LISTEN TO LUKE

By Albert —

There have been several who had nothing more to do than sit around recently putting the blame for the flood on this individual, or that group, or some other.

I wonder how many of those people use the best protection available against blowouts, or how many carry an extra fan belt with them? Or if a similar tragedy had resulted from a tornado, who would we blame.

We are a people that naturally close gates after the horse is out, so to speak.

It would be interesting to know just how many people in Sanderson took the typhoid series a few weeks ago? How many read-ers have effective smallpox immunization? Do you have a fire extinguisher in your home, or is your life insurance adequate?

When did they build flood control dams above Ozona? Or above Pecos? Or El Paso? Or above Del Rio and Acuna? I happen to have been one of the two persons at the meeting several years ago, in regard to flood preventive measures, and I remember who the other person was.

Next Monday morning, the Commissioners Court is going to hear a proposal by the Soil Conservation Service and they have called a public meeting for that night to present proposals to the people for their information and subsequent action.

Jackie Bob Riggs Is Barrel Race Winner At Pecos

Jackie Bob Riggs, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Riggs, was the winner of the barrel racing event at the Pecos rodeo last weekend. This was her first competition in the regular Rodeo Cowboy's Association circuit, although she has competed many times in junior shows.

In the first go-round, Jackie Bob won with a time of 20.1 seconds. Billie Ann Evans of Eagle Pass, who wound up in second place, was third with a time of 20.4 seconds.

In the second go-round, Jackie Bob tied for first with Miss Evans with a time of 10.8.

Mr. Riggs won the first go-round in team tying with Roscoe Seagoe but failed to place in the average.

Local ASC Office To Be Managed By Alpine Man

Announcement was made this week by Committee Chairman E. E. Harkins Jr. that the Terrell and Brewster Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County offices will be combined under the management of one manager to bring about greater economy of operation, effective July 13.

Both offices will remain open five days per week, Monday through Friday, with James A. Boyd of Alpine as manager of both.

F. M. Wood Jr., office manager of Terrell County ASCS since 1953, is retiring from ASCS work to devote full time to his ranching interests.

Mr. Harkins emphasized there is no intention of curtailing service to farmers and ranchers. Each office will be governed by its separately-elected committee of three as in the past. A clerk will be on duty at all times in each office. Boyd will divide his time between the two offices, devoting as much time as is necessary to complete office and field work in both counties.

Terrell County OEDP Report Is Approved

The Overall Economic Development Program report has been approved, according to a telegram received Tuesday from U. S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough. The Area Redevelopment Administration executed the approval.

The telegram goes on to state that this qualifies Terrell County for all ARA assistance as well as assistance under the new public works and economic development act.

The OEDP was instituted by the Terrell County Chamber of Commerce about three years ago and the report has been supplemented several times since then in an effort to produce the desired information for approval.

Meeting Called Friday Night At V.F.W. Hall

The Times received word Tuesday that Alex Gonzales, representative of U. S. Representative Richard C. White, will be in Sanderson Friday night for a meeting at the V.F.W. Hall.

The meeting is called for 8:00 p.m.

Mr. Gonzales, who was in Sanderson Tuesday, stated that the purpose of the meeting was to explain in the Spanish language their privileges and possible action concerning rehabilitation and recovery of losses from the flood from the Red Cross and Small Business Administration.

He said that he would attempt to answer any and all questions concerning these things and also explain to them the role of the federal government in efforts of rehabilitation and other roles where these people might be concerned.

Wolfcamp Wildcat Set In Terrell County

Terrell County gained location for a wildcat this week. Osborn and Thompson, et al, Midland, will drill the No. 1 Della Graham, a 66,400-foot Wolfcamp wildcat in Terrell County, seven miles southeast of Sheffield, and four and one-half miles northwest of the one-half mile Grande (Leonard gas) field, one mile south of the Pecos County line and one mile north-northeast of a 10-470-foot failure.

Location is 4,620 feet from south and 785 feet from west lines of section 28, Block 1, I&GN Survey.

The deep failure, Great Western Drilling Co., Midland, No. 1 Della Graham, tested extensively through Wolfcamp perforations between 6,216-32 feet. While being drilled it flowed Wolfcamp gas at the daily rate of 1,385,000 cubic feet, plus 15 to 30 barrels of oil, in 30 minutes when drilling had reached 6,227 feet.

Rotarians Hear Flood Control Talk Wednesday

The Sanderson Rotary Club heard a discussion of the proposed flood control project on Sanderson Canyon at its regular noon meeting Wednesday at the Oasis Restaurant.

W. O. Ray, work unit supervisor with the Soil Conservation Service, gave the information and showed some slides of similar projects and their effects.

