RATTLERS HERE FOR DERBY

With less than a week off for Sanderson's third annual rodeo, preparations have been completed and everything is in readiness for the days events. Advance reports are that a large crowd will be here and that there will be many entrants for the various events.

Wednesday afternoon 20 large snakes were received by Joe Endler, the promoter, from P. Brown, McCamey promoter. They will stage the rattlesnake derby, a new event this year. Mr. Brown expects to bring about 60 snakes with him next week and this promises to be a thrilling event, indeed.

Such interest is prevailing in the queen's race and the various ladies whose names have entered in the contest have been busy this week soliciting votes. To the winner of the race Sanderson hat will be given and a young lady so honored will be crowned on Wednesday night at the Princess Theatre. Those who enter in the contest include Misses Taylor, Dorothy Sullivan, Betty Lewellyn, Mildred Unwood, Nelle Lea, Mary Fern, Ethel Laura Nance, Ruth Graham, Ruby Lee Haines, and Betty Banner.

Thursday, the first day of the rodeo there will be a free barbecue with all the trimmings, under shade trees at the courthouse. The first of the week Mesdames in Whistler and Wallace Hen will solicit from the ladies Sanderson cakes, pies, salads, and for the barbecue.

The rodeo events will open at 10 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with a parade which will be headed by the queen and all the riders and others will be in line of parade. The parade will end at the American Legion east of town where the rodeo events will be held both days. The Legion park will be thoroughly sprinkled before the contest each day, thus insuring the comfort and patrons that they will not be annoyed with dust. Good purses have been assured those taking part in the various events and extra prizes are offered by the various merchants in the calf roping, goat riding, bronc riding and wild cow riding events.

Each night at the C. A. C. hall a big dance will be given with the Joe Buzze orchestra furnishing the music for dancing.

CARNIVAL COMING
Here during the rodeo will be the Texas Kid's Shows, with sixty people, presenting riding exhibitions. Local bronc busters will be given a chance to ride some of the stock and prizes amounting as high as $100 will be offered those who won't scratch leathers. The show has been a Texas institution for 30 years.

PHOTOGRAPHER HERE
T. F. Sexton, professional photographer arrived here last Monday and has been busy this week snapping the beauty and other scenes of our city. Sexton has had many years experience and his work is high-class and artistic.

Lambs in Demand At Good Prices; Many Sales Made

Despite the hot month and continued dry weather in this section, cool cash is finding its way into the hands of our ranchers. There is such a demand for lambs now, and buyers are swarming in here offering 8c and 8½c a pound for lambs. Large shipments of feeder lambs are going out of Sanderson these days, consigned to points in the north where they will be ranged in the corn fields, and then rushed to the feed pens for a quick finish before marketing.

Ben Gilbert, local buyer reports the following purchases this week: 2,000 ewes $4.50 to $5 a head from Fannie Woodward; 1,000 ewes from Frank K. Harrell; 800 ewes from Horton Haley, and 700 yearling ewes from Russell Menzies.

Local Employees Of S. P. Get $7000 Pension Refund

Between 178 and 190 Southern Pacific railway employees in Sanderson this week received a refund on money collected under the old employees' pension contribution which has been declared unconstitutional, according to information given out to the Times by C. J. Watts, local agent. Around $7,000 was the sum refunded here in Sanderson alone.

This old act passed in 1935 went into effect in March, 1936, and continued through March, 1937. During this time, employees paid 3½ per cent on their salary. After the act was declared unconstitutional, provisions were made for the refund of the whole 3½ per cent from March, 1936, to Dec. 31, 1937, only 2¼ per cent will be refunded.

Southern Pacific employees, both railway and steamship, scattered over Texas, Louisiana and the far west will be affected by the refund, making a total of about 34,000 employees. The refund will amount to around $795,000.

Railway officials and labor organization officials have worked together with the government and a new act devoid of some of the more objectionable features of the old act, has been passed.

SOME DON'T BELIEVE IT

It still pays to advertise! At least that's how the Concho Chevrolet Co. feels about the matter. The local company recently advertised in the classified section of the Standard-Times the fact that a 1934 model Chevrolet truck was on the lot ready for sale. J. W. Leatherwood of Sanderson read the ad, came in to look at the truck and he's now using it in his business. He paid cash for it.—San Angelo Standard-Times.

