VOLUME XXXVII

FROM TEXAS TO TOKIO

Jack D. Miller writes his mother, Mrs. Lottie Miller: "Just a few lines to let you know I've arrived in Italy and am in fine. In fact, it is so far from North Africa it's pitiful. The place where I'm stationed is modern, much like any city in the States. I've really enjoyed the barber shops and baths, and can also buy candy or ice cream, and many other things I couldn't get in Africa. I've been to Rome and Naples, also. You really see what it is like then—nothing left in the city. It looks like railroading is going to be a lot better here. The equipment is a lot better and most all our steam power is oil burners."

Marvin D. Kelly writes Horgan that he is now in England. Says that he is in a tent but that the tent is well so he can't complain. "Tell Son Marvin if you see him, that I'm still trying the knife he gave me. He's lost it yet."

He also states that railroading in England is about the same as in North Africa. Says they have same kind of cars and everything, and "I'll still settle for a good job out of Sanderson." Kelly was stationed at Little Rock, Ark. sixty days after he returned from foreign duty in Africa, before being sent to England. He is working eight hours and says he has a lot of fun, "but they learn fast in the army."

Joe Ross Phillips, who has been stationed in England, writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Phillips, that he is now in England and seeing a lot of fun.

Bert Kerr, Lt. (jg), left Sanderson for his station at Little Rock, Ark., after spending a day leave here with his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James Bob received the leave two years of foreign service with the Navy.

An air Transport Command Base in Great Britain has the information that Sergeant James C. Roark, son of I. C. Sanderson, has been awarded the Good Conduct Medal according to an announcement by his commanding officer. Sgt. Roark entered the service in 1941 and received his training at Presque Isle Air Field, Presque Isle, Me.

He served in the British with the European Division USAAF Air Transport Command for the past seven months and is present in the transport section of this command. Delivery of the thousands of fighter planes participating in the liberation of Europe is one of the major missions of ATC's in the Division. As the Atlantic aerial supply line to the United States and Britain, the Division carries hundreds of passengers and thousands of pounds of mail monthly.

The War Department announced last week that Lt. Lloyd E. Muller, en route to a flying Fortress, had been awarded the Distinguished Cross. Lloyd, who was with Frank's Super for several years, has completed fifty missions over enemy territory, and was awarded the medal for his part in the missions.

Albert Mansfield, sergeant in class, writes his sister Frazier, that he is in England. He is serving in amphibious troops and is in the invasion of Europe. He says he did not scratch.

Shelton writes his mother, Mrs. Lottie Miller, that he

VOTING RETURNS INDICATE LITTLE INTEREST SHOWN

W. H. SAVAGE NAMED DELEGATE TO CONVENTION

A complete tabulation of the votes cast in the Democratic primary election shows that not quite half the population of Terrell County was sufficiently interested in politics to go to the polls to cast a vote. Of the approximately 740 eligible voters in the county, only 368 votes were cast.

At a meeting of the County Democratic Committee Saturday, W. H. Savage was named a delegate to go to the state convention to be held in Dallas in September.

The complete returns as they were cast in the different precincts and the total of all votes, will be found on the back page of this week's issue of the Times.

Texas Business Shows Continued Boom in June

Income in All Fields Above That Reported Same Time Last Year

June was another booming month for Texas business, as workers in the state pocketed $6 for every $5 they made a year ago and the state rounded out six months of financial success without a single commercial failure. University of Texas business researchers report.

Sales and income in all fields surveyed by the University's Bureau of Business Research were well above figures of a year ago, although independent retailers and department stores experienced a usual seasonal decline from May levels.

An indication of the steady boom in Texas business affairs was found too in the report that during the first six months of 1944 a total of 310 new corporations have obtained charters to operate in Texas, compared to only 169 in the first half of 1943.

Construction activity in the state was also up nearly 50 per cent over the first half of 1943, the bureau reports, with permits for $15,730,159 in building projects authorized in 36 major Texas cities.

Texas cement plants cut back their production and shipments slightly during May from the April figures and substantially from the May, 1943, totals, indicating the slackening of wartime building projects. Lumber another big building industry fell substantially below the peak of June, 1943, demands.

As for payroll statistics, the bureau reports that Texans received 20 per cent more in paychecks in June, 1944, than for the same month last year. This did not, however, indicate generally higher wages because there were 4.8 per cent more workers employed this year.

Dallas led in employment increases with 43.9 per cent more workers on the job, while Beaumont and Fort Worth reported fractional decreases.

