

'It is worth a thousand pounds a year to have the habit of looking on the bright side of things." p. m. Texas Time.

Along with all the other highway projects being carried out in the county, something should be done about the waterlogged sump just across the railroad tracks south of town.

Sure, there is pavement on the road and it is not the main entrance to town, but it is probably the third most-used road around Friona. But when weare blessed with a fast or heavy rain, the low spot just across the tracks fills up and becomes more adaptable for boating than driving. The argument against changing the road (besides the cost) would include the recollection of times when the area was flooded and all the road washed away (almost). The opposition would claim that if the rightof-way was built up and paved, a flood would wash the whole thing out and the work and money would have been spent for nothing.

If that is the answer, I say Lillard, secretary, and Rex trophy. install adequate under-road drainage and build the road as high as the railway dyke and prevent any such incident.

Another and more permanent remedy is the possiblity of installing a steel or concrete bridge. To look at the area in dry weather, you would laughat the idea of needing a bridge anywhere in the area. But your tune would change when you had to cross the lake during or after a heavy rain.

The first time I made the crossing (about a year ago). I approached from the southand, since the road looked fairly level, decided to drive right on across. That was my first mistake. I wound up with water running into the floor of my car, soaking the rugs with mud- inches. dy water and sloshing around

I was lucky. The engine did again climbed into the nineties. September 24 not stall before I reached high Tuesday and Wednesday's high, ground. All I had to do was see to a thorough greasing and oil change on the vehicle.

And there had not been an exceptional amount of rain that time. There are two other items in favor of some sort of improvement being made for this area of the road. First, the railroad saw fit to build a bridge although farther down and even built a dyke to hold back the water in this area of the road.

Second, the dyke built by the railroad creates a safety hazard in relation to the pavement. I mean that if a car tops the dyke from the south, it had better be going very slow or have a clear shot across the tracks. was by Fred Barker, Jr., who If a train is coming or stopped across the pavement, any speed coming over the dyke would be very dangerous. There would be little or no warning because of the high bank which obstructs any view of the tracks until the motorist is upon them.

What would be the outcome of testants who correctly picked a situation where an emergency vehicle needed to travel the road and the water was several feet deep. The long detour required in such circumstances might Mike Ellis. take too long.

At long last, all the WT fans should be happy. They (and WT) had a long, sweet taste of victory last Saturday when the Buff's upset the Raiders 30-27. But one might say it was about time -- they had been a long time without such a drink -at Tech.

Seriously, regardless of who wins, that game was the type both sides like to see played -close and exciting.

Me, I've acquired the habit of rooting for the underdog (loser) so I think I will stick with the Raiders and root for them a little longer. (I will wait until after the Tech-A&M game before considering a change in my Alma Mater.)

--TH--By the way, I was beginning to wonder if we should get busy building another Ark. I believe there has been more rain for a longer period than at any Other area counties concerned are Curry (New Mexico). Swisher, Lamb and Hale.

The cost of each structure, according to authorities, is from $150,000 to $250,000 each. Before making application to the State Board of Supervisors of the Soil Conservation Service, a project must be co-sponsored by two organizations, one with tax-levying authority.

The project thus has to have the blessing of County Commissioners courts, who must maintain such structures. This was one of the reasons for Thursday's trip.

After a project receives the board's approval, it must be studied by economists who determine if it would pay for itself. Then, it must pass state and federal authorities.

"Then answered Peter, and said unto Jesus, Lord, it is good for us to be here:" (Matt. 17:4a). These were the words of Simon Peter upon the Mount of Transfiguration. the fellowship was so sweet and wonderful. Second, because of those who were present, Peter, James, and John who accompanied the Master to the Mount of Transfiguration but there also appeared on the scene Moses and Elias. Third, God expressed Himself as being well pleased with His Son and commanded the disciples to "Hear Him." Fourth, and perhaps one of the greatest reasons was because Jesus was revealed in His glorified state thus preparing His disciples for the experience of the Cross and His Resurrection.

To the disciples who were on the Mount of Transfiguration that day it was truly a great experience. However we too may share a similar experience by taking advantage of the opportunity afforded us each Sunday at the church where we worship. We can enjoy the sweet Christian fellowship, find His Will for our lives and feel His Divine Presence.

