School Will Open September 6

Many Repairs and Improvements On All Buildings Made During Summer

Repairs have been completed for the opening of the Sanderson schools on Monday, Sept. 6. R. D. Holt announced the new term will be held in with a brief program at the high school, after which pupils will go to their respective rooms for assignments, etc. Pupils who will be in the high school this year will be enrolled on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 4, 5 and 6. On Saturday afternoon, a meeting of all members of the faculty will be held for organization and to outline the work.

Two Vacancies
Vacancies appear in the faculty at present. They are due to the resignation of Leona Ulbricht, who has accepted a more lucrative position with the Rehabilitation Administration of the federal government, and will be stationed at Hart. Miss Ruth Wells, recently elected to the faculty to teach public school music and in third grade, also resigned.

Improvements and repairs have been made in the various school buildings during the summer period. In the high school building the bell system has been repaired and is in first order; floors in the different rooms have been revarnished; the gymnasium floor has been refinished. New laboratory equipment for Physics, General Science and Biology has been ordered and will arrive and be installed by the time school opens.

The grammar school 30 new desks have been installed and all desks repaired and refinished. The class rooms have been painted, the floors varnished, the corridors given several coats of varnish.

The Mexican school an additional teacher has been employed on a new term, to take care of increased enrollment expected. Also another room has been added and equipped with desks taken from the grammar school. The building, too, has been painted, and many repairs made.

To Offer New Course
A new course will be offered in school this year—that of History, which will be offered to pupils in the ninth grade. Holt also stated that band uniforms would be emphasized this year and it is hoped that uniforms be provided the members; several open air concerts will be given, and the band will be organized again this year and work among the grammar pupils in the band will be given close attention in the hopes of developing material for a good school band later.

Several new members have been elected to the local faculty. The faculty personnel is as follows: R. D. Holt, superintendent; Duane Smith, principal of high school and coach of athletics; Miss Lorene Childers of book, commercial work; Miss J. Owen, Brady, English; A. Faraway, mathematics and assistant coach; C. F. Pickard, Levell, band and history; Miss Marie Thornton, Alpine, Spanish and library work.

The grammar school the faculty is as follows: Bernie Morgan, principal and sixth grade; Miss Taylor, San Saba, fifth grade; Miss Grace Hyde, Brownwood, fourth grade; Miss Vera Eldorado, second grade; Miss Una Lee, Tyler, first grade.

Teachers in the Mexican school are Perry Dawson, Alpine, principal; Miss Hazel Bruton of Angelo, third and fourth grades; Miss Onie May, Alpine,

John Cox Wins Sued On Note, Wins Verdict

In the civil case of Lee A. Cook vs. John A. Cox, in which suit was brought by Mr. Cook for payment of a note, which was heard in district court here last Friday, a verdict was rendered in favor of Mr. Cox.

A jury was selected to hear the case, and the trial consumed the biggest part of the day, several witnesses being placed on the stand. The jury was out only a short time after the completion of testimony and arguments of the lawyers in the case.

Mr. Cook was represented by Alfred E. Creigh, local attorney, and Mr. Cox was represented by Judge J. W. Boggess, Del Rio attorney.

The civil case of Babe Winn vs. Sam Ogle and John D. Ogle, suit on note and foreclosure of deed of trust, was dismissed on motion of plaintiff and at plaintiff's cost.

The regular term of district court, which has been in session intermittently for the past three weeks, will probably adjourn this week end.

OLD JACK PASSES ON

Yes, he's slipped this mortal coil, and now, perhaps, is enjoying the just reward of an eventful and useful life. Quien sabe?

And behind him he has left a group of mourners— young men now, who can harken back to childhood days—days that were not complete unless they had romped with Old Jack, who seemed to sense the pleasure they got from his company. Times there were that Jack felt abused, but he never resented it—just shook his head, wig-waggled his long ears and plodded on. He was 35, too old for his species, but he was care for until last Sunday, when nature ceased to function.

Jack was only a humble burro, but his passing is mourned.

Sanchez Draws Ten Years For Cutting Scrape

Late Thursday evening, after deliberating an hour and forty-five minutes, a jury here found Maurecio Sanchez guilty of assault with intent to murder, with malice aforethought, and assessed his punishment at ten years in the state penitentiary. The case had been on trial here in the 63rd Judicial District Court since Wednesday.

Many witnesses testified in the case, the state opening the hearing by placing Miguel Garcia, alleged victim of the assault, on the stand. Several Del Rio physicians were summoned and gave testimony at the hearing.

A night session of the court was held last Wednesday, and soon after court opened Thursday morning, all witnesses had testified, and Judge Montague charged the jury.

The state was represented by District Attorney Julian La Crosse of Del Rio, and Auturo Gonzalez, Del Rio attorney, represented the defense.

Immediately following the verdict, Gonzalez filed motion for an appeal, which was scheduled for hearing on Tuesday of this week, but due to absence of Judge Montague and District Attorney La Crosse, who were unavoidably detained in Del Rio, the case was not heard that day.

