

Carbon Monoxide Poisoning Causes One Death; Twelve Others Treated

"The saints are sinners who keep on trying".
-Robert Louis Stevenson

There are two subjects which I would like to bring up this week--telephone service and basketball player dismissals. First, let's talk about the telephone system and service in Friona.

General Telephone is reputed to be one of the leaders in the field of electronic development. They are supposed to have some of the finest and most modern equipment available anywhere. If General is really so far advanced, electronically, why do we receive such stone age service. I would venture to say that it is because we have some stone age equipment and service methods.

I had the opportunity to chat with Bob Saunders, district manager for General, last week. He came by to draw my attention to the information sheet in the new directory and explain a few things they were doing to try to improve service in this area.

The main item which he pointed out was the change in reporting telephone trouble in Friona and Bovina. Previous to the issuance of the new directory, trouble was reported to the operator in Hereford (which is a Southwestern Bell office) and she forwarded the complaint to the General office in Littlefield or to the service man in Friona.

Under the new system, you should dial the operator in Hereford and ask for Enterprise 166. This will connect you with a "special trouble desk in the General Office in Littlefield.

This is supposed to speed the service. In my opinion, it is a stone age move. We don't need a trouble desk in Littlefield. We need a repairman with authority to render service right here in Friona.

We've yet to find a service man here who could do any work without an order from the main office. By the time the order is issued and reaches the man here, you could have conducted a lengthy conversation via carrier pigeon.

Anyway, Saunders stated that he had an operator making random calls trying to check on the nature of complaints of subscribers in Friona. He claimed that there really wasn't much complaint reported.

I tried his method but turned up with reverse results. I did some random calling myself and didn't find anything but complaints. I will quote some of the comments shortly. What is more, I am going to continue my calling until the phone goes out of order like it did Saturday after I made a few calls. And I am going to report the results each week until the compliments outnumber the complaints.

One of the most direct solutions to our problem was suggested by a person who asked not to be cited unless I absolutely had to. His suggestion was, "Turn it all over to Bell Telephone."

Kenneth McLellan described his attempt to call the ambulance when he discovered the tragedy in his father's home last week as follows:

"When I dialed the funeral home for the ambulance, the phone would pop when I dialed the last digit and nothing would happen. It would just 'pop out' I tried it three or four times left it for a minute or so and then managed to get through to the funeral home."

"Most of my calls are incoming I don't have too much trouble." Dr. Paul Spring reported. "I did try to call the head nurse (Gladys Wilson) several times last week and kept getting Ford Motor Co. They couldn't help," he added.

"We have complained several times regarding the service we are getting and are still not satisfied with the results," Frank Spring said.

"It seems that just when you need a phone the worst, that is when they are all out of order. I would bet that they put new equipment in other

Hubcaps Stolen

Six hubcaps and one tire and wheel were stolen from vehicles in Friona last week.

Four of the hubcaps were taken from Elvie Jennings' vehicle Friday night at the ball game. Two others were reported taken from a pickup driven by Jim Roy Wells at the save event.

A tire and wheel was reported stolen from a pickup belonging to Paul Hall Sunday night. The pickup was parked in front of his residence on North Main.

Frank Hinkson In Race For U.S. Congress

The Parmer County newspapers have been authorized to make the following political announcement:

"I publicly announce my candidacy for United States Congressman for the 18th District of Texas, subject to the Republican Primary May 5, 1962.

"I firmly believe that positive steps must be taken to preserve these United States as a nation of free people, and I here dedicate as many as necessary, of the remaining useful years of my life to accomplish this purpose.

"If I and millions of other patriotic citizens do not do this, then the opportunities and blessings that have been ours cannot be passed on to our children and grandchildren.

"If a man has a set of principles that govern his life and they are known, then one can predict with reasonable accuracy how he will stand on questions of major importance."

38 Indictments Returned By County Grand Jury

Parmer County Grand Jury returned 38 indictments after hearing some 60 witnesses in a two day session this week.

Gene Davis, 38, alias George Evans, and Nellie Mae Thompson, 30, were indicted for the slaying of Jesse Dawkins Dec. 8.

Robert Traylor, 29, and Bobby Traylor, 27, were indicted for transporting a witness across the state line. All are Negroes.

A breakdown of indictments returned showed 17 for burglary, 8 for theft, 3 for obtaining money by worthless check, 2 for murder, 2 for transporting witness across state line, 5 for forgery and passing forged instruments, 1 for removing mortgaged property from county, and one for child desertion.

District Judge E. A. Bills presided at the grand jury session which began Monday morning and terminated at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

County Attorney Hurshel

Harding acted for District Attorney Jack Young who was attending funeral services for his grandmother.

No cases were tried and no guilty pleas were heard.

Hugh Moseley, county clerk, stated that he expected a petit jury to be called sometime in February to try the criminal cases requiring a jury. No date for calling the jury had been set Wednesday afternoon.

Civil Cases will be called for the next court session.

Exchange Student Committee Meets

Friona's foreign exchange student program committee will be re-organized for the 62-63 school year at a meeting in Superintendent Alton Farr's office Friday at 1:30 p.m.

Parents or residents interested in participating in any part of the program are asked to attend the meeting, according to Farr.

The program will enter its second year with the next school period. Miss Ann Jensen from Denmark is the present recipient in the Friona program. She is living in the Meryle Massie home while attending school as a senior.

