SANDERSON, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JULY 13, 1956

WENT TO LUKE

At the time of a particular election we hear a great deal about the candidates for public office. The voters in Texas know what we have running for public office until they read about the candidates and their qualities and their records.

The issue of The Times is a political advertisement. We are getting the advertising and the feeling that this advertisement has some purpose. It is regrettable that we are not able to go to the aid of the candidates, but we are not able to do more harm than good.

When such men get in office and it is a blessing to have a way of getting them out.

To see the mudslinging going on, though and feel the harm will come to the voters by the no good actions of their followers, and candidates themselves.

It is told that the Terrell Chamber of Commerce is several projects for the community. In his "Your Chamber of Commerce" column in Bulletin last week wrote him here for his column with the trend of thought given in every communication as follows:

July, the anniversary struggle to attain freedom. By using "our struggle", I am out the fight is not over. Each generation's duty to and to maintain all of the rights.

Freedom that are assured are very peculiar. They are to be either saint or sinner, or a bum, to be silly and even to give our way. Just how do we freedom away? The first most is that when we solve our problems by else solve our problems by thinking for us, we that much freedom.

Our government, for in it is a corporate activity could provide collectively those services which we individually provide. We will be policemen, or teachers, or in the way we band together for our welfare and hire services for protection, education, convenience. These and other activities are fundamental necessities for the good

When we turn to the regulation of all our activities, we have given away freedom. It was surprising that the railroads write bills regulating sport fishermen go commercial fishermen; that oil producers against bills on what to read; in fact over introduced striving to the man's opinion on some. Thank goodness, most of are killed. But this illustrious idea that to thing done, all you happens a bill either in Washington. Being an in, a moderate and best the best government

Jerry Spurlin Wins 4-Year Scholarship

JERRY SPURLIN
A young lad's dream of almost two years suddenly became a reality last week with the announcement of his receiving a four-year preparatory school scholarship valued at $1,600 per year.

Jerry Robert Spurlin, 14-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Spurlin of Tatum, N. M., and former residents here when he was pastor of the First Methodist Church, received word from the Scholarship Committee of Phillips Exeter Academy in New Hampshire, of his award.

This grant is made in recognition of a student's scholastic attainment, character, promise and financial need. Jerry qualified by taking a competitive examination last year while living here. The Academy also conducts its own thorough research into each scholarship student's background. It was reported by Ezra Pike Rounds, Director of Admission.

Upon receiving notification of Jerry's acceptance, his father remarked: "At least it looks like we hit the $6,400 question", referring to the over-all value of the scholarship for the four-year period.

Phillips Exeter Academy was founded in 1781 and through the years has sought students of intellectual promise from every geographical, social and economic group. This school enjoys a close association with Harvard University. It is heavily endowed, mainly by alumni who have gained national prominence and financial stature through the years since its founding. "This enables us to be quite selective in granting scholarships," reported H. H. Bissell, Director of Scholarship Boys.

Jerry is one of the first boys from the state of New Mexico to have gained admission into the academy. It was during the period from 1951 until May of 1954 when Jerry's father was minister of the First Methodist Church of Melrose, N. M., and Jerry was a newspaper carrier for the Clovis News-Journal, that his ability and potential for scholarship consideration was noticed. At that time J. R. Spencer, business manager of the News-Journal, communicated with Mr. Bissell calling his attention to young Spurlin and requesting information on full scholarship requisites.

Through a long tedious waiting period involving personal evaluation, correspondence and tests, Jerry's hopes finally attained maturity with this grant from Phillips Exeter. He is to report to the school on September 17.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:
There failed not ought of any good thing which the Lord had spoken... all came to pass. Joshua 21:45.
The Lord has a reputation of keeping His word, not only with the Christian but to all who dare defy His grace. In your case will it be a case of keeping His word of mercy or of wrath. Only you can make that decision.— H. B. Dean.

What Girls' State Meant To Me

When I was selected as delegate to attend Girl's State, I was very happy and considered it the highest honor I had ever received. I knew you learned much about your government, listened to speakers, and had cities and counties. I had no idea of the spirit that was as much a part of Girl's State as anything else. I didn't know it was possible to form very close friendships in such a short time.