Sanchez was charged with assault with intent to murder as the result of two cutting scrapes, the first offense being committed on the night of August 2, 1936, and the second on the night of January 24, 1937. Garcia was badly slashed on both occasions.

W. U. MANAGER

Miss Grace Turner of Winnsboro, Texas, arrived in Sanderson last week and is now acting as manager of the local office of the Western Union during the absence of Miss Kate Frazier who is on her annual vacation.

second grade, and Miss Rheba Taylor, Alpine, first grade.

Miss Margaret Lattimore will again teach in the Dryden school, and Mrs. Tom Parisher will be in charge of the school on Independence.

THIS IS ONE WE'VE BEEN TOLD

We're not taking the responsibility for the veracity of the following. The yarn was spun by our old friend, Mac, on the corner.

A group including Willis Harrell, Billy Cochran and Carl Cochran were sitting on one of the tanks at the latter's place. Piled against the tank was some rocks. Billy remarked he thought he heard a rattler. Investigation proved he was correct. Rocks were shifted and the snake was thrown into the clearing. Right behind him came a coach-whip, who made for the rattler, grabbing him about 5 inches back of the head. The battle raged, the coach-whip paying no attention to the rattler's bites—easing gradually toward his head, which he finally did, and placidly proceeded to swallow Mr. Rattler, the process taking about an hour.

LIVESTOCK

Heavy Shipments of spring lambs have been made from this section during the past few days, and practically all of the lambs in Terrell county have been sold or contracted for. The shipments from here this year are being made much earlier than last, and more than 50,000 lambs have been sold in this immediate section.

Several truck loads of lambs passed through here Tuesday, enroute to Fort Stockton. These were purchased by Otho Adams of that city. Most of the lambs came from east of here, and were in fine condition and fat.

Reports from Del Rio are that Jimmy Mills, commission man of that city, had loaded out over 60,000 lambs in the Del Rio country. Mills bought most of the lambs on telegraph orders from northern buyers.

Stock Shipments

Shipments from this section the past week include:

August 11, John Collins, 4 cars of lambs, to Kansas City.

August 12, Texas Livestock Marketing Association, 2 cars of lambs to Beaver Dam, Ohio; S. S. Boyer, 6 cars of lambs to Montgomery, Ill.; Ellrod and Weatherly, 6 cars of lambs to Altoona, Iowa.

August 13, John Collins, 6 cars of lambs, to Kansas City.

August 14, J. W. Merrill shipped from Thurston to Marfa, 4 cars of lambs.

August 15, R. J. Ridley, 6 cars of lambs, to Bellecenter, O., and 2 cars to Bellefontaine, Ohio.

August 16, Ferrier & Morris, 3 cars of lambs from Longfellow, to Kansas City.

August 17, R. J. Ridley, 4 cars of lambs from Sanderson, consigned to Forest, Ohio.

Some feeding and water hauling is being done in various parts of this section at present, due to the continued dry weather.

FORMER PASTOR HERE

Rev. J. A. McMillan arrived last Thursday from Brady and is visiting in Sanderson with friends while on his vacation. This is the Rev. McMillan's first visit to Sanderson in 8 years. He was formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church here.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Mrs. R. E. Lester, accompanied by her son-in-law, L. K. Walker, left late Wednesday for San Antonio where they were called to Dr. Lester, who has been in a hospital in that city since last Thursday. Dr. Lester underwent a minor operation Thursday but no report of his condition had been received when the Times went to press.

Game Warden Explains Kinks in New Game and Fish Laws for This Section

A zone, embracing 22 counties of southwest Texas, including Terrell county, has been designated for the protection and propagation of wild game and fish. These counties are Mason, Menard, Kerr, Schleicher, Crockett, Sutton, Kimble, Real, Edwards, Blanco, Llano, El Paso, Kendall, Gillespie, Hudspeth, Culbertson, Val Verde, Kinney, Maverick, Terrell, Brewster and Harris.

The new laws require a $2 license for hunting with a gun, the only exemptions being persons hunting on their own lands, or persons under 17 years of age.

For fishing in these counties all but persons owning the waters, must pay a license of 55 cents. However, fishermen in possession of an artificial bait fishing license are exempt from the special 55c license, and may fish in any natural manner. Persons under 17 years of age, also are exempt from this special license.

Mrs. Fred Garrish was taken to San Antonio on the 7 o'clock train Tuesday afternoon for further medical treatment after being given first aid here for taking a quantity of rubbing alcohol.

Mrs. Garrish was found on the floor of her bedroom about two o'clock Tuesday morning by her young children who were awakened by hearing her fall. In her hand was a partially empty bottle of alcohol, and she was unconscious. Rushing out the children awakened Mrs. J. R. Black, Sr., who lived nearby, and Dr. J. C. Kern was summoned, who gave the woman first aid treatment.

A note was found in the house which indicate she had contemplated the act. It was to her 5 small children, bidding them good-bye.