Firemen Answer 5 Calls Last Week

Friona Fire Department was called out five times during the bitter cold of the past week.

Trucks were called to White's Elevator Jan. 10 when a well and storage house caught fire. Two trucks were dispatched but the pump on one was frozen when it arrived at the scene. Only one line remained open on the other truck.

Firemen were unable to save the wellhouse.

A large overhead gasoline storage tank was standing about three feet from the burning building but it apparently was not bothered by the flames.

"The rubber filler hose didn't even burn," Ralph Shirley, fire chief, commented.

According to Shirley, an out of order phone system in Friona delayed receipt of the call.

"They finally called to Dimmitt. From Dimmitt the call was relayed to Hereford and then was forwarded to Friona on the police radio," Shirley said.

All the fire fighting equipment was frozen when it returned to town. Firemen worked for several hours before they managed to get the pumps and lines thawed out and back in operation.

That morning, one truck answered a call when Ernest Osborn's pickup caught fire in front of his residence in Friona. The fire was snuffed with a fire extinguisher bottle.

Friday afternoon, another wellhouse burned on the Mike Allen farm six miles east of Hub. Two trucks were sent to answer the alarm but it was too late to save the building.

Causes of the fires were not determined.

A third burning wellhouse at the Dee Hight farm southeast of Friona was reported Monday afternoon for the fourth call.

A soap dispenser for a washing machine ignited in the Vernon Scott residence Tuesday morning. Fire trucks were called but smoke damage from the dispenser was all that was sustained. The dispenser had been placed on the stove and caught fire. No one was injured.

McLellan Found Dead In His Home

Carbon Monoxide poisoning was blamed for the death of one man, in Friona last week. Twelve other persons were treated at Parmer County Community Hospital after receiving doses of the gas.

Leo McLellan, 58, former postmaster, was found dead in his home Thursday morning.

His wife, Lillian, and son, Joe, were also found unconscious in the house and were rushed to the hospital where doctors reportedly gave them no more than a 50/50 chance for survival. Swift and efficient treatment on the part of the doctors and nurses saved the couple.

Two other families, the A.S. Grubbs and Carl Tennysons, were treated earlier that morning.

The McLellan family was found by Lloyd Rector, McLellan's son-in-law, and another son, Kenneth.

Rector reported that he arrived at the home about 8:30 a.m. but received no answer to his knock. Since all the vehicles were at the house, he sought Kenneth who had a key to his father's home.

When the two entered the house, they discovered the victim and his son lying in the hallway. The telephone was pulled from the shelf and the receiver was off the cradle.

Rector said that it appeared as if Joe had been attempting to call for help when he lost consciousness. Rector and Kenneth called for help, kicked out windows, opened doors and pulled the victims to fresh air.

Mrs. McLellan was still in bed, unconscious, when the men arrived at the home. The victims were taken to the hospital by Clahorn Funeral Home ambulance.

Credit Union Conducts Meeting

Friona Texas Federal Credit Union conducted their annual business meeting and elected officers for the coming year last Thursday.

Directors Mack Bainum and Kenneth Williams and Credit Committeemen Ralph Taylor and Ralph Roden were re-elected for another term.

Gross income for the organization was reported as $16,279.15 with loans of $163,727 initiated in 1961.

Following reports from various officers, Mrs. Dyaltha Bensen, treasurer of the Hereford branch, spoke on the development of credit unions and lauded the Friona Union for its rapid and successful development.

A film dealing with the origin and development of Credit Unions was viewed at the conclusion of the meeting.

Mrs. Bensen presented Friona officers with a framed seal of the Credit Union Code of Ethics at the conclusion of her address.

Hinkson: He's No Fence Straddler

Frank Hinkson of Lazbuddie, who so far as anybody can remember is the first man from Parmer County to ever run for a national elective office, is a man of few - but well-chosen - words.

The easy going cattleman and farmer has his work cut out for him as he eyes a campaign to cover 28 counties in Texas. For one thing, he is running on the Republican ticket, in a state that since Civil War days has held close ties to the Democratic Party, that complicates his chances of election.

But on top of that, he even has opposition to overcome to gain the Republican nomination. It is sought by Jack Seale of Amarillo.

Seale, a former mayor of the city, is well-known in the heaviest voting area of the district. To gain the nomination over Seale will take some doing.

The winner of the Republican primary will have a chance to do battle with Walter Rogers of Pampa, whose neck re-election, Rogers is a well-entrenched Democrat who won't be unseated easily by any opponent.

Against this imposing political challenge, Frank Hinkson places his ideologies. He is convinced that the expanding sphere of governmental activities is a threat to the citizen's freedoms.

Asked why he has chosen to seek office under the Republican banner, Hinkson says "People who are fed up with liberalism in the Democratic Party don't have a home any more. "We are giving our freedoms away for what we think is security," he believes. "I've made up my mind I was going to try to do something about that."

Hinkson says this is the reason he has jumped into a national political race. He thinks action locally would be ineffective.

As a businessman engaged in both farming and ranching, Hinkson has seen these two segments of agriculture given different treatment under the nation's farm programs.

Farming has come under considerable government regimentation with the allotment system of determining crop production, and with much of the marketing responsibility for commodities

Squaws Win; Chiefs Lose Two Conference Openers

Friona Squaws won their first two conference games while the Chiefs lost their openers.

The Dimmitt squad bested the Chiefs 50-34 in the first conference contest here Friday night. Gary Snead was the high scorer with 12 points for the Chiefs.