Dallas, likewise, led Texas cities in gains in independent sales marking up a 12 per cent increase over June, 1943. San Antonio and Corpus Christi advanced 5 per cent, Fort Worth and Houston 3 per cent each.

In the department store sales for June, Austin led the state in gains with a 22.1 per cent advance, El Paso 10.2 per cent, San Antonio 10.7 per cent. Statistics for the first six months of the year indicated that all major cities except Galveston showed strong increases for the half-year in their department store sales.

Mrs. Lena Stavley returned Friday of last week from several days visit in Del Rio with Mrs. Dixie Schupbach.

Bobby Presley arrived here Monday for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Oden, and with Mrs. Lottie Miller.

Judge Davidson Dies in Ozona Tuesday Last Week

Had Served Crockett County for 52 Years' Organizer, Leader

Death, which came shortly before 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, ended the remarkable career of Judge Charles E. Davidson, 88 county judge of Crockett county 52 years, leading figure in the county's organization in 1891, and its judge throughout its history except for one term, successful ranchman and jurist.

Judge Davidson's death came after an illness of many months. He had been in failing health for the past two years or more, in late months being confined to his bed at the ranch 7 miles south of Ozona. His death had been expected for the past few weeks, but his valiant fight for life was only ended Tuesday morning.

Fittingly because of his enduring interest in providing educational facilities possible for the youth of Crockett county the auditorium of Ozona's new high school building, whose construction he helped to plan and supervise, was chosen as the site for funeral services which were conducted at 5:30 Wednesday afternoon. There and at the graveside in Cedar Hill Cemetery, all Crockett county and hundreds of friends from throughout West Texas, paid final tribute to the man whose long tenure of county leadership is perhaps unequalled in the nation and whose mark has been stamped indelibly on the pages of history of this county and section of West Texas.

Survivors include a daughter, Charlotte Anne Daniel; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Daniels 4313 Bliss Street, El Paso; one sister, Mrs. M. H. Harrell, also of El Paso; and one brother, Lt. L. C. Daniel, who is stationed at Santa Ana, Calif. Lt. Daniel was unable to be present for the services.

Palbearers were W. E. Hines, J. E. Landers, D. L. Duke, Jr., Paul Hedrick, Ray Edens, and C. Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Charlton of Sanderson and Mrs. K. J. Hiesler, an aunt of Santa Rosa, N. M., were present for the funeral services.

Parents Urged to See That Children Ready for School

Doctor Urges That Smallpox Vaccine Be Administered

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, urges the parents of all children who will respond to the school bell for the first time in September to be sure the child is physically ready for school duties.

"First and foremost is the need for vaccination against smallpox. Parents and physicians should see that the children are vaccinated before they are one year of age; however if not done previously, at school age vaccination becomes absolutely necessary," Dr. Cox said. "If your child has not been vaccinated, have it done immediately so that the scar will be completely healed before school opens."

Immunization against diphtheria is also highly desirable, Dr. Cox believes. This disease, which causes serious illness and deaths among young children can be prevented with toxoid. The child who has never been protected should be given this safeguard against a dreaded disease. Even though he may have been immunized as a baby, doctors and health officers usually recommend an additional dose of toxoid to strengthen immunity before the entrance into school.

"In addition, before you send your child to school you are urged to take him to your family physician and dentist for a thorough examination," Dr. Cox adds. "You will want to know that he is in good physical condition and can compete with the other children on equal terms. If the check-up reveals any weakness or defect there will be time to build up his general health and correct dental defects before school opens. Don't let your child start his school life with any avoidable handicap."

Miss Avis Marie Foster and Miss Abigail Turner of Cuero left Wednesday after a week's visit here in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Wilkinson. Miss Foster is a niece of Mrs. Wilkinson.

Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Oden returned the first of last week from Selman City where they visited with their son, Pvt. Virgil Oden. Mrs. H. C. Presley, sister of Mr. Oden, returned with them for a visit here.

Telescope At Observatory Is Considered Best

Has Been in Service For Five Years Atop Mount Locke

In five years of service atop Mount Locke in the Davis Mountains of West Texas, the huge 82-inch telescope of the University of Texas' McDonald Observatory has won glowing praise from some of the Western Hemisphere's leading astronomers officials here have learned.

"All astronomers who have used the telescope agree that it is the finest and most efficient piece of astronomical machinery that they have encountered," Dr. Otto Struve, director of both McDonald Observatory and the University of Chicago's Yerkes Observatory, recently wrote University officials.

The minutely accurate driving mechanism with which the telescope is equipped makes it possible for the observer to follow the stars through the heavens.

