An Editorial

Below we reproduce a column written under the caption "Thinking Out Loud" by Lynn Landrum as it appeared in the Dallas Morning News of October 18. Mr. Landrum expresses in better words than we our position in the November 2 election. This reproduction is being printed because many voters are confused about the pledge on the primary ballot. Read every word of it and then vote for the man of your choice.

Mr. Johnson's Case

It is possible that Lyndon Johnson has not put his full case to the voters of Texas. He says that he will have a few non-political speeches to make in Texas but nothing more. Whether he will defend the ethics of his nomination is not yet clear.

At the moment then, the people of Texas are pretty nearly compelled to assume that the election was stolen. Mr. Johnson has not yet claimed that it was not stolen. His technical position in court was that, even admitting that it was stolen, Stevenson was in the wrong court with the wrong plea.

Now that is not admitting the election was stolen. Everybody familiar with lawyer's ways of pleading knows that it isn't. At most it is an admission for the sake of argument, which is quite a different thing. But the record stands: (1) To this good day Lyndon Johnson has not met the charge that the election was stolen with legal denial and tender of proof in support of the denial. (2) He has stubbornly fought all efforts either to investigate or to prove the charge. (3) He says the people of Texas can't investigate and must vote under a pledge to support him.

Treason

This idea that you have to endorse a crooked primary in order to be a straight man of your word is a crooked idea without a straight leg to stand on. Go clean to the bottom of this charge that only a party traitor or will scratch a man who has no right to be on the ticket. Who is the traitor, anyhow?

What sort of loyalty to majority rule is it to betray majority rule, so that the loser is counted in and the winner is counted out? Does loyalty operate with fraud as its credentials and coercion as its weapon?

Beneficiary

Now there is a difference between being the innocent beneficiary of fraud and being the insistent beneficiary of fraud. It is not charged against Mr. Johnson, as far as the column knows, that he personally engaged in election frauds in this or in any other election. But it is practically certain that he stands the political beneficiary of such fraud as took place in the three South Texas counties. The fraud done there was calculated to aid him, did aid him and did convert his recent primary defeat into a purported victory.

If Mr. Johnson should say that he is sorry that the fraud occurred, that he does not believe in fraud and that he does not want to benefit even remotely by fraud; if he should say that he wants a full and complete investigation of all fraud in the runoff primary by the Legislature of Texas; if he should say that he will not offer to take his seat in the Senate until all doubts are cleared up by such a full, fair and complete investigation; if he should say that, in the event of a report by a Texas legislative investigation showing that Stevenson really won, he will then resign from the United States Senate and ask the Governor to appoint Stevenson as his successor—if Mr. Johnson should take that sort of attitude, then we might all say: "Here, indeed, is a man of honor who is leaning over backward to be fair with the people of Texas."

But he hasn't said that, so far as this column has heard.

No Violation

It is fair to Mr. Johnson to point out that he violates no statute by taking an unwon nomination and accepting all benefits of having his name on the ticket while the real nominee's name is left off. Mr. Johnson does not stand in the position of an election thief. He is not in the shoes of a ballot-box-stuffer. He is not the signer of a false oath. He didn't do the counting and come out with the wrong or false answer.

In effect he can say: "I have it; I didn't steal it; I don't legally know that it was stolen; I have not seen the evidence; I don't want anybody to see the evidence. But I've got it and I'm going to benefit from it and there is nothing anybody can do about it." Mr. Johnson hasn't said that. But, if he did say it, here is no law against his saying it. And there is no law against his accepting benefits of fraud by other persons not in contact or consultation with Mr. Johnson.

But the weakness of the Johnson case is this: There is something the Texas voters can do about it.

The Pledge

The backers of Mr. Johnson are resting their whole case upon this one claim: "You signed the pledge to vote for the nominee of the party."

But did you sign such a pledge. As a matter of fact you probably signed no pledge at all. If you were required to sign any pledge in the second primary it was to support the nominees of that primary. Most voters never did sign any pledge and were never asked to sign it.

But that is not the issue in the stolen nomination case. You certainly did not sign a pledge to support the loser of the nomination, did you? You surely didn't commit the folly of binding yourself to vote in the general election for a man who has no lawful business running in that election at all.

Treason

This idea that you have to endorse a crooked primary in order to be a straight man of your word is a crooked idea without a straight leg to stand on. Go clean to the bottom of this charge that only a party traitor or will scratch a man who has no right to be on the ticket. Who is the traitor, anyhow?

