LIFE'S BOOBY-TRAPS

By George Peck

National Sunday School Week sponsored by the Laymen's National Committee, will be observed the week of April 8 to 14. For those parents who carelessly have been disregarding the spiritual training of their children, here will be an opportunity to make an auspicious beginning of that education by sending them to Sunday School on Sunday, April 14th; and then having at long last awakened to their duty and to the vital necessity of religious education for their offspring, to keep up the good work by sending them to Sunday School regularly each Sabbath Day thereafter.

Last year, it was my great privilege and honor to have acted as moderator on a radio program, broadcast on behalf of Sunday School Week. One of the participants was the Honorable Matthew J. Troy, Judge of the Court of Special Sessions, New York City. Judge Troy's answer to a question I asked of him stamped itself indelibly on my mind. The question was: "Judge do you believe that an early religious education helps to keep young people out of your court?" Here follows his reply:

"Yes, I know it does. I am in charge of the youthful offenders between the ages of 16 and 19 years, and it is both alarming and pathetic to see so many 'helpless' young people brought into our courts. I use the word 'helpless' advisedly, because they have been turned adrift in life without adequate preparation to meet life's trials and temptations."

"When we are at war, we properly subject our service boys to a long, severe and rigorous course of training in preparation for combat. They are taught the methods of fighting intelligently and effectively. They are shown how to destroy the enemy and how, at the same time, to preserve their own lives. They learn how to discover booby-traps, mines, snipers, and all such dangers; and are readied for quick action in emergencies. Through such training our war casualties are kept at a minimum."

"Unfortunately we do not exercise the same good common sense on the Home Front—the casualty rate among our young people at home is appallingly high, because we toss them into life's bitter battle, without training, and without the knowledge of its pitfalls and dangers, which an early religious training would give them. Unlike our trained service men, our young people at home go down in the first real engagement, and then it becomes a tough job to repair the damage."

"Of course, there are some young people brought into court who have had religious training who like the careless and forgetful service man in battle, have forgotten their training. But, you can always do something with the boy or girl who has had the solid foundation of an early religious training."

"Yes, indeed, an early religious education for all our youngsters will not only pay dividends in good citizenship but in addition, it will save the taxpayers a lot of money by reducing crime."

Parents, alert your youngsters against life's "booby-traps" by starting them to Sunday School on Sunday, April 14th.

"Government must be checked, regardless of temporary distress to individuals, if our economy is to survive. Bureaucracy is a greater threat than inflation, since it multiplies forever, while all inflationary periods eventually end."—Winfield Scott, Editor, The Bulletin, Chillicothe Illinois.

SINK OR SWIM TOGETHER

Circumstances may do more than many long-winded conferences to bring management and labor into closer cooperation. Those circumstances are the insidiously rising costs that threaten to slow up production and cut employment. The problem differs in detail with different industries, but the threat is common to every industry and to every working man.

Current negotiations between the United Mine Workers and coal mine operators are being carried on in the shadow of this deadly dilemma of cost versus jobs and production. The mine operators are striving to awaken a sense of responsibility among the miners for sustained coal production. They are trying to show that coal must be sold in a competitive market as well as mined, if the miners are to have steady jobs.

A letter from the Operators Negotiating Committee to the mine union puts the industry's position into very clear words. It says in part: "We believe it is vitally important to all associated with the coal industry that whatever steps may be required in our meetings, be taken with a minimum of friction and with no work stoppage. There is an opportunity here for both of us to demonstrate our belief in the coal industry and our belief that the American system of competitive enterprise can operate efficiently without undue governmental restrictions or interferences."

"No one has a greater direct stake in the coal industry than the mine workers, and the mine operators. Never before have the interests of the miner and the operator been so paralleled as they are today. For years the industry has been losing ground to competitive sources of fuel and power, and the rate of loss recently has assumed alarming proportions."

"The management side of the industry assumes the responsibility and the increased costs of combating this trend by the research we have undertaken in every direction and future decisions to continue these must be based on an assurance of stability in this oldest of basic industries."

"The Operators feel that they are justified in asking labor to join now in bolstering the industry's position. There must be better team work within the mines to promote smoother and greater production per unit and there must be some guaranteed establishment of an uninterrupted flow of supply to the customers over the years."

Labor costs are sixty per cent of the total cost of production in the coal miners. In the light of this, it should require no argument to convince the miner that he has a vital interest in the future of his industry."