"This type of mechanism is not new," Dr. Struve added. "Every large telescope is provided with it, but ours is of a very fine and modern design and is perhaps more accurate than similar devices used in other telescopes."

Several distinguished visiting astronomers have used the 82-inch instrument—second largest in the world—recently, Dr. Struve said.

Prof. Frank Edmondson of Indiana University spent six weeks at McDonald in May and June, he said, explaining that Indiana University has been granted permission to use the telescope for ten clear nights each year. The observatory was built by the University of Texas and is staffed and operated by the University of Chicago.

Two Argentine astronomers—Drs. Carlos U. Cesco and Jorge Sahade, from the National Observatory at La Plata, Argentina—spent February and March at McDonald securing photographic materials. Dr. Helen Steel, formerly connected with Harvard University, visited in April.

Arrangements are now being worked out for Dr. Sergei Gaposchkin, former Russian astronomer now at Harvard, to work at McDonald in December.

Miss Jayne Sims left last week for Houston and Mobile, Alabama, where she will visit before returning to her home in Oneida, Tennessee. Miss Sims has been visiting the last several weeks here in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sims.

VANISHING JOBS

One day in the outskirts of Chicago I witnessed a traffic accident. A grocer's delivery car struck one of several children playing in the street and injured him painfully. Playmates scattered in excited disorder seeking the boy's parents, a doctor, a policeman. Each child tried to do what he thought needed most to be done. The father, a hairy specimen, was the first "help" to arrive.

No sooner had his dark eyes taken in the situation than he began to scold the injured boy. He didn't actually cuff his son but he said some really harsh things for the patient to bear along with his injury. (It turned out to be a broken arm.) The unhappy deliveryman took some oral abuse also. He vented his anger freely with profanity in thick dialect.

Doesn't Make Sense

Maybe some learned expert on human behavior could have explained that father's actions. A suffering child wept; unknown injuries waited treatment while duly constituted authority did a loud job of attaching blame without investigation. Understanding this might help explain why people, openly committed to the interests of labor, work so effectively making jobs scarce.

Destroying jobs does not help labor. Workers are never so well off as when there are plenty of jobs. An employee's right to quit his job and take a better one makes pay good, also working conditions. Employers who are liberal and considerate of their employees get the best men and head the best organizations. This is as much a part of America's Free Enterprise system as owning property.

Where The Jobs Are

Not many years ago competent workmen often quit their jobs with big corporations to go in business for themselves. They did it, not because they were sure to earn more. In fact they knew they might earn less. They did it for liberty to use their own ideas. They had self confidence and believed their plans would prosper. The element of chance made it fun to operate businesses of their own.

Running your own business is no fun now; more like a headache, and this sad fact is closing the doors of many one-time thriving little enterprises. Seventy-five per cent of all American workers are engaged in small business. If, in the post-war period, small employers are hopeless; if they find no reason to stay in business, see no chance to excel, get no fun from competition, jobs will be really scarce.

Thinking Time Now

Working people in this country, if they are wisely looking out for their own interests, have no bigger stake in anything than in small enterprises, be they farms or factories. What good is all the oratory about schooling discharged service men to fit them for certain jobs if most jobs are doomed to vanish leaving two men waiting for every position that's left?

There is no certainty that there will be enough jobs after the war to employ service men and former war workers in pursuits of peace. There is no assurance in the words of the politician getting tough with crippled industry saying, "Big Business must put them all to work or support a gigantic WPA to employ them." It is like the voice of the benighted father cursing his maimed child. The right steps taken will assure plenty of jobs. Next week we will outline those steps.

Mrs. Mary Clifford and sister-in-law, Miss "Gypsy" Clifford, arrived here Sunday from Goldsmith for a visit in the home of Mrs. Lottie Miller.

OUR CHANCE FOR LASTING PEACE

The two most pressing domestic problems after the war will be jobs and taxes. And they both hinge on the profitable operation of private industry.

In the future, with air transportation shrinking the globe to little more than a 24-hour trip to any point, our markets must be worldwide. Therefore, we must have a foreign trade policy that will enable us to sell, as well as buy from our neighbors.

Recognizing this condition, the statement of the newly organized Committee on International and Economic Policy of which Winthrop W. Aldrich is chairman, calls for a multilateral trade agreement for the United Nations, creating an international economic charter to define the rights of traders and investors in foreign countries.

It endorses unconditional most-favored-nation treatment, rejects regional preferential agreements and exchange restrictions, and states that if governments strengthen their policies of production and restriction to achieve security "in a contracting world economy... the end of that road is a third world war."