SANDERSON TO PLAY SAN FELIPE FRIDAY NIGHT HERE

The Sanderson Eagles will play the San Felipe football team here this Friday night at 8:00. This will be a non-conference game and the first meeting this year of these two teams. Last year when Sanderson went to Del Rio to play San Felipe the Eagles took a beating at the hands of that team.

The Eagles are one game behind the Alpine Bucks and the Marfa Shortborns in district 6-B play class of those two teams have lost one game and Sanderson has lost two in the district competition. The Eagles will play Alpine one more game this year and will play Fabens again here. If Marfa bows to the might of the Bucks in their other game and Sanderson can win over Alpine the district title will go into play with a three-way tie. Fabens has lost all of their conference games.

All local fans are urged to come out tonight to boost the local club in their game with San Felipe. The game will get under way promptly at eight o'clock.

RAFAEL MONCADA GIVEN YEAR FOR THROAT SLASHING

A jury in 63rd District Court here returned a verdict of guilty of assault with intent to murder without malice against Rafael Moncada Monday. After selection of the jury and the trial got under way, William McKenzie, driver of the bus on which the throat-slashing occurred, was the first witness called by District Attorney Douglas A. Newton for the state.

Bernada Postos, prosecuting witness, was brought into the court room and was identified by McKenzie as the woman on his bus who suffered a deep gash across her throat as he left Sanderson on September 15th.

The witness identified the defendant as the man who boarded the bus about "two or three" blocks from the station and later was pulled from the injured woman.

Judge Brian Montague and Al Creigh, Jr., were appointed by the court to represent the defendant, Judge Roger Thurmond was on the bench.

Sheriff J. S. Nance testified to the identity of the defendant and the prosecuting witness and the incidents when he was called from his home after the bus had returned around and brought the injured woman here for medical attention, while a passenger on the bus held the defendant in custody until he was turned over to the night watchman here.

The jury deliberated only about forty-five minutes before they were ready with a verdict and sentenced Moncada to serve one year in the state penitentiary.

President Truman's worst enemy couldn't accuse him of pessimism or lack of confidence when it comes to his political future. All the polls indicate that he is due for the worst beating at the polls received by any incumbent since Herbert Hoover.

main strength since 1932. And, finally, Mr. Dewey has found enthusiastic audiences wherever he has gone down the long campaign trail. Yet, in spite of all this, Mr. Truman clearly feels that he will continue in the White House for four more years, and those who are in a position to know say he believes that literally.

his Presidency, he seemed to be considerably more conservative and less impetuous than his predecessor. Now, however, he has moved definitely left of center. He has accepted practically all the New Deal ideas, and added a number of his own. Congress, he says, is controlled by Eastern Republican mossbacks who play along with the special interests.

Mr. Dewey, of course, stands pretty much on the opposite side of most of the big domestic issues. Where Mr. Truman says that the last Congress was the worst in American history, Mr. Dewey says it was one of the best and endorses its record. He, like other GOP strategists, argue that the Taft-Hartley law is a protection for legitimate labor and its unions.

government — on getting necessary jobs done with less confusion, for less money and with a small number of employees for the taxpayers to support. Here, in the view of many objective reporters of the national scene, he is on firm ground. Some of Mr. Truman's friends, even, admit that he has made bad appointments to fill critical jobs on the high-policy level, that he has made little effort to cut down the overlapping Federal bureaucracy, that he has often issued statements that were in conflict with those of members of his own official family.

until he and his advisors have thrashed it out to the last comma and everyone has agreed to it. As a result, there are no conflicts of policy and position within the Dewey circle. If he is elected, these assistants, for the most part, will undoubtedly be given Cabinet and other top Federal jobs. Practically everyone in the country will have a chance to see and hear one or both of the major candidates before election day comes.

connection that I advance the thought of constant prayer — in easy times and hard times alike.

We can understand better, if we understand some of the rules and laws to be obeyed in prayer. These rules are the same for the rich or poor, the educated or uneducated.

The first rule is that prayers should be prayed to God — not to men. "When ye pray, ye shall not be as the hypocrites, for they love to pray standing in the Synagogues, and in the corners of the streets, in order that they may be seen of men."

Another rule: "If ye abide in me and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you." God once said, "Call unto me and I will answer thee and show thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."

The highest type of prayer has as its main thought the doing of God's will. "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

In conclusion, I exhort all to "Pray without ceasing" — I Thess. 5:17, for as Alfred, Lord Tennyson said: More things are wrought by prayer Than this world dreams of.