Not knowing any of these things led me to believe that Girl's State would be very educational but not very much fun. Well, I was certainly wrong. The days were filled with many interesting experiences.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Smith spent several days in San Antonio on business last week. They spent one day in Raymondville with her nephew, Charles Downs, and family and her niece, Leslie Downs, accompanied them home.

CLOUDS EVADE TERRELL AREA

Rain clouds continue to evade the Terrell County area like migrating ducks. Some rains reported from the area to the north and west in the past several days have continued to give county residents hope for possible rains in the future, but thunderheads which are building up daily in the far distance, have not yet penetrated the existing, yet mythical barrier that surrounds the area.

Ranch lands are in pitiful shape in all parts of West Texas and a hard rain at this time would do extreme damage to the soil and possibly do much damage in washing of loose top-soil which has no defense against erosion.

Most livestock in the area continues to exist on feed being put out by the ranchmen. There is a little feed left in the way of mesquite beans in some area, but other areas did not produce a crop of beans. Very little, if any, brush is left for grazing.

New Head Named For Highway 90 Assn.

Dudley Baker of Columbus was elected president of the Travel US 90 Highway Association Sunday at the meeting in Fort Clark.

Baker is very active in civic affairs in Columbus and in the Houston area.

J. B. Rabon, mayor of Luling, was elected vice-president of the East section, and John L. Dodson, retiring president, was named vice-president of the West section. Roy Hodgkins of Sanderson was chosen secretary-treasurer, an office he has held for 3 years.

Dodson made the annual report for the 1956 fiscal year.

Highlights included efforts to extend US90 from coast to coast, gaining support of Arizona and New Mexico Highway Commissions on record as requesting the extension when California completes its request through the California Highway Commission.

"Interest in the project has been high and the association will continue in the direction of bringing about this important extension of our highway designation," Dodson said.

Another important activity during the year was "Crossing of the Pecos" celebration following the restoration of traffic on US 90 when the temporary bridge was washed out in July of 1955.

Herbert Petry, Jr., the new highway commissioner, performed his first public act in the opening of the crossing and announcing plans of the Texas Highway Department to let contracts for construction of the Pecos River bridge. Other parts of his report concerned educational, construction, public relations and safety programs. A Highway 90 magazine is planned.

The next meeting of the association will be in San Antonio on October 7.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Pierson, Ray Hodgkins, and John Williams of Dryden attended the meeting. Pierson, retiring vice-president from the West section, gave a report on the construction work on the west end of US 90.

LESSON FROM ENGLAND

Some of the clearest, most effective writings on the danger of expanding government power has come out of England in the last 10 years, as political control over this once great nation has seceded from the Conservative Party to the Labor-Socialist Party and back again to a Conservative Party which well might now be labeled, "Conservative Socialist Party" since it is passively operating a nation that is pretty well socialized.

Some of the most powerful indictments of Socialism have come from writers such as Alfred Edwards and Ivor Thomas, both labor-Socialist members of Parliament at the time the Socialists took over. As Labor-Socialist leaders they saw what State (or Government) control over the economic system did to the individual freedom and initiative of the people, and they loudly called for a "halt!" but their Party ran roughshod over them and continued to make the State the lord over all economic life in Britain. Called it "Tragedy"

Ivor Thomas wrote a book which was powerful in its story of awakening. It was entitled "The Socialist Tragedy" (published in America by The MacMillan Company). But alas, although the so-called Conservative Party is back in control in England, the Socialist "tragedy" continues to run its course. Anthony LeJeune, member of a little band of Englishmen calling themselves "The Society for Individual Freedom," has written an article in the Society's quarterly magazine "Freedom First," published in London. The article is entitled: "The Suffocation of Freedom."

Individual freedom can be killed as effectively by economic suffocation as it can by the interdicts of a police state," LeJeune observes. "The combined effects of inflation, confiscatory taxes and ubiquitous 'social services' have gone a long way towards making us all (the people of England) prisoners of the State."

