TERRELL COUNTY GREASE DOING DOUBLE DUTY

The first 100-pound shipment of grease salvaged by Terrell County housewives is ready to go, according to Greene Cooke who is handling storage and shipping of the greases turned in by local people.

Besides going to the War Department to be used in producing high explosives, shells, and bullets for the benefit of the axis, all monies received from the sale of the grease goes into the local Red Cross fund. No contributor of grease is paid for her donation and Mr. Cooke is handling the grease without charge. Payment ordinarily received by housewives plus the amount usually paid to the market man for handling, all goes into the fund.

Housewives are reminded that all greases possible should be saved, strained and placed in a can or glass container and placed in the refrigerator or other place. When the container is full it should be taken at once to the Cooke Market and left with Mr. Cooke. No spoiled grease is wanted.

ling to pay taxes and do without things they need to preserve the freedom for which our men in uniforms are paying their lives. If we fumble and lose that liberty, we are guilty of making them die in vain. In view of this we have a right to ask our leaders to call their shots. Let's ask Congress to tell us whether government-owned business will be allowed to choke out private enterprise as soon as war is over.

Miss Billie Jo Corder arrived Wednesday from Tucson, Arizona, where she has been attending school.

Civilians Lead In Purchase of War Bonds In Drive

Texas' man in the street paced the entire nation in the purchase of war bonds in the Second War Loan drive, according to information released from the office of the State War Bond Administrator, which disclosed that bond sales to individuals, partnerships and personal trust accounts nearly doubled the fixed quota.

Sales to small investors totaled 199 per cent in the 11th Federal Reserve District which comprises all of Texas and parts of Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona. Texas has 254 of the 311 counties making up this district.

The district had a goal of $400,000,000 for all bond sales in the war loan drive. It handed Uncle Sam a cool $572,451,600 to make it hot for the axis in translocation of bonds to armament and administration. This means the goal was oversubscribed by 43 per cent.

Banks, institutions and governmental departments invested heavily in the war loan drive, but the individual investor—the man in the street—emerges as a great factor in its success.

The Sanderson Culture Club held the final meeting of the fiscal year in the home of Mrs. W. E. Lea Thursday, May 20th at four o'clock.

Scattered rains which fell over most sections of this and adjoining counties during the past week have done much to alleviate the drought from which ranchmen have been suffering the past several months.

Majority of the ranchmen have found it difficult to secure feed because of the shortage and as a result livestock have suffered. Lamb crops are good generally, however.

Although the fall to date has not been general, nor not nearly enough to put a good seasoning in the ground and water in the tanks, it has helped immensely and grazing lands show indication of greening up. Scattered hail was also reported during the showers although no serious damage has been done.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Herbert and family of Houston, accompanied by Miss Marian Herbert of Fort Clark, arrived Tuesday for a visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Herbert. While here the entire group attended the graduation exercises at the Marfa Flying Field Thursday night when Lt. Bert Herbert received his wings.

THE EAGLE NEWS

EDITED BY STUDENTS OF THE SANDERSON HIGH SCHOOL

CLASS PROPHECY

Tonight we shall call upon the spirits to take us into the land of tomorrow. We want to know what the future holds for these boys and girls who are leaving Sanderson High for richer and broader fields.

First, spirits, we would look into the future of the very studious Don Allen. Ah—here he is in Denmark—the ambassador of the United States. Something must be wrong! He always wanted to settle down on a ranch after college. Let's look closer and see why such a change—there is the reason! His wife—the lovely Mickie Corder. Now we understand. Mickie always said she would see the world before she settled down. Looks like she is, and Don is too, whether he wants to or not. Such is the life of a married man!

Here in Paris, France we seem to see some familiar figures. There's Margaret Ruth Yeates—what is she doing? Why, she's in a very swank office, on the door of which we see "Manager—Private" She is handing some letters to her secretary, and her secretary, of all people, seems to be Donald Babb—but what is she Manager of? We always thought that the only thing she would manage would be the home of Joe Bean, but Joe doesn't seem to be in the picture here.

