LISTEN TO LUKE

By Albert
We saw a youngster (about 10 years old) last weekend walking very gingerly bare-footed across the pavement near main street, and it dawned on us all of a sudden that going barefoot is not a thing for little kids to do any more. It seems to be reserved for older people.

We wonder why?
It was not too many years ago - something like only 40 - when we were running around all over the place barefooted, dreading the time when we had to put on shoes. And, in case you would say, "but not in West Texas where all the rocks and stickers are", we will say: "yes, in West Texas where all the rocks and stickers are!" In Big Lake and Marfa, to be exact.

It all started in Wichita Falls where there are as many goat heads as any place in the world, and as many grass burrs as most places outside of Amarillo. With the coming of warm weather, we would begin begging to be permitted to take off the long handles and shoes. (We didn't know until we were grown that the terms were separable.) Even on Easter Sunday, when it was usually warm and bright and everyone had on pretty spring clothes, we did, too, but were not permitted the wonderful freedom of bared feet and itchy-less underwear unless we could prove the advent of warm weather with the killing of a green lizard. Our days were filled along about that time hunting green lizards with a "----shooter".

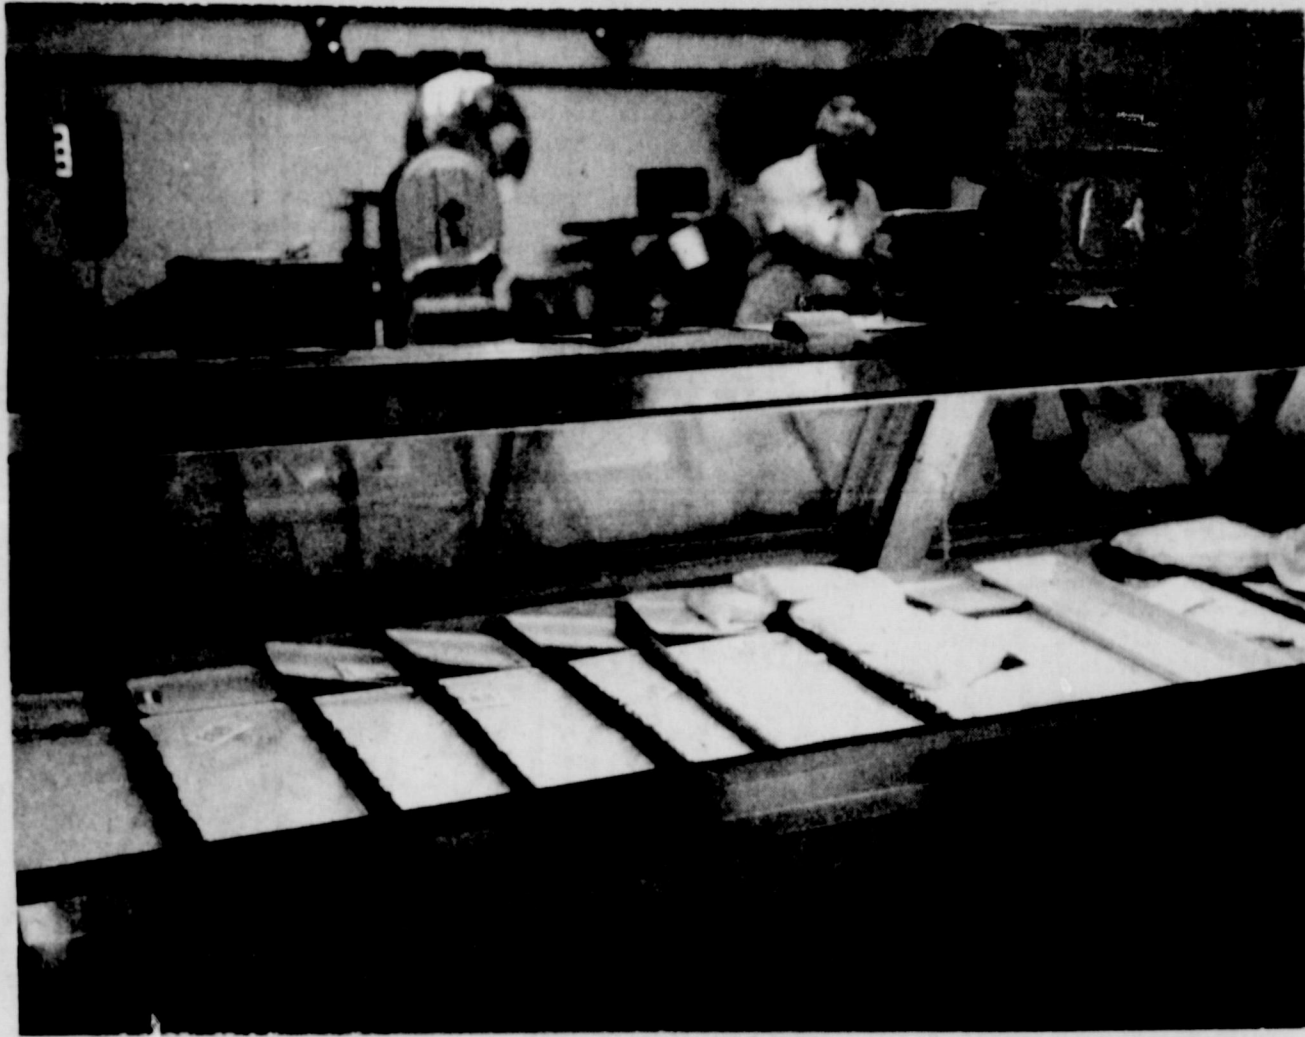

We believe that given the knowledge of today and the desire of yesteryear, we would have pleaded clemency for the lizard on the grounds of unbalancing nature and asked to just witness the lizard's presence. We maybe would have even started a club for the preservation of green lizards.

Just think what would have happened to the green lizard population of the world if all the kids of the world who could afford shoes and wanted to go barefoot had parents as unreasonable on this matter as mine were, and as unmindful of the future of the lizard population!

And another thing about going barefoot -- remember, if you ever did it -- playing some game and running along on the ball of the foot to present less of a target for some sticker lying on the ground, and if you hit one, a sideways swipe of the foot would knock a goathead out and you could keep going. Those grass burrs held on more tightly though, and your part of the chase was over when you hit a grass burr. There was just no dislodging them except by painful finger extraction. And about once a week, you were just forced to sit down and pick out the broken off goat-head stickers in the bottoms of your feet.