A Simple Equation
"As governmental activity increases, the State demands more money; as it gets more money, it becomes more powerful compared to the individual. Every time I am compelled to give the State an extra shilling, the State increases its economic power over me by two shillings — the shilling it gets from me, and the shilling I lose. The process has been gradual and cumulative. Fifty years ago, nobody would have believed that free people would stand such a burden of taxation; but then nobody would have believed that free people would stand so much interference by the State.
"When the government does for me what I might or might not be going for myself, when the government takes and spends my money, when the government makes my decisions for me, I am deprived of freedom. . . . Worse still, many politicians want to take my money not because the state needs it, which might be defensible; not because they want to spend it themselves, which would be understandable; but simply because they think it is a bad thing for individuals to keep their own money.

A "Dull" Reform

"The policies of state interference and high taxation are inextricably connected. . . . Just as the transfer of economic power from the individual to the state inevitably reduced the freedom of the individual (in England), so his freedom would automatically be increased if the process were reversed. Individualists could do far more than press for the one or two basic reforms which would simultaneously increase the freedom of the individual and restrict the activity of the state: that is, the really drastic reduction of taxes."

This Englishman describes cutting taxes as a "dull basic reform." It is dull in that it has none of the romantic splendor that many politicians can generate when sponsoring big spending projects. It is a "basic reform" because reducing taxes would halt the growth of government in an era when the trend everywhere is toward expansion of government. Holding down the growth of government is the only way any people can preserve their individual freedom. This is a lesson which I hope all Americans will learn before it is too late.

Aikin Pledges Continuance Farm-to-Market Road Program

Continuance of the farm-to-market road program in Texas to keep pace with the growing needs is being stressed by State Senator A. M. Aikin, Jr., in his campaign for Lieutenant Governor. Aikin recites incidents of his road program development and pledges continued support of such programs.

He is also the co-author of the Gilmer-Aikin laws for public schools.

Aikin stated that he favors the financial assistance of the state in obtaining rights-of-way for road construction. The Commissioners Courts are being called upon to furnish right-of-way for many projects and it has grown to such proportions that some help must be forthcoming from some source. The burden is too heavy for the counties to carry alone he states.

He added that he wanted it

Ben Ramsey Runs For Lt. Gov. Post

Ben Ramsey is seeking his 4th term to the post of Lieutenant-Governor of Texas. He has held the post since 1950 when he resigned as secretary of state to run for the position.

The principal duty of the lieutenant governor is to preside over the Senate. In this capacity he wields strong influence on all legislation.

The followers of Ramsey point out the fact that they feel him qualified for re-election because:

"One outstanding attribute, above all others, apparently has made Ramsey a political success. That is his ability to generate loyalty among those who work with him or know him well. He is reserved and retiring by nature. He is gentlemanly in the old Southern tradition. Studious by nature, deliberate in handling the affairs of public office."

His past record of public service in the Texas Senate, as secretary of state and as lieutenant governor will attest to his ability and his willingness to serve, and his ability to continue ethical and honest practices in public office, his followers state.

Attending a reunion of the Streigler family in Brady Sunday were Mrs. Judith Streigler, Mrs. Hugh Rose, and daughter, Mary Landon, Mrs. Will J. Murrah, and two sons, Mrs. Streigler's daughter, Mrs. G. H. Mayfield, and daughter, Paula Kay, accompanied the mto Brady, returning to their home in El Paso Tuesday.

strictly understood that the control and the securing of right-of-way shall be left in the hands of Commissioners Courts.

His platform includes proposals for greater improvement of the state hospital system and greater discretion for the hospital board in the matter of salaries to maintain adequate staffs; a workable water conservation program, distinct from the question of water rights, under full local control; more adequate salaries for state employees in line with salary schedules of private industry; enactment of a strict lobby registration law; additional protective measures against unscrupulous insurance companies; enactment of the proposed constitutional amendment to the Veterans Land Program, and any additional legislation necessary to protect both the states and the veterans; for income from the available fund of Texas University and Texas A&M to be freed entirely from appropriations so that salaries may be supplemented to attract and hold capable staff members; and amendment of the Teachers Retirement Section of the Constitution, a proposal of which he is the author.