Wherefore let thy voice Rise like a fountain for me night and day. For what are men better than sheep or goats

If, knowing God, they lift not hand of prayer Both for themselves and those who call them friends? For so the whole round earth Bounded by gold chains about the feet of God.

Issued this 11th day of October, A. D. 1948. Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Sanderson, Texas, this 11th day of October, A. D. 1948. RUEL ADAMS, Clerk, District Court, Terrell County, Texas.

NEW DEMANDS. SOARING COSTS. WAGE INCREASES. 48 hours pay for 40 hours work. Penalty pay for weekends & holidays. 25¢ an hour increase. Total 1 1/2 BILLION DOLLARS.

1 1/2 Billion Dollar Road Block!

RAILROADS MUST OPERATE around the clock every day and night of the year. Although they know this, leaders of 16 railroad unions are demanding a five-day, Monday through Friday, week for one million railroad employees. They want 48 hours pay for 40 hours work — in itself a 20% wage increase. They also demand a minimum of 12 hours pay for any work performed on Saturdays, and 16 hours pay for any work performed on Sundays and holidays. On top of all this they want an additional increase of 25c an hour for every employee!

they must have still further rate and fare increases. Demands Unreasonable These employees have had substantial raises during and since the war. Their average weekly earnings are higher than the average weekly earnings of workers in manufacturing industries. They have more job security than the average worker in American industry. They also enjoy paid vacations, a retirement system and other advantages more generous than the average worker receives. In contrast with the demands of these 16 unions, which add up to the equivalent of 48c an hour, the Conductors and Trainmen recently settled their wage request for an increase of 10c an hour.

Railroads Run for Everybody — Not Employees Alone The railroad industry must serve not only many groups — producers, businessmen, shippers, passengers and the general public — night and day, every day of the year. These unions are proceeding in utter disregard of this important difference between railroads and other industries. Industrial plants can be shut down over weekends and holidays, but freight, mail, express and passengers must continue to move. Everybody who enters railroad employment knows this. Strike Threat On September 18, 1948, the leaders of these 16 unions began taking a strike vote. But the threat of a strike will not alter the opposition of the railroads to such unreasonable demands!

HALLOWEEN MOTIF FOR TEA GIVEN BY GARDEN CLUB

The Sanderson Garden Club met at the Community House Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. Hostesses were Mesdames J. O. Little, E. E. Farley and S. A. Berkley.

Members present were Mesdames W. G. Downie, Troy Druse, J. J. Harkins, C. E. Harkins, Jack Hayre, J. W. Pate, Hal J. Rowlett, Jr., O. T. Sudduth and the hostesses.

A tea to which the ladies of the community had been invited followed the business meeting.

Mrs. W. G. Downie gave a very interesting discussion on "Flowers for the Church" and Mrs. S. A. Berkley's discussion was based on a foliage arrangement of loquat leaves which she had prepared for the club.

The Halloween motif was stressed in all of the decorations and refreshments and appointments with floral arrangements of orange cosmos and marigolds.

The tea table was laid with a white linen cloth and centered with a bouquet of cosmos in a

Split Ticket Voting Explained by Attorney

Lloyd Wheelock, state campaign manager for U. S. Senatorial Candidate Jock Perter of Houston, said that state headquarters in Houston had received thousands of requests for information on voting the split ticket in the general election.

Wheelock said he had conferred with Steve Pinckney of Houston, prominent Texas attorney, and that Mr. Pinckney gave him the following information: "It is possible for any citizen of Texas who is qualified to vote in the general election to cast that vote for the candidate of his choice, regardless of party affiliation. Article 2981 of the civil statutes of Texas, which was enacted in 1905, specifically provides for the voting of a split ticket in a general election. To vote for any candidate on the ballot of your choice, it is only necessary to scratch the names of every other candidate on the ballot except those you wish to vote for."

Pinckney went on to say "The so-called loyalty pledge does not apply to the election which will be held on November 2. This election is a general election which is held all over the United States on the same day. It is not a state or party primary. Our courts and the Attorney General's department of Texas have held this to be so for many years past."

Mrs. J. T. Williams and Kay, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Espy of Fort Davis, went to San Antonio last week for medical treatment.

Mrs. Webb Townsend visited friends in Del Rio last week.