And the worst part of going barefoot, really, was a stubbed toe, particularly one with the nail knocked loose or off. Can you mentally picture, as you completely empty of beef, and only a little pork and prepared meats at the right end of the box out of the picture. The lack of meat in the counter was not the result of hoarding by customers, but the inability of wholesale packers to furnish the retail outlets with any carcasses. Jordan was promised another picture when he was able to show full display of beef.

"A picture of nothing" was the terminology of Wayne Jordan, butcher at Kerr's when he saw the original. But the results of the freeze on prices of beef is graphically shown in the picture above of a meat counter

reminisce, some boy with a rag tied around his toe, running toward first base with his right heel only hitting the ground and kinda spinning sideways on it to keep the toe from hitting the ground as he ran? Or can you remember in the excitement or interest in some game, hitting that sore toe on something and knocking off the scab or re-injuring the toe in some way?

There were benefits and disadvantages in the privilege and necessity of going barefooted. And if you can remember the good old days with pleasure and horror you are about the same age -- at least -- as the rest of us. And the next time you see a kid going barefooted, remember when you did and enjoy it! Or maybe it depends on how you look at things.

"Blessings on thee, little man...for I was once a bare-foot boy."

Features 3 cycles, plus new load-size water levels for Permanent Press fabrics

Another careful one from Whirlpool.

Here's the Whirlpool 2-speed, 3-cycle automatic washer. There's a load-size water level selector that matches the amount of water to either a large load or small load. And does it even in the Permanent Press cycle!

A choice of two washing speeds provide the correct agitation when the cycle is selected. So clothes get washed the way they should.

Then there's the functionally appointed operations panel with each control clearly defined. Enjoy finger-touch command. Dependable response. With clean clothes the end result.

So convenient. So different from the ordinary. Yet, for all its individuality, this new Whirlpool washer sports all the inherent quality and after-the-sale benefits that tie it unmistakably to the family of Whirlpool home appliances that take better care.

