- This Is the Way It Happened -

Nazi sources first broke the story, announcing that naval units were shelling Le Havre, France, and that landing craft were nearing the shores. Landing attempts, general along the English channel coast, fol-lowed in reality the arrowed diagram of planes and ships from England to France.

Light broadened on the horizon . . . Thousands of planes blotted out the pale sky as their wings carried them onward to the thunder of their engines . . . Below, more than 6,000 ships of all types moved in a mass over the English channel . . . Short moments later, hundreds of paratroopers tumbled from the planes and the sky over French Normandy was filled with the little, white billows of their 'chutes; big battleships opened up a quaking fire on the French coast, and then landing vessels poked their snub-noses onto the sandy beaches and U. ENGLAND

Taking place 80 miles across the channel from England, the first Al-lied landings were made between the great ports of Le Havre and Cherbourg on the French coast, while masses of planes and ships bom-barded Dieppe, Abbeville and Boulogne, farther to the east. From the start, the invasion was a fight to the finish, with German destroyers and E-boats attacking the huge Allied fleet off the French coast. German reservists concentrated behind the lines for emergency service, rushed forward to meet U. 'D'-Day Tests Allies' 4 Years Of Planning

The most daring undertaking in military history—the Allied invasion of western Europe— came as the result of four years of complex, methodical plan-ning on the part of United Nations' military leaders. It was just after the "miracle of Dunkirk," when Britain's army in France was rescued from almost certain destruc-tion, that Allied military leaders began planning for a return trip. Observers recall that except for that almost unbelievable evacuation, Britain might have fallen in the months that passed. Dunkirk was one of the greatest feats of military history, with 337,000 men rescued from that little port city in the face of terrible odds.

During the months that followed, Britain was forced to content herself with a superbly courageous de-fense of her home islands against the Nazi blitz from the air. The blood, sweat and tears promised by Prime Minister Churchill proved a true prophecy. England suffered bloody blows. The crescendo of the battle was reached in September, 1940. Although air attacks continued, it was then the Germans realized their aerial losses were greater than the results warranted. Although the story has never been told in its entirety, it was then, too, that a hastily planned Nazi invasion of Britain was choked. Fragments of news told how hundreds of Ger-Important factor in the Allies' man invasion boats had been locatlandings on the French channel ed and sunk by the Royal Air force. coast was the prolonged bombard. defeated, the dev-il of inflation Barrow Lyons would get his hoof inside the door; be no stopping him until he had pulled down the house.

This has seemed an arbitrary and dictatorial viewpoint to leaders of farm organizations. All over the country their clients, the farmers of America, have smarted from varidetermined to find some relief from those which have irked them the most. Farm leaders do not wish to destroy basic price controls, however.

But as a result of the com-bined attacks of business and farm interests, price control faces today one of its recurring crises. Scores of amendments to the emergency price control act have been referred to the senate committee on banking and currency, and debates be-hind closed doors have been charged with fire and brimstone.

Among the amendments which stand the best chance of acceptance are those proposed by Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Neb.), Republican Whip. These amendments include elimination of the 60-day limitation on the time for filing formal pro-tests against inequitable prices, au-thorization for organizations as well as individual sellers to challenge in as individual sellers to challenge in the courts price regulations, a re-quirement that civil enforcement proceedings be brought in the dis-trict where the defendant resides or maintains a place of business, op-portunity for the defendant in price violation proceedings to plead that the price at which he sold was no higher than parity price.

By hammering at railroad lines, the Allied command sought to disrupt the transport of troops and supplies to the areas where landings might be made. Not only did Vichy's collaborationists plead with French engineers to stay at the throttles in the face of the severe bombardments, but the Germans even rushed key transport squads to help in keeping open the battered rail communications.

chances on putting all of their chips on it; on the contrary, not only have they spoken of the necessity of launching decisive counter-attacks against the invading forces, but they also have constructed defenses as far back as the German frontier.