The Chiefs fell before the Dalhart team Saturday night in the game which had been postponed because of bad weather. Dalhart won 49-42, Bobby Daniels was high Chieftain scorer with 10 points.

The Chiefs will meet Tulia here Friday for the third conference game of the season. Pending further developments, a good portion of the Friona squad will consist of freshman players. All but four members of the varsity team were dismissed Monday because of training rule violations, according to Coach Vernon Scott. Varsity members remaining on the team are Tommy Sanders, Charles Bass, Don Strubbs and S. D. Balze.

The freshman bolstered team played an "outstanding game" against Bovina Tuesday night even though they were bested 51-39.

The squaws managed to build up a 10 point lead to win their contest with Dimmitt 55-54, Friday night. Scores by quarters were 7-6, 23-20, 34-34, and 55-45.

Outstanding forwards for the Squaws were Su-Zan Harper, Janet Buckley, Charlotte Nettles and Pam Roden.

Guards cited as outstanding were Jimette McLean, Sandra Hoover, Kay Burleson and Myrna Bennett.

Dalhart fell before the Squaws 49-41, Saturday. Janet Buckley was the high scoring forward with 20 points.

The Squaws also rested Sunday in a contest here Tuesday with a score of 66 to 43. Four girls scoring more than 10 points were Pam Roden, 14, Charlotte Nettles, 22, Janet Buckley, 15, and Patricia Barker, 12.

The Squaws will meet Tulia here Friday for their third conference game.

★ Another Dog Story

Mrs. Raymond Jones received a call Tuesday morning informing her that some dogs were killing her chickens at her home just outside the city limits north of town.

She called Ben Moorman, city police chief, and asked if he could do something about the dogs in her chicken pen. She was busy at Houser's Grocery where she is employed. Moorman wasted no time in reaching the Jones residence and found two dogs in with the chickens.

One was his own. The other belonged to Ed Duke, another policeman.

Moorman and Duke bought several chickens, but didn't get a dinner out of the deal. The bird dogs were promptly chained.

Dictatorial Methods

If the Labor Department's handling of the bracero program is a sample of President Kennedy's New Frontier, it should be put where it belongs - in the trash can.

Never have we heard of such high handed methods being used by a department of the government as was employed by assistant secretary of labor, James Holleman, and his associates in the labor department last week.

A very demanding and controversial bulletin was published by the department which demanded that lettuce growers pay Mexican laborers $2 per hour instead of the prevailing $1 per hour. This bulletin also set a 180 day calendar day limit for the farmers using bracero farm labor.

The farmer can still pick the time which he uses the nationals and decide upon the number he will employ. But, he is ineligible for bracero help in excess of 180 calendar days during the year beginning Feb. 1.

Labor department officials from Lubbock were scheduled to meet with bracero association leaders and farmers from Parmer and surrounding counties in Muleshoe last Friday. But they did not.

A few copies of the new bulletin were acquired Friday afternoon. This bulletin is credited as being the reason for the absence of the Labor Department representatives. It was reported from very reliable sources that the state labor office in Dallas instructed the Lubbock men to stay away from the meeting because the new bulletin "WAS TOO CONTROVERSIAL."

Refusing to allow their representatives to attend a meeting and discuss and explain the contents of the bulletin and various other aspects of the changes in the bracero program does not speak very highly for the department, the sponsor of the bulletin (Holleman), or a government which will allow such ruthless disregard for the rights of citizens. Every man in this country (until now) is entitled to an explanation of any law or bulletin which affects his welfare and the welfare of his community, state and nation.

The bulletin is controversial, but to have representatives of the originator forbidden to attend a gathering of the people affected and explain the contents and implications of the document is much more controversial.

Of course, if anyone was to confront one of the Lubbock officials with the accusation that his boss was afraid for him to accompany the bulletin because he might get punched in the nose, one would probably find that everyone was very sick that night - sick in the head. They must hide until the people affected by the bulletin have dispersed and learned to live with such dictation, before showing their faces.

This is the way Holleman is trying to use the labor department to unionize farm labor. And Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg is allowing it. And Senator Ralph Yarborough backed (and still does) Holleman.

EDITOR, FRIONA STAR:

This letter is written in complaint to the complacent ex - students of the Friona School System who are still living in or around Friona.

As an ex - student, I have yet to attend an annual reunion; I have a small excuse -- I live in New York City. I would love to see my class mates of the graduating class of '56 and their families, but feel I would see very few of them, because most of them still live in Friona, and they are probably much too busy to make the effort to welcome an out - of - town friend at an Ex - Student Reunion.

This is the plight of most ex - students who have moved away, whatever their graduation year, and its history of the Reunion -- mostly out-of-town ex - students coming back to make a meager stand. But these are the ones who make the greatest effort to come, spend the most money getting there -- and are the happiest to see an old friend.

Try to imagine this: You've lived in Friona 'most all your life -- All your family and friends are there -- You move away, hardly ever see anyone from home -- You go out of your way to make the scene--find a place to leave the children, or bring them if you can, take time off from your work, arrange your transportation, leave your spouse's family at Christmas, Beg him to come and meet your old and dear friends-- Only to arrive at the reunion and find very few of your classmates -- who've probably gone to the same trouble you did.

HOW WOULD YOU FEEL? At least the ones who are there know what it means to take an interest in something or someone other than themselves and their own little private world.