Just how much of the alcohol Mrs. Garrish had taken was not known, as the bottle in her hand was almost empty, and a large quantity of it had been spilled on the floor. After regaining consciousness several hours later she stated that she had not taken very much of the liquid.

Relatives in San Antonio were notified of her condition and they requested she be brought to that city, and that her husband not be notified of her condition.

Mrs. Robert Schroeder accompanied Mrs. Garrish and children to San Antonio where she will be taken care of by relatives.

Mr. Garrish, the husband, a T. & N. O. brakeman working out of Sanderson, has been on the work train west of here for the past two weeks.

Gospel Meeting To Start Sunday

Gospel meeting will start Sunday at the local Church of Christ, and the preaching will be done by Bro. R. E. Griffith, minister of the Government Hill Church of Christ in San Antonio. Bro. Griffith is well known to Sanderson people, and at one time was minister of the local church. He is a very forceful and convincing expounder of the gospel.

During the meeting there will be two services daily, at 10:30 a. m., and at 8:15 p. m. Sunday service hours will be 11 a. m. and 8:15 p. m. The local church cordially invites our people to attend the se services.

NAMED POLICE PHYSICIAN

Dr. Ivy Stansell, a former resident and practicing physician in Sanderson, now residing in San Antonio, was this week elected as police physician by members of the Police Relief Fund Association. Dr. Stansell defeated Dr. John L. Bennett, who won the post four years ago.

COLUMN RIGHT

Imagination is a great thing. We believe people get more kick out of imagination than they do from realization. Hark back to boyhood days, especially after absorbing a few Horatio Alger stories—the "Dare and Do" kind. Boy, oh boy, with our imagination running wild we were in the nth heaven. Pity it don't last through life. But it doesn't, and when we are on the other side of the toboggan, and look back over a life in which we didn't "Dare" or "Do," oftentimes our imagination is replaced with hallucination. We hope for the things that just ain't. Like the old boy who came to town, and his son took him to his first picture show. In the course of the film a bevy of beauties appeared on the scene—an inland lake near the railroad. They debated and finally dared each other to take a dip. No sooner dared than done. The began undressing and were beginning to unloosen the gadgets on their lingerie when a freight train passed. When it went by the girls were splashing in the water. The old man remained through three showings, and the son got impatient. "Come on, dad, you've seen that picture three times." "I know, son, but let's wait that train may be late next time."

The latest is "negative psychology." Wonder if it has any connection with a certain restaurant that gives you hot water in a glass that's been in the ice-box?

Prickly Pear in the Del Rio Evening News points out that 500 people in a certain town petitioned for a bond election, and less than 400 voted in the election, and remarked that people don't pay any attention to petitions, and sign because they haven't the nerve to say "no." Right! We remember, after the war, some St. Louis pranksters got up a petition which covered some fifty closely written pages. They canvassed the city, secured thousands of signers. Boiled down it was a plea to shorten the road to Tipperary.

Cotton prices hit new low this year, and one bright youth lays the blame on women's bathing suits. "Ten years ago," he says, "the bathing suits were ample. They began dwindling, and cotton prices dittoed. At the present rate, in two more years, the farmers won't even plant cotton."

Talk about those strip-teasers! What do you think about that "rain" we had Wednesday? It clouded all over, thundered and clouded all over, the lightning flashed, the thunder roared, and when all was over the official measurement was .000003 of an inch, maybe less.

Appointment of Sen. Black to the supreme court may turn out to be one of F. D. R.'s dark deeds.

Scientists have discovered a big crack in the sun. They predict that in 40 years it will fall on the earth and sink it 2 miles below the sea. "Hell," said a Terrell county ranchman, "that won't be too much water for this country."

President's son in another escapade. Threw wine in the face of a French mayor. Another example of how children go wrong when the mother gads all over the country.

When you see a nigger boy buying a razor you wonder if it is for shaving or social purposes.

The chigger, he isn't bigger Than the tiniest mite; But what woe he causes when He takes a notion to bite!

Pecos—

Building in Pecos is now at its height, with many new homes and apartment houses being built, according to the Enterprise. With the many new homes and apartments being constructed, it is expected that the housing situation, which has been acute, will be relieved.

Alpine—

Nearly one hundred candidates for degrees will receive diplomas at Sul Ross College next Monday, according to the Avalanche. Dr. J. G. Ulmer, vice president of the board of regents, from Tyler, will deliver the commencement address, and the Rev. W. T. Guthrie of Wink will preach the baccalaureate sermon.

Asherton—

Plans for the Dimmit County Fair are underway and committees are now at work, according to the Tribune. Dates for this year's fair have been set for October 22 and 23.

Floresville—

According to the Chronicle-Journal, crop movement in Wilson county has been underway, with more than 1000 cars of watermelons being shipped this season, and 100,000 pounds of popcorn, which netted growers a total of $25,000. Shipment of peanuts is also under way, with a fairly large crop to be shipped.

