ANNUAL FIELD DAY AND BARBECUE AT BALMORHEA MAY 20

On Saturday, May 20, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Balmorhea will hold its Annual Field Day for farmers and Ranchers of West Texas. At this time the Station cattle feeding experiments of the past winter will be closed and the results of these tests will be discussed by representatives of the Experiment Station, the Extension Service, the State Veterinarians, and ranchers.

Feeding tests during the past year have been conducted with 6 lots of Hereford yearling steers fed largely on home grown feeds in different combinations of milo, cottonseed meal and alfalfa, and including a comparison of hegar silage and dry ground hegar fodder. These cattle will be graded by a representative of the Fort Worth commission companies and will be sent to that market immediately after the close of this meeting.

Representatives of the larger machinery companies will demonstrate some of their most up to date equipment during the day. The usual barbecue dinner will be served on the grounds at noon. A varied program of interest to farmers, ranchers, and feeders will be presented and the occasion will give everyone an opportunity to meet many old friends, livestock men, market representatives and others. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in the production or feeding of livestock to visit the Experiment Station at Balmorhea on May 20th.

TO INSTALL ENGINE

Work is under way by the Community Public Service Company on a new foundation for a fourth engine to be installed at the local power house which will enable them to cope with any emergency such as the past two weeks when one of the engines broke down. With the addition of this engine there will always be one extra as it is necessary to use only three under the present current load.

Mrs. J. C. Kerr left Wednesday for El Paso where she will spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Odie Wickliffe.

Pictured above are two of the most successful of Texas ranchers—two 4-H Club boys.

The 4-H Club, a national organization for rural boys and girls, was founded in 1919 and has now grown to an organization of over 1,300,000 members. In Texas there are nearly 50,000 members about equally divided between boys and girls.

4-H Club work was forcibly called to the attention of the people in Texas last fall when a livestock judging team from Menard won the National 4-H Livestock Judging Contest in Chicago over state winners from throughout the nation and again this spring when club members from Mason County exhibited the grand champion fat calves at every major livestock show in the country. The American Royal in Kansas City, Worlds Fair and Junior Livestock Shows in San Francisco, and the expositions in San Angelo, San Antonio, Houston, Amarillo and Fort Worth. These boys sold over $13,000 worth of livestock after winning over $1,100 in premiums.

There were 2,882 boys enrolled in beef calf demonstrations involving 2,607 animals and 962 demonstrations with sheep, with 5,348 animals involved. Features of the 1938 club work was the first 4-H club wool show ever held in Texas, in Sonora in June; and the venture initiated by the 4-H Club boys of Hale County which resulted in the feeding out of 160 head of steers and 170 lambs. These animals were exhibited at the Plainview Fat Stock Show in April and then shipped to Kansas City where they were sold at auction. This year the boys sold them on the open market. Intelligent marketing is part of their club training.

GARRISON URGES TEXAS CHILDREN BE FINGERPRINTED

Austin—Colonel Homer Garrison, Jr., State Police director, today urged the extension of universal fingerprinting to every child a year old and up.

Most of the juvenile prints among the 26,000 non-criminal cards on file at state police headquarters are those of school-age children.

"Now we want to carry universal fingerprinting to an entirely new group—youngsters of pre-school age down to year—and we're asking their parents to help us in this big job," the police head said.

There is negligible value to fingerprinting babies under a year because it is hard to get a clear impression and the ridges on their fingers, although formed, are not distinct, experts pointed out.

Colonel Garrison cited a number of reasons for including young children in universal fingerprinting, which has been endorsed by President Roosevelt.

"God forbid we'll have a kidnapping case in Texas, but if we should, fingerprints would be the means of positively identifying the child. And remember that no child is really safe from the mad snatcher, the crank the pervert."

Prints on file at the state identification bureau are likewise valuable for identifying children involved in traffic accidents, drownings and public disasters such as school fires and explosions, theatre panics, tornadoes.