We have a whole year to plan a wonderful ex - student reunion for 1962--it could be Friona's biggest yearly event. I am making every effort to be there for my first reunion, and am going to try to write to each of my classmates-- those who's addresses I don't know, are especially the ones I want to see again.

Why don't you get in touch with your old classmates-- and maybe even your own neighbors, too.

Jinni (Landrum) Konis

P. S. If anyone would like to help start the ball rolling, in any direction, I'd love to hear from you.

My address is:

Gentlemen:

The people of the Ninety-sixth Legislative District have been very kind to me, and I certainly appreciate the honors they have bestowed upon me.

I feel, for personal reasons, that I should not ask for reelection.

I will always feel deeply grateful that I have had the privilege of representing the finest people in the State of Texas.

being assigned to the government.

In strong contrast, the beef industry operates essentially on a free - market basis (there is government regulation to a degree, and there is a certain amount of "subsidy" but it is minor), and Hinkson is convinced that the cattlemen are far better off for having steered clear of government programs.

Besides the ranching activities in the Lazbuddie community, Hinkson and his brother Everette are in the cattle business in New Mexico and Arizona.

To Hinkson, the preservation of American freedoms, as defined and guaranteed in the constitution, is the basic rule of conduct. "All else is secondary to that," he says.

Hinkson is a member of Farm Bureau and is a steward in the Methodist Church. He served nine years as president of the Lazbuddie School board (the only office he has ever held.)

He is "flatly opposed" to federal aid to education. He makes a single exception to this opposition, it being in the case of federally - impacted areas (such as military installations.)

The 51 - year - old Lazbuddie resident says he is not running as a result of a popular "draft" movement. "It's all my own idea," he emphasizes. Mapping out a campaign and carrying it out before the May 5 primary is something that is yet before him.

In an interview, Hinkson looked straight at the reporter and said unblinkingly, "Now, I'm not going to tell you what to write. That would be telling you how to mind your own business and that's what I'm against. But don't picture me as a fence straddler."

NOBODY IS VERY INTERESTED IN YOUR TROUBLES--UNLESS, OF COURSE, A WOMAN IS INVOLVED.

places and bring their old stuff in here," Ralph Roden stated. "Personally, I think we have a mighty poor system. We are always getting the wrong party," J. B. Williams said. I have talked with Mayor Fleming and Jake Outland, city manager, and looked over some amendments to the Franchise issued to General Telephone. But I will have to wait until next week to talk about that. Let's go to basketball now. There has been considerable talk about the dismissal of virtually all the varsity basketball team Monday. They were dismissed because of violations of the training rules, according to Coach Vernon Scott.

It seems that most of the team members had been smoking in varying degrees and a few were guilty of drinking a little. Just who was doing what and how much is hard-if not impossible-to ascertain, I know that a couple of the dismissed team members had not smoked more than a few cigarettes since the season began.

But that is not the point here. They were still breaking training when they lit the weed. Therefore, when it becomes known to the coach, he is required to ask for their uniforms.

From what I have learned, Scott asked the boys if they had been smoking and received an affirmative answer. At least the boys were strong enough to own up to their acts.

But, I sincerely believe that any player who would approach the coach ALONE and ask for another chance would be reinstated on the team--providing that he give his word to follow the rules for the duration of the season. If any player holds a cigarette more important than his team, his school, his reputation or victory on the court, then he has no place in athletics.

It is my opinion that each person must be prepared to accept the consequences for his actions--regardless of how unimportant the action may seem at the time. That includes smoking or breaking training rules. One or two of the players may not have been guilty. If not, they should speak up.

I cannot say that smoking is wrong (Even if I didn't smoke myself.). But I do think breaking training is wrong. It is cheating one's teammates and coach. It could account for that 'little extra' which will make the difference between victory and defeat. One cigarette could make the difference of one point in the score.

McLellan --

At the Grubbs home, members of the family complained of headaches when they arose early that morning.

Matches would not burn and the oven would not ignite. Shortly after they arose, Willie Grace, 14, lost consciousness. The ambulance was called and she was carried to the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Roy Clements (Grub's' daughter and son-in-law) and their 9-month-old baby, Joan, were also in the home but apparently suffered no ill effects from the gas. All were treated at the hospital, Willie Grace and Mrs. Grubbs were hospitalized but were released within 24 hours. Moisture condensing on windows had frozen sealing off the windows and lending to a build-up of monoxide gas and consumption of oxygen in the McLellan home. Monoxide gas is thought to have built up in the basement and filled the house through the open basement door in the hallway.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tension and their two children, Carl Dewayne and June Lee, were given oxygen treatment and released at about the time the McLellans were brought to the hospital.

Mrs. McLellan was released to attend the funeral of Leo McLellan at 3 p.m. Monday. Joe was released Sunday but Mrs. McLellan was returned to the hospital for further treatment after the funeral.

Masonic rites were conducted at graveside services. McLellan was born in Caddo, Indian Territory on June 30, 1903. He moved to Friona with his family in 1924. He married the former Lillian Boatman Oct. 5, 1929.

After his marriage, he farmed in the Friona area and was manager of the Farmer County Community Hospital in Friona for about seven years until he was replaced in 1961 by Mrs. Martha Clements.

