Jail Break Try Here Successful, Get-Away Fails

A jailbreak here Sunday night proved futile for two men. They were taken off of Southern Pacific Train No. 2 before it left the local yard.

The two men who were being held on a charge of felony theft, hydraulic jacks, from a local service station, had been treated as trusties by Sheriff Bill C. Cooksey in recent weeks. They were given odd jobs around the court house and had served as janitors since the illness of Pilar Rodriguez, thus earning some spending money and better meals than other prisoners. Sunday night after the arrest of two drunks, one of the men, who had slipped a key into his pocket earlier in the day, gained freedom from the upstairs cell and went out a window on the top floor, into the second floor by a window and then down the stairs to the lower floor. By the use of a putty knife he gained admittance into the sheriff's office where he got the big keys to the outer cell doors and went up to free his partner. They also got some gin and vodka from the office of Sheriff Cooksey and went over to the depot, buying tickets

The sheriff's department had been alerted for such a possible act by the prisoners and went to the courthouse to check on them Finding them gone, they set up road blocks and when they went to watch the trains, were told that one of the men had just bought the tickets. The officers went on the train and found the men seated in a chair car. They offered no resistance to the arrest, Cooksey stated.

WE MADE IT!

Whew! Telstar made it.

I couldn't be prouder if I'd pushed the button that sent the satellite into orbit.

Everyone here at the telephone company had his fingers crossed that Telstar would be successful. After all, that lime 170-pound ball opens a whole new world of communications possibilities. Voices, television pictures and data messages can now leap thousands of miles in a new and exciting way,

IT WASN'T EASY

Sitting back and reflecting on the many developments that made Telstar possible, three things come to mind:

1. Since the end of World War II, the Bell System has spent over one billion dollars for research and development in fields pertinent to satellite communications development

2. Communications by satellite would be impossible without six Bell System contributions - the Transistor, the Solar Battery, the traveling wave tube, ruby masers, the waveguide, and new antennas for the ground stations.

3. The Bell System paid the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for the launching of Telstar. No one got a free

I could go on an on about Telstar, but I'll just make one I am convinced that if there's ever a better way of providing communications - we'll do it.