Special cool-down care for Permanent Press fabrics . . . plus new load-size water levels for matching amount of water to size of load.

- (1) As soon as washing is completed, tub drains partially and there's a 1½-minute pause.
- (2) Next, tub refills with cold water.
- (3) Two minutes of agitation follows to thoroughly mix and distribute cold water throughout tub.
- (4) All three steps in cool-down process are repeated.

Results: Garments cool gradually, floating loosely, and are free to return to their original contours prior to spinning. Because if garments are spun while still warm, wrinkles could set in. Also the spin is abbreviated, so it's just long enough to extract moisture and further reduce the possibility of fabric wrinkles.

New load-size water level control allows the use of a water level suitable to the size load being washed (SMALL or LARGE). Only about half the original water level selected is automatically drained and replaced twice during the Permanent Press cool-down process.

Two agitation speeds, two spin speeds

Whether washing heavily soiled work clothes or frilly lingerie, simply select the cycle according to the fabrics to be washed. Correct agitation and spin speed is provided. Clothes get scrubbed when they need it, pampered when they require it.

If you wait until you've earned $2,100 before reporting, you could already be overpaid and have to pay some money back to social security.

Q. Our family doctor says my father will need a hospital bed for use at home. Since my father has coverage under both parts of Medicare, who decides if he should buy a bed or rent one?

A. Your father does. However, your father should keep in mind that Medicare payments are made over a period of time, based on the reasonable rental rate for a hospital bed. These payments stop when his need for the bed ends. The length of time your father may need the bed is an important factor

Q. I'm a 19-year-old student getting monthly social security payments. I just got a part-time job and my earnings for this year could go over $2,100. Do I wait until my earnings do exceed $2,100 before reporting it to social security?

A group of ranchers from this part of West Texas were in Austin Friday of last week to appear before a committee representing the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission. The hearing was concerning the issuance of permits to control predatory animals by the use of aircraft.

Mitchell, Ele Hagelstein, Bob Allen, Jack Hargrave, Herman Couch, David Mitchell, Clay Mitchell, Billy Mitchell, Austin Chriesman, Herbert Brown, Jack Riggs, Gilbert Bell, N.M. Mohair Growers Urged To Meet Aug. 16 in Uvalde

All mohair growers are urged to attend the summer directors meeting of the Mohair Council of America, to be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, August 16, at the Civic Center in Uvalde.

According to Council officials, the meeting is of vital importance as directors are expected to discuss ways and means of financing future mohair promotion, advertising and market development programs conducted by the Council in the event that mohair prices continue strong during the next several shearing seasons and there are no promotion funds available to the Council from growers' incentive payment deductions. The Council's operating funds come from a 1-1/2¢ per pound deduction made from grower incentive payments. During the past marketing year no incentive payment was made on mohair sold during 1972 because of the overall average price was higher than the government support level.

Walter Pfluger, Council president, said several proposals will be presented to directors for discussion in order that they can begin developing a program for future financing of the Council's operations. The recommendations of the directors can then be presented to the Council's membership meeting next January.

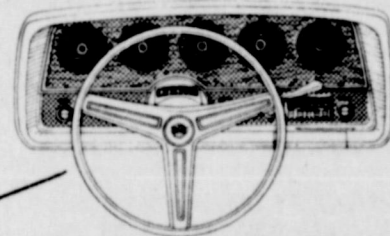

Other matters to be discussed will be the newly amended National Wool Act, and reports on current developments in the domestic and foreign markets, product development and improvement projects.

Governor Dolph Briscoe today awarded a $620,313 grant to the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, Midland, for implementing a new law enforcement radio system to serve the 17-county region.

The money will come from the Criminal Justice Council, which administers the state's block grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

The new radio network will eliminate overcrowded frequencies as new high-band frequencies are assigned each police agency. The result is expected to reduce police response time to emergency calls.

Contract will be made immediately, and the system is expected to be complete and operable within 300 days from contract date.

The Permian Basin application was among 52, for more than four million dollars in funding, considered by the CJC Executive Committee July 13.

Counties served by Permian Basin RPC are Andrews, Ector, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Loving,