Monahans—

To relieve the present congested telephone network in Monahans work will start as soon as the material arrives on installation of a new "lift-the-receiver" system, according to the News. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will also erect a new brick building to house the new system.

Sonora—

Alvis Johnson, county judge of Crockett county is minus a portable typewriter, according to the Devil's River News, as a result of the misguided energy of an individual who made a call at the court house on Thursday of last week. A would-be "service man," it seems, took the judge's typewriter off with the intention of cleaning it.

Pecos—

Prospects are bright for bumper crops in the Pecos Valley, reports the Enterprise, with the harvesting of alfalfa seed in full swing and good prices prevailing. Cotton crops are good, with predictions of from one to two bales to the acre, and prices of this commodity being favorable. The cantaloupe crop, too, is above the average and many carloads of the melons are being shipped.

Barstow—

Grandfalls was approved as the site for the $85,000 standby plant in the proposed Red Bluff rural electrification program in the Pecos Valley by the board of directors of the Red Bluff Water Power Control, according to the Ward County News.

Coleman—

Hundreds of bass, crappie, perch and bream will be planted in the recently constructed Coleman county lake about September 1, according to the Democrat-Voice. However it will be two years before fishermen will get any benefit from this move. Some half a dozen lakes and tanks in this county have been approved by the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission for the purpose of raising fish.

WEEKLY Health Letter

UNDULANT FEVER

Undulant or Malta fever, a disease contracted from cattle, hogs or sheep which are infected with contagious abortion, is being reported fairly regularly through Texas, according to Geo. W. Cox, state health officer.

This indicates the fever constitutes a public health problem and also the necessity of its more general recognition.

"Undulant fever is so named because of the wave-like variations in temperature. The symptoms include rise in temperature, loss of weight and strength, chills, sweat and joint pains. The disease has a rather low mortality rate, but it is important because symptoms may persist for a number of weeks and even of months, maybe, before health and strength are restored," Dr. Cox explained.

Prevention of undulant fever is based upon the detection of the disease in livestock and the elimination of infected animals from the herds. Dairy herds should be tested for Bacillus abortus. Pasteurization of milk will prevent the spread from this source.

Frequently there is alarm in a community when undulant fever is recognized, but there is little cause for apprehension, as many people are not susceptible to the infection. The disease will probably never appear in Texas as an epidemic; however, to the unfortunate who contract it, it is a most discouraging experience, both from the standpoint of the patient's well being and the family economics.

Spectacle Glass

Spectacle glass differs from that used in windows and bottles. It is composed of silica, lime and soda and other ingredients used to impart particular qualities. This "mix" is heated in handmade ceramic pots for twenty-four hours at white heat. Following this operation the molten glass is poured on a steel casting table and treated in specially controlled annealing ovens to remove stains and to prevent the glass from cracking. On leaving the annealing ovens the glass passes into the cutting room and finally is ground and polished.

Group Rates Are Offered to Visit P. Am. Exposition

Dallas.—Group movement of school children, their teachers, parents and friends from Sanderson has been set for Oct. 26 and 27 at the Greater Texas and Pan American exposition. The connecting railroad has offered a group rate for this event. Total cost of the round trip is 1 cent a mile.

When the group reaches the exposition it will have the facilities of a service office near the main entrance gate. There orders for group admission tickets at 25 cents each will be issued, special amusement concessions provided and information as to lodging furnished, all without charge. The exposition, at this office, also will maintain a baggage checking service.

Governor James V. Allred has officially proclaimed these 2 dates as school holidays, and full credits will be allowed children who attend the exposition.

Much that is new and educational is offered this year. Included is the Cavalcade of the Americas, greatly enlarged, presenting the romantic history of all the Americas, without charge. The Pan American casino, largest indoor stage in the world, will offer entertaining programs. In the $1,200,000 Texas Hall of State in addition to the romance of Texas, is presented an exhibit from Tulane University of Mid-American history. The Federal building has added numerous new features as has the Hall of Texas History, all these being free attractions. The football season will be in full blast. Students can spend two days at a very nominal cost and witness the only inter-national exposition of the year.

TAYLOR-WATTS WEDDING IN DEL RIO

Friends here of Roscoe Taylor will be interested in the following taken from the Del Rio Evening News of August 13. Mr. Taylor at one time operated the Loma Alta cafe here, and is now employed as brakeman on the T. & N. O. on the Del Rio division.

The bride entered on the arm of her father to take her place beside the groom. She wore a sports suit of navy blue and her accessories were of the same color.

Bonney Vineyard served as best man for the groom.

The living room was decorated in vases and baskets filled with bluebells. Two large blue urns filled with bluebells formed the background for the bridal party.

Mrs. Taylor has resided in Del Rio most of her life. She attended the Del Rio school and was graduated from the Del Rio high school. She later attended Abilene Christian College, Abilene, and received her degree from Sul Ross College in Alpine.

Immediately following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Taylor left on a wedding trip to Galveston and will be at home at 208 Avenue C upon their return.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have been complimented with several parties.