You Can't Swim the Mississippi with a Million Head of Cattle

The Mississippi River always has been the "continental divide" in the geography of the livestock-meat industry. In the old days the great herds of longhorns trailing north from Texas had many rivers to cross. The Red. The Canadian. The Big Blue. The Platte... but there was never a trail that ended east of the Father of Waters. The Mississippi was, and is, one river you couldn't swim with a million head of cattle.

It's a staggering job to get the nation's meat from producer to consumer. Two-thirds of the meat animals are produced west of the Mississippi... two-thirds of the meat is eaten east of it. On the average, meat has to be transported more than 1,000 miles. It's a big job—a huge job. Just consider: in 1947 alone, this job of getting the nation's meat from the farm and range to the cooking range involved 32,168,000 beef animals, 24,044,000 sheep and lambs, 82,579,000 hogs!

Harvesting any national crop—from wheat to meat—is a big job. Big machines are needed. Who uses binders when combines are more efficient? Similarly, in the processing and nationwide distribution of meat it takes large-scale, efficient "machinery." There's a need for all of us—producers and meat packers; shippers and marketing people; transportation lines; wholesalers and retailers. We all play a part—whether we are individuals or companies, whether we operate locally or on a nationwide basis.

Over the years, we at Swift have worked to perfect our nationwide system of marketing. We, and 26,000 other commercial slaughterers, provide a competitive cash market for your livestock. We buy your animals and dress them. We process and refrigerate them. Then, we distribute the meat to retail store men everywhere. (Our earnings for all these essential services are only a fraction of a cent a pound.) Because this big job is done efficiently, you producers are assured of markets... consumers everywhere are assured of meat. We at Swift & Company are proud of our part in building the "1,000-mile bridge"; the "bridge" which carries meat from the point of surplus production to the point of consumption. So long as all America wants meat it will take efficient nationwide organizations to bridge that 1,000-mile gap.

Tally and Cull "Newcomers" in Breeding Ewe Flocks

United States Department of Agriculture

As you swing the cut gate, you can increase total salable lamb weight—your margin of profit. For here you can cull ewes that are barren in their first lambing season. You can also cut out those unable to raise singles in their first lambing year. These ewes often get by on their appearance alone. For frequently they are heavier woolled and in better condition than nursing ewes. But they do not always pay their way.

Recent research has proved that subsequent market lamb production from such dry ewes may not justify keeping them in efficient commercial breeding bands. Experiments with Columbia range ewes at the U. S. Sheep Experiment Station, Dubois, Idaho, established this fact. There is a definite relationship between the total weaning weight of lambs produced in the first year and in the three following years of lambing.

All ewes that twinned the first year, regardless of whether the lambs were raised, weaned 19 pounds more lamb weight in the three years of study than ewes that failed to rear their first single lamb. Ewes that did not rear their first single lamb later than annual lamb yield thereafter than ewes which did not rear a lamb. And ewes that did not rear their first lamb later than annual lamb yield thereafter than ewes which did not rear a lamb. And ewes which were barren their first lambing season, ewes which were efficiency in market lamb production, tally "newcomers" in ewe herds at breeding time. Then mark barren low-producing ewes for culling after the lambing season.

All That Glitters Isn't Profit

Government reports tell of farm and ranch income from livestock that totals more than 17 billion dollars. Many folks read those reports and say—"No wonder meat is so high. Livestock producers must be coining money."

That is a thoughtless comment, based on misunderstanding. That 17 billion dollars is not profit—it is gross income. Many expenses must come out of your gross livestock income before you can make any profit on it. There's the cost of breeding-stock and feeding-stock... of your hired labor... of feed, machinery, equipment. All these costs are at all-time high levels. Out of your gross income also must come property and income taxes, interest; insurance premiums; repairs; new buildings; fences; death losses, etc. After you've paid all those necessary business expenses, you're lucky if you end up with 10 or 15 per cent profit.

A lot of people are just as wrong about Swift's profit as they are about yours. They look at our total sales of 2 1/4 billion dollars last year and say—"That's a barrel of money. No wonder meat is high!" But the fact is that competition in both buying and selling is so keen that from those 2 1/4 billion sales dollars an average of 79¢ went to pay you for your livestock. 10¢ for pay to our employees. 6 1/2¢ for supplies and other necessary business costs. 3¢ for taxes and transportation. All we had left as earnings was 1 1/2¢.

Yes, in our business, as in yours, there's a big difference between gross income and net profit!

COMMUNITY PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY

Can you find the railroad in this picture?

