many adults — so we feel it not necessary to go on and on, which we could do, concerning such actions and leave it to the thinking ability of a still free-thinking people to figure out what is going on and if it is the right thing.

This column started last week to remind our readers of the danger of hurting a child near the school grounds. We hope that message went over. The school has put up the signs near intersections surrounding the ground as a reminder to motorists, also.

Football is expected to be the main topic of discussion for the next few months. There is always the same old moaning at the beginning of the season about how poor the chances are, but the boys of Sanderson have always made a good showing of their ability to fill up the gaps and stay in the running.

Which just goes to show that none of us are indispensable. We can always find a person to do the job if we look for one.

There is one factor of change which comes to mind as the football season comes in — and that is that play suits go out. That is depressing for a while but we have the consolation that in the not too distant future football season is over and here will be other play-suit seasons.

This column was assailed recently by a reader who misread our column or read into it some things which were not there. We stand corrected on some of the points of discussion, but stand pat on others. There was only the idea of a moral lesson pertaining to that particular scribbling, — similar to the parable of the rich man and the eye of the needle. We understand the fallacies of the possibility of such an occurrence. But we were trying to point out that some things which end to try our patience, our souls and such which are put on the rough and rugged road of life, not to be pestilences, but to make us appreciate more the soft walk and our road when we must walk on it. The higher we climb in life's trials, the more troublesome becomes the disappointments, upsets and drouths. Those things which scratch our feet, are the things that make us lift ourselves above them, rather than trample forever among the thorns, briars and rock surfaces of life.

Let's not pray for the removal of those obstacles by those who walk before us, or with us, but that we may have the strength to overcome them ourselves by our own efforts or by God-given aid. Young people for years, and has changed the incentive outlook of a been polluting the minds of

LOOKING AHEAD in GEORGE S. BENSON

President—Harding College, Searcy, Arkansas

The people of Middletown (Ohio) have stopped complaining to themselves about government waste and high taxes. In an effective, organized manner they now are complaining to their representatives in Congress. When the new Congress convenes next January, the pattern of Middletown's "Tea Party" may have spread from coast to coast. If so, the greatest flood of letters in the history of the U. S. mails will go pouring into Washington, all citing documented instances of needless waste and all demanding an end to waste and a reduction in taxes.

Like the "Tea Party" patriots of Boston in 1773, Middletown citizens feel they must do something powerful enough to shock the tax-makers and the spenders in their Federal government. So they are mobilizing all segments of their population in a letter-writing campaign.

Middletown's "Tea Party" project was conceived last winter by a half-dozen citizens who drank morning coffee together downtown. They talked it around, and on March 5 a meeting was held of 35 selected representative citizens. One of the hosts rose and said the time had come to do something more than "beef" about waste in government and paralyzing taxes. Documented items of gross waste in various departments of the Federal government were circulated throughout the group. Then some of the alarming facts about taxes were brought out.

The total direct and hidden tax in the purchase of a $3.00 pair of baby shoes is 80 cents. On a $3.00 telephone call it's 91 cents. On $8 worth of lumber it's $2.80. On a $25 table radio it's $8.80. On $20 worth of coal it's $6.05. In the purchase price of a kid's $5.35 scooter, total taxes amount to $1.45. On a $4.50 basket of food the tax is $1.43. Among the 35 persons who attended Middletown's first "Tea Party" meeting were housewives, doctors, lawyers, teachers, business and industrial executives, labor union officers and rank and file members, civic club officers, etc. All reacted sharply to the evidence of waste and these shocking figures on taxes.

LETTERS TO CONGRESS The idea put forth at this first meeting was that each of the 35 would go home and write a letter to Middletown's Congressman and Senators, pointing out specific incidents of waste and requesting that extraordinary efforts be made to eliminate all waste and to otherwise cut down on government expenses, to the end that taxes could be reduced. Furthermore, each of the 35 was given the task of getting nine other persons to write similar letters. In turn each of those nine would accept the obligation to line up nine additional citizens to join in—and on and on. In other words, a chain letter effect was sought, though individuality in the letter writing was urged.

Within a few weeks 2,000 citizens were participating in the "Tea Party" campaign, and Middletown's Congressman and Ohio's 2 Senators were getting a steadily increasing flow of letters. And since the letters came from Democrats and Republicans, factory workers and housewives, union leaders and industrialists, business men and teachers, they simply couldn't be brushed off by Middletown's representatives in Congress. They got action.

EV'S SPREADING Middletown's "Tea Party" idea already has spread to such cities as Philadelphia, Fort Wayne, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Detroit, Los Angeles, and Houston. In most communities the letter writing campaign is sparked by an informal, volunteer organization. Working men and women hold most of the offices, donating after-work time to expanding the movement. Many housewives contribute hours out of their busy days. The citizen letter writers are supplied with fresh items of governmental waste and detailed facts about the out-of-control increase in taxes during recent years. These specifics give weight and authority to the letters.