Only a very small percentage of grain has been harvested at this early date, but what has come in bears out yield predictions.

Holly Sugar Signs Contract For Construction Of Factory

proposed new multi-milliondollar beet sugar factory to be erected by the Holly Sugar Corporation near Hereford, Texas. provided Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman allocates necessary acreage under the new Sugar Act, was signed at Colorado Springs last week by Holly President Merrill E. Shoup and Ralph W. Olmstead, Cleveland, Ohio, President of H. K. Ferguson Company.

Shoup announced that work will begin immediately on design and engineering phases of the proposed construction project; and he said that the Ferguson Company plans to establish a special office in Colorado Springs, manned by a number of engineers to initiate the Olmstead said that his firm would set up the Colorado Spring office as quickly as the necessary office space could bearranged. He was accompanied here for the contract signing by I. B. Kirkpatrick, Ferguson Vice President and District Manager, from San Francisco.

Signing of the contract, which calls for completion of the Texas plant by Sept. 1, 1964, took place in Shoup's office. He said the projected new beet sugar processing facility, intended to serve a wide area in West Texas and eastern New Mexico, is expected to cost in excess of $15 million.

"Today's signing follows more than two years of detailed investigations by Holly prior to picking the location of our proposed new Texas factory," Shoup announced, "We have acquired the rights to a factory site near the community of Hereford, which is about 50 miles southwest of Amarillo," he added.

The Holly President said that construction work under the contract necessarily must a wait favorable Government action on a request that sufficient sugar beet acreage, from a reserve set up by the new national sugar law enacted last July, be assigned to the area to be served by "The law provides that sufficient sugar beet acreage to produce 65,000 tons of sugar may be assigned by the Secretary of Agriculture to new factory areas each year through 1966," Shoup explained.

The Holly executive said that the Department of Agriculture has scheduled hearings in Washington, beginning next Tuesday (Sept. 25), to consider the requests of those applicants seeking assignment of the annual acreage reserves.

"Our planning has been very thorough, extending over many months," Shoup stated, "During the past week morethan 700 farmers, operating in the area which would be served by the new processing facility, signed statements of their desireand willingness to grow more than 85,000 acres of sugar beets to be delivered to the proposed new plant; and they agreed to contribute over a 10-year period a total of $5,000,000 to induce the building of the factory.

"We sincerely hope that there will be an early award by the Secretary of Agriculture of the necessary acreage, following the hearings next week, so that construction may be initiated soon thereafter, thus assuring our meeting our 1964 target date for the start of operations," Shoup said today.

The Ferguson Company with which Holly contracted today is principal subsidiary of the Inc., one of the world's largest and best known engineering and construction firms. The Ferguson Company designs and constructs facilities for industry and government throughout the free world. Their capabilities not only embrace manufacturing, but also extend into advanced fields such as research, petrochemicals, missiles, and nuclear energy.

Olmstead said that the Ferguson Company last year engaged in 135 engineering and construction programs in the United States, France, Great Britain, Canada, Libya, India, Indonesia, Argentina, and New Zealand,

Shoup announced that Holly intends building one of the world's most modern beet sugar processing plants in West Texas, incorporating the latest machines, equipment, and pro-

ESOIL CONSERVATIONE DISTRICT NEWS

A plea to Texas farmers and ranchers to "play it safe" again in areas still unusually dry went out today from State Conservationist H. N. Smith of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

Smith called for caution on the part of livestock producers in the use of grazing lands and, of farmers, for extra care in the management of residues on croplands.

Some areas of Texas are in their third -- and in a few cases the fourth -- year of damaging drought, Smith pointed out. At such times, damage to grasslands through overuse may take years to over-At the same time, it is not too early to plan for crops that will produce residues for the protection of croplands and to provide for the kinds of tillage that will keep these residues intact through the critical months.

Smith added a special plea to irrigation farmers to exercise care in the use of water. Most areas have adequate supplies in sight for this season, he pointed out. But it is only the part of wisdom, he said, to conserve all supplies possible for later needs.

Many Texas livestock owners have reduced herds already rather than to risk serious damage to grass resources, Smith reported. This procedure is in keeping with the conservationist's principle of taking not more than half the volume of the better grasses produced in any season. This leaves the plants in vigorous condition, ready to make use of moisture when it comes.