Those attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kessler, Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Watts, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith of Eagle Pass, J. G. Smith, Mrs. Maggie Taylor, Mrs. R. P. Ward and Miss Frances Laughlin.

Mrs. Pat Dolan of San Antonio visited Mrs. Harry Newton this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bustin Canon and children, Hicks and Marjorie, and their house guest, Jean Draper, left Wednesday morning for Fort Worth and Dallas where they will attend the Frontier Fiesta and the Pan American exposition.

"Wild Money" is A Racy Comedy You Should See

A racy comedy about a man who wanted to be a reporter and who spent oodles of other people's money to realize his ambition brings Edward Everett Everett Horton and a fine list of comedians to the Princess Theatre next Monday, August 23rd, in the uproarious picture, "Wild Money."

Based on the Saturday Evening Post story, "Tightwad," by Paul Gallico, "Wild Money" includes Lynne Overman, Lucien Littlefield, Benny Baker, and Porter Hall among the funmakers, while feminine pulchritude and the romance of the picture is supplied by Louise Campbell, a newcomer from the New York stage, and lovely Ruth Coleman.

The story is concerned mainly with the fortunes of Horton, the "bulldog of the treasury" for a newspaper, who is in love with Miss Campbell. So is Overman, the paper's star reporter. Miss Campbell is inclined to favor Overman and Horton takes a broken heart away with him on a vacation to a lake resort.

Then there's a kidnaping at the resort and Horton finds himself in command of the situation as far as newspapers are concerned. The way in which he "sews up" his "scoop," finds the kidnaped man and wins Miss Campbell, all in one fell swoop, makes of "Wild Money" one of the funniest pictures to reach the screen.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Walker, and Mrs. Calvert Curry, who spent the past week in Ennis and Denton visiting, and in Dallas and Fort Worth attending the Fiesta and Exposition, returned home the first of the week.

County Agent Ernest Williams, Mrs. Williams and their little daughter returned from Carrizo Springs Monday, where they visited with relatives. Since returning Mr. Williams has been confined to his bed on account of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Williams left last Saturday night for Denver, Colo., on a vacation trip, and plan to visit points in California and Washington before returning home in about three weeks.

Laurel & Hardy Turn Prospectors In Their New Full Length Comedy

Laurel and Hardy are desert prospectors in the wild and woolly West in the Gay 90's. On a travois, a sled used by lumbermen in logging, drawn by a burro, they are traveling to Brushwood Gulch on a mission of kindness—to deliver the deed to a valuable gold mine to Rosina Lawrence, daughter of an old companion prospector who died and left the deed with them.

They encounter difficulties enroute and hitch-hike a ride on a stage coach. They start a flirtation and cause annoyance to an attractive passenger who, on arrival at Brushwood Gulch turns out to be the wife of the sheriff.

Laurel and Hardy go a gay honky-tonk and innocently reveal their mission to the unscrupulous owner, James Finlayson. The daughter had been left in his care and now works as the kitchen slave. Sharon Lynne, the wife of Finlayson, is the song and dance queen of the honky-tonk, and it gives Finn the idea to pass her off as the daughter and obtain the gold mine.

Dumber than usual, Laurel and Hardy present the deed with a flourish to the wrong girl. Rushing to make good their ordered departure from town, the accidentally discover their mistake, and are demanding justice when in walks the sheriff. Guns are drawn and the "tenderheels" retreat in a cloud of dust.

Undaunted, Laurel and Hardy return under cover of darkness to rectify their blunder and fulfill their errand for their dead partner. And in a series of thrilling adventure, aided by the lusty heels of their trusted burro, rescue the deed to the gold mine, and make good their escape to the desert.

"Way Out West," will be shown at the Princess tonight and Saturday, August 20 and 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Odie Wickliffe were visitors in Fort Stockton Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Anderson and daughters, who had been visiting relatives in Shattuck, Oklahoma for the past two months, returned to their home here Sunday.

Mrs. T. W. Swafford and children of Uvalde are visiting her sister, Mrs. Fred Talbot and family.

Mrs. Carlton White and daughter, Janice, left Tuesday for San Antonio where they will spend the remainder of the week visiting relatives and shopping.

Thrilling Action In Film Featuring Three Great Stars

Spencer Tracy demonstrates his phenomenal ability for the fourth successful venture in the thrilling picture "They Gave Him a Gun," which comes to the Princess Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, August 25 and 26.

This is the M-G-M adaptation of the best seller by William J. Cowen, former soldier, who expressed his hatred of war in the novel.

Directed by W. S. Van Dyke, the film presents Tracy, Gladys George and Fanchot Tone in the principal roles. The supporting cast includes Ed Dearing, Cliff Edwards, Mary Treen and others. The war scenes were screened on the vast 500 acre tract where M-G-M made "The Good Earth."

The story deals with two men and a woman. Tracy is a circus barker who enlists in the regulars. Tone is a small town clerk who finds himself in the army and up in the front lines. A gun gives him courage. Miss George is a Red Cross nurse.