Many victims of the New London School disaster two years ago were identified from State Police records, he said.

"Even the lost child, strayed from his mother in a big crowd and taken to the police station for safekeeping, may be more quickly restored to his distraught parents if there is some quick means of identification."

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Boggan and son, Bobby were visitors in San Antonio last week-end.

O. H. McAdams was in Del Rio Tuesday night to attend the quarterly meeting of the City-Wide Laymen's League, held in the House of Friendship in the First Methodist Church.

Observe Beginning Extension Service With Ceremonies

College Station — National state and county-wide ceremonies have been scheduled in observance of the signing, on May 8, 1914, of the Smith-Lever Act that created the Extension Service on its present basis.

The national observance will come on May 8 and the Texas participation on May 9, while most counties are planning on holding their meetings May 13.

"The Smith-Lever Act recognized the work being done by pioneer county agricultural and home demonstration agents and provided for the permanent organization of the Extension Service along the present federal-state-county lines," H. H. Williamson, director of the Texas A and M. College Extension Service, explained.

He said the national organization had its beginning in Texas in 1903, when Dr. Seaman A. Knapp came to the state and started the first demonstration on the farm of Walter C. Porter of Terrell in an attempt to show that cotton could be raised in spite of the boll weevil.

As a result of the success of the demonstration, a number of county agents were appointed in 1904, and the movement gradually spread to other states. Texas had the first agent in the United States to work exclusively in one county in W. C. Stallings, who was appointed to Smith county in 1906, and the boys' corn club—later 4-H club—of Jack county, organized by Tom Marks in 1908, was the first boys' club to be supervised by a county agent.

Offset Mounting Is Aid In Range Of McDonald Telescope

Sky area observable from the new 82-inch McDonald telescope is larger than any other instrument in this country can reach. Dr. Otto Struve, director, reported to University of Texas authorities.

Two features give the telescope its great range, the director explained. One is the Observatory's site, southernmost in the United States; the second is the instrument's offset mounting, a new feature among large astronomical plants.

To be dedicated, May 5, the joint project of the Universities of Texas and Chicago boasts a single offset supporting beam so designed that the instrument can be leveled almost at the horizon, an operation difficult with the older "double-support" telescopes.

Dr. Struve added that the Southern sky counts thousands of stars which never come within range of plants located farther North. The telescope will cover the entire sky except a circle around the South Pole with a radius of 30 degrees.

The McDonald telescope is now second largest in the world.

PETE DEATON ILL

Word was received by Mr. and Mrs. John Deaton that their son, Pete Deaton, who is attending college in Hollywood, Calif., has been ill for about two weeks. Latest reports were to the effect that his condition was improved although it will be necessary for him to miss several weeks of his studies while recuperating.

Austin—The regular session of the 46th Legislature is rapidly drawing to a close here in Austin with no tax yet passed for payment of the State's social security program.

Much of the time of the House was spent last week arguing over whether or not to punish one Jan Anderson, campaign director of the Texas Pensions Union which has been enlisting memberships from the old folks. Many members believe the action of the House in citing Anderson for contempt for failing to appear and testify before a committee charged with investigating his organization merely served to give Anderson advertising which placed his story on the front pages of the big dailies for several days. He will likely have to pay a fine and may have to serve several days in jail but he succeeded in keeping the 150 members of the House of Representatives waiting in vain for his appearance before them on last Friday morning. Many publicity men would give hundreds of dollars for such publicity. In the meantime, the House rushed through a bill which will make it a felony to solicit money from any beneficiary of old age pensions for membership in any kind of organization designed to help them get more and larger pensions.