Pallbearers were Ralph Shelton, Les Burns, W. L. Edelman, J. L. Shaffer, Ralph Roden and Smokey Price. Survivors include his wife, Lillian; daughter, Betty Louise Rector; two sons, Kenneth Leo and Joe Lynn; father, E. B. McLellan, Ringling, Okla.; twin sister, Mrs. Velma Cleo, Houston; another sister, Mrs. Marguerite Porter; and six grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted by Clairon Funeral Home. Services were held at Friona Methodist Church with the Rev. Jimmy Tidwell, Andrews, officiating. The Rev. Wallace Kirby assisted.

I'm really in an uncomfortable situation this week. Have reached the point where I have to correct the corrections I've already made. All this came about by the numerous requests we had for candy recipes used by Sue Proctor during the Christmas holidays. In an effort to furnish our readers a number of fine recipes in the Christmas edition, we featured several Friona homemakers.

Due to lack of space it was not possible for us to use more than one recipe suggested by each person featured. In an effort to get the recipes to those who wanted them, I used them in a recent Happy Homemaker column.

All went up well to this point, but here I really goofed. Upon using the recipes I gave Sue Proctor credit for all of them when in reality the Praline recipe was one submitted by Mrs. Alton Farr.

My sincere apologies go to Mrs. Farr, Mrs. Proctor and anyone else that was misled by my error.

Each year Mrs. Beene, her mother, Mrs. Edwin Ramey, or aunt, Mrs. Edgar Ramey, is hostess at a birthday dinner for the three. The birthday of the Ramey twins, better known as "Goose" and "Unk," and that of O. J. Beene fall on consecutive days, so there's an excuse for a family get-together.

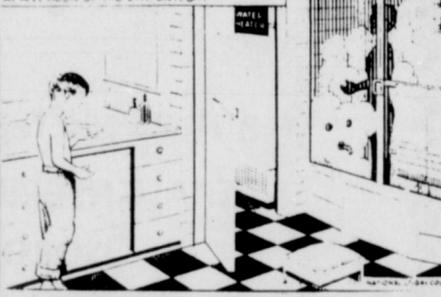

However, when this group of fine folks get together for food and fun, they don't really need an excuse. Don't think either Goose or Unk read this column, so it will probably be all right for me to tell you the birthday they observed was their 72nd one.

Just in case either of them do see it, I'm going to add a belated HAPPY BIRTHDAY to them.

Place Additional Restrictions On Bracero Use

WITH THE COUNTY AGENT

DERYL COKER

I will be out of the office Jan. 15 through Jan. 20 so I won't be able to attend the Hereford Stock Show. Even though I won't be there, several adult leaders have agreed to help with the livestock that 4-H members will have entered.

Best of luck to you all.

As would be expected in these changing times, new products for agricultural use appear on the market in a steady stream. Many of these have real merit; they do a job for you and help you make a profit. They have contributed much to recent important advances in agriculture. But other products may be of questionable value. Or they may be grossly overpriced. Or both. These are often sold by honestly enthusiastic persons who use scientific sounding sales talk, promising great benefits hitherto not available. They promise benefits based on "knowledge" which is often the product of pure fancy.

Just about everybody would like to get something for little or nothing, and it is human to hope that science will provide an easier or cheaper way of solving our farming problems. Maybe some new truth not yet fully appreciated has just been brought into use and we can "get in on the ground floor." Promoters capitalize on these hopes.

How do we go about determining which products we should be wary of buying? What clues should we look for? The promotional pattern is likely to include several, if not all, of the following selling angles.

1. The product is said to contain a secret or unknown ingredient, very potent, almost magical in its benefits.
2. It produces such remarkable results because it operates on a "newly discovered secret."
3. The discovery is so new that most scientists haven't heard about it yet.
4. Tests under controlled conditions in laboratory or field are generally played down as not showing the benefits obtained in "practical" agriculture.
5. Use of the product gives numerous beneficial side effects - extra dividends, all highly desirable but well clothed in words of mystery.

TRAVEL MONEY. Area farmers and bracero association leaders crowd around the table to give their donations to help pay travel expenses for three men to represent their interests at a labor hearing in Washington. A list of 105 names and $910 was given to the delegates at the meeting in Muleshoe Friday night. A total of 147 persons attended the meeting. Shown here are Bruce Parr, (holding coat) and W. T. Millen from Farmer County.

Feelings Run High At Friday Meeting

Bracero Association leaders and farmers from five counties met in Muleshoe Friday night to hear Labor department and Texas Employment Commission officials discuss the bracero program. Instead, they were informed of a new and restricting bulletin issued by the Labor Department.

The officials didn't attend the meeting. The reason for the absence of the officials was credited to orders from the Dallas office of the Labor Department which forbade their attendance because the new bulletin, which was supposed to be in the mail last weekend, struck some spots on three major topics.

Lettuce producers in Texas, Arizona, and California were instructed to raise the prevailing wage of $1 per hour to $2 per hour for Mexican harvest hands or relinquish the use of bracero laborers.

All farmers are allowed to use bracero labor for a period of not more than 180 calendar days out of the year. This period becomes effective Feb. 1.

Bracero laborers are not to be used to operate, maintain or service any mechanized equipment which is used in farm production. He is also not allowed to fulfill any function which is necessary for the proper operation of the farm machine.

Loud grumblings from the 147-strong audience drowned out the words of Skipper Smith, Littlefield, and Preston Hatley, Olton, as they attempted to discuss the contents of the bulletin.