When Tracy is reported missing he marries Tone, out of pity. Tracy escapes from one of the enemy's prison camps and the trio meets again in civil life, with the war ended. Familiar now with the use of a gun, the weakling has become a gangster, and Tracy tries to save him but fails. A police bullet gets in ahead of him.

As a story and a picture to reflect the evils of war and its aftermath, "They Gave Him a Gun" is a powerful medium. But it is more than that. It affords Tracy and his colleagues an opportunity for first rate artistry, which none of them has overlooked.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lemons and daughter, Dora Rae, of Tucson, Arizona, visited here Monday with his aunt, Mrs. Luella Lemons, and other relatives. They left Tuesday for Del Rio, San Antonio and Houston to visit other relatives before returning to their home.

Miss Eleanor Martin of Uvalde is a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Talbot.

Mrs. J. M. Bass of Cuero, who had been visiting with her daughter, Mrs. M. P. Lester, in Carrizo Springs, arrived in Sanderson Monday for a visit in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Sims Wilkinson.

"THE SLUGGRA"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY!

Here's a real Irish story for you—told to me by Patrick McDonnell of Brooklyn, N. Y. It's the story of the Sluggra—and that sounds like the name of some old-time Fenian monster that roamed the Emerald Isle in the days when Brian Boru was leader of the eighteenth assembly district.

Well—the Sluggra wasn't a monster. It wasn't an animal at all. But as far as Pat McDonnell is concerned, it is a whole lot worse.

In 1924, when Pat was a kid about twelve years old, his mother and dad decided that he should go and live with his grandfather and grandmother. They were pretty old people, and getting no younger. It was hard for them to do all the hard work that had to be done about the farm, and the healthy young gossoon, Pat, was just what they needed to help them out.

So Pat went to help out the old folks, and there it was that he met up with the Sluggra. Now, I've told you that the Sluggra wasn't a monster. What it really was—well—it was just a hole in the center of one of granddad's fields. But a worse nor a more dangerous hole you never saw in your life. It was just a small hole, but it caught all the water that drained off that field and off all the neighboring ones, too. It was full of black, oozy mud, and people said there was no bottom to it.

Whether it had any bottom to it or not, nothing that ever went down in it had ever come up again. Maybe it was that the little people lived beneath it, and caught and ate everything that came down through it. But that's my own idea and not Pat's, and maybe I'd better mind my own business and stick to the story.

How Pat Became a Black Irishman Indeed

The Sluggra was covered up in Pat's day. Years before, Pat's grandfather, whose name, by the way, was Paddy Hayes, had brought the county surveyor over to look at the Sluggra. The surveyor had had two great stone flags put over it, completely covering the hole. It looked perfectly safe to young Pat, even though his granddad was continuously warning him to keep away from it.

Old Paddy Hayes even warned Pat on the day of his adventure with the black pit. Pat had just come home from school when Paddy said: "Now, Pat, go down to the field and move the goat to a nice fresh patch of green grass. And be sure and don't go near the Sluggra."

Pat didn't pay much attention to that warning. He pulled up the stake to which the goat was tied and started dragging him across the field. The Sluggra, covered with its flagstones, was right in his path and he stepped up on the flags to walk over it. And just as he stepped from the first flag to the second, something terrible happened. The flag tipped slantwise with his weight and he slid down in the black slimy hole.

Pat Thanked His Lucky Stars for the Goat

Pat still kept his grip on the rope with which he'd been leading the goat. He's never stopped being thankful that that rope was an average long one. When his body had gone in, the flag slid partly back in place again, and there was Pat underneath it, in a mess of black, oozy muck that would smother him the minute he let his head sink down under it.

"I held on to that rope," he says, "screaming for all I was worth. The goat and I must have weighed about the same, and I knew he'd have his forefeet dug into the soft ground so he wouldn't be pulled down after me. If he was pulled in after me, of course, we'd both be smothered to death in that muck far down in the Sluggra. But I was counting pretty heavily on that goat."

Pat hung on that rope and screamed and yelled. After a while he found that screaming and yelling didn't get him anywhere—so he hung on to the rope. But hanging on was pretty hard—especially after ten or fifteen minutes of it. His arms were tired. His body felt cold and clammy. But when his arms wouldn't hang on any longer, he raised himself up and wrapped the end of the rope around his feet to ease the strain.

Granddad Arrives in the Nick of Time

Half an hour passed—three-quarters of an hour! Pat began to wonder if anybody would ever find him. He didn't know how long he'd been down there. He wondered if he'd have to stay there all night. If he did—well—he'd still be in the hole in the morning, but not on top of it, as he was now.

He had been in the Sluggra almost an hour when he heard a voice outside say: "Well, Gin Gin." It was his granddad, talking to the goat. Then Paddy Hayes saw the rope leading down into the Sluggra, and he called out: "Pat! Pat! Where are you?"