No Agreement Yet On Pensions Tax
The House of Representatives at the week-end did not know which way to turn for the long-desired passage of pensions tax legislation. Although the House passed a tax bill two weeks ago and sent it to the Senate, the latter group sent it to a subcommittee where it still was resting peacefully at the beginning of this week. A test vote in the House Friday showed the advocates of the sales tax amendment could muster only 82 or 84 votes, whereas they need 100 for passage of the Senate Joint Resolution which includes the sales tax proposal. So it looks like there will be several days at $5 per day for the legislators if they stay on in Austin long enough to get together on pension money raising.

Worry About Appropriations
The biggest worry around Capitol Hill this week-end is on the part of department heads and employees regarding the departmental appropriations for the next two years. What appeared disastrous ten days ago in the way of appropriations for the Labor Department has turned around and it is now predicted that this department will suffer less cuts than probably any other department. This speaks well of the House and Senate who a few days ago were being charged with an attempt to "confiscate" this department because of alleged pressure from a few labor leaders.

Liquor Board Set-Up Uneasy
The Liquor Control Board set-up, which reduced its appropriations voluntarily nearly a quarter of a million dollars, may yet suffer more reductions, it was learned at week-end. While Administrator Bert Ford is admitted to be a great strategist in his dealings with the legislature, yet it is too well known that many employees of the Liquor Control Board are relatives of members of both the Senate and the House. There is a great undercurrent of resentment against the three-quarter of a million dollar appropriation for this set-up which may find a way out through last-minute consideration of appropriations for the department. It would be interesting to see names of all relatives carried on this payroll.

Solons Not Too Keen For Cox
Many members of the Legislature feel Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Department head, has attempted to put something over on them at this session. It is fresh in their minds that he has kept an ex-member of the House, Raglin Jones of Eddy, on the payroll at $250 per month to lobby with legislators and that an attempt was made to put through a 50-page sanitary code bill which had sections which would have given the dear doctor dictatorial powers over all health activities in Texas. While this code was defeated in the House, yet the health director requested an enormous appropriation, allowing room for a big cut. This has angered the membership of the appropriations committee some of whom freely dub Cox as a "bungling politician with dictatorial ambitions."

Governor O'Daniel Gets Praise

The people of Texas have cause and will continue to praise Governor O'Daniel for utterances and actions on his part in taking a stand against all regulatory measures. This was noted particularly in the Governor's recent action with reference to the price-fixing barber bill. The Governor first asked for and got an opinion from the attorney general which was to the effect that barber law would be unconstitutional. Then Governor O'Daniel vetoed it. Now the so-called "Fair-Trade" bill may go to the Governor's desk as it appears possible the Senate may act on it this week. Since it is price-fixing in nature like the barber bill, we say the people of Texas will be found very grateful that Governor O'Daniel is taking a firm stand with regard to such bills and vetoing them. His mail should and will include many letters commending his action on these matters.

Loan Shark Bill Up This Week
While members of the legislature were in Houston Saturday as guests of the Salesmanship club for its annual gridiron dinner, a few stayed behind to work on legislation for this week. One bill due for consideration this week was Homer Leonard loan shark bill to which some objection was raised because it permits a "service charge." On the other hand, its backers point out that the loan shark is fighting this bill, a clear indication it would be too regulatory for him to stay in business. Members of the legislature attending a private preview of the movie "Sam Houston the Man" at a local theatre Thursday night last week were shown a short film of the "Crime Prevention" series in which the loan shark racket was shown in vivid detail. The picture was most convincing. In the meantime, some 13 Austin loan sharks are on trial in district court here. Short Shorts—The News editorializes against a bill which the legislature passed last week in remitting some million dollars in taxes on Harris County. The county in Texas. Some East Texas counties, the counties in Texas, failed to pay a tax remission bill through themselves.

The race for the next year of the house (1941) already warming up. We believe a little premature. How do you know they will come back in 1940? The Legislature has cut salary of Dr. Sellards director of the Texas Memorial Museum on the University from $5000 to $4000. They have gone further and denied that Garland Adair, minor salary at the Museum made director of same. Garland Adair is the father of the Museum and spent years of time in promoting and bringing it to a reality. The Board of Regents and University today wish to forget the American Legion and O. Adair are responsible for great museum.