On down the street, we can see a large, interesting-looking place. If the spirit would let us see inside, maybe we could find somebody else we know. It seems our very smallest wishes are being granted tonight, and I now can see inside the largest dress shop in Paris—yes, just as we thought, there on the floor surrounded by beautiful models wearing his own creations we find Donald Smith. We always knew he had to succeed. All of his books at school were covered with beautiful models. Gee, some guys have all the luck!

The spirit now shows us London and who do we see here but our own Bill Cochran. Yep, you guessed it, he is being feted still for his heroism in the skies during the war. He's one of the old seniors who won't soon be forgotten. The globe seems to be turning—here we are out on the broad Pacific. There is a beautiful ship in our line of vision. As we look closer, we see a luxury liner—did I say luxury? That word is insufficient. This is strictly super! The man strolling the deck is unmistakably that handsome, swashbuckling Joe Bean, and has he come up in the world? For looking closer we can see he is captain of this magnificent ship. By his side a very attractive lady. Joe always was quite a lady's man, and this lady seems to be familiar—of course, it's Kathryn Nell Nance and so attractively groomed. Looks like she, too, is seeing the world!

The globe continues to turn. Here before us is the great American Metropolis, New York—I wonder who we shall be shown here? The light is focusing on one of the gayer night spots. We see diners and dancers, but can't seem to distinguish them. Now, the vision becomes clearer. We can see the orchestra and that music! The leader definitely can handle that trumpet. And no wonder—It's W. T. Frazier, successor to the fame of Harry James—and we might add, much more handsome! The floor show is beginning. Let's stay here awhile, spirit, I believe we might see somebody else we know. The M. C. is introducing a dance team—here they come. My those dazzling costumes! They must have cost a fortune. Do my eyes deceive me? No, it is, truly, Douglas Smith and his partner our old schoolmate, Wilma Lois Moorefield. She looks perfectly gorgeous, and so graceful. No wonder this dance team is the toast of all America.

The M. C. is now spot-lighting some of the prominent guests. He is saying: "The very distinguished Senator from Texas, Betty Frazor." My, my how surprising. Her ambition was to be a nurse. Things certainly can change, can't they? Now the M. C. is introducing her escort seems that he, too, is a part-time resident of Washington—Speaker of the House of Representatives the honorable M. G. Northcut.

I guess we have seen all of this night spot we're going to see for the light is fading and the globe seems to be turning. Now its stopping, and another American Metropolis is in focus, Chicago—wonder whom we shall see here. That imposing building we see seems to be the University of Chicago. The spirit is opening the door marked "President" and there at the desk sits Margaret Pierson. She must be the first woman to attain the presidency of this famous University. Evidently we are going to see somebody else we know here, for the spirit is guiding us down the hall. We are stopping now at a door marked "Medical Research," the door opens, and yep, you guessed it—there's James House, and he is making those students listen to him! Wonder how he is getting along with those Yankees? We still are not leaving the University. Wonder whom else we are going to see. There on the campus strolling very nonchalantly along is Laura Oberling. She has a brief case under her arm, and is headed in the general direction of the Social Studies building. She has the air of a professor—I guess she has attained her ambition—we sincerely hope so.

The globe is turning again—our view is being focused on Atlanta, Georgia. Well, thank goodness, we are going to see some of our old classmates in the South. We were beginning to think they had all gone north or to Europe. The globe is not stopping in Atlanta, though. But is stopping a little ways from the city. There is a large colonial house in front of us, and somebody is sitting on the porch apparently very ingrossed in writing. Looking closely, we see it is Imogene Woodruff. The magazine which is open beside her shows her picture and under the picture we can see the caption "America's foremost novelist." We wonder if she is seeking southern atmosphere for another "Gone With The Wind."

Spirit, if its all the same to you, could you take us back to Texas. We should like to know if any of the Seniors of '43 are still there. The globe is turning. Now its stopping at Houston—only it isn't stopping. Seems we are going on to Orange, Texas. There is a tremendously large building in front of us, and so much activity! We can now see inside the building and the office of the President of the Haynes Shipbuilding Company. We wonder—yes, sure enough there is Harold, as big and important looking and executive as you would be likely to find. Right now he seems to be ingrossed in a very beautiful lady. Maybe if she would turn around we would know her, too. We do know her—its Janice White. She's wearing a wedding ring, and judging from the looks she is giving H. H., there's little doubt—who the lucky man is.