The Army Map Service has produced a stack of maps 300 times the height of the Washington monument. These will be used in a huge new program to provide essential information on the world's topography.

NO SUBSTITUTE
It hardly seems possible now that a few short years ago people debated in all seriousness the point of whether the railroads were an obsolete form of transportation. The war ended the debate. There is no substitute for good railroads. The only remaining question is how to keep good railroads in this country. The railroaders think they know how and are presenting their case. The following comment from the Portland, Maine, Press Herald indicates they are being heard:

"There is much to be said in favor of the urging by the railroads that all forms of transportation be made to pay their own way. The railroads point out that they pay taxes in every community through which they operate; that they establish and maintain their own stations and terminals and that they also maintain their own rights of way. They protest, and rightly it would seem, that with Federal, state and municipal aid to airports by money taken from the taxpayers, including the railroads' taxes, the competition of the airlines is unfair."

"The railroads state that it would hardly be fair to ask the taxpayers of Portland to take over and maintain the Portland Union Station and let the railroads simply pay a nominal rental for the use of the facilities with that rental not anywhere meeting the cost of the station maintenance. Yet that is what is now being done for the commercial airlines at practically every airport in the country, including our own airport in Portland."

"There seems to be no valid reason why, with the air travel industry long since out of its swaddling clothes and definitely established as a commercial enterprise, privately operated for private profit, the taxpayers should be asked to pay a part of its operating expenses. That is what the public is doing, however, at the present time."

"The railroads have proved they are not decadent; that they are going to be even better in the days to come. We must continue to regard them as our principal means of transportation for many years to come, and they should not be shackled by subsidies from the public purse to other and competing forms of transportation."

ARMY OFFICERS TO DRESS SAME AS ENLISTED MEN
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 5—Army officers and enlisted men will dress alike after June 30, 1943. They will all wear battle jackets and trousers of the same olive drab shade now used in enlisted man's clothing.

New regulations prescribing the olive drab combination also paved the way for the eventual adoption of dress blue uniforms for all ranks, providing they can be manufactured without interfering with the production of civilian clothing.

The new standard jacket and trousers will supplant the multi-colored style mixtures of shirts, blouses, jackets and trousers now worn by officers. Also to be abandoned are the various types of long and short overcoats. Instead, a combination of overcoat-raincoat with detachable lining will be adopted.

Doris D. looked awfully worried Monday, probably because Gene was sick. Hurry and get well, Gene!

Carolyn, who were you with last Monday nite?? Could it have been Peewee?

Who were you hunting for Monday night Teatness???

I hear some of the girls are looking forward to that trip to Marfa. Not that they know anyone there, of course!!!

Well what do you know? A new couple at the party Monday nite. Mary and Bill.

Why were you so embarrassed on main street last Monday Mary? Whats the matter wouldn't the gear shift work, or were some Senior boys around?

Looked for a while like Birdie and Aubrey were "kicking the gong around" but they seem to have made up now.

Everyone thinks Cecelia and Benny look cute together, don't you? Nice going, kids!

Looks like Bado and Jimmy M. are having a hard time trying to get a ride every day at noon. What's wrong, did they (the girls) get mad at you two??

Everyone seems to be rushing the skating rink lately. Could there be a reason?

Who were all those kids taking pictures over the week-end? Would we like to see some of them!

Budgy, you had better be careful about writing notes to all those girls. Someone might get mad.

Wonder if Aggie and Beckett were having fun riding bicycles Sunday? Shorts are wonderful things—for bicycling, eh girls?? Did you hear Willie describe the ideal Jr. girl? What a mix-up.

Who was the certain girl who wanted a picture of Jimmy M. so badly?? We wonder.

AROUND THE CAMPUS

Things have really been hummin' around the campus this week. There are only about 30 more school days left in this term, and that's really not much.

The pictures have come back so all the studios, or rather frivolous, attenders of S. H. S. have been busy trading pictures with each other. As a general rule, the pictures are really good. "verybody's are good except mine," seems to be what everyone is saying, but you know, how that goes.

Monday night the illustrious Seniors and some of those who have the honor of a Senior friendship had a swell party. Too bad it couldn't have included more kids, but we really had a crowd. Your sides would simply have split if you could have seen those dignified Senior boys in those ducky little Easter bonnets. Dudley got the prize as the "cutest" (ahem) but it was hard to decide with such charming models as Bosco, Bill, and J. M.