Pat yelled: "I'm down here!" And he says he never yelled so loudly in all his life. He was crying and almost hysterical by that time. He heard his granddad turn and run away, and then waited again—waited interminable minutes until he heard returning footsteps. His granddad had dashed to a nearby field where a neighbor was digging potatoes, and now the two of them had come racing back to his rescue.

They stood on the firm flag and put the handle of the neighbor's spade between it and the loose flag. And somehow they managed to lift up that heavy piece of stone and haul young Pat out. "I was muddy and wet, but still alive, thank God," he says, "and now that both of those men who pulled me out are dead, I never forget to say a prayer for them. For if it hadn't been for them I'd never have had the chance to see the good old U. S. A."

Well, Really, Mr. Hayes,"

By GRETA MALONE Copyright—WNU Service

ALL day the temperature had hovered around 98; a myriad nagging things had happened at the office; his room was an airless box and . . . Mr Hayes swore. Truthfully, Mr. Hayes was a timid soul, so his oath was mild and dissipated. But, to be sure, it helped.

Meet Mr. Hayes. A brown-eyed youth standing 5 feet 10 inches in his immaculate hose, lean-jawed, a serious mouth, irritating hair which broke into a wave unless closely watched; a conservative in all things. Given to blue serge suits and dark ties.

There was a Miss Curtis, for instance. Meet Miss Curtis! A piquant nose, demure mouth and guileless blue eyes; a shingle bob; staggeringly brief frocks and slim silken legs which knew every complicated maze of the Charleston; Miss Curtis who worked at the next desk; who was constantly surrounded by the bandage and attention of visiting salesmen, and who only at rare intervals turned her careless gaze at Mr. Hayes. And yet . . .

And there was Mr. Collins. Meet . . . No, don't bother! You'd probably dislike him. The BOSS.

Mr. Hayes swore. And contemplated with growing horror the contents of the suit box which had been lying across his bed, awaiting his arrival. For, instead of the new suit, conservatively blue and double breasted, and sane, this was an atrocity in the palest of tans, soft and—jazzy!

Fifteen minutes later Mr. Hayes regarded himself in the mirror with astonishment and something like gratification. The thing was a perfect fit; with that tie that Aunt Emma sent at Christmas (never worn by the way) and the new straw hat . . . Really!

And behold Mr. Hayes' parade downtown; a growing confidence under a battery of feminine glances. By the time he had reached the corner where the huge pile of the Amalgated reared itself, timidity had fled. He accented the nod of the elevator starter graciously; the rather startled glance of the feminine elevator with serenity; the glances of the office boy and telephone operator indifferently.

He glanced about. Miss Curtis was holding court with two of the usual salesmen; she didn't glance in his direction. Mr. Hayes glared at the offending salesmen, and banged several books on his desk, glanced again at Miss Curtis. Suddenly resolution dawned in his pleasant brown eyes. Deliberately he strode across the office; deliberately knocked on the boss's door; deliberately stepped inside. The boss was alone; under his bridle eyebrows he surveyed Mr. Hayes without recognition; but before he could speak Mr. Hayes had taken the floor.

"Good morning, Mr. Collins!" It was pleasant, conversational, and not quite up to the usual standard of deference. Mr. Collins looked up sharply.

"Oh, good morning . . . Hayes, isn't it?" Mr. Hayes tightened his jaw.

"Yes, Hayes is the name," he said pleasantly. "Been working here six years now; 'bout time you knew me." He dropped into a chair without apology and drew it sociably close to the desk. Mr. Collins drew his bridle eyebrows together. "About the Miami office, Mr. Collins?" Mr. Collins waved a pudgy hand.

"Not now, not now," he said irritably. "As a matter of fact, Mr. Hayes, I have Trumbull in mind—" Something banged under Mr. Collins' startled nose. "Trumbull be hanged," said Mr. Hayes, still pleasantly. "That's my job. And you know it. I can run circles around Trumbull as far as that job is concerned, and I want it. And what's more I intend to have it, or you can get somebody else to fill my place here."

For an instant Mr. Collins purpled with rage; met the pleasant brown gaze of Mr. Hayes and he hesitated; then, strangely enough he smiled.

"Well, REALLY, Mr. Hayes," he said amiably. "Perhaps you're right! As a matter of fact" he smiled again, "yes, you're quite right! The job's yours." The door closed after Mr.

THE REST OF THE RECORD

By JAMES V. ALLRED Governor of Texas

Mexico City, Aug. 14.—By the time you read this, we will be back in Texas and, notwithstanding the wonderful privilege it has been to visit Mexico, happy to be back home. We are particularly anxious to see little David, our second son, and baby Sam Houston.

It is difficult for us to realize that it is so hot in Texas. Mexico City is 7500 feet high and the weather is ideal. They tell us it this way the year round—little cooler in the winter than in summer. It was a little chilly for us at first—believe it or not, we asked for a fire at lunch; now, however, we are accustomed to it and the weather is lovely. Occasionally when the mountain tops are clear of clouds we can see two snow-capped volcano peaks in the distance.