The globe turns again—now this is more like it—San Antonio. Gee, it feels good to be near home again. We are stopping in front of the San Antonio Express and Evening News building. We needn't go inside for here on the building in large letters we see "Eldridge Murray, Publisher" Very, very good! Down Houston street the light is focusing on a very exclusive dress shop—we don't have to go inside here either for the neon sign outside says "Exclusive Clothes, designed by Alma" Business manager Carmen Fuentes.

The spirit seems to be taking us to the St. Anthony. The banners and flags outside proclaim the fact that a celebrity is being honored. Maybe if we are fast enough we can see who it is. Good, we are just in time to hear the Mayor introduce the Governor of the State of Texas, Honorable Edward Huston Kerr. Well, these Seniors of '43 are really going places!

The globe moves again—Now we're in Uvalde, and are stopping at a very large and beautiful ranch home. There, seated on the beautiful green lawn, and with the unmistakable air of wealth and prestige, is Marshall Cooke. Seated by him is a most charming lady whom we don't know. Undoubtedly she is his wife, and we feel assured that the three curly heads playing around them are their children. They bear an unmistakable resemblance to their father.

The spirit seems to be taking us ever nearer home, for here we are nearing the familiar town of Del Rio. Our gaze focuses on the large filling station and tourist camp just outside of the city. Gosh, this tourist camp rivals anything we've ever seen, and the sign proclaims in big letters "Blackwell's One-Stop Filling Station and Tourist Camp."

The globe moves again, and here we are among our beloved hills, just outside Sanderson, at the old homestead we find Bill Davis. But things here have changed, too, the house is one swank affair, and on the grounds we see a swimming pool, tennis courts, etc. It is one dream of a place! Bill looks so happy and content and who wouldn't be.

We are not going to be allowed to stay here, tho' for the globe is turning again. This time it is stopping at El Paso. Here, as Division Manager of the Southern Pacific railroad, is Curtis Litton. He looks very capable in that big office surrounded by office help of all kinds—especially beautiful girls. Looks more like a "hangout" for Powers Models than the office of a big executive.

The globe has moved slightly and we are able to see inside El Paso's largest bank. Behind the door marked "President", we find Lewis Lemons.

We don't believe any class from any school could produce as this class has.

Now, spirit, one last request, and we'll be satisfied. We would like to see into the future of Mrs. Holley Senior sponsor.

The globe is moving. Why here we are again in our own Sanderson. We are going a little

OPERETTA GIVEN WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The Sanderson Ward School gave the final Victory Program of the year on May 12th. An Operetta "Molly Be Jolly" was played with 128 boys and girls taking part. Full of fun and frolic from beginning to end ways east of Sanderson. Now we see a large beautiful ranch house—patio, flowers, and statues of horses everywhere. Surely, this is the home of "Tom and Thelma". In the patio there are two little fellows—riding bicycles. On closer examination, we believe they must be grandchildren, tho' whether Jay Tom's or Joan's we can't tell. There relaxing in the cool, we see the Holleys—retired and taking life easy! Such luxury—

Thank you, spirit, for your services and it is the sincere wish of the Junior Class that each and every one of you Seniors reach the goal to which you assure—be it in the field we have chosen for you or some other.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

Almost everybody's figuring what things'll be like after the war. I talked about that today with Jeb Crowell. Jeb—he's a veteran of the last War—says: "One thing's sure, Joe. The boys this time won't return and find what we came back to." Then he went on to mention Prohibition... and I ought to say right here that Jeb's a man of moderation... a glass of beer or two is all he'll ever take. It was the principle of the thing that bothered him.

"Passing a law behind backs," he says, "was just what we were fighting for in 1776. Law-making representation is one of the undemocratic things we came back to." I guess we're all agreed that. Most folks admit we made a mistake once... but the boys who are fighting this war are pretty sure we won't pull a thing like that again!

