, located near El Paso in the extreme western section of the state and rising 9,000 feet above sea level. Forming the southern end of the Guadalupe mountains in Culberson county, it is quite a hill, even though not comparing with the 29,140 feet of Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain.

The Egyptian Scarab
The Scarab is made of many of stones. In many varieties the Egyptians copied the scarabaeus or sacred beetle. The ancient Egyptians took the beetle for their symbol of creation. They associated the symbol with their god Khepera, who rolled sun across the sky as he rolled its egg. The Egyptians believed that by wearing the scarab they absorbed the strength of the sun.