The decision on the part of producer to sell livestock at this time is a hard one, Smith admitted.

"But the owner who sells before prices drop and before his grass reaches the point overuse will be far ahead in the long run," the state conservationist said. "Put $50 worth of extra hay into a steer and you have lost the equivalent of a year's profit." Any herd, Smith continued, benefits in the process of culling. A smaller herd of higher quality will pay at a higher dividend rate later on. It costs money to feed highpriced hay to a highpriced animal just as to an animal of lower grade. "We have proved over and over that keeping grass in a healthy, vigorous condition, as against overuse, is the more profitable way to carry on a ranching enterprise," Smith said. Grass is the foundation of the livestock business in this country. Let it be damaged in times like these and losses may go on for years." Stubble mulch tillage is another conservation practice that experience is showing to be extremely valuable in successful farming in our area, Smith

"However, farmers have to plan well ahead, first to produce stubble for soil protection and improvement and, second, to keep that stubble in top condition after they get it," the state conservationist said. "This is a practice that frequently in dry years means the difference between a profitable crop and failure. It also means stable and improving soil, a factor the conservation-minded farmer considers extremely impor-

Many of you may have read recently about a new personality in the news not eating breakfast. Start your day with a good breakfast for good health and weight control.

Research have proved that a good breakfast is a must for a person to be alert and active during the day. Just as a car can not start on a journey without gasoline, oil, water, and air in the tires, neither can a person start the day without proper fuel.

No time for breakfast? This is a small excuse! It takes less than 10 minutes to prepare an adequate morning meal following a basic plan of fruit or fruit juice, cereal, milk, bread and Many persons, especially teenagers, say they skipbreakfast because it makes them gain weight. Eating breakfast does not mean one will gain weight, nor does skipping breakfast mean one will lose weight, it depends on what one eats and how much, not only at breakfast but the other meals also. A good breakfast can help to lose weight if it is part of a well-planned good breakfast prevents nibbling on high calorie snacks or overeating at other meals.

A recommended quick and nourishing breakfast could be: Orange and grapefruit juice. cereal with milk, toast, and milk to drink.

Remember to eat a breakfast that provides one-fourth to onethird of the day's total food needs. Try it! It may take awhile to get use to doing so if you have not eaten breakfast in a long time. See if you can not get more done -- if you are not more alert. And for you school girls, see if that class you go to sleep in the morning is not more interesting.

A thought we might leave for you teenagers -- what you eat today will determine the health of your children of the future, It takes a healthy mother to have healthy children. You are building your body and health today. A homemaker can not wait till she is about to become a mother to start eating at least three proper, well-balanced meals

Extra $152 Million For Housing Loans Available

has been made available for Today's action makes a total rural housing loans, Secretary of $182 million available of Agriculture Orville L. Free- through the Farmers Home Administration for this type of credit during fiscal 1963. The funds come from the $430 million authorized by the Housing Act of 1961, to be expended within a four-year period, Approximately $95 million was obligated during fiscal 1962.

"These funds will help 20,-000 rural families who do not now have adequate housing to obtain credit to finance a new home or improve the home they already own," Secretary Free-

"The rural housing program is also a driving force in rural areas development. The construction carried on with the funds provides work for local carpenters, masons, plumbers and electricians and steps up the sales of building supply dealers and other merchants in small rural communities. The wages received by the workmen and the profits retained by the businessmen are in turn circulated through local trade channels, invested in local enterprises. The effect of the housing dollar s multiplied many times before its force is diminished. "In addition the housing loans are helping to stablilze and by creating attractive modern living facilities, the type of house construction that makes communities desirable places in which to live.

"Here again the impact of the program multiplies, for the new homes built with Farmers Home Administration loans provide guide lines to the community in the economical construction of homes. In many areas the construction of these homes has stimulated the investment of private capital in similar types of construction.

"The program has also been highly successful so far as repayments are concerned," the Secretary said. More than $417,000,000 has been advanced in rural housing loans since 1949. Principal and interest payments total $147,000,000. Only $86,000, or two one-hundredths of one percent have been written off as uncol-