BACK TO THIS?

not if you take good care of your

Electric Range

Back to soot-scouring, an overheated kitchen and all of the other disadvantages of old-fashioned flame-type cooking? Not if you take proper care of your electric range! An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, so give your range the attention it deserves and it will serve you well for the duration!

POINTERS ON RANGE CARE

- Clean outside of range as you would a china plate. Wash, when cool, with warm soapy water; rinse and wipe dry. Never put cold water or cold objects on hot porcelain. It may crack or craze the finish.
● Avoid letting spilled foods harden on range. Food spilled on surface units should be allowed to burn off. Do not use stiff brush or sharp instrument.
● Scour pans under surface units daily to prevent burning-in of spillovers.
● Don't let utensils burn dry on surface units. The metal will melt and run into the coil and ruin it.
● To clean oven, wait until it cools, then remove units by pulling them straight out. Wash oven linings with warm soap and water, scouring charred spots with steel wool or thick mixture of powdered chalk and household ammonia.
● Never wash oven or surface units. Keep dripping rags away from units. Water may damage connections.

- Get oven units back securely after removing them for cleaning. If they are barely in receptacle, they may heat up, yet the electricity may be "arcing" and burning out the terminals.
● Scour aluminum deep well cookers with steel wool and soap and water. Do not allow water to drip into the cooker unit.
● Do not heat porcelain enamel cookers before putting in fat, water or foods and do not allow to boil dry or subject to sudden changes in temperatures.
● Don't put an insulated cooker top in water or it will seep into insulation and warp cover.
● Have a serviceman check your range occasionally to see that it is "safety level" units are operating satisfactorily and that wiring is in tip-top shape.

THIS IS PART OF YOUR PAY CHECK

SEE THAT GUN?

It's making things plenty hot for the Axis.

Know where that gun came from?

From the pay checks and pay envelopes of people like you.

It was bought with the money you lent your Government in regular installments from your pay.

But hold on now—

Maybe this isn't your gun at all. Maybe you haven't been lending the Government a regular amount from your pay.

Maybe you haven't been setting aside at least 10 percent of your salary and more if you can for War Bonds!

There are still some people around who aren't . . . not many—but it's just possible that you're one of them.

If you are, we're sure it's not for want of patriotism, but because you just haven't quite got around to it.

Tell your boss or shop representative today that you want to help win the war by joining the Pay-roll Savings Plan. Tell him you want to save at least 10 percent of every pay check by putting it into War Bonds.

You can't make a better investment—

You'll be buying the weapons that insure a future of freedom, peace and plenty.

You'll be getting back $4 for every $3 you save when the bonds mature.

Makes sense, doesn't it?

THEN—START TODAY!

SAVE WITH U.S. WAR BONDS EVERYBODY...EVERY PAYDAY...

AT LEAST 10%

The above is one of a series of messages to be brought to you by patriotic firms who desire to give you full particulars as to why you should LEND your DOLLARS to back our sons, husbands, fathers and friends, who are willing to GIVE their LIVES so that the world might be a free place in which you and your children, and they and their children, might live in freedom rather than as slaves to ruthless dictators. Every dollar put in bonds helps them.

STRANGE AMNESIA CASE DRAMATIC SITUATION OF NEW "GILLESPIE" FILM

Lionel Barrymore grapples with a strange case of amnesia that develops into an intriguing dramatic situation, provides an absorbing adventure a romantic love story in "Dr. Gillespie's New Assistant," showing at the Princess theatre Tuesday.

The picture takes its name from the three young men engaged to act as Dr. Gillespie's assistant, to aid in taking the burden of work from the shoulders of the kindly, irascible, gruff and tender physician. The roles are filled by a talented trio consisting of Van Johnson, Keye Luke and Richard Quine. Susan Peters is the woman in the story.

It is when Miss Peters loses her memory that Barrymore and his assistants are called into the case. As the subject does not respond to proven medical and psychological practice, the elderly doctor surmises there is something deeper. Van Johnson, detailed to the case, uncovers the fact that she is faking—and for a reason that provides drama and a touching love story.

Honore McNally, Alma Kruger, Nat Pendleton, Walter Kingsford, Marie Blake, Nell Craig and Frank Orth, "regulars" in the Dr. Gillespie series, appear in this offering.