LEASES RANCH

Ray Willoughby, who has been ranching in Brewster county, has leased the Ben H. Brown ranch from Mr. and Mrs. Francis Mansfield, and will be given possession on August 1. He has leased the ranch for three years.

Two Are Injured When Tire Blows Out on Pickup

Clyde Higgins, local rancher, received bruises and was knocked unconscious for a few minutes Tuesday night when his pickup left the road and went into the ditch. The accident was due to a blowout. The car was loaded with feed and left the road when it struck the end of a culvert. Vario, Mexican employe for Mr. Higgins, riding in the back end on top of the feed, was thrown several feet and his injuries consisted of cuts and bruises about the face, three teeth being knocked out, and an injury to his left shoulder.

Passing motorists brought the injured parties to town where they were given treatment.

The accident occurred about midnight Tuesday, about 5 miles east of here. Mr. Higgins was enroute to his ranch at the time.

Many Business Firms Installing Electric Signs

Sanderson is assuming a distinct cosmopolitan atmosphere—especially at night, due to the enterprise of several of the city's business firms, who have installed Neon signs, to drivers out to get a breath of cool night air, and tourists, the town's all "lit up."

The following firms has installed these lights, or will have installed them by the end of this week: Frank's Super Service, Loma Alta Cafe, Kerr Hotel, Dr. R. E. Lester, City Drug, Buffet Cafe, and McKnight Motor Co.

DR. SHARP TO CORPUS

Iraan, July 24.—Dr. and Mrs. James C. Sharp and son, Jimmie, are leaving August 1 for Corpus Christi where Dr. Sharp will open an office. He has operated the Iraan hospital for two years, coming here from Sanderson.—San Angelo Standard.

Rig For Test at Bell Ranch About Ready to Spud in

That attention is centered on Terrell county as a potential oil field is evidenced by the continued activity in leasing, the many assignments being made, and the number of tests that will soon be getting under way.

There is no change in the status at the Sam Bell ranch test, except that they have got farther along on erection of the rig and assembling of drilling machinery, it was stated. This work is so advanced that many believe the test will be spudded in within a few days. The land has been leased by the D. & K. Drilling Company of Tulsa, Okla., who will put down the test. The location is in survey 68, block D-7, Terrell county, an area that has been very favorably reported by geologists.

The latest assignments and leases filed for record at the office of the county clerk here, follow:

Assignment of oil and gas lease, Fred S. O'Neill to Bartha McLellan, 2½ acres out of survey 43, and 2½ acres out of survey 37, block D-6.

Assignment of oil and gas lease, A. C. Smith to Leroy E. Russell, 40 acres out of survey 49, block D-6.

Assignment of oil and gas lease, A. C. Smith to Lillian A. Russell, 40 acres out of survey 51, block D-6.

Assigning of remaining interest of oil and gas assignment, Marion Briggs et ux to Elizabeth Pickard, 5110 acres in block D-5, covering surveys 17, 19, 21, 13, 15, 14, 18 and 20.

ON VACATION TRIP

D. B. Herbert left last Saturday for Los Angeles, where he joined Mrs. Herbert and children who have been visiting there for the past two weeks. Mr. Herbert is on his vacation from duties as day roundhouse foreman in the T. & N. O. shops here. He plans a trip to San Francisco and other points on the coast before returning home, expecting to be gone three weeks.

Plan to Raise Million Dollars To Purchase Land For Park

At a meeting of the Brewster county chamber of commerce in Alpine last Monday, a plan was adopted by the board of directors to raise through popular subscription the sum of $1,000,000 for the purchase of land in the Chisos mountains designated by the U. S. government as a National Park, and the daily and weekly newspapers of the state were requested to sponsor the plan through editorials and otherwise, and to accept donations for this purpose.

The plan contemplates that the Texas State Park Board shall have exclusive control of any funds raised for this purpose, also that every cent donated shall be spent only for the purchase of land in the park area, this land to be deeded for the present to the Texas State Park Board and later to the United States Government for a Big Bend National Park.

Since the meeting much publicity has been given the movement and some fund have already been collected, and the fund started. Nearby towns have already organized their committees and the entire state is cooperating in purchase plan

work started to collect the town's share toward the purchase of the land.