No, there isn't any visible evidence of the important part America's railroads play in supporting our state educational institutions, but actually a large portion of railway property taxes is expended for education. It is estimated that railway taxes used for school purposes in the United States are sufficient to defray the annual cost of providing common school education to more than 1,000,000 children.

As the largest railroad west of the Mississippi, Southern Pacific participates in this support to a great extent. We cite this as a typical example of the many ways in which your SP partner promotes community welfare and prosperity in the territory it serves. We like to consider ourselves as a good citizen . . . doing everything possible to foster and stimulate the progress and economy of our territory by employing local people, paying local taxes, buying much of our supplies locally, and, most important of all, by providing a permanent efficient transportation service that can be relied on in all kinds of weather to meet all the transportation needs of the people.

Next time, try the train for safe, dependable freight and passenger service . . . and help yourself to a progressive, more vigorous community.

Parasites Costs Money Also

Most of the stockmen know there hasn't been much grass in the pastures and on the range this year. There hasn't been enough to feed the cattle, so there sure isn't enough to feed cattle parasites too. But lots of ranchmen are feeding them, and it's costing a lot of money, to do so, says C. A. King, associate extension entomologist of Texas A. & M. College.

Cattle that are free of parasites have a better appearance, are healthier and more productive than cattle that have to keep switching the flies off, or rubbing against the fenceposts to scratch the ticks. Cattle lice and four kinds of ticks are the parasites that bother cattle most in the winter time.

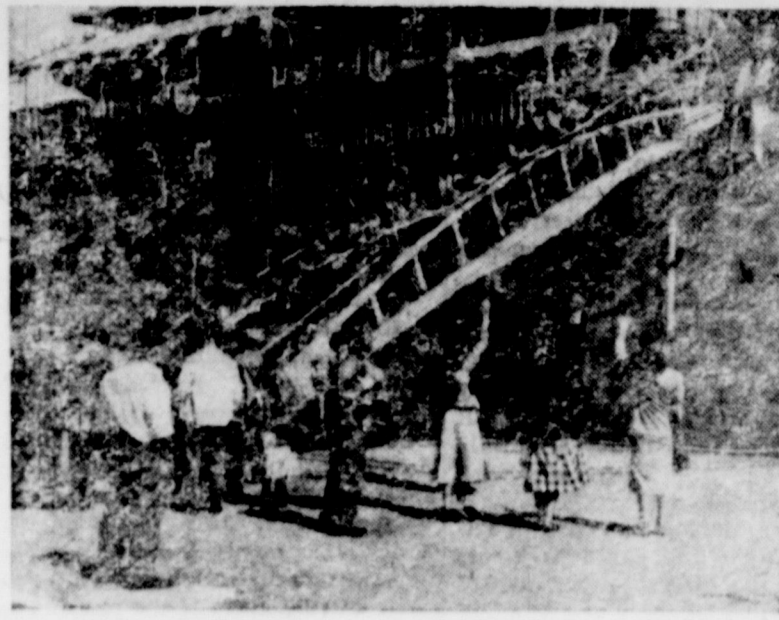

Cattle are bothered by lice more in the winter and early spring when the hair is long, so the best time to treat cattle for lice is the fall of the year. Both rotenone and DDT are good for the control of lousy cattle. Use rotenone, two treatments two weeks apart will give a good lice control. Here's the recipe: one pound of 5 per cent rotenone and 10 pounds of wettable sulphur for each 100 gallons of water. Or you can use 50 per cent DDT wettable powder of each 100 gallons of water.

Four ticks common to Texas cattle are the Lone Star tick, the spinose ear tick, the Gulf Coast ear tick and the winter tick. All are blood suckers and cause the cattle to lose weight if there are enough ticks.

The Lone Star tick can be controlled by dipping every two weeks, beginning when the first ticks are found and stopping when they are gone. Eight pounds of 50 per cent wettable DDT in 100 gallons of water, as a spray or dip is recommended for tick control. The spinose ear tick is a common cattle parasite throughout most of Texas, and can be controlled by treating the ears of livestock with Stock 1029, using a small paint brush. Also it's important to treat all salt, mineral and feed troughs with equal parts of kerosene and lubricating oil.

