LISTEN TO LUKE

Did any of you folks happen to notice lately the absence of a train whistle in the wee hours of the morning or in the still of the night?

Well, maybe editors are the only ones who are awake at such hours or maybe they're the only sentimental people left in the world, or maybe just because they're editors is the reason why they would even be wondering about such silly things in the first place. But I have.

We wish there was some way to install a little pot of water on diesel engines so that steam could be worked up just before they get into town in order that the kind engineer could give a little blast just for my benefit.

The whistle of a train should not seem so important to a newspaper man; no more important than it should be to a railroader anyway, but it seems that when time and progress deprive a person of some of the things they have become accustomed to since childhood, then those things are missed most of all.

We heard recently of a person who was put on a diet that deprived him of the privilege of eating green beans. Well, now we have had the opportunity of eating — or rejecting — green beans all our life, just as this fellow had. And this guy, like us, had always exercised the privilege of turning them down when offered, but now, since time had caused ulcers and progress had taught doctors that green beans and ulcers don't mix, this person really craved green beans.

Well, this story about green beans and ulcers don't mean anything to train whistles and I suspected possibly that if I liked green beans and didn't ever have to think about offending someone every time that I was served the things, that I would be able to sleep better at night and wouldn't be awake to notice that diesel engines don't have steam whistles in the first place.

But since I don't like green beans and know that diesel engines don't have steam whistles, I still miss them — and I mean the whistles.

We noticed where Mrs. Dorothy Gillis Gurley had fostered and obtained passage of a bill which limited the limit of acre-feet of water that could be impounded behind a dam on West Texas ranches. We are sure that this bill is for the best interest of all the ranchers of West Texas for several reasons, but we wish that we had had a say-so in the wording of the bill.

First, we would have said to hold water, in case it ever does rain again, rather than stating to conserve the flood waters of Texas. Next we would have stated that the dams could impound so many gallons of water rather than acre-feet, because that was the way we have always been taught to measure water. Now the ranchmen will have to go back to school to find out what an acre-foot of water is, and then go another day to find out how to figure how many gallons are in an acre foot vice-versa.

We know that a gallon sounds bigger than a foot, but then there is so much bigger than a gallon that we are lost.

Now if a ranchman were to tell that he got a foot of rain on each acre of land, we would know that that was a lot of water, and that he was probably daft because of the drought, but that is about the extent of our knowledge on acre-feet of water.

The senior Gilbreaths made a move this week and it has put the rest of this column in a state of physical can't-hardness. Although the move was only a half block, it was necessary to move all those

Kermit Youth Killed In Wreck on U. S. 285 Sunday Morning

Manuel Varas, 17, of Kermit, was killed instantly when the 1947 Pontiac he was driving overturned about 8 miles north of Sanderson on Highway 285 about 1:30 a. m. Sunday. Acando Pando, also of Kermit, suffered only minor bruises when the car was demolished.

Highway patrolmen who investigated the accident, stated that the cause of the wreck was unknown, since one of the tires was flat and the lateness of the hour made possible the fact that Varas the driver could have gone to sleep, or that he was driving at an excessive rate of speed.

Varas and Pando were en route to Sanderson when the car overturned several times, throwing Varas from the vehicle.

The deceased was the son of Angelita Varas of Kermit and the body was returned to that city for burial.

The Giants, managed by Dalton Hogg and E. J. Hanson won over Sudduth and J. A. Gilbreath, by a score of 12-9.

Monday of this week the Browns beat the Dodgers 9-8 in a short ball game which was called because of darkness and Tuesday afternoon the Dodgers won over the Red Sox by a score of 15-11. The Dodgers are managed by Bill Lowman; Ike Billings and Alton Wilhite are managing the Red Sox.

The boys are all very enthusiastic over the opportunity of playing baseball and even though errors are numerous this early in the season, the players are progressing well under the direction of the managers.

Friday afternoon the Phillies will play the Dodgers and Tuesday the Yankees and Red Sox meet. The Giants and Browns will play every Thursday afternoon.

The public is urged to come out and witness the efforts of the boys in their endeavors.

Plans Submitted For Highway Department Offices, Warehouse

In another column of The Times this week, there is an advertisement for bids for the construction of buildings for the Texas Highway Department.

The plans and specifications as submitted by W. A. Davis, senior resident engineer, are for concrete block construction of a building 53x22 to house offices for the resident engineer and K. E. Dick, highway maintenance foreman, a drafting room and storage room for instruments, etc., along with a reception room and rest room facilities. The office building will have a concrete floor, and the interior and exterior walls will be painted with a waterproof paint.

The equipment storage shed will be 53x24 feet with a shed roof. The location of the two buildings will be on a 5-acre tract of land north of Sanderson on Highway 285. The two buildings will be situated near the north-south center of the property and close to the highway, with topped surfacing between the two buildings and back to the edge of the material storage portion of the tract.