The citizens of Middletown have started something good. It is another encouraging sign that people all over the country are awakening to the harmful effects of wasteful and expanding government. As this column is written I have before me the breakdown of open and hidden taxes on a $2,000 automobile. They total $664.00. There is something badly wrong in this situation. And only an aroused and active citizenry can correct it.

Hardeman Airs Views On New Amendments

Once again Texans are called upon to pass upon proposals to change their basic law. One of such proposes an amendment to the Constitution creating a State Medical Education Board and establishing a fund out of which "grant, loans and scholarships to students desiring to study medicine and agreeing to practice in the rural areas of this State" may be made.

We are all interested in providing adequate medical care and facilities, at reasonable expense, for the people of Texas. While the worthy motives of this proposal are appreciated, still, it is fraught with some aspects which suggest its undesirability.

For one thing, it adds another board to the numerous boards, commissions and bureaus presently supported by the taxpayers, either by direct appropriations or from the proceeds of the sale of various and sundry licenses, permits or stickers for the privilege of simply engaging in legitimate business endeavors within the state to gain a livelihood.

The proposal would authorize "grants, loans or scholarships" out of the general revenue fund to "students desiring to study medicine and agreeing to practice in the rural areas . . ." This would revoke and repeal, to that extent, a long-standing constitutional provision which forbids appropriations of public funds for "private or individual purposes." (Art. 16, Sec. 5, Const. of Texas.) Also, its adoption would contravene the provision forbidding the "giving or lending of the credit of a State in aid of, or to any person . . ." or the pledging of "the credit of the State in any manner whatsoever, for the payment of liabilities, present or prospective, of any individual . . ." (Art. 3, Sec. 50, Const. of Texas.)

Sound governmental policy dictated these provisions at the time of their incorporation into our Constitution and the underlying reasons therefor, apparently, remain unchanged.

In addition, the proposal is discriminatory in that it is limited to a single class or group. The shortage of practitioners of the healing arts in our rural communities is an admitted fact. The question is whether the method proposed offers the solution to the problem. Frankly I do not know the answer and will gladly await the decision of the people on the subject.

Nothing is binding, beyond the mere moral obligation of the person receiving such benefit to practice in a designated area, which obligation is legally unenforceable. It does not appear that a definite term for such practice in a particular area ever could be fixed and any effort to do so by law might amount to, more or less, "involuntary servitude" which the law of the land forbids.

Then there comes the question of determining whether there should be uniform requirements, such as the length of time each practitioner should be required to spend in the area; who should select the area and prescribe its territorial limits; the type of service and the extent of the care and facilities and equipment offered or to be provided; the charges that might be made; the duty hours that should be maintained, etc. Many factors, necessarily, would have to be considered in a determination of this matter, of which limited time and space prevent a full discussion. Suffice it to say that such a proposal dangerously approaches socialized medicine in designated areas, while excluding other areas therefrom.

While it is not necessarily contemplated that a student receiving a "grant, loan or scholarship" might fail to maintain the scholastic standing required, still it is conceivable that there could be a scholastic deficiency, which could present further legal and economic difficulties.

The state now maintains, at considerable cost to the taxpayers, two fine medical schools which are filled to capacity and have waiting lists for admissions. Unless institutional facilities are greatly expanded, there seems to be little justification, at present, for the establishment of a fund of tax money to send additional personnel to our already over-crowded medical schools.

It is very doubtful that subsidies, such as proposed, will be sufficient inducement for a qualified practitioner to remain in the rural areas of the state longer than will enable him to gain some experience and accumulate enough money to spread his wings, so to speak, and venture forth as a "specialist" in the urban and more metropolitan districts.

Another of the proposals would authorize Workmen's Compensation Insurance for municipal employees, either by being provided by the municipality itself or by procuring such coverage from a private insurer.

The policy of this type insurance has long since been recognized in private industry. It has afforded the worker protection, as well as allowed industry the opportunity to limit its liability, thereby providing a practice of mutual security between employer and employee, in the event of injury or mishap to the individual covered.

The proposed amendment to the Constitution would extend this policy and the benefits thereof to public employees of cities, towns and villages, and, at the same time, authorize such municipalities to provide for or set up its own insurance risk for all such employees. Naturally, if this latter procedure is adopted, a new bureau or board for the administration thereof, will inevitably follow.

It would seem better, and in accord with our oft-expressed views of freedom of enterprise, that such insurance be obtained from private sources, in any event.

There is no sound reason for depriving this type public employees of such insurance protection. Workmen's Compensation Insurance is now authorized for State and County employees. (Art. III, Secs. 59, 60 Tex. Const.) The source of such insurance, necessarily, would be determined by the duly authorized and elected officials of the various municipalities.

These and other reasons might possibly be assigned for suggesting the rejection of this proposal at the polls.