BERT AND MECH STAR GAY FILM

Colbert and Don Ameche—those two superb comedians—have a story and acting cast worthy of their place in their first picture to "Midnight," which comes at Princess Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

With a smart eye on Colbert's and Ameche's outstanding abilities as farceurs, "Midnight" tells a gay and light story of the adventures of an American girl on the loose in Europe's glittering international set, with the emphasis on her romance with a so-called taxi-driver. Although in love with the romantic Miss Colbert is out for a game and leaves him to it in the dangerous pre-arrangement of high society.

Colbert meets her first love when a packish Parisian offers to foot the bill for her play for the night. The American girl accepts with a smile and posing as a Hungarian countess, she sweeps society in general and her quarry in particular.

The title suggests, the picture reaches a climax when the girl discovers that it's not a mere taxicab, but a man who turns into a pumpkin, or a mere taxicab! The picture "Midnight" comes when life begins to doubt the position on the one hand, the picture takes control of the picture on the other.

Their co-players in this lavishly produced picture are Miss Colbert and Don Ameche, who have John Barrymore, a sensational comedy actor as the husband, Francis Lederer, as the playboy of Miss Colbert's wiles, Astor, as the philandering Hedda Hopper, Elaine Barlow, as Rex O'Malley. Director Hal Roach has steered the picture.

may be to traffic offenders acquainted with the eloquence of officers. Traffic officers have to learn public speaking.

Their talks will promote traffic safety in their communities.

T. A. Rouse of the University of Texas faculty will be public speaking instructor in the training school to be held May 1 to 13 at Camp Mabry, state police headquarters. Lieut. Franklin M. Fifty traffic men from Texas cities and towns, two Mexico City officers and two members of the Louisiana State Police will attend.

ADULT EDUCATION---

Editor's Note:—The following address was made by J. F. Reeves, Superintendent of Schools at Fort Stockton, at the Third Annual Convention of District Eight of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, April 26. It is reproduced here by request of members of the local club.

Madam President, honored guests, Ladies of the Eighth District:

The field of adult education is not as many people think a recent development, for people of ancient times realized as we do, that the cornerstone of Democracy is education and that cornerstone must be laid upon a solid ground of academic freedom.

Perhaps our most notable example of this fact was the Greek system of democracy, where adult men clustered about such great teachers as Socrates, Plato and Aristotle.

Adult training has not had a continuous progress, however, for with the fall of Greece, democracy and education each received a serious set back. As time went on and various monarchies were replaced by democracies we note that wherever democracy has failed it came about as a result of the illiteracy of the people. Much of the trouble our South American republics are having, and many of our most serious problems arise from our uninformed and illiterate working classes.

It was fortunate for us that our forefathers realized this fundamental of democracy and made preparation for establishing schools and colleges.

Today, more than ever before we are facing the necessity of adult education. We have been awakened to this crying need by the two great crises of our recent history, namely the World War and the great depression. The war brought a demand for Americanization classes; the depression showed us our need for trained workers who, failing to find employment in one line of work, could turn to some other means of making a living.

The federal government has taken the lead in this by offering classes in a wide range of subjects from the crafts to social and economic problems.

The functions of Adult Education may best be summed up as follows:

- 1. Remedial; 2. Vocational; 3. Cultural; 4. Governmental; and 5. Relational.

The first of these functions is to provide rudimentary training such as reading and writing, grammar and arithmetic. In 1918, 25 per cent of those drafted for army service could neither read or write. Even today there are approximately 4 million in the United States who neither read or write. 32 million never completed the 8th grade and another 32 million completed the 8th grade but did not finish high school. Only 9,200,000 graduated from high school and 2,100,000 from college. Thus 15 per cent of our population has finished high school or college, a great achievement for education in itself but what of the 85 per

"NAZI SPY" CAST LIVE IN FILM STUDIO FOR SAFETY

Warner Bros. expect their production "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" to prove a number of things among them that the motion picture studios, contrary to the claims of many, do have their share of courage and that Hollywood is willing to film a picture that carries a message.