The office building will be air-conditioned for summer comfort and will use space heaters for the cold weather months.

Long-range plans, according to Davis and Dick, are to further beautify the tract by planting grass and shrubs near the office building and the addition of outside work to the building to add to the appearance.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron Co. was awarded the bid for fencing the property and the work will begin Monday on enclosing the tract with a cyclone-type fence, which will be recessed along the front to furnish a parking space for cars of employees and state vehicles and visitors.

Water Bill For Size Of Dams On Ranches Ready for Signing

A bill to increase the amount of water impounded on private property has been passed by the Texas House and Senate and now awaits the signature of Governor Allan Shivers.

The bill was introduced in the house by Mrs. Dorothy Gillis Gurley of Del Rio, representative of the 100th Legislative District. Mrs. Gurley is chairman of the committee on conservation and reclamation.

Authoring the bill with her was John Kimbrough of Haskell, Senator Dorsey B. Hardeman of San Angelo handled the measure in the Senate.

House Bill No. 881 changes the present law to allow the construction of a dam on private property to impound 200 acre-feet of water for domestic and livestock use without the necessity of securing a permit.

The present law allows the impounding of only 500 acre-feet, which is, of course, in drought stricken West Texas, is insufficient.

There has been wide interest in the bill throughout the western half of Texas.

It reads, in part: "Anyone may construct on his own property a dam or reservoir to impound or contain 200 acre-feet of water for domestic and livestock purposes without the necessity of securing a permit therefor."

"The fact that there is a need for conserving and retaining and flood waters of the State of Texas for domestic and livestock purposes creates an emergency and imperative public necessity that the constitutional rule requiring that bills be read on three several days in each House be suspended and the same is hereby suspended and this act will take effect and be in force from and after its passage and it is so enacted."

Washington — If you want to draw a picture of the person in America most effectively blocking the approach to a balanced federal budget, you should take your pen and ink and sketch a man's head with two faces, one face looking east and the other face looking west. Out of the mouth of one, you should show the man shouting: "Save!" Out of the mouth of the other, he would be shouting with equal vigor, "Spend!"

During the last three months I have spent considerable time in Washington interviewing cabinet members and key people in Congress. It is my conviction that there is a strong determination among the present leadership of our national government, in both branches, to drastically cut down on its size, its power, and its cost in tax dollars. But there is no certainty at all that it will be done.

Groups of people who constitute only a small portion of our citizenry but who are politically vocal and active are sending delegations to the White House and to Washington office buildings insistently urging that there be "No cut!" in the appropriations for their pet project. Invariably these persons, like the man speaking out of two mouths, are vocal for reduction of federal spending and taxes — so long as the reduction is made in somebody else's project.

The representatives and senators in the capital shook their heads when I inquired about their genuine feeling regarding a balanced budget and tax cuts. They showed me piles of letters from the "folks back home" gently or firmly pressuring for such things as restoration of the cut in Agriculture Department funds for soil conservation payments; restoration of the proposed $50-million air base near such-and-such a place which had been trimmed out of the defense budget; and the restoration of the appropriation for a certain dam on a certain river; restoration of numerous govern-

Food Poisoning One Of Many Ailments Of Summer Weather

Austin, May 27 — The coming of warm weather brings a warning from State Health Officer Dr. George W. Cox, for all persons to be on the alert regarding food poisoning. Most cases investigated by the State Department of Health disclosed that improper food handling was responsible for the illness. Food poisoning is commonly caused by bacteria in food. In general there are two types, food poisoning and food infection. Food poisoning is caused by bacteria in the food that produce a poison and usually the symptoms appear within a few hours. In food infection, the bacteria do not produce a poison, but attack the body. This takes longer so symptoms usually do not appear for 12 to 24 hours after eating.

In both kinds of illness the symptoms may be similar: nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal pain and fever may all occur. In food poisoning nausea and vomiting may predominate while in food infection diarrhea may be the prominent symptom.

As a preventive Dr. Cox suggests that all food be protected against flies, and other pests. Refrigerate all perishable foods including meats, poultry and cream-filled pastries. Many outbreaks of food infection are caused by leaving food out of the refrigerator. Also, avoid handling food if you have a sore or an infection on your hands or if you are sick.

ment jobs recently eliminated as an economy move by the Eisenhower-appointed Cabinet members — and so forth.

By train, airliner, and automobile, special pleading groups are streaming into Washington. They do not represent a powerful mass of deliverable votes, but they are vocal, and active, and they are insistently, constantly in contact with their Congressmen and Congressional committees, putting on the pressure. They have a way of presenting their appeal as if they were representing a whole state, or region, or even the majority of the people in the nation. And pressure is effective in politics.