At the regular luncheon meeting of the Sanderson Rotary club held Wednesday, E. E. Townsend of Alpine addressed the members and told of the plans and purposes of the move launched by the Alpine chamber of commerce, and after his talk, the club went on record as sponsoring the movement in Terrell county, and a committee of three will be appointed to solicit and receive any money that Sanderson and Terrell county citizens wish to subscribe toward the purchase of the land.

This section, at present, is experiencing some of the hottest weather in over a quarter of a century. No matter the daytime temperature, the night, as a rule, have been cool. W. E. Stirman, a resident for 30 years, stated the other day that during his long residence he remembered but two nights that were too hot for comfort, but that during July we've already had five such nights.

Continued lack of rain is given as the cause.

Rotarians Take Over Park Move In Terrell County

The main subject of discussion at the regular meeting of the Sanderson Rotary club on Wednesday at the Kerr Hotel was the proposed Big Bend International Park. E. E. Townsend of Alpine, was a guest of the club and made a talk in which he pointed out the work which has been done on the project, what the project actually is at the present time, what such a park would mean to Texas and more especially to this section of the state and, finally, he explained the plan which is now being worked upon. This is that one million people in Texas give one dollar each in order to secure funds with which to purchase the land which will be included in the proposed park area. After the land is thus purchased from private owners, it will be donated to the federal government, and the park will become a reality. Mr. Townsend stated that Mexico is now ready to complete their part of the project, so as to make it an international affair. The club voted to appoint a committee to raise funds in Terrell county.

Other guests of the club were Roy King, and Herbert Smith, and each made a brief talk.

Secretary D. L. Duke reported that some work had already been done in hauling materials for the proposed Boy Scout home which is to be located in the southeast corner of the court house yard. This is one of the main projects which the local Rotary club is sponsoring for the current year, in conjunction with the local post of the American Legion. The secretary of the club also reported that Sanderson was the first club, out of a total of some 40 in the district, to get its last report into the district chairman.

The Sanderson Rotary club now has some twenty members, and has a number of projects for community progress under discussion. Harry McAdams is the president of the club.

WEEKLY Health Letter

PELEGRA

Austin.—"Pellegra is a disease that is caused by not eating the right kind of food and shows itself usually by a strange kind of reddening and scaling of the skin," said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer.

"The person with pellegra usually suffers loss of appetite, indigestion, diarrhea, soreness of the mouth and tongue, nervousness, low spirits and more or less general weakness.

"Thousands of Texans suffer from this disease and approximately one thousand die each year. Most cases appear in the spring and early summer months than at any time of the year. This is because more people live on a restricted diet during the winter. It comes to those whose diet does not contain all that is needed to keep one in good health. The missing essential in the diet is called the pellegra prevention factor or vitamin. We know this because people who eat the right kind of food do not have the disease, because those who do have the disease and eat the right kind of food do get well and remain well as long as they maintain a proper diet, and also when people are fed the wrong kind of food they develop the disease. Pellegra is not a communicable disease. The treatment should be directed by your doctor, and the main thing is diet. Do not rely on patent medicines.

"STREAK OF DEATH"

By FLOYD GIBSONS

Famous Headline Writer

YOU know, boys and girls, about half of our battle to live is fought against ourselves and other people, and the other half is fought against Old Dame Nature. For every Bill Jones that got himself caught in the whirling power of man-made machinery or had to fight for his life against some vicious or cruel fellow human, there is a Pete Smith, who finds himself in a jam with an earthquake or a wild animal, or some other of Mother Nature's tricks of destruction.

I wouldn't attempt to say which type of adventure is worse. I've got a hunch that one is just about as bad as the other. But there is something about Dame Nature's right hook to the jaw that makes them more terrifying than the others. I guess that's because we do not understand Nature so well as we understand ourselves and the machines we create.

And here's the story of a boat with Nature, sent to me by Mrs. John J. Spross of Keppert, N. J. It's one of those things that might happen to anybody and everybody. And when it came along, it threw the whole Spross family into a spittle, senseless panic.

Adventure came to the Spross family in the dead of night. They were all sleeping—Mother, Dad and the children. The Spross had four children then, but only three of them were at home. The other was away for the night. The evening had been cloudy and threatening. The sky had been black overhead when they had gone to bed. And now, suddenly, they were awakened out of sound sleep by a series of loud, crashing reports.

This Was No Ordinary Storm, No, Sir!