But another thing the picture already has proven is that a motion picture studio is, in effect, a self-contained little city. "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," the sensational Warner Bros. picture which shows Monday and Tuesday at the Princess Theatre, another OK Roadshow, has proven for one and for all, that it is. Before the picture went into production a group of more than a dozen persons, for a variety of reasons, most of them obvious, decided to live at the studio during the filming of the picture.

The studio assigned dressing rooms to anyone desiring them and throughout the time they worked in the picture not one of cent yet with insufficient training to satisfy the needs of modern life? W. P. A. projects claim to have reduced illiteracy by sixteen and two thirds per cent in its classes during the three years preceding 1937. In little rural school houses throughout the south negro cotton pickers and many times white farm laborers gathered to learn their ABC's. Off country roads in New England farm women sat around flickering oil lamps studying child care and family relationships. In Pittsburgh, steel workers coming off the midnight shift gathered to listen to lectures and pictures on history and geography. Down on New York's lower East side bewildered peddlers hurried to English classes in order to become citizens and apply for social security benefits.

This leads us to the second function of adult education, which is vocational. For many years larger cities have maintained night schools to which thousands have flocked. Here this group ventured outside the studio. Their temporary homes were their dressing rooms. Their dining room was the studio commissary. And the studio entertained them each evening by screening a picture in one of the many projection rooms. For those who would prefer other forms of entertainment, the property department provided radios ping-pong and pool tables and the research department maintained a library of several thousand volumes which was open until midnight.

Cast Virtual League Of Nations Lya Lys, born in Berlin of Russian parents and reared in France and now a naturalized American, plays a German spy in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy."

Edward G. Robinson, star of the production, was born in Bucharest, Roumania, and emigrated to the United States with his parents in his childhood. He became an American citizen automatically when his parents took out naturalization papers. He's playing a G-Man in the picture.

George Sanders, born in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) of English parents, reared in England and on the Continent plays a Nazi spy in the same production.

Leon G. Turrou, born in Warsaw, Poland, of French-Polish parents, reared in Poland Russia, Germany, France, Egypt, India and China, naturalized in 1921, is the former G-Man who served as technical advisor on the same picture.

Anatole Litvak, born in Russia and subsequently a resident of Germany, France, Hungary and the United States, was the director of the picture.

Francis Lederer, one of the stars, was born in Prague, Czechoslovakia, got his start on the stage in Hungary, then made pictures in Germany and France and Spain and, finally, the United States. He got his final papers only a few months ago. He also plays a Nazi spy in the picture.

Paul Lukas, another one of the Nazi spies, was born in Budapest, Hungary. He began his dramatic career in Hungary, then moved to Germany for screen work. He went to England, then to the United States in 1927.

Henry Victor, who portrays an agent of the dread Gestapo, the German secret police, in the picture, was born in England of German parents. He has been a citizen of the United States for many years.

Adult Education—

again the W. P. A. has taken a hand. One W. P. A. teacher earning $700.00 per year herself taught a class of housemaids whose collective earnings increased $20,000.00 after class instruction.

A young man of 22 years in Oregon, with 3 dependants was stricken with osteomyelitis in his ankle and lost his job. Through a W. P. A. class he learned to grind and polish lenses and was soon employed again at a living wage. An elderly, ruddy faced seaman on shore leave took a course in taxidermy so that he could mount the specimens he collects all over the world. He will soon have a collection a museum would pay much to possess.