On this statement of fundamentalism, Harry D. Oldhouse, President of Brooklyn College, says: "This is an excellent doctrine, elementary free enterprise economics and sound political thinking. The repudiation of the trade agreements program at this juncture would be a national tragedy. After the war, there will be a crying demand for America's mass production goods and farm products from every country in the world. If we maintain a liberal policy regarding imports, this demand can create thousands of postwar jobs in this country, utilizing industrial and agricultural capacity which otherwise would be idle."

Every country, therefore, if it wishes to promote the expansion of world trade, which is a fundamental condition for the establishment of a durable peace, must show greater willingness to accept the goods of other countries. In other words, the lowering of tariffs under the leadership of the great trading nations, is an essential means of realizing the program of economic and political cooperation endorsed by the United Nations."

AT THE PRINCESS-

"Gaslight," the new film at the Princess Theatre, Sunday and Monday is one of the most exciting and dramatic stories ever to reach the screen. Featured by outstanding performances by the star-studded cast headed by Charles Boyer, Ingrid Bergman and Joseph Cotten, "Gaslight" will keep you on the edge of your seat as it relates the story of the beautiful young singer, portrayed by Miss Bergman, who marries her accompanist (Charles Boyer) and with him sets up home in the London house where Paula's aunt, a famous singer, was murdered.

Deliberately Boyer sets out to drive his wife mad—just why, and through what ingenious methods, it would be unfair to relate. The entrance upon the scene of a Scotland Yard man, played by Joseph Cotten, brings the picture to a tense and highly thrilling climax.

JOAN DAVIS IS GAY SCREWBALL IN NEW COMEDY

Trying to figure out what the public wants in entertainment has given many a motion picture producer many a headache. But from the advance reports, "Beautiful But Broke," coming to the Princess Theatre on Tuesday, is one of those productions which causes a producer to throw the aspirin bottle out of the window and his hat in the air.

First, it stars that slap-happy screwball, radio's funniest comedienne, Joan Davis in what is said to be her screamingest screen role to date. In support, we find songstress Jane Frazee and songster Bob Haymes. Judy Clark is also there with her solid live and John Hubbard contributes what preview audiences proclaim the best romantic comedy performance of his career.

The screen play, which was written by Muriel Bruce from an adaptation by Manny Seff of Arthur Housman's original, sounds as though it would get the comic Joan into plenty of trouble. She is the secretary to a band booking agent. When he gives up the racket and turns it over to her, the fun is said to start.

Unable to get an orchestra when she suddenly finds one in demand, Joan takes one, that is says it's a group of young and

But with the aid of Judy Clark and Jane Frazee, Joan organizes a real band from the daughters and nieces of the elderly ladies and starts for their out of town engagement.

However, they don't get far before the war priorities put them off the train in a small country town. Here they find an empty house, and take it over for the night. But, oh what a night! The house is situated on a high explosive proving ground.

Bob Haymes and John Hubbard come to their rescue and it's love for Jane and Judy.

The girls decide to help the boys put on a show to raise money for a war worker's nursery. It's a terrific success and the boys want the girls to stay on.

NEW COMEDY STARS BRACKEN AND HUTTON

A picture with a story that film fans will be laughing at and talking about for a long time after they have seen it at the Princess Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, is "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek" co-starring Eddie Bracken and Betty Hutton, with Diana Lynn, William Demarest and Porter Hall. It is said to be one of the most uniquely funny movies ever made.

Written and directed by Preston Sturges, whose reputation for originality is second to no one's, "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek" tells the story of a small-town girl, Betty Hutton, who against her policeman father's orders attends a dance given for soldiers. She talks her devoted swain, Bracken, into going to the movies alone while she goes off to dance with the local heroes in khaki. Eddie, a civilian, is a very unhappy boy because his high blood pressure has kept him out of the service.

During a jitterbug routine Betty's head hits a chandelier, which accounts for the fact that when she gets home the following morning, he has a vague recollection of having been married during the night. She recalls to her frantic kid sister, Diana

Lynn, that nobody gave his right name, and she couldn't even know how to go about locating her soldier-husband. It becomes imperative that she find him, however. Diana then urges her to make Eddie propose, since he's always loved her anyway. But when she finally gets him to do so, she can't go through with it; she tells "all" Eddie, after a violent blood pressure attack, said to be the funniest thing he's ever done comes up with some unusual ideas.

The events leading up to the "miracle," and the "miracle" itself, are hilariously funny—too funny to spoil them for you by revealing them here. And incidentally if you saw Preston Sturges' "The Great McGinty," you'll be additionally amused by the appearance of "McGinty" and "The Boss" in "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek."