The Gulf Coast ear ticks are found in a 100 mile area from the coastline along the Gulf of Mexico. A good treatment inside the ear with Stock 1037 kills any ticks present and holds them off from three to six weeks. The winter tick is found around San Antonio. A spray or wash with eight-tenths per cent DDT will get rid of these winter ticks. Stockmen will notice better and bigger gains on their livestock if they keep the lice, ticks and mites away, especially during the winter months, says Mr. King.

In town driving, another 50 per cent saving was made by reasonably moderate braking and acceleration at stop lights and intersections, in contrast to quick stops and starts.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

I'm Glad We're "Different!"

There's a lot of difference of opinion in our county on the best kind of pasture. Some say alfalfa mixed with brome grass—others say mixed with oats or barley. But all agree that a mixture's better than a single crop.

Sometimes think people are the same way—and the strength of America is its mixture of so many different strains—some from one country, some from another—right down to little differences: like folks who have a taste for beer and those who prefer cider.

From where I sit, so long as we never become intolerant of one another's different tastes—so long as we live together with our differences, and even supplement them the way brome grass does alfalfa, then we're a mighty good crop!

So neighbor—enjoy your cider while I enjoy my beer! Vote for your candidate—I'll stand by mine! But never let our differences divide us!

The Band Parents Club had the first meeting of the school year Tuesday evening in the high school auditorium with Greene Cooke, president, presiding, and the members present.

Paul Brake, the band director, was introduced by Supt. C. G. Bradford. An explanation as to why the Eagle Band had not been presented publicly was made by the director. Most of the boys playing brass instruments also play football and several band members were lost by graduation last year. Mr. Brake also mentioned the need of several new instruments and the reconditioning of the present instruments.

The next meeting will be Monday, November 1, at 7:30, at the high school and all members are urged to attend.

Spring Lamb Crop Demand Expected Next Year

The lamb crop situation looks a little different for the coming year.

During recent years, and especially since the war, sheep raisers have been sending a bigger share of the lamb crop to the slaughter pens than they used to. At the same time they have kept back a smaller number for breeding purposes — to use in flock replacements.

C. A. Bates, extension farm management specialist of Texas A. & M. College, says that with the prospective winter wheat acreages high and with a good supply of moisture in the sheep raising areas, lambs will be in pretty strong demand to put on the wheat pastures. And most ranchmen expect to hold back more ewe lambs than usual this coming year.

A relatively higher price for both mutton lambs and wool than was received a year ago along with lower feed costs point toward a big increase in next spring's lamb crop.

On Texas farms and ranches last January there were just over 7 and one-half million sheep and lambs. This was a record low, says Bates.

USDA economists say that the wool clip was the smallest it has been in the last quarter of a century. Ranchmen have averaged about the same amount of wool per fleece as usual, but they just didn't have as many sheep to shear. Sheep numbers can only increase if more lambs are kept for stock purposes. With the high prices of meat, ranchmen have sent more of their lambs to market than in past years, and have kept fewer for breeding stock.

Lamb prices have tended to go up right along with other meat prices, says the economists, but the sheep business depends on the profits from both wool and lambs. And the rise in wool prices has not been as much as the meat price rise during the past several years.

This is why the sheep raisers have kept so few lambs for flock replacements, says Bates, and sheep numbers are now the lowest in 75 years of record.

KITCHEN MEMO

Any new way of cooking meat loaf is always a welcome addition to the recipe file. Broiled Meat Loaf uses only six ingredients and can be popped under the broiler flame for quick cooking. Mix together 1 lb. hamburger, 1/2 cup bread crumbs, 1 egg, 1 tbsp. grated onion, 1/2 cup tomato soup, 1 tsp. salt, pepper. Shape into two firm loaves and place on broiler grid. If you broil with the thermostat wide open, the loaves should be at least 2" from the flame and broiled about 12 mins. on the first side, 10 mins. on the second side. If you set the thermostat at 350°, place meat 2" from flame and broil 15 mins. on each side, which cooks it to well done.

If there's not quite enough batter to fill all the cups in muffin tins, pour water into the empties before placing in the oven to prevent burning of empty cups.

Any cooking food creates smoke and vapor of varying degrees. Many modern gas ranges take care of this problem with "smokeless" broilers which means, literally, that smoke rising from cooking food is consumed by the broiler flame.

Crackers spread with peanut butter and broiled until bubbly make excellent appetizers.

In 1859, reported The American Gazette, one hundred families used gas for cooking. Today two out of three of the 38,000,000 families in this country cook with gas.

Leftover bread crusts cut into small bits, browned with butter or margarine in oven or frying pan, make economical croutons for soups.