At the close of the meeting, $910 was contributed to help furnish travel expense for Elvon DeVaney, Muleshoe; Melvin Jones, Farwell; and W. A. Hardin, Lamb County, to represent area people at a labor hearing in Washington Tuesday at 10 a.m. The hearing was called as a result of the stipulations placed upon the lettuce growers as they are starting harvesting.

More time was needed to locate the men to go to the hearing than was needed to raise the travel funds. Bruce Parr from Black stated that whoever should be chosen to go will have to be able to hold his tongue in the face of "bald untruths."

"I profess to be a Christian and believe in the Christian way of life, but at a similar meeting up there (in Washington) in 1958, I heard the representatives of the Council of Churches, or whatever it is called, testify that we were making the Mexicans hoe with the short handled hoes (Pony hoes) so that they would be bowing in humble submission to their employers," he said. "And Bill (W. T. Millen) will say the same thing," he added.

It was explained that the 180-day restriction on the use of bracero labor was not a restriction on the number of Mexicans used. The farmer also can choose the period in which he is to employ the braceros. This decision was credited to the supposition that temporary or seasonal labor could only be applied to a term of six months or less. (Braceros are supposed to be classed as seasonal or temporary laborers).

The question was raised of what farmers who have braceros contracted for three or six months at present could do in order to be allowed to use the Mexican help during the irrigation and harvesting seasons. Two avenues seemed to be open to farmers and associations. They could cancel the contract of the braceros and pay them for three-quarters of the contracted time or they could honor the contracts and hope that the time limit would be removed or the area declared an undue hardship area before the 180 days expired.

A member of the audience suggested a third out which brought a round of laughter from the crowd:

"Well, Hell! I'll just shoot mine," was the comment. "I think I'll just move down there. Nobody will be left here that will work," another commented disgustedly.

Further stipulations concerning the use of braceros to operate machinery indicated that the bracero could not move any machine which is used for farm production even though it was not being used at the time. For example, a bracero could not move a combine from the field to the combine in the middle of February when the ground was covered with snow.

Further, the bracero will not be allowed to fulfill any function which is necessary for the proper operation of the machine. This could mean that no bracero will be allowed to work in cotton trailers next fall and winter. It could be that pitching cotton could be considered as a necessary function for the proper operation of the cotton stripper.

"Will the bracero be allowed to bring the farmer water while he is in the field plowing?" a man in the audience asked.

"He can if it is for the farmer to drink, but not if it is to put in the tractor," snorted a man across the room.

Near the end of the meeting, Millen made a few remarks to the effect that Senator Ralph Yarborough was not the friend of any farmer in this area and that he was not doing anything for the farmer.

The meeting ended with almost everyone present promising to write their representatives and work individually and together to try to get a workable bracero program re-established.

THE HIGH PLAINS FARM AND HOME

The HAPPY HOMEMAKER

BY JUNE FLOYD

It has been said by many authorities that beginning cooks have much better success with mixes than do those of us who have been cooking a long time. Could it be possible that those who haven't been cooking so long, follow the given instructions more closely?

Perhaps too many of us decide that our knowledge of how cake, cookie or other batter ought to look is so great that we add more flour or more liquid that the manufacturer specifies. If your teen age daughter makes better cakes with prepared mixes than you do, it would probably be wise for you to follow her example by following directions as printed on the cartons.

Most homemakers derive a great deal of enjoyment from giving home made articles as gifts. Regardless of the cost of the article, no one can give a more appreciated gift than one that has been made by the giver.

If you don't have a gift box, why not start one. Then in your odd moments when you get an

How Would Fallout Affect Livestock?

This is the fourth of a series of articles on Civil Defense, compiled by Deryl Coker and Ettie Musil.

If that nuclear attack should come, people will go on living, or that is, the ones that are adequately protected from the blast, heat and radiation. To do this we must know how fallout will affect livestock, and what we must do to make livestock products safe for human consumption. This is very important for it would be impossible to survive without some of the livestock products.

Following is a list of questions and answers that should be of help to you in determining what you could do in case of nuclear attack.

QUESTION: How will fallout affect unprotected livestock—that is, animals in fields, pastures, and other open areas? ANSWER: Fallout may be dangerous to cattle, sheep, horses, pigs, and other livestock as well as to human beings. Animals can suffer skin burns if fallout settles in the coat. If animals drink fallout in their water or eat it in their feed, the radiation may cause serious internal injury or death. Radioactive materials that contaminate the skin or the immediate environment give off rays that can penetrate deep into the body. This is the major source of danger for livestock.

Q: How will fallout affect sheltered livestock? A: Livestock housed in barns and other farm buildings during fallout stand a better chance of surviving the effects of radiation than those that are not sheltered. A reasonably well-built shelter prevents fallout from settling on the animals' bodies and may reduce the intensity of external radiation; it also keeps the animals from eating contaminated feed.

Q: What is the best way to protect livestock from fallout? A: Move them indoors as soon as possible, and keep them off contaminated feed and water. If you do not have adequate facilities to house livestock, put them near farm buildings or in a small drylot. Once fallout occurs, you should not attempt to protect livestock unless local civil defense authorities tell you that it is safe to do so.

Q: What water and feed can I give livestock after fallout? A: Water from a covered well, tank, or cistern, or from a freely running spring, should be safe. If possible, use water from a covered well.

River water is more likely to be contaminated. However, most of the fallout will be removed if it is filtered through sand or if it is muddy and the mud is settled out. Pond water is less safe, but if necessary, it can be used a few days after fallout has occurred.

