are about as strong physically as they were and the size and capacity of the human brain is unchanging. But the ingenuity and enterprise of free American business men have developed a machine-power that has multiplied productive worth to an amazing degree. And this has brought on our great social progress; it has given American workmen a living standard three times as high as their counterparts living under any other system in the world.

The Wagner Act and Taft-Hartley laws, the strikes for higher wages by industrial employees and the "social reform" legislation of the past half-century would not have advanced this nation's economic or social welfare on the whole — or the individual citizen's permanent economic outlook — had not American business throughout these 50 years been constantly devising new machine tools and techniques and expanding its production facilities to create new wealth.

Wealth, said Henry George, the social philosopher, is "any material thing made by man from land, that has an exchange value." The government cannot make new wealth by spending tax income or redistributing it in any particular way, or by issuing new irredeemable currency or by spending borrowed money through the use of paper I.O.U.s. But a man can take a handful of clay from a creek bank, shape it into a bowl and harden it in an earthen oven, and it becomes new wealth — to be sold or exchanged for something he wants. The clay itself is not wealth as it lies in the earth. It is merely a resource. It becomes wealth only after man has worked it into something useful, something somebody wants.

In many regions of the old world bowls for food are still made by men shaping clay with their hands and making it in earthen ovens — and because of such primitive production, the living standard of the population has improved very little in the past 100 years. In America, our incentives and freedoms have inspired many clay potters to become dinnerware manufacturers, blacksmiths to become automobile builders, and men with one horse plow to become mechanized commercial farmers.

Machine tools, mass production techniques, and invested capital have enabled business men and industrialists to increase the productive capacity — the wealth-making power — of American workmen to an amazing degree. And this is the key to American prosperity. There is really no secret about it. We've got the world's greatest prosperity because our industries have developed machine-power and placed it in the hands of our quick-to-learn workmen, and thus the expansion of wealth-making production has been constant.

These reasons for America's wonderful industrial progress should be clearly understood by every citizen, especially young Americans in schools and colleges, and likewise industrial employees who get so much propaganda peddled their way which seeks to undermine their faith in our American business system. In 1950, manufacturing, as we know it today, was barely getting started: Man himself did 20 per cent of the work being done, animals did 50 per cent, and machine power accounted for only 30 per cent. By 1900 man was doing only 15 per cent, and machines were doing 55 per cent. And by 1950, man was doing only 6 per cent and machine were doing the rest, 94 per cent.

The output per worker per hour in 1850 was only 27 cents (in today's buying power.) By 1950, thanks to industry's constant development of better machine tools and production techniques, the output per worker per hour had increased five times that amount to $1.40. And the American living standard measured by per capita buying power had improved exactly 500 per cent. Thus we can see clearly how important it is — to all of us — to keep intact the basic principles of our American business system — freedom and the profit incentives that have sparked our great industrial progress.

most of the remainder of the old world wouldn't be knee-deep in poverty. America's unmatched progress has been due to the freedoms and incentives in the American system and to our American business leadership with its great capacity for constantly expanding the production of new wealth.

HEALTH TALKS — THE COMMON COLD

The Common cold, one of mankind's oldest and most prevalent afflictions, gets shoved around more than any disease, not only from one "kerchoo" to another but also by the written word.

Reams of material have been written about the cold, millions of dollars have been spent by the public to cure the cold and by the scholars to find a cure. Everything about the cold is stupendous, colossal, gigantic. And not a whole lot more is known about it than was a century or two ago.

They've changed the name of it, even, trying to pin it down to something else. Catarrh, which meant a flowing down (quite graphically), must have been a bit too broad for some noses because the cold now goes by the name of "the common cold" in most circles though it may masquerade as an acute upper respiratory infection rhinitis or coryza (which sounds like a sneeze).

The very first sign of a cold is felt in the nose or back there at the top of the throat. It may be an itchy or tickling feeling, a dryness or rawness, but if you're real observant, you'll take that as the signal that you've got a cold coming on. And you feel a little chilled or a bit irritable along with the tickle or itch.

If you'd tuck yourself in bed, drink lots of water and take an aspirin at this point, you probably would nip that cold in the bud. Chances are you won't or you won't, however, so about 24 hours later you can expect that cold bud to burst into full bloom.

A full bloom cold is not a pretty poxy. There is sneezing, sometimes much and strenuous sneezing. Your eyes water, as does your nose. You drip. Your nose is a one-way street with traffic only moving out, no air going in, so you breathe through your mouth, making your throat feel rough and dry. You are weak, ornery, chilly, headachey and feel feverish but usually can't even have the satisfaction of finding any fever registered on the thermometer.

About the third day of your cold your nose quits dripping, it begins getting tighter with a heavier discharge congesting the nasal traffic even more. You may add a cough at this period and your throat may get quite rough and itchy. Despite that, you may start feeling better and progress, minus sneezes and chills, back to good health, except for that nose which might stay thickly clogged for days or even weeks. Eventually the congestion may clear up or it may be the ringleader in your cold developing into something more serious.

You can't get around rest in bed as the best treatment for a cold.