White Plans Aid To Farm Industry

New legislation to provide greater protection for the Texas farm industry is being planned by Agriculture Commissioner John C. White. He is conducting a series of conferences with farmers and agricultural businessmen over the state, mapping out proposals for submission to the Texas Legislature next year.

"My purpose is to let the farmers set up their own future goals and outline their needs," White said. "The Department of Agriculture will inaugurate programs on a self-supporting basis, eliminating the need for additional tax money from the state."

The Commissioner, who is seeking re-election to the top agricultural job in Texas, pointed out that activities of his department have been expanded 400 per cent since he took office five years ago. "My major concern is to improve our farmers' and ranchers' economic outlook in these critical drought years," White added. "Our farm industry must have every opportunity to help itself pull out of the current slump."

Greene Cooke visited in Ozona Sunday with his father, R. J. Cooke, who has been seriously ill.

If you've seen "Mac" Johnson this week, chances are he's told you his waitress story. For those who haven't heard:
"Mac" recently stopped at an out-of-town diner. He ordered the chef's special—and his waitress (brand new on the job) made every possible mistake. She confused the order, spilled the soup, dropped the rolls, brought him a wrong dessert.
Despite it all, "Mac" left a substantial tip. But she smiled and handed the money back. "Keep it, Mister—you've sure earned it more than I have," she said.
From where I sit, that girl serves credit for admitting everyone is big enough to do an instance. I'm convinced that folks know they're wrong when they deny me the right to a beer with my supper... because they happen to be some other beverage. I wouldn't like me ordering to accept my choice.

SOME PEOPLE SAY THEY DON'T like Representative J. T. Rutherford because he's a "professional politician."
If they mean he has done very well in the vote-getting line, that definition stands up.
But Mr. Rutherford, for a "professional politician," has taken an unusual stand. He said, "all opposition, I consider dangerous," but still he's staying in Washington in the midst of a campaign to represent the interests of this district in some of the top issues to come before Congress this year.
"Professional politicians" just don't act that way. Votes on the floor of the House mean a lot less to them than potential votes in the ballot box.
But it looks like Mr. Rutherford is putting his people and his responsibility ahead of politics which, for a "professional politician," just doesn't seem natural.

Kitties stacked up thuly: Reuben Senterfitt, $31,772; Ralph Yarborough $23,885; W. Lee O'Daniel, 1,770.

Sen. A. M. Aikin, Jr. led in the Lt. Governor's race with $19,657 in contributions, as compared with $8,125 for Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey and $6,300 for John Lee Smith.

Will Wilson was far ahead of the pack in the attorney general's race, reporting financial support totaling $21,021.

On the expenditure side of the ledger the leaders held the same positions. In the Governor's race, Daniel spent $82,474; Senterfitt, $2,081; Yarborough $25,826; and O'Daniel, $20,589.

Among the candidates for Lt. Governor, Aikin reported expenses of $12,244.82; Ramsey, $7,003; and Smith $8,583.05.

Wilson again outdistanced his competitors in the campaign for attorney general with a total expenditure of $10,962.

Shots Cut Polio

State Health Department officials believe Salk inoculation, enabled Texans to avert a bad polio year.

Pre-season incidence of polio, they point out, was unusually high this year — 224 cases as compared to 167 in 1955. But as the season progressed, immunization was stepped up. Since April 25, there have been only 269 cases compared to 375 in the same period last year.

"This would have been a major polio year," said one official. "Salk vaccine apparently is the answer to why it isn't."

Farm Income Off 13 Per Cent

Texas farm income thus far in 1956 has slid 13 per cent from last year.

Inadequate moisture was the major cause.

Prices were off only 3 per cent. Therefore, most of the drop came from smaller marketings.