To prevent contamination from fallout, do not add water to covered tanks, except water from a properly protected well or spring, until the water originally present is used.

Give your livestock feed that has not been exposed to fallout. If the particles settle on hay, silage, or a stack of feedbags, they will contaminate only the outer portions. You can remove the outer layers or bags, and use the inside feed that is unaffected. However, do not handle contaminated feed until told by authorities that it is safe to do so, and be sure to follow the precautions they may recommend.

Farmers will be notified if local civil defense authorities measuring concentrations of fallout consider forage that is growing in an area to be harmful, but this advice might come too late in the more heavily contaminated areas. As a precautionary measure, it is best to house the livestock without giving them access to forage.

You may have to give cows contaminated feed if no other feed is available. Although the milk from these cows may not be usable, once the cows are back on clean feed the amount of radioactive in their milk will progressively diminish. Authorities will measure fallout in affected areas and warn farmers when milk is unsafe. But again such warning likely will come latest in the areas where contamination is heaviest.

Q: What can I do with contaminated feed?

A: You may be able to feed it to livestock eventually. Because of radioactive decay, contaminated feed may become safe to use after a period of storage. How long feed should be stored depends on the type and concentration of the radioactive materials. Farmers will be notified by local defense authorities.

Q: Should dairy cows receive special treatment?

A: Yes, because radioactive materials can accumulate in milk, which will be a very critical product during an emergency, you should make a special effort to protect cows from fallout.

Give cows preferred shelter and clean feed and water. If you can, milk them before fallout occurs. You may not be able to do so for several days afterward. Reduce amounts of water and concentrated feed to maintenance levels. If practicable, put cows and suckling calves together; the calves can suckle and reduce the discomfort of full udders.

Q: Is it possible to decontaminate livestock and farm buildings that have been exposed to fallout?

A: If there is fallout on the animals' skins, some of the radioactive material can be washed off with water. Civil defense authorities may advise you to hose down animals and to clean stables, barns, and other farm buildings. They will also tell you when it is safe to do these things. In handling animals, wear coveralls, gloves and boots to prevent contaminating yourself. Cleaning or disinfecting buildings will not destroy radioactivity. However, cleaning can be useful in moving radioactive materials to a place where radiation will be less harmful. In cleaning be careful to avoid contaminating yourself.

CAUTION: Before animals are hosed down or buildings cleaned, a thorough check should be made of possible radiation hazards to the person performing the task.

HD Agent's Notes

BY MISS ETTIE MUSIL

For years we have been told that to save energy you should sit down to work. Now laboratory tests show homemakers actually use 4 percent more energy when sitting, than when standing. These tests were made for washing dishes and ironing.

The added energy is needed in getting on and off a kitchen stool while sitting. Of course, we still say that sitting is good especially to take off the strain on your legs and feet.

To roll out dough it takes 9 percent more energy when you are sitting on a kitchen stool than it does when you are standing. This is counting the energy used in getting on and off a kitchen stool plus the extra energy used to do the kitchen work.

These latest research decisions are important in planning kitchens and other work areas in your home. Storage space in the home seems to be the big concern in planning new and remodeled homes.

Come by the office some time and we will discuss better arrangement of your kitchen storage. We have two very helpful bulletins showing how you can arrange your kitchen for comfort as well as convenience. If you have wasted space in your kitchen cabinets you may want to see how you could add step-up shelves to store more items closer to your reach.

Are you planning to buy one or more major home appliances in the next few months? We have received word from our home management specialists advising that, if you can find what you want, it may pay you to buy now.

Prices are expected to increase substantially within the next few months. This is due partially to higher materials and labor costs. New improvements and added features also add to the cost of newness.

For the new automatic washers, watch for increased capacity as an added feature. In ranges, color will receive a big play as a feature. However, be careful about colored appliances. Color will limit your decorating color change, especially if you change your wall color schemes often.

Another new feature in the range will be the high oven, counter top, and the free-standing drop-in models. This is where we need to compare costs with the service the range will do for your family needs.

In refrigerators we'll be seeing an increase in larger capacity units. This is due to the foam insulation that will cut down the thickness of walls. The space lost in the walls earlier will now be useable space. Also you will see more automatic and no-defrost systems.

News in dishwashers include built-ins and mobile models. They will also feature a wide range of colors and woods. You may be interested in the features of cycles for different type loads. These cycles will include daily cycle, fine china, pots and pans, wash and dry, and wash only and rinse only. Can you imagine a dish washer you can almost talk to by pushing a button?

Last week we were indeed happy to help the Farwell 4-H Club organize their joint club. Twenty boys and girls between the ages of 9 to 17 years were present for the first meeting. It is always an inspiration to see the parents at these 4-H club meetings.

Farwell 4-H Club has decided to meet each second Thursday night of the month. Programs for the year were planned by the officers and the organization leaders. Mrs. U.L. Lesly and Mrs. Bob Anderson will help the club with general organization. We are looking forward to a full 4-H club year with the Farwell boys and girls.

We have received a new supply of Farmers Tax Guides. Come by for a free copy to help you with your income tax. We have a limited supply so get it while they last.

NEWS FROM THE FARM BUREAU

BY RAYMOND EULER

It is our sincere hope that most of the people of the Golden Spread saw or heard "Hollywood's Answer to Communism" Friday night.