The din was so terrific that the Sprosses jumped out of bed. It was a thunderstorm—but what a storm. The first evening peal of the rain quickly rose to a loud, drumming roar. The wind howled, and the thunder, punctuated by bright flashes of lightning, sounded like a battery of siren guns being fired right beside the house.

Now people pay much attention to a night thunderstorm. Some folks sleep right through them. Others get up and shut the windows to keep the floor from getting wet. But this storm was so terrific that the Sprosses were thoroughly alarmed. They cranked back of lightning seemed to be striking right around the house. John Spross was hardly out of bed—he was standing in the middle of the bedroom floor—when one of the little boys came running into the room.

John and the boy started for the stairs. As he did, he shouted back to Mrs. Spross: "Get the children," he cried, "and come down stairs as quick as you can. I'll light the lamp in the kitchen so you can see."

Mrs. Spross Is Petrified With Fear

John went down the stairs. Mrs. Spross could hear him in the kitchen. She had started out of the room, headed down the hall toward the room in which her other two children were, when suddenly she heard a deafening din of thunder, louder than all the rest.

I could feel the house shake and vibrate, and immediately I thought I must have been struck. There was a small flash that of lightning penetrating the whole upper floor. I stopped and stood stock still for a moment. The children were still in their bed and I had to get them. But right then I couldn't seem to move.

I don't know how long I stood there, but it must have been for a long time, for presently I occurred to me that since that last loud crash I had not heard a sound from either my husband in the kitchen, or from my son who had followed him downstairs. And then, all of a sudden I heard a voice coming from below:

One Landed in the Backyard at Night

Mrs. Spross says the voice sounded as if it came from the dead. It was her little son downstairs with his father, and he was calling very loudly: "Mamma—mamma—come here. Papa's dead!"

Two seconds before, she had been stiff with fright and unable to move a muscle. But that sound shook her into activity. She ran through the hall and began groping her way down the stairs. The lower floor was in total darkness. She began calling hysterically to her husband, asking him where he was. At last he answered: "Oh here," he said "by the high chair."

Feeling her way through the dark house, she moved toward the high chair. There she was still reeling outside and an occasional flash of lightning brightened up the room. At last she found her boy—lying on the floor. She picked him up and carried him into the dining room and asked him if he knew where his father was. "He's in the kitchen by the stove," the boy said. "I saw him fall down. I guess he's been killed."

She groped her way toward the kitchen. Her hand felt it on something wet—then on shattered bits of broken glass. But she didn't even feel it in the stress of the moment. She didn't know until later that her husband had fallen with the lamp in his hand and that glass and oil were strewn all over the kitchen floor.

Stars Provide a Warm Dawn

She found her husband—lying stiff and still on the floor. She began screaming hysterically at the top of her voice. At the same time she was tagging a John Spross's still here dragging it toward the dining room.

In a few minutes neighbors began clamoring at the door. They demanded to see a lamp was lighted. John Spross wasn't dead, but he was badly burned by the lightning and his clothes were charred and smoking. When they pulled his clothing from his body they found that the lightning had played a curious trick. Photographed on his back was a silver spot the exact shape of a tree.

A doctor came, worked over him, and brought him back to consciousness. He said he couldn't understand how he had lived through the shock, and he was fascinated by the tree impressed on John's back. He said he'd never before seen a tree when Mrs. Spross still never forgets that terrible night of storm and destruction.

BREEZIN' ALONG

Behind the footlights she was the counterpart of all others. All were pink and white costume trousers cut after the fashion of saliers, diminutive pink satin vests, white high hats. And couldn't they kick.

After the song, laughing line of girls had wiggled its way off the stage to the dressing room, Della Dallas, the third one from the left and the one with the grin rather than the simper, began hastily to peel herself out of her costume.

"What's the rush, Dell?" asked one of the girls. "Don't you go to Carrie's party?"

"Nope, I'm going home."

"Go, you're funny."

"I'll say I am, O'bye, old dear."

This apparently careless, irresponsible little imp with her wild set eyes and infectious smile, had known love, disillusionment, and bitterness, and that is a lot to know by experience at twenty.

Della had always been stage-struck, and when she met Jimmie Cooke, and he jokingly told her he needed a dance partner, her delight knew no bounds. He sobered right down when he saw how much it mattered she was and told her it meant lots of hard work, late hours, and small pay at first, but all the time he was hoping she would team up with him for she certainly was a snappy kid.