Stimulated by W. P. A. classes a few states have passed legislation to finance a permanent program of adult education. Among these are California and Pennsylvania. Connecticut has always supported it. In several other states similar legislation is proposed. In this respect the United States has lagged behind most European countries where extensive work along this line has existed for numbers of years. A third function of Adult Education is cultural, such as study in the field of liberal arts, sciences and literature.

The greatest credit in this phase of the work should go to the Federated Women Clubs of America who through their study programs have greatly improved the knowledge and culture of the women of our land. I heard a club woman recently say that she had gotten more real good from her club work than from her college education.

The W. P. A. is also an important agent in presenting the cultural phase of our civilization. One old lady enrolled in Plane

Geometry stating that all her life she had to be practical and now she wanted something useless. (By the way, many of the youngsters would agree with her concerning this subject.)

An indication of what may happen when adult education becomes permanent everywhere is the super-project at Maplewood, New Jersey. The first year the school was furnished by the Board of Education and the teachers gave their services, twelve courses were offered. The second year 600 adults were expected, but twice the number came. In the fourth year Maplewood joined with nearby villages and now offers over 50 courses with some students signing up for two or more. What do the students like? Apparently everything from games, physical activities, arts and crafts to Shakespeare and Bible history. So on Tuesday evenings when the adult school is in session the four gymnasiums, the swimming pool, the shops, the domestic science, and the music and art centers of the great building are occupied, with a forum meeting in the large auditorium where a governor, an ambassador or some other authority on public affairs may be speaking. In the lecture rooms university professors expound literature, sciences and philosophy.

A fourth function is political and economic or the study of problems necessary for public consideration in a democracy. This naturally is one of the most popular phases of adult education in every W. P. A. School. It too, furnishes most of the topics discussed in the public Forums of our land. There was a meeting in Austin April 17 to consider the possibilities of setting up a plan of Forum Organization in Texas.

A fifth and to me the most important function is "relational" or teaching people how to get along with others. The need here is greatest and the results seem least successful. We live in a country that has a standing army of between three and four million criminals according to J. Edgar Hoover. This figure represents more men than volunteered during the World War to defend this country in time of need. In other words, we have more people who are willing, apparently, to join a dishonorable army whose activity is destructive and detrimental to civilization than would be willing to join an honorable army, wear an honorable uniform and defend this country from destruction.

We live in a country where each of our leading cities has more murders every year than England and Wales. More than 70 major crimes such as murder, arson and robbery are committed every sixty minutes and sad to say the largest group of criminals, when divided into age groups has been the 19 year old group. More than 30,000 boys 19 years of age are picked up each year as criminals and lose their citizenship two years before they are even entitled to its rights. In one of our leading penitentiaries not so long ago, out of seven men awaiting execution 5 were under 21 years of age. A majority of criminals now are under 25 years of age.

Recently at Austin, Mr. E. A. Murchison, Chairman of the Austin School Board and Probation Officers of Travis County stated positively that juvenile crime was steadily increasing. A recent analysis of a thousand juvenile delinquents revealed that 14 per cent of them showed visible and pronounced symptoms and evidence of maladjustment at the age of 6 years or less; 23 per cent at seven or eight; 26 percent at nine or ten; 21 per cent at eleven or twelve and only 16 per cent at thirteen or over. Approximately 84 per cent of these boys showed criminal tendencies before reaching Scout age.

Fourteen billion dollars are spent on crime each year while only two billions are spent on the public school system. Seven times as much on crime as on education. If this expenditure could be reversed think what could be accomplished in the way of developing school facilities, entertainments, playgrounds and parks for both old and young.