In constructing these defenses far to the rear of the English channel, the once-masters of the "blitz" have up an estimated 25 divisions, or recognized the full weight which Supreme Commander Gen. As a result, not only have they built strong fortifications of concrete and steel for miles back of the French coast, but they have also converted the once heralded Maginot line into nate the constant threat of landings a defensive bastion, to support their in their rear and yet fall back upon own famed Seigfried or "west wall."

and top-man for the invasion. Eighth air force.

Then the Commandos were organized under Lord Mountbatten. All through the next year they developed their own techniques by hitand-run raids against enemy-held coastal areas. The damage they did managed to keep the Nazis in a constant state of alertness.

Then came the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor December 7, 1941. Britain had gained a powerful ally. It marked the beginning of the end for the Axis powers.

American troops landed in Northern Ireland in January, 1942. Plans for the invasion were shaping up. It was only a question of time. It wasn't long before U. S. fighting men were stationed in Britain itself. Three months later American and British troops invaded French North Africa. The landings, carefully planned and perfectly timed, were brilliantly successful. It was here that an inexperienced American army got its baptism of fire. It learned the caliber of the foe, finding that the Germans were stubborn, brave opponents.

In May, 1943, the Americans, British and Fighting French eliminated the Nazis from Africa. Then fol-lowed the invasion of Sicily. It was a surprise assault and resulted in victory in 38 days. The Sicilian campaign marked the highest point to that time in Allied cooperation. But they still operated with separate armies, navies and air forces, Complete integration was impossible.

Then came the invasion of Italy. A mixed British-American arm, stormed the Salerno beaches on September 9. The landing was success. ful because of the smooth combination of air, sea and land forces. British and American air superiority was never questioned. Naval units of both nations landed men and equipment and kept them supplied.

During all these operations, plans for the invasion were going ahead in England. Nazi propagandists boasted of their fortress, all the while admitting that invasion was inevitable.

gets behind a measure, some-thing generally gives way. This time resistance is unusually stubborn. The administration is fighting with all its power every move to weaken price controls -particularly proposals which would permit prolonged legal proceedings, and thus make a law that is very difficult to administer virtually impossible to administer.

But it is on the legal front that the farm leaders make their principal attack. Their joint statement declares:

"The legal subterfuges that OPA has employed to prevent court tests of some of its high-handed actions are destructive of the people's respect for and confidence in government . . . The chief reason that price ceilings on food have been reasonably effective has been the fact that American farmers have continued to produce at the highest level in history.

"This production has been achieved in spite of serious handicaps imposed by OPA as a result of inequitable ceilings, tardily an-nounced, indefinite and unjust regu-lations and widely differing and often contradictory interpretations. In many instances, price regulations and other actions of the OPA have disregarded the will of congress. The agency has refused in instance after instance, to make price adjustments required by law, even though these adjustments would have made little difference in the cost of living and would have materially increased production."

There is not enough space in this column to go into all of the intricacies of this battle. The OPA has made so many blunders that it is hard to find an unbiased audience before which to defend it, despite the fact that it has been far more effective in controlling inflation than many who dislike it are willing to admit.

But there are mighty few people in the organization who like their jobs. Many of the leading business men who accepted posts under the new administrator, Chester Bowles, took thankless tasks at considerable financial sacrifice.

The Office of Price Administra-tion has killed off two administrators. The turnover on its legal staff has been about 500 per cent. I have come to the conclusion that to accept a job on its staff requires just about as much patriotism as volun-teering for behind-the-lines fighting in enemy territory,

Markets are becoming green dotted with new vegetables like asparagus, spinach and peas. There are bits of bright red too, a welcome sight, those strawberries, raspberries and cherries. They're good fresh, so use them in every way you can. But plan to put up some of the best produce tables will put nutrition into those winter meals when canned food points are at a premium. There's one rule about canning that you'd best remember when you put up those jars of fruits and vegetables: "Two hours from garden to kettle." That means using only foods at the peak of condition, for you get out of your can only what you put into it.