Although Ambassador Joseph Daniels is in Europe he wired his assistants here to insist upon our staying at the American Embassy. So here we are—and we have never been privileged to stay at a lovelier place. Our own government officials have been almost as marvelous to us as those of the Mexican government.

Last week I told you how hospitable these people had been to us in the early stages of our visit; this hospitality has increased in warmth at every stage. We have been entertained by seven governors in as many state capitols, and by officers in the President's cabinet here in Mexico. It clearly demonstrates that these people believe in the Good Neighbor policy inaugurated by President F. D. Roosevelt.

President Cardenas of Mexico is absent from the capital. He is in the state of Yucatan, which is the most southern Mexican state, working on agrarian, or agricultural problems. He sent us a warm telegram of welcome, then commissioned the Governor of this federal district to call on us

Hayes. Cigar in mouth he contemplated the outer office; beheld Miss Curtis laughing up into the eyes of the younger of the salesmen; crossed the office with a swift stride; rather neatly he pocketed the salesman and placed himself before the insouciant Miss Curtis.

"I'm taking you to see 'The Funnies' tonight, Miss Curtis," he said. "I'll call for you at 7:30." Miss Curtis tilted back her head and looked at him in astonishment, indignation, dawning interest, hesitancy.

"Well, REALLY, Mr. Hayes," she said coolly. Mr. Hayes returned her glance with amiable determination.

"At 7:30," he said firmly. At 7:30, she said.

Mr. Hayes wove back to his desk and took up a sheaf of papers. His phone rang busily.

"Yes, this is Mr. Hayes. What? Oh, yes, the boy delivered the wrong suit. Yes, so I discovered. No, that's quite all right—you can send for it tonight. No, it was no inconvenience at all. Good-by." And Mr. Hayes hung up the receiver.

officially as his representative. Mrs. Allred is visiting the President's wife today. Everywhere these people seem to realize that they have more in common with Texas than perhaps any other state; I think if we take the same position it can only result in more business and better relations for all of us.

It would be impossible in this short space to even refer to all the interesting places we have seen on this trip. I really believe we could spend a month right in Mexico City and not see half of all we should see. The old churches or cathedrals, the palaces, public buildings, the theatres, the gardens, the parks, the flowers, the schools, the public markets, the people. It is the people who most interest me. They are picturesque with their music everywhere, their arts, their dress—which has changed but little for centuries, yet all this maintained alongside a 20th century civilization of modern highways, railroads, hotels, tourist camps and conveniences of every kind. We have driven over highways as well constructed and maintained as any in Texas, yet in fields adjoining they still plow with oxen; the peons trudge alongside the road plying whips over the backs of burros loaded with wood or cargoes larger than the beasts themselves.

The history of Mexico is as interesting as that of any other nation. The struggles of the people for liberty and freedom have been just as brave, if not braver, than our own. It has been such a privilege for us to journey over the very ground traveled by Cortez, the Spanish Conqueror, hundreds of years ago; to see the palaces and the churches he built. One of the most inspiring and stupendous things we have seen was when driving over the mountains to Puebla, looking out upon a valley where Cortez had built a church for every day of the church year—260 of them, beautiful, massive things of stone, and with shining burnished domes; one is built on top of a pyramid.

I shant tell you of the bullfight they staged for us. I am glad I saw one—in fact, I enjoyed it, but I can't say that I want to see one again. One of the nicest entertainments given us yesterday at the Department of Communications. First, of course, a nice luncheon; the young ladies who worked in the department paraded before us dressed in the colorful native costumes of each of the 28 Mexican states. They entertained with music, songs, and dances. It was better than a professional show since those who played the parts actually came from the states they represented.

We have met lots of people here from Texas. I hope more will be able to come in the future. We were particularly happy to find the Cowboy Band from Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene playing at one of the local theatres. They are also going to play at a reception given for us at the Embassy tomorrow.

We will, of course, be back in time to vote at the election Monday, August 23. Six constitutional amendments are to be voted on. All of them are important and I hope my friends will vote for

Cotton and Oil Industry

Almost half the total population of Texas earns a part of its living from cotton. It is grown in 223 of Texas' 254 counties. Another one-sixth of the population is employed directly or indirectly by the petroleum industry. This means that a little more than one-third of our people are left for other occupations.

Little Poland

Panna Maria, the oldest Polish settlement in the United States, was established near San Antonio in 1853 by a group of immigrants who had been practically driven out of their native land. Penniless and disheartened, the settlers were aided by nearby ranchers and more fortunate colonists until they could support themselves.

With thrift, persistence and work the group soon developed into a thriving community. Many of the original homes, built of hand quarried stone, because there was no wood, still remain in the modern Panna Maria.

I am particularly interested in seeing the one adopted to authorize the legislature to provide for payment of county officers by either salaries or fees. The present salary system hasn't worked as satisfactorily as the old fee system. It costs the tax payers of the state as a whole 70 per cent more, and I am interested in trying to save that money.