So a song and dance man, Jimmie had had steady booking on the vaudeville stage. A jingling baritone voice combined with a clear, cut face and figure made him popular.

So it came to pass that Della and Jim worked together, fell in love and, at the tender age of 17, Della became Mrs. Jimmie Cooke, although Dallas and Cooke remained at the till. Among other things, they sang about "love nests," and they made their own wherever they happened to be.

All went well for about a year and a half, and then came that dreadful night after the party, when Charlie King drunk too much, threw an electric night globe at nothing in particular and hit Jimmie in the eye. Everything was awful after that—the suspense, anxiety, expense, but worse of all, Jimmie's absolute depression when he learned that his eye was sightless.

"What can I do?" he moaned day after day. "I can't get up before an audience with this face. Nobody'll book me. Where in I fit?"

Della sympathized, patted, tried to encourage, but had to get busy to pay the bills. She found a chorus job through some friends. Jimmie got more nervous, accepted Della's suggestions and suggestions as a matter of course, misunderstood her suggestions to mean lack of thought for him, and developed a serious ailment quite foreign to him.

And then last I came—when out moves the dynamite, a terrible remark the girl. Many words were spoken, but they only added fuel to the explosion, and when the smoke cleared away, Della had packed her clothes and slammed the door.

All this had to be spelled or you couldn't possibly understand tonight, which is "three years later," as the programme so often tells us.

Della did go home, as she announced when we first began to talk about her, and she now sits in the lamplight, with her legs over one arm of the big overstuffed chair and her back resting against the other arm. She looks so very sweet, little daughter of the house would look in a simple tan jersey dress. She is reading a story which is one of those "love" which passes all understanding—and, and the self nature of a straggled orchestra is coming in over the radio.

A fair patroness an irregular course through the possible and range over one round track. The music plays away and the final note of the announcer is saying—what is he saying? "Della Cooke, baritone." The magazine slips to the floor. Briskly she glides out over Della in the latter's indignity.

"The just dressing along with the 'loves.'" Jimmie's voice rings through the room, gay, serene, carrying the very spirit of the song.

"Oh! Oh!" All Della's postures, regret and self-chiding seem to rise in a great lump which threatens to choke her. Standing there with her slender fingers pressed tightly against her throat as the last note died away.

The announcer names a soprano for the next number.

"Oh, if I can get him on long distance before his turn to sing comes again," pines Della, seizing the telephone. It seems hours before the voice she knows so well says, "Hello."

"It's Della, Jim. Just heard you sing over the radio. I've been breezin' along too—but I want company. Could you—would you lounge me?"

"I can't believe it's really you, Dell," comes the answer. "I've only got a minute. Let's see. Can I have breakfast with you tomorrow morning? I'll get the mail-right. Give me your address, get to go now."

"Twelve, twenty-two, Beechwood road, Elmore. Oh, Jim, won't you please send a request for me." "On Going Home"

Cowboys Take Sweet Revenge On Eagles, 20-10

A recent defeat of the veteran Cowboys at the hands of their younger high school rivals, the Eagles, must have rankled, for last Sunday the youngsters were invited to another shindig at the hospitable Banner ranch on the Rio Pecos, and after due justice was done to barbecue and other good things, brotherly love ceased and war was declared.

The score card showed that the Cowboy pitcher, W. A. Banner, was loaded for bear, and allowed but 5 substitutes, but erratic play behind him, due to lack of practice, made such hit good for two runs.

Smith, doing mound work for the Eagles, was touched for 15 hits, which netted the Cowboys an over 20 tallies.

The box score:

Know Texas

(T. S. C. W. Feature Service)

Texas Women Outnumbered Denton—There are approximately one hundred thousand more men than women in Texas, according to the last population figures. The actual totals are 2,965,994 males as compared to 2,858,721 females. Another interesting tabulation shows that more than one million more Texans live on farms and in rural areas than in cities.

Office Symbols The state trees of Texas is the pecan, its bird the mockingbird, its motto "Friendship," and its flower, of course, the bluebonnet. "Texas, Our Texas," composed by Gladys Y. Wright and W. J. Marsh, was officially adopted as the state song in 1929. The seal of the State is a star of five points encircled by olive and live oak branches, with the words "The State of Texas" inscribed.