There is no pill, salve, nose drop, gargle, rubbing remedy, ointment or "vaccine" known to the medical profession which is reliable in preventing or curing the common cold. If you have any allergies, which seem in some way connected with susceptibility to colds, you may build up your resistance to the allergies by anti-histamines when the allergic manifestations appear. Aspirin is often advised for a cold to make you feel better while you're laying out the cold in bed. Whiskey has no known medicinal value for a cold, though it is claimed by some that it makes you feel better. Gargling warm salt water might make your throat feel better when too much mouth-breathing has roughened it up a bit! Inhaling steam seems to have a soothing effect upon the congestion in the nose. You are usually thirsty during a cold because you're losing so much fluid by the drip of your nose, so you drink fluids as your thirst tells you to.

But first and foremost, tuck yourself in bed. You reduce the severity of your cold, limit its spread to others and cut down the possibility of complications by simply going to bed when you have a cold. If the cold still gets worse, call your doctor and follow his advice, but bed rest is the first treatment for the common cold.

It looks like a "POWER YEAR"

New Horsepower — new Brake Power — and new Power Steering blossom on Buick's ROADMASTER for 1952

MAYBE you've heard—horsepower has hit a new high on the ROADMASTER.

Brake power has done the same.

But today, we'd like to concentrate on the third member of the power trio—Buick's own version of Power Steering, available on ROADMASTERS at a moderate extra cost.

What is this Power Steering like? It's something like a helping hand, something like a "hydraulic slave"—that relieves you of all steering strain, but lets you keep command.

What we mean is this:

Power Steering is handled by a special hydraulic unit—and engineers can design this unit to take over any amount of steering effort—even to a point where the wheel seems to float in your hand.

But in that case, you'd surrender all control to that hydraulic unit—get no steering "feel" from the wheel.

Now suppose you're telling two agile tons of automobile what to do in traffic. We think you'd like to have it know that you're in command.

And—out on the straightaway—we believe that a part of the joy you get from owning a Buick is the sensation of having something alive and eagerly willing beneath your hands.

So we're glad to announce that Buick engineers didn't spoil this thrill. They've kept the fun of driving, and simply eased the effort.

When you're rolling along smooth and straight, it takes almost no effort to keep any Buick on course. It almost steers itself, as every Buick owner knows.

But—when you want to get away from a curb —back into a parking spot—make a turn—Buick's Power Steering comes into action, saves four-fifths of the effort required with ordinary steering. Power Steering does the extra work.

And—in case you wonder what happens if Power Steering gets out of kilter, the answer is nothing. Your Buick steers just as it always has.

That's why we've been saying, "This is Power Steering as it ought to be."

Come in. Try it out. We think you'll agree.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

Sure is true for '52

COST OF TB GRAPHICALLY EXPLAINS REASONS FOR TREATMENT, CURE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE

Tuberculosis, sixth cause of death in this country as computed by the Sixth International List of Cause of Death, is a costly disease.

A communicable, chronic disease, the treatment of which may extend from many months to years, tuberculosis is costly to the individual patient and costly to the nation. It is a tremendous cost financially and its costs in physical and emotional suffering are incalculable.

It is estimated that deaths from TB cut off approximately 1,500,000 years of life annually and cost this nation about 1,000,000 working years each year. By taking many of its victims in their working prime — TB ranks first among diseases which kill young people between 14 and 35 — the disease deprives the nation of considerable talent and output which would otherwise contribute to its progress.

In terms of dollars and cents, the nation's cost has been estimated at more than $350,000,000 a year. This figure covers expenditures by public and private agencies for patient care, case finding, public health nursing, health education, rehabilitation, treatment by private physicians, hospital maintenance, assistance to families of tuberculous wage-earners, medical research, and veteran's pensions. It does not cover the cost of hospital construction, or the huge toll in lost wages and production.

And no financial calculation can give any idea of costs in terms of physical and mental anguish, broken homes, and the tragedy of lives needlessly snuffed out.

Yet all costs exacted by tuberculosis, financial and otherwise, are unnecessary. For tuberculosis is preventable as well as curable. The medical profession, official health agencies, and the 3,000 tuberculosis associations throughout the country jointly carry on a year-round battle against TB. But they need the whole-hearted cooperation of the American people to prevent and control the disease.

Every one of us can take an active part in the campaign against tuberculosis, and at the same time help protect ourselves against the disease. First, we should all have a physical checkup, including chest X-ray, at least once a year. We should also support the work of our local tuberculosis association as it wages war against TB—a disease which kills more people in the United States than all other infectious diseases combined.

A Ticket Is A Favor

You knew a ticket was coming when the siren sounded behind you and the flashing red light blinked in your mirror—and you knew why.
 But did you even stop to think the officer was doing you a favor? Well, he was! Traffic patrol officers know their business. They are the ones who help clean up the gory messes on the highways, but their big job is to prevent accidents from happening.
 There's no personal animosity in a ticket—and it may be saving your life and the lives of others in a positive way. Remember, driving is a responsibility as well as a privilege.
 When you see a speeder getting a summons, be glad the law is dealing with another traffic violator—making your trip on the road safer. And if you ever drive out-of-turn—exceed the speed limit, go through a red light, cross a traffic line at a "no-passing" point, or violate some other rule of the road—recognize the fact that you are a candidate for a ticket.
 And when the officer hands it to you—even if you don't say it out loud—think: "Thank You."