State officials took note of the farmers' worsening plight. Gov. Allan Shivers announced the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture has approved extension of the emergency drought feed program for 64 counties.

A request for direct payments to enable drought-hit farmers to purchase hay on the open market was turned over to the state defense and disaster relief office.

It came from the Texas Farm Bureau president who said the present federal program is inadequate.

John White, state agriculture commissioner, said the state's rural economy, in many areas, is in final stages of collapse. Ghost towns are in the making in the heart of some of our richest agriculture lands, he said.

Last week's widely scattered rain brought temporary relief to some Southwest Texas areas, reported the Agricultural Extension Service. In most sections, said the service, drought is spreading. Result: feed crops are being lost and livestock sold off in large numbers.

Creek Damming Complaints

Continued complaints of creek damming were reported by the State Water Board last week as evidence of Texas' mounting water problems.

One of the most critical areas now is at Llano, said the board. Irrigators were asked to limit their withdrawals from the nearly dry Llano River.

Communities along the river have priority said the board. Some, such as Junction and Llano, have said they have only a 30- to 60-day supply.

Meanwhile the Water Board had another problem. After a 12-day recess, hearings were to resume Tuesday in the Canyon Dam controversy. San Antonio's request for water from the proposed dam is vigorously opposed by nearby rural communities.

Diplomas May Come Harder

If the State Board of Education adopts its committee's proposals, future diplomas will come a little harder for Texas high school students.

Suggestions included two years of laboratory science instead of one; a half unit more of government or history; making physical education and health non-credit courses and limiting athletic practice during school hours.

Bus Segregation Still Law

Texas citizens still have the right to file criminal complaints against anyone violating bus segregating laws.

Now-GMC gives you a bonus of up to 3 gallons in every tankful!

TALK about low-cost GMC ownership! With its new high-ratio cruising axle, a Blue Chip GMC pickup now gives you up to 17.8% better gas mileage. That's 3 gallons' worth of bonus miles in every filling!

And you get far better road speeds, too, from an easy-stroking, unstrained engine. In short, from a mere $10.50 axle option, GMC now gives you the advantages of a $125 overdrive.

Add this to the super efficiency of a GMC 180 hp V8 engine — to the money-saving advantages of Hydra-Matic Drive — and this fact is clear:

The operation and maintenance savings of Blue Chip features can bring the over-all cost of a half-ton GMC down to the level of — or below — the cheapest stripped-model truck on the market.

Come in today — for the rest of the story.

in the least government, I deplore the fantastic growing away from our freedoms through both legislative and judicial procedure.

"If there is not the true pioneering spirit in our moral, our spiritual and business lives, no amount of legislation can replace the drive which comes from within rather than imposed upon us.

"Take the case of Bangs, Tex. In 1951, it was hard hit by the drought, business was dwindling, people leaving and future prospects were dim. They got together, set up a small business and started solving their own problems. By their own creative efforts, 50 people are on the payroll of a $300,000 business that was built in three years and the town is on a solid financial basis. No law forced them to do it. No aid was proffered. They did for themselves what no government could — preserved self-respect, freedom and illustrated the true meaning of democratic free enterprise."

Rudder Lends Prestige to Job As Land Office Commissioner

Austin — Earl Rudder, who has served as Land Commissioner since January of 1955, is seeking his first elective term in that office. Rudder's platform stresses two points: (1) Under his administration public confidence in the Veteran's Land Program has been restored; (2) The General Land office is now operating under new and unprecedented efficiency.

Rudder's first act on assuming office was a wholesale cleanup of the veterans' land program. Not a single whisper of scandal in that program has been heard since. With legislative help, the program has been decentralized — a county committee must now screen the veterans' transactions before they may be submitted to the Veterans' Land Board, which he heads. This control at the county level has greatly speeded up the cleanup, Rudder says.

Rudder was born at Eden. He attended John Tarleton and Texas A&M. He is 46 years old, married and the father of five children. He is a veteran of World War II.