The vast majority of the people are strongly in favor of cutting the expenses of the government all down the line, and are ready, I believe, to sacrifice normal personal interest in particular projects for the sake of reduced taxes, sounder government and greater long-range benefits. But they are inactive. They are not going to Washington. They are not even writing their Congressmen, or the President, or the Cabinet members. They do not recognize that a mandate for budget reductions and tax cuts is ineffective unless it continues to speak and speak and speak — in Washington.

"Well, what are you going to do?" said a Congressman friend as we sat in his office. He put his hand on a stack of mail. "These people are influential in my state. They've got a good argument for the air base, the dam and other federal spending projects. But so has everyone else who writes or comes here. And yet, we in Washington who have studied these projects and weighed them in the light of overwhelming demands on the nation's financial resources in these days of crisis, are convinced that we must start making drastic reductions somewhere."

"We cannot do it unless public opinion can make itself heard in Washington above the demands of the groups who are coming here asking special consideration for all things we're trying to economize on. There simply cannot be any genuine economies without a lot of group and a lot of individuals having to make a small sacrifice in the national interest — in the interest of their own long-range personal welfare."

Are you being heard in Washington, or don't you pay taxes?

Driving Through Water is Not the Time to Make a "Big Splash"

Although today's automobile has progressed far beyond the point where a severe spring rain will stall the engine, it still is not an amphibious vehicle.

Failure of the engine to bring you through normal flood waters, which might cover highways, can be attributed mostly to water on the ignition system caused by splashing. Today's engines are better equipped to combat excessive moisture and driving through water, by the use of such things as improved rubber housings on the spark plug terminals.

These pictures show the splash effect when a car "plows" into a seven-inch depth on a flooded highway.

At 20 m.p.h., the water shoots high, completely drenching the underneath part of the car. At 3 m.p.h., the forward motion of the car creates a small wave running ahead of the front bumper, with control of the vehicle greatly improved.

When you encounter an inundated highway, slow your car down and approach with caution. As a safety tip, on driving through flooded areas, remember to try out your brakes at slow speed immediately after reaching dry ground. When wet brakes do not respond to pedal action, hold brake-pedal down moderately with left foot, while right foot feeds enough power to carry car forward and dry out brakes. This action, over a few hundred yards, should restore your brakes to safe driving condition.

NATIONAL PRESS BUILDING WASHINGTON, D. C.
By Anna Goodie

What did we ever do before the days of that handy little gadget, the potato peeler? Latest thing it's called on for in my household is to pare asparagus. And what a quick and efficient job it does!

And now that we've found a new way to prepare asparagus, let's find a new way to sauce it, like this: Combine 1/4 cup real mayonnaise, 1/3 cup milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon white pepper and cook over low heat 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind just before serving. Hot, over asparagus. Add a bit of chopped pimiento if you like.

So far most of the interest on summer jewelry is centered on earrings. Giant hoops, of imitation gold, are about the most popular ones on the New York scene. Some are almost as large as bracelets!

For your file of useless information: They say goats — yes, goats — are responsible for the discovery of coffee. Seems that a goatherd noticed his charges cutting fancy capers after munching berries of the coffee tree, so he sampled some himself, liked what he had and thus started coffee on its way to the table.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

A Little Headwork Saves a Lot of Footwork

"I don't ever aim to give up fishing," Pappy Hayes said one day — "but the older I get the less I like hiking over to Pike's Creek. Guess I'll have to bring the fish nearer to me."

So Pappy got his nephew to bulldoze down about three acres of bottom land. Then he dammed up the little stream there.

He wrote the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, in Washington, and got some "blue gills" and bass to stock it — free. Pappy's idea wound up giving him (and us) just about the best fishing pond in the county... right in his own back yard.

From where I sit, Pappy may be older than some of us but his mind is active — and open. He's ready to listen to anybody with an idea. That's why he and I can talk on any subject — sometimes about his preference for buttermilk and mine for beer. And though we disagree, we respect each other's opinion. That's neighborliness without a "catch" to it.

little gadgets that have a habit of accumulating and getting stacked back where they could never be found if they were needed. With everything piled up and very few things put where it will have to be placed, the house looks like our mind's picture of the Truman administration.

Around town we have noticed several new employees at the highway department and K. E. Dick, maintenance foreman, carrying his right arm like as if he had a dozen eggs in his right hand — that typewriter belonging to the state must be in bad need of greasing... all the property owners still out surveying the stakes in front of the business houses along main street and wondering about the outcome... an unusual amount of tourist trade in town... Dick Corder laughing about the privilege of getting to go see Russell Dyer in New York City — and more probably about the idea of getting to visit his daughter there... not many people out to watch the Pony League game Monday.