If vegetables turn brown in their jars and look unattractive as compared with the fresh produce, it's probably because of overprocessing (overcooking) or lack of fresh vegetables when you started canning.

When you overcook those bright red berries, they can't possibly be fresh looking or taste like a reasonable facsimile of the original product. Follow directions and cook just long enough, and the result will be well worth the effort. Save Used Fats!

Popular Observations: You like certain foods, but you'll like them better if you don't let them fall into a rut. Instead of serving these favorites the same way all the time, try these variations:

When the milk sours, use it in muffins. It spells extra lightness. Rice pudding is good with cream, but better still with chilled fruits in season-cherries, strawberries, raspberries and peaches. Spread lamb or ham patties with mustard before frying or broiling—you'll get good results. Orange juice and grated orange rind in place of milk in baking powder biscuits is something to cheer about.

Good accompaniment with fish: Tiny beet cubes mixed with sour cream.

Tomatoes stuffed with cucum bers, cottage cheese and sour cream is something new by way of a tomato surprise.

pit and crush about 11/2 quarts fully ripe cherries. Crush about 11/4 quarts fully ripe currants. Combine fruits; add 34 cup water, bring to a boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly bag and squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into a large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over the hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full, rolling boil and boil hard 1/2 minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly. Paraffin while hot.

Early spring vegetables are coming out in the markets and in the gardens. They should be canned as soon as they are best, so that you will have the best possible results. Since pressure cookers are unrationed this year, every homemaker should be able to get one for herself or the use of one as they are the best method for processing nonacid vegetables:

*Spinach.

Wash carefully and precook with just the water clinging to the leaves until wilted. Pack into clean, sterile jars, being careful not to press too tightly. Add 1 teaspoon salt to each quart. Fill to within ½ inch of top with boiling water. Put on cap, using manufacturers' directions and process 60 minutes at 10 pounds pressure or 3 hours in boiling water bath.

Asparagus.

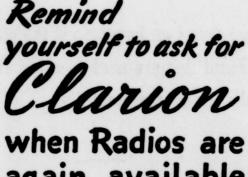

Wash thoroughly, removing scales from stalk. Cut in jar lengths. Tie in bundles, place tips up in boiling water to cover lower tough portions. Cover vessel tightly. Precook 3 minutes. Drain, pack into clean, sterile jars, tips up. Add ½ teaspoon salt to each pint jar and fill with water to within ½ inch of top. Process 40 minutes at 10 pounds pressure, or 3 hours in hot water bath.

Green Peas.

Shell and grade peas, using only young, tender ones. Precook three to five minutes. Pack loosely in clean sterile jars to within 1 inch of top, adding 1/2 teaspoon salt to each pint jar. Fill with water in which peas were precooked to within 1 inch of top. Process 60 minutes at 10 pounds pressure or 3 hours in boiling water bath.

Phillips production of 100-octane gasoline could fuel enough Flying Forts to drop 3,000 tons of bombs on the "Invasion Coast" every day!

Gasoline shortage on the home front is a grim reality, and gasoline rationing is our American system of sharing the available supplies fairly, in accordance with car-owners' essential needs.

Why is gasoline short? . . Re-read the headline above. It is presented not in boastful spirit, but in explanation of one of the vital military uses of the gasoline which you cannot purchase.

Remember, Phillips is only one of many producers of 100octane aviation gasoline, of bu-tadiene for synthetic rubber, of various fuels for ships and tanks and combat cars. The petroleum raw materials which go into the literally oceans of these military fuels are obviously not available for the manufacture of civilian supplies of gasoline.

Phillip

Every Black Market purchase reduces the already greatly diminished pool of gasoline which must suffice for our country's essential transportation needs. That is why no thinking, patriotic American will be a Black Buyer. And without Black Buyers there can be no Black Markets.

So do your patriotic part to break the Black Market in gasoline: Endorse every gasoline ration coupon in your possession. Don't accept any gasoline at any price without giving up coupons. And most important of all, use the legal gasoline you buy for essential driving only.