This expenditure can be reversed gradually if we can enlist the parents in helping train and direct their children along socially and economically desirable lines. It is said that the family is the "Potter's Wheel of Personality". I did not know the meaning of this until I visited the San Diego Fair and witnessed an old gentleman take a handful of clay and with skillful patient hands mold a tall, beautiful vase. We parents too are potters in the sense that we take a handful of human clay (our children) and mold them into characters, some beautiful and lovely, others warped and distorted, misfits in our civilization. No parent should slip into the assumption that he has not a thing to worry about. Adaptation to the complexities of the modern world is so exacting that every child runs into some maladjustment, even when it does not break out in serious personal difficulties. Not a grown person has entirely escaped the mark of stresses that came in this adaptive process. Several years ago Dr. Leslie B. Hohman, Associate in Psychiatry at John Hopkins Medical School studied the behavior of ten babies ranging from 18 months to 4 years, all from fortunately situated families. A really normal group and yet every single child had some little trait which, if not corrected contained the possibility of psychologic trouble later.

The rearing of children is a serious problem and should be studied more than anything else in life. One of the ways we may help our children is, first, by maintaining a democratic home life, for only under such conditions can a child learn the ways of democracy. A child must be considered as a human being with just rights and not as a slave or a property of the parents. The more dictatorial a parent is the less love and less personal relationship he may have with his child. In such cases how can the parent expect to have the child come to him with his problems and difficulties.

The fact that democracy has come to the school and has replaced those dictators of former years who had a great bundle of switches standing in the corner ready for use at the least provocation has made school teaching much easier and more pleasant.

A pleasing illustration of democracy in the school came to my attention recently. I had arbitrarily worked out an athletic award program and presented it to the student body for adoption in September. There were no objections at the time, but when time came for making football awards the boys were not satisfied and sent a representative to me. I met with the boys and told them of my reasons for such a program and offered to let them help me work over the suggested program. After perhaps an hour discussion I suggested to the boys that we drop the whole matter and that I would continue the old policy. They objected in one voice with it. Finally we came to the last point which was really the only point I was determined to include. I continued by saying "and this point" and hesitated trying to think of the best way of telling them that the point would be included, when a boy spoke up and said "there is no use in us discussing this point, is there?" I replied very little and that was all of it. The boys still recognized my authority and yet appreciated the opportunity of working out their own system of awards. We all left the conference happy, feeling that we both had gotten what we wanted. I know that similar procedure may be followed in the home on many occasions.

Maintaining a democracy in the home by no means implies a relaxation of discipline or of restraining the children from bad habits. I can tell you the most unpopular teacher and the parents who have lost the reins of authority and let the children do as they please. We could continue at length on educating adults for parenthood but will leave the remainder of the discussion for you ladies in your study groups at home. I wish each club could be induced to study some phase of the work of rearing children as a preventive as well as corrective measure. Before closing, may I suggest some of the means used in informing parents. New Jersey perhaps has the most complete organization Parents are reached through movies portraying important child training problems from the child's viewpoint; through study groups, radios, dramas, short study courses, play centers, pamphlets, booklets and news letters. Many of these agencies can be used here in West Texas with splendid results. The one thought above all others that I would have you remember from this address is "The Family is the Potter's Wheel of Personality" and upon the personality depends the future of your child.

A LETTER—

Sanderson, Texas
 April 10, 1939

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, GREETING:

THIS IS TO CERTIFY that this Court authorized Mr. D. O. Park, of Crystal City, Texas, to install one of the AUTOMATIC WINDMILL LIFTS on the windmill at the Courthouse, purchased with the understanding that if the lift failed to increase the efficiency of the Mill at least fifty per cent, money would be refunded, and we find same has increased the efficiency of this Mill one hundred per cent. all of our storage tanks having been filled for the first time since their erection.

Having planted considerable more shrubbery around the Courthouse grounds since the installation of this lift, and keeping the water running from three to four outlets constantly during each day, have found that the storage has kept up with the water used, and there is no doubt but that the water supply has been increased one hundred per cent and from observation, it seems that this mill now runs from a lighter wind than other windmills nearby that are using smaller pipe, and with a much shorter stroke.

We are very glad to recommend these lifts.

Done in open Commissioner's Court at Sanderson, Texas, on this 10th day of April, A. D. 1939.