It was presented locally by competitive business organizations, and supported initially by loyal American producers and actors who find themselves in the midst of proponents of a switch from the from the American way. We believe most American Citizens appreciate both of these facts that bring hope for a reversal of a trend. Farm Bureau, locally, statewide and nation-wide, openly opposes Communism whenever and wherever it is found.

Members of the Gas User's Association have been, and are, actively working for legislation in Texas enabling farmers to get irrigation fuel at a reasonable cost. Farm Bureau supports this organization in its efforts.

Some of you may never know how much some of your neighbors and fellow farmers are spending and working for your benefit in this endeavor. If you knew, we know you would lend your support voluntarily and vigorously. We hope you will.

Vernon Symcox, a member of the board of the above mentioned organization reported to the Farm Bureau Board on activities of the organization last week.

President Harry Hamilton reported to your board on a meeting he attended in Amarillo last week where Congressman Walter Rogers was guest of District I Farm Bureau. He was questioned regarding his views on Farm Bureau recommendations on national policies. Of particular interest was the Bracero program which appears to be on the way out, regardless of Farm Bureau and other farm group efforts to save it.

Farm Bureau is for long range improvement in farm and other business and individual income. Generally speaking, Farm Bureau people believe this can only be accomplished by a return to individual freedom, individual opportunity, and individual initiative without undue interference from the government. We hope you share these basic beliefs enough to volunteer your membership if you are not already a member. CONSIDER THIS: Remove not the ancient landmark, which thy fathers have set. (Proverbs 22:28)

Meeting Unites Group

At a special meeting held in the courthouse in Farwell, Thursday it was decided to unite the boys and girls 4-H into one group.

Ettie Musil explained how the new unit would work. Leaders will be Mrs. R. W. Anderson and Mrs. U. L. Lesly. They are in need of project leaders to help with the work. Officers were elected for the group: Reba Lesly, president; Doyle Johnson, vice-president; Bruce Billingsley, council delegate; Edith Ann Walling, council alternate delegate; Janis Billingsley, secretary-treasurer; Peggy Lesly, reporter; Tina Russell, recreation chairman.

The group will meet at the city hall in Farwell on the third Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. The next meeting date will be February 15.

Members present were Doyle Johnson, Larry Gregory, Charles Norton, Edith Ann Walling, Viane Lesly, Janis Billingsley, Tina Russell, Peggy Lesly, Charles Morton, Edith Carter, Keith Thomas, Milton Lee Walling, Roger Patrick, Reba Lesly, Sharon William, Camille Hobbs, Vicky Kaltwasser and Meredith Anderson.

(Cont.) Shift your position as often as you can

If you're forced to stand for a long time. Push one hip out slightly, and throw your weight on the outside of that foot. Then repeat with the other hip and foot. You'll find this can be done inconspicuously. Don't wear the same shoes every day. Alternate between two pairs (at least). If your feet are inclined to perspire excessively, dust on special absorbent foot powder before pulling on your stockings, or spray foot spray or cologne right through your hose. Shop especially carefully for dancing slippers. Since these will probably be your highest-heeled shoes, it's particularly important that they fit perfectly. Good trick: Schedule your visit to the shoe department for the afternoon, when most feet tend to swell a little. Then there will be room for expansion on the dance floor. When trying on shoes, step down hard, and check the width and toe space with your full weight. Be sure the back is shaped so that it neither presses nor lets your heel slip.

Something To Think About 6th. Street Church of Christ Box 515 -- Friona, Texas. Usually think of Christ as the "Lord of peace," (2 Thess. 3:15) and refuse to take seriously the Lord's own statement when he said, "Think not that I am come to bring peace on the earth, I am not come to send peace, but a sword," (Matt. 10:34) Men must realize that just as surely as life comes out of death, so also the peace of 2 Thess. 3:15 is a product of the conflict of Matt. 10:34.

Many people have given so much time and thought to the healing, soothing and comforting features of the Gospel of Christ that they are repulsed by the idea that the same gospel can be, and very often is, very curing and severe. They naturally think of Christ as the "Lord of peace," (2 Thess. 3:15) and refuse to take seriously the Lord's own statement when he said, "Think not that I am come to bring peace on the earth, I am not come to send peace, but a sword," (Matt. 10:34) Men must realize that just as surely as life comes out of death, so also the peace of 2 Thess. 3:15 is a product of the conflict of Matt. 10:34.

Come To Church Sunday

"Come to me, all who labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest." (Matthew 11:28) The invitation of Jesus, saying "Come to me . . .", is directed to every person. We read of him traveling throughout the countryside of Judea and Galilee, into the small towns and even over to the racially restricted area of Samaria. We watch him eat with sinners and invite them. We see him go and come from the home of the hated tax collector, and we know that Jesus invited him. And lastly, we know that he went about the great city of Jerusalem, making his invitation clearly heard by the lepers, and the Pharisees and, on at least one occasion, a lowly prostitute. What did he mean when he said "Come unto me"? He meant that you and I should come to him exactly as he has found us. Not later, after we are dressed properly. Not tomorrow, when he has had time to think about it. Jesus is directing his invitation to us in the present tense. We must answer it in the present tense. Jesus is calling to people of all conditions and all types who are searching for the full satisfaction of their physical and spiritual needs. He is calling to them in their hunger. He is calling them in their emptiness and unrest. He is calling to them in their delusions. He is calling to them in their weariness and sin.