Ed Havins, president of the Fort Stockton Rotary Club, and Dick Morrow, member, were at the meeting and presented the local club with a new set of flags to replace those lost in the flood.

Other guests present were J. H. Hoes, Texas Highway Department, Austin, and Crawford Daniel, Bureau of Public Roads, also of Austin.

A contract for 0.399 miles of construction on F.M. Road 1217 in Terrell County has been awarded to a Lubbock firm, it was announced in Austin this week by the State Highway Commission.

Henry L. Stafford submitted the low bid of $107,594.66 on the project. Grading, structures, base and surfacing on Dry Creek bridge and approaches is expected to take 80 working days, according to Archie J. Sherrod, District Highway Engineer at Odessa.

Report Made On Watershed By State SCS

Field investigations were made in the Sanderson Canyon watershed, Terrell, Pecos, and Brewster Counties, during the period June 15-17, 1965. The purpose of the trip was to study the effect of the flooding which occurred on the watershed on Friday, June 11, 1965, and to determine the feasibility of an upstream project for the watershed.

High-intensity rains approximating 3-4 inches fell at Sanderson and also on upper reaches of the watershed during Thursday night, June 10. During the early morning hours of June 11, additional high rain measuring about 3 inches fell at Sanderson and on Three Mile Creek, a relatively small but steep watershed which enters Sanderson Canyon immediately above the town of Sanderson. Runoff from this last rain reached Sanderson at about the same time as the runoff from the rain which fell on the upper watershed during the night.

Extensive damages were incurred to nonagricultural properties in and near Sanderson, in addition to the loss of life, which is now in excess of 20 persons. While news releases made following this flood have given monetary estimates of damage ranging up to more than 4 million dollars, our preliminary investigations indicate that total monetary losses approximate $2.5 million dollars.

Field studies showed that sites are available for installation of upstream structures to supplement land treatment on the watershed and to provide the desired flood protection. Approximately 12 structures are needed. It is felt that some of these can be debris-type structures which will cost less than the floodwater retarding structures designed under criteria set forth in Washington Memorandum Engineering 27.

The estimated total installation cost for structures (12) is $1,800,000. The annual equivalent cost, including installation and maintenance, would be about $72,000.

The monetary value of average annual benefits expected to accrue as a result of a flood prevention project on Sanderson Canyon watershed is estimated to be $78,400. This would include reduced average annual damages to the urban properties in Sanderson, to roads and railroads and to agricultural properties, such as fences, livestock, and land damage.

A comparison of the estimated average annual benefits, $78,400, with the estimated annual equivalent cost for structural measures, $72,000, indicates that a project for watershed protection and flood prevention would be feasible.

Planning technicians assigned to develop a work plan for the Sanderson Canyon watershed will need to complete detailed investigations adequate to assure selection of the system of structures which will provide the needed protection at least cost. This is necessary, especially in view of the low frequency of floods on the watershed.

U. S. Geological Survey personnel have completed studies on the watershed involving slope-area peak discharge measurements. This information will be sent to us when available.

Ed. Note: The above report was received Monday by the local Soil Conservation office and was given to The Times to re-print for the information of our readers.

Mrs. Judith Striegler is visiting in El Paso with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Mayfield.

Public Meeting Called For Flood Control Law Talks

The public meeting called for Monday, July 12, at 8:00 p.m. in the court house is planned expressly to acquaint the public with details concerning a flood prevention project under Public Law 566.

An initial field review of the project has been made by the Soil Conservation Service. The results of this review show that the project would be economically feasible. That is, the cost of building flood retention structures would be offset by the damage received.

Further field studies have indicated that sites are available for installation of upstream dams. The exact number of dams and their location cannot be determined until a work plan is developed for the watershed. There are tentatively 12 structures located on the watershed. The cost of the project has been estimated at $1,800,000.00.

Public Law 566 provides for construction costs from U. S. Government funds. The costs of planning and engineering such a project can be borne by either local or federal funds. Maintenance of the works of improvement after completion are paid for by the local government.

Edward E. Thomas, area conservationist, of Pecos, will present the details of a Public Law 566 flood prevention project. It is hoped that all questions concerning the project can then be answered.

New Schedule For Little League

A new schedule has been instituted for the Sanderson Little League games which were begun again on June 29.

The Giants and Yankees will play Thursday night of this week, and the Dodgers and Giants will play Saturday night.

The games, each Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday nights, will be as follows: Tuesday 13, Dodgers, Yankees, Yankees, Giants; Dodgers, Giants.

This order will follow through Thursday, July 29.