JANE'S SPECIALTY IS IMPERSONATING
Jane Withers is the only one who has grown up on the screen.

A new kind of bomb, as important as the blockbuster, is the "health bomb" used to destroy disease.

With malaria, yellow fever, and other diseases threatening as many fighting men as did bullets in past wars, industry is now producing thousands of these "health bombs" daily in plants all over the country.

The "bombs" are six-inch metal insecticide dispensers about the size of a tin can, which exterminate disease-spreading flies and mosquitoes, but are harmless to human beings. The dispensers are loaded with a highly potent liquid insecticide which releases a fine mist, fatal to insects.

Thus, an American fighting man, lying in a foxhole, and pestered by a disease-carrying mosquito, has only to release the "health bomb" to eliminate the mosquito, and concentrate on the enemy.

"Health bombs" are frequently discharged in tents and barracks where troops are quartered in the tropics, and in the cabins of all airplanes, military and civilian, that take off from tropical bases.

One pound of this insecticide, more deadly to insects than any invented to date, costs only as much as a gallon of the ordinary sprays, but covers three times as much territory. In 12 to 14 minutes, a "health bomb" will fumigate 150,000 cubic feet of space—the whole of 240 Army pup-tents or 50 giant bombers. The spray can be turned on or off as necessary, and only 3 minutes are required to fumigate one tent.

Other uses for the "bomb" are in fumigating houses and annihilating insects which prey on picnics, and fishing and camping parties. It has also proved effective against ants and cockroaches.

without cessation of appearance before the public. She makes her debut in "Johnny Doughboy" which comes to the Princess Theatre Friday and Saturday, May 28 and 29.

Ann Winters (Jane Withers) motion picture star, just sixteen, refuses to make any more 'kiddie' films. In desperation she runs away. Meanwhile Miss Penelope Ryan (Jane Withers) arrives, having won a trip to Hollywood for being Ann's closest double. Harry Fabian (William Demarest), Ann's agent, conceives the idea of substituting Penelope for Ann and sends her to the "Twenty-Minus Club," an organization of former child movie stars who Ann had worked with. The "Twenty-Minus" group plans a "Junior Victory Caravan" to entertain soldiers, however, they need at least one star name, and they appeal to the girl they think is "Ann" to join them. Meanwhile, the real Ann Winters gets lost and seeks refuge on the estate of Oliver Lawrence (Henry Wilcoxon), playwright, whom she develops a crush on. Penelope finds Ann and begs her to return but Ann ignores the appeal. Lawrence, realizing Ann's infatuation for him, dampens her enthusiasm and she leaves and joins the "Twenty-Minus" crowd, doing her share to make their "Junior Victory Caravan" a success.

Richard Ainley. When Reginald Owen, playing his publisher, doesn't know how to iron out his tangled marital life, a symphony conductor, played by Felix Bressart, takes a hand. In a hilarious climax the bewildered husband and his musical wife finally find their difficulties settled.

Richard Thorpe directed with a deft lightness that brought out delicate human interest moments. Miss Sothern plays her role with droll gravity, Douglas garners many laughs as the bewildered one, and Lee Bowman and Richard Ainley provide two personable "rivals," although neither plays a "heavy" in the story. Bressart gets comedy and human interest out of a whimsical role, Reginald Owen plays another comedy role as Douglas' publisher friend.

Music by the women's symphony orchestra is beautifully executed and they add a pictorial highlight.

ANN SOTHERN, DOUGLAS NEW ROMANTIC TEAM IN "THREE HEARTS FOR JULIA"
Ann Sothern and Melvyn Douglas come to the screen as a new romantic team in a new idea in comedy entertainment, in "Three Hearts for Julia," coming to the Princess Theatre Sunday and Monday. Miss Sothern forsakes the flippancy of Maisie and Douglas becomes a rather serious journalist in their new characters.

Complications start when Douglas returns from two years abroad to find his wife, Julia (Miss Sothern), planning to divorce him and completely absorbed in the affairs of a feminine symphony orchestra. He also finds he has two rivals in the persons of Lee Bowman and