Girls' State —

as "the Pit". I went to the gym where I met my junior and senior counselors. They told me which bed was mine and introduced me to the girls that had already arrived. After supper all the girls went to the assembly where Miss Coff, the director, gave us an outline of the things which would take place in the next ten days. The next three days were spent organizing cities, counties and parties. We named our cities and counties, wrote songs for them, made signs for our party, and decided what office we would like to run for. My city was named "Rubber Sole" and the other city in my county was named "Blue Suede". Our county was "Shoes".

We had several party meetings where we elected our party chairman, established our platform, and worked up spirit. We elected party whips who were similar to cheer leaders. We had such yells as "A Fed is a party, a Nats a bug." Our two parties were named the Federalists and the Nationalists. The Feds and Nats were bitter enemies in assembly but after that it did not matter. I never finished a meal the whole time I was there because we always started yelling too soon after the meal was served. If you happened to sit down at a table where all the other members were in the opposite party, you were really in for it. After the meal, though, you walked back to your room with some of the girls who had been yelling against you. Sportsmanship was something that was essential for every girl to have and all of the girls were wonderful sports.

The candidates running for the various offices had to make short speeches. The speeches helped some of the girls more than any other one thing. It helped us all to overcome the dread of speaking before a group. If one won an office that was fine, but if one didn't there were no hard feelings. The speakers we had were very interesting, and I learned very much from their speeches on various subjects. Governor Shivers spoke to us on states' rights and how important they were to the people. Attorney General John Ben Shepperd gave us a wonderful speech on America's freedom, and how important it was for us not to take it for granted. We had many other speakers who spoke on such things as the important things to do when looking for a job, Texas' health program, and what we could do to help our country even though we couldn't vote.

Our house and senate were very educational. The debates we had were sometimes heated. In our houses we learned to listen to two sides of an argument and still not be swayed in our opinion. We also learned to respect another's opinion even though it wasn't the same as ours. We learned how the legislator acted and what a bill was. We learned how to make a bill and how to defend it when it was presented in our house.

Although the study of the government was very interesting and educational, to me it was not the most important thing at Girls' State. The spirit and the way you learn about people is what really counted. I learned so very much about people and their differences. I learned that people all have problems and that mine are no different from a number of other girls'. Girls' State shows you how to live and make the best of any situation. Living with 20 girls so very different in many ways and still the same in many ways is very enlightening indeed.

At night when the lights were out the girls would gather around someone's bed and we would talk about different people in our town and different experiences they had. We talked about the different religions in America and how all of them were important. When we were supposed to be resting in the afternoon, we would sometimes get into very heated discussion about integration. All of us would give our opinion on it and our reason for being for or against it. We would talk about many different things which concern us and the problems of some teenagers today. To me these were the best and most important things at Girls' State. Sitting around listening to the girls state their reasons for liking and believing in something is one of the best ways I know to learn about people and how they really feel. When at least twenty girls are talking about the same thing, naturally, they won't agree on one certain thing. I learned very many things at Girls' State but what impressed and will probably stay in my mind longer than any one thing is to always be broad-minded. Most of the girls where I stayed were and when they presented an idea everyone listened because their idea had been formed after careful thought and wasn't formed because of some silly prejudice. The girls that were narrow-minded and wouldn't listen to any opinion except the one they had never did win anyone to their side.

Girls' State has made a much better person out of me. It has made me realize just how wonderful it is to be able to say — "I'm an AMERICAN." Before I went to Girls' State, I more or less took my country and my government for granted. I now know that good free governments just don't happen. Girls' State has taught me to respect all people even though they may seem very strange and different to me. Girls' State has drawn me closer to God for which I am very thankful. Above all, Girls' State has taught me to do what I think is right no matter how many other people may be against it. Girls' State has shown me the only way to solve any kind of problem — if you believe in it — really believe then defend it to the utmost of your ability.

Words can't express my appreciation to the American Legion Auxiliary of Sanderson for making it possible for me to attend Girls' State. It was a wonderful experience for me, giving me a better character and a higher sense of values. I want to thank the Auxiliary and my parents for letting me go. Thank you very much. I will always try to practice what you all have given me the opportunity to learn.