The renewal of Little League play was made possible through the efforts of the Ector County Sheriff's Department under the leadership of Sheriff "Slim" Gabriel. That group came to Sanderson with men and equipment and completely rebuilt the playing field, backstop, concession stand, dugouts, etc., all of which were destroyed by the flood. Sheriff Gabriel stated Saturday that he was glad to be a part of the rebuilding of Sanderson as he had come to know many people well since he began his project. He added that he hoped that the boys made all possible use of the park and facilities for their enjoyment for many years to come.

We received this letter and two others similar in content soon after the flood. The presentation of local news prohibited the use of any until now, and we are using this one as representative of the three. — Ed.

The Day Sanderson Stirred

Some people describe Sanderson as a "sleepy" town. Some describe it as "lazy" or "lacking initiative". Others see it as "dis-organized" or "badly divided". It depends largely on your vantage point and your objective. One person wrote a letter to our county judge describing Sanderson as an oasis in the desert-like reaches of West Texas. He saw it as inviting him to a night's rest and a view of the high hills that surround the little town. To the people who live here, IT IS HOME!

We admit we sometimes get sleepy. Who doesn't? We have our share of lazy people who also lack incentive or initiative. We find ourselves plagued by dis-organization and even over-organization. We admit that we have communities within community. We recognize that we must deal with two languages, Spanish and English. We know very well that we have at least three service clubs. We also have five Protestant churches and one Roman Catholic Church.

We also are aware of the fact that the various kinds of work done by the citizens of Sanderson tend to throw them into groups accordingly.

I would describe Sanderson as being "isolated" geographically and "fiercely independent" individually.

The morning of June 11, 1965, was a gray, rainy morning. It does not rain much or very often in this arid desert-like land. But when it does the water begins to rush out of the hills with a terrible force. This happened again on this Friday morning. But there was a difference. It had rained more than usual. There was more angry water than ever before.

Some say the destructive wave of water struck about 7:00 o'clock. Other say it hit later. I do not know the exact time. But I do know it was a terrible, sharp and ruthless blow. Then like a coward it rushed on toward the Rio Grande and finally to the Gulf of Mexico.

There has been much space given to the coverage of efforts of those who came to help. They deserved all of it and more. Every effort made by every agency, organization and individual helped just that much to take the sting of misery from the horrible nightmare that we had seen and experienced. BUT WHAT DID SANDERSON CITIZENS DO?

"What did Sanderson citizens do?" That is what I want to record. At first we were stunned and numb. We were unbelieving that such a thing happened. We swam friends who had lost some of their family. Some who just did not know what had happened to their loved ones, they could not find them. Some were looking sadly at the spot where their home once stood but now was gone. It was a ghastly sight. We knew it would be hours, many hours, before anyone could possibly get into Sanderson. Something had to be done and done quickly. This is when Sanderson began to stir herself. Within minutes the elementary school was opened to give shelter for the homeless and stricken people. Voluntary workers began to find necessary equipment, clothing, food, bedding — in short everything. People started working.

Let me remind you that these were Sanderson residents. Help could not get to us until late in the afternoon or night. One room of the school was set aside as a place for clothing, another for a clinic. The little auditorium was pressed into service as a combination eating place and assembly area. A coffee bar was set up. The coffee was being made at two of the churches and being shuttled to the school by two ranchers. Food was being cooked in the churches and in homes. There was no water, electricity, or gas at the school. So these things had to be done elsewhere and brought in to the school. Food, HOT FOOD, was being served to everyone who wanted it. Clothes were being sorted and given out to any who were wet, cold, and in need. Beds were being provided for those who just had to lie down.

Canned foods, bread, lunch meat, sugar, salt, cookies, everything began to come in. SOMETIMES SO FAST WE HAD A HARD TIME FINDING A PLACE TO PUT IT. Remember now, this was Sanderson herself stirring.

Someone started a list of persons who had lost their entire home, loved ones, and family. We needed to find the needs and meet them as best we could. COMPASSION WAS EVIDENT ON EVERY SIDE. It was a wonderful sight seeing OUR OWN PEOPLE working to meet the needs.

Some were very young, some were very elderly, many were in between. But they were doing what had to be done if needs were to be met.

I remember meeting one of our young men in the hall of the school. He held a baby bed over his head. He said: "Preacher, I've got your baby bed." I responded with "Mine?" He replied, "Well, I got it out of your church nursery. Is it alright?" I assured him that it was and to put it in the first room he could get into. Young ladies were serving food, finding people, and helping the older ladies with whatever needed to be done. THIS WAS SANDERSON STIRRING HERSELF.

A rancher came in carrying a case of eggs. He came up to me and said "You are going to have to have some fresh water soon aren't you?" Then he began to make arrangements to get a tank of water to the school. The day Sanderson stirred herself was a day never to be forgotten. She had been hit a mighty blow. But she was doing what had to be done to help suffering people. Of this effort I am very, very proud. I owe a debt of gratitude to so many who did so much in the only way they could. It was effective and in most cases very efficient.