Skating is really getting quite popular these days. There's generally a crowd of kids skating these nights, especially week-ends. Some of the girls are finding ever more diversions these days. Trust the girls to find something to pass dull hours away—especially those Juniors.

The bell brings periods to a close, and this column will follow suit.

So Long,
 Mary Allen

AND WHAT THEY BUY

One of the chronic gripes of the nation is that they must pay taxes. Many people don't realize how expensive government is, and how much our government depends on taxes.

People don't realize how dependent they are on the government services their taxes pay for.

The money we pay in taxes to the city employees, the men who protect our homes from robbery and disease, speculate and experts who build roads, conserve our natural resources, and our president and taxes keep an army and without which no nation survive at the present time. Depression times many families kept from starving because they receive relief which comes from your taxes.

Education is dependent on public education. America's progress will to a stand-still and begin to backslide.

The point is: To get the cat skinned!

There's more'n one way to skin a cat.

And, in key with the old American proverb, there's more than one way to provide for your family's education and future.

But there's one special way which millions of Americans have found lately to be the easiest, surest, most foolproof way of all.

That's the Payroll Savings Plan—started for War Bonds, now being used to buy U. S. Savings Bonds. Through it, you pile up money safely, surely—week after week, month after month, year after year.

Best Investment in the Wide World!

Listen to this—: All the resources of the United States are behind Savings Bonds—yet they pay better interest than anything of comparable safety. You still get 4 bucks at maturity for every 3 put in.

So hang on to this good American idea. Keep your Payroll Savings Plan in force. Keep on buying U. S. Savings Bonds. And you'll have that financial security cat skinned before you know it!

Buy all the Bonds you can...

keep all the Bonds you buy!

Thirteenth Annual Easter Seal Sale Now in Progress

DALLAS, Texas, April 5—An even greater number of Texas' crippled children are going to be given the chance to grow into healthy, normal adults as the result of the generous response to the thirteenth annual Easter Seal Sale now in progress. The response to the 650,000 Easter Seals mailed to Texans is the largest and most generous in the history of the sale, according to Martin M. Ricker, executive secretary of the Texas Society for Crippled Children, sponsors of the sale.

Proceeds from the Easter Seal Sale are used in locating handicapped children, providing medical care, crutches and wheelchairs and rehabilitation to those who otherwise could not receive this necessary care. The Society also conducts a campaign for the prevention of crippling diseases. Every Texan who has not already sent a contribution for the seals is urged to do so at once and to use the seals on all correspondence as a reminder to others of the necessary work being done for the less fortunate children in all communities.

"Know Your Public Health Nurse Week" Proclaimed for April

AUSTIN, April 5—The State of Texas is planning to celebrate the first national "Know Your Public Health Nurse Week" April 7 to 14, as proclaimed by President Harry S. Truman.

The purpose of the week, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, is to focus attention upon public health nursing as a service for every individual, and to increase public understanding of the part played by the public health nurse in helping to build better health for family, community, and nation.

Many communities in Texas are planning to give special recognition during this week to the value of the public health nurse in the community.

From the beginning of this work more than thirty years ago, public health nurses have been concerned with the total health situation of the family including sickness, disease prevention, care of disease, and health protection.

In setting aside April 7 to 14 as "Know Your Public Health Nurse Week" for America, health administrators and all other friends of nursing should dedicate themselves to the extension of public health nursing services so that there will be enough qualified nurses to meet the needs of all the people, and thus help in maintaining a maximum health level throughout the nation.

The Electric LAUNDRY Center

A NEW IDEA FOR HOME BUILDERS AND REMODELERS

Major inconveniences and minor irritations that once gave "Blue Monday" its bad name are done away with in the new Laundry Center. It's a work-saving idea that's sweeping the country.

Everything that is needed to turn out a week's washing with a minimum of effort is arranged on a production line basis. There's a special sorting and sprinkling table next to the automatic clothes washer. Clothes baskets are portable—and the laundry sink has deep bowls. The electric dryer fluff-drys everything from diapers to bedspreads and eliminates dependence on the weather. A built-in ironing board folds into the wall when not in use. A cabinet-type ironer, at which you may sit down while you iron, is also provided.

With modern laundry appliances, washing is not the damp, dripping job of former years, so the laundry need not be relegated to the basement, garage or servant's house. A first floor Laundry Center, adjacent to the kitchen, can be step-saving, light, airy. It may double as a sewing and mending center, a study spot for the youngsters, a play place for children on rainy days.