You might ask if I saw anything which was not good, any thing that should not have been done, or said that should not have been said. Yes, I did. Whenever and wherever you have the pressures, tensions, grief and sorrow, brought on by a disaster this happens. When people are

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" BY C. WILSON HARDER

While at various times certain factions seem to advocate some sort of dire actions against the U.S. Supreme Court, such recourses do not seem quite heinous or proper.

But it would seem more and more that the public is looking for some explanation as to how the Supreme Court can render some of their decisions, as they seem to be totally devoid of rhyme or reason.

A most recent one involved the ballot stuffing by National Labor Relations Board.

In view of the Supreme Court decision on state legislative reapportionment in voting, it is then difficult to understand this most mystifying of decisions.

Under the labor laws, when a union shows some evidence that a substantial number of employees of any firm wish to be represented by the union, and when some other union also claims the same support, the NLRB conducts an election. The NLRB also has the authority to devise the ballots.

The case the Supreme Court raised ever involved a certain part of the employees of United Airlines. The question was whether they wanted to join a union, or a competing union, or to join no union at all. The ballot was designed to name both unions, but no provision was made for those who wishing not to join either union.

Instead of the ballot being printed with a space for voting for Union A or Union B with a space for no union, only the unions were identified on the ballot. There was also a blank line on the ballot.

NLRB argued the blank line was provided for those who wanted to join no union, and they could do so by writing on this blank line "no union."

Through some truly monumental legal legerdemain, the Supreme Court came up with a majority decision that this was quite satisfactory, and that the workers, although no explanation was given them, should have realized the purpose of blank line.

Of course it was argued that it appeared from this ballot that government was telling the employees that they had no choice except between two unions, even though some of them did not want to join a union at all. But Supreme Court upheld NLRB reasoning.

With this same reasoning it could be successfully argued that in Nazi Germany and even today in Russia there are free elections. Even though the name of only one candidate is listed, there is room for the voter to write in the name of another candidate. NLRB is now legally in a position to mislead the workers into believing they must belong to one union or another with no clear understanding they can vote against joining any union.

Tammany Hall should have had it as good in its heyday.

Time To Face Facts

Under Texas' so-called "right to work" law, the incomes of Texas people have fallen way behind the rest of the nation. Because most Texans have not had the right to bargain effectively for better wages, we have always been behind other states but things have actually gotten much worse since 1947 when the so-called right to work law was passed. Texas is one of the few states to have enacted this unfortunate and harmful law.

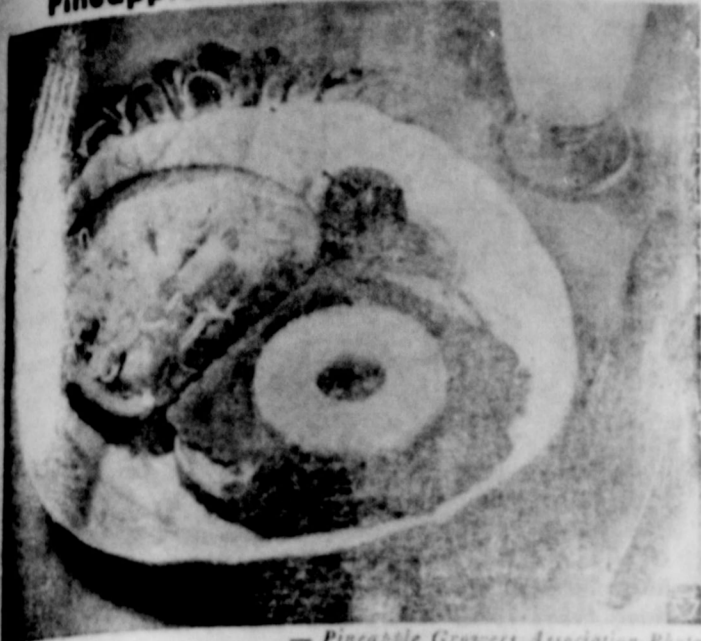

Thanks to the leadership of our Texan President, Lyndon B. Johnson, we now have a chance to put the family wage-earners of Texas back on an even basis with people throughout the nation. President Johnson has asked Congress to approve new labor legislation repealing the section of the Taft-Hartley law that has done so much to lower the average incomes of millions of Texans. This section is called 14-B. Let President Johnson know that Texans stand behind him in his program to help the wage earners of Texas. Write your Congressman today and ask him to support the President by voting to repeal section 14-B of Taft-Hartley. You'll be helping the economy of Texas and helping your children to grow up in a state with greater opportunity for all in the years ahead.
