The Louisville (Ky.) Home and Farm says: Texas is in itself a great empire. It is the land of promise to the army of discontented and the unfortunate.

Among the biographical sketches given in the Home and Sunday School, one of the most interesting to Texas people generally, is that of Rev. N. T. Byrns.

These quotations from the book so fortify the Gazette's assertion that the Knights of Labor and their grand master are a protectionist organization as to make further proof superfluous.

In 1837 he was elected sergeant-at-arms of the senate of the republic. This position he held for five years. He was ordained to the ministry in 1841, in the presence of President Lamar and a part of his cabinet.

He has since assisted in the organization of sixty Baptist churches and three associations. Being unable to longer do active work he has for some time made his home at Brownwood, Texas.

A dispatch from Seattle, W. T., says the United States grand jury has found indictments against ten leaders of the recent anti-Chinese riots in that city. The jury's report which was submitted yesterday is an extraordinary one. It alleges that evidence has been laid before the grand jury sufficient to convince them that there exists throughout the country a treasonable organization known as "Red American International Workingmen's association. Among other things the report says: "This association with all its branches is essentially anarchical in theory and practice. The main articles of its creed are arson, robbery, murder. Its proclaimed purpose is the overthrow of the government and the erection upon its ruins of a so-called socialistic commonwealth. The policy pursued by this association is to procure control of all labor organizations, and particularly of the Knights of Labor; to see that the officers of labor organizations are chosen from the scientific Socialists; to employ every means to produce discontent among the people, to stir up on all occasions and at all times as much strife and agitation as possible.

The Protectionists' scheme. The Gazette said, a few days ago, that the movement toward bringing the Farmers' Alliance and the Knights of Labor in political action was engineered by the protectionists. That was an inference which any person could draw from the facts then presented, but they were not entirely conclusive. The Gazette is now able to produce additional evidence which must convince every farmer in Texas that he is being made a dupe of by Pennsylvania protectionists, by assisting them to perpetrate the system of tariff taxation.

A copy of a little pamphlet that is being widely circulated among the Knights of Labor and the Farmers' Alliance has fallen into the hands of the Gazette, and it is plainly the object of this pamphlet to consolidate the workingmen against any policy of tariff reduction. It is entitled, "The Voice of Labor," and the author is Col. R. P. Porter, who is chiefly distinguished as a violent protectionist and is the recognized mouthpiece of the Pennsylvania beneficiaries of protection. We quote a few extracts from the book, in order that its general tenor may be seen.

The protest of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers against a reduction of the tariff is given, as showing that the manufacturing employes are in favor of high-tariff taxes. The language of that protest, signed by 80,000 workmen, is this: "We are unalterably opposed to any revision of the tariff, except such revision as tends to higher rates than now obtained."

It furthermore said: "Trades and labor organizations in this country have refrained from political action as organizations, but if the tendency to fritter away the bulwark which has so far enabled the members to obtain good wages is continually agitated, they will, perforce, be compelled to take political action, with a view to protecting themselves and their trade."

The comment of Mr. Porter upon this utterance of the protectionists is: "This shows that there exists among the trades and labor organizations of this country a wholesome sentiment on the tariff question, and with the present dangerous measure pending in congress it seems that the moment has arrived for these organizations to assert themselves in order to protect themselves." The "dangerous measure" referred to is the bill to slightly reduce the tariff; and the threat is plainly made that the labor organizations will take political action against all supporters of that bill.

Extracts from a speech of Grand Master Workman Powderly are printed to prove that he is a protectionist. The proof is sufficient. In a speech delivered in 1883 he said: "I am a protectionist from the top of my head to the bottom of my foot, and I am not ashamed of it. You may ask me why I am. There are two reasons: One is because I was born in Pennsylvania; the other is because I am an American. * * * Protect our commodities; our articles. We have the raw material to manufacture nearly everything we want. In the name of God and the American people, protect it from one end of the land to the other."

These quotations from the book so fortify the Gazette's assertion that the Knights of Labor and their grand master are a protectionist organization as to make further proof superfluous. That organization had its origin in the mining regions of Pennsylvania, the very hot-bed of protectionism. It is being used to disseminate protection ideas in other parts of the country. It is the medium through which sophisticated protection literature is furnished to the farmers, by which it is sought to inoculate them with a disease that will destroy them. Now, with these things understood, will the farmers of Texas be made dupes of?

They are asked to enter into combination with the Knights of Labor to elect men to office who shall represent the views of the laboring men. But whose views? The free-trade views of the farmers, or the high-tariff views of the K. of L.? This is a very important question for the farmers to consider. The members of the legislature choose a United States Senator, and a protectionist from Texas in the senate would discourage the friends of free trade in every other state. The present congressional delegation of thirteen Democrats are all free-traders, and one of them, Mr. Mills, stands among the leading teachers of that policy in congress. To replace a single one of these with a protectionist may defeat the passage of a bill for relief from tariff taxation in the next house.

Are the farmers of Texas ready to unite with the Knights of Labor, who are avowed protectionists, for the election of officers to make laws for the perpetuation of a system that robs them of hundreds of dollars every year? If they are, the Gazette warns them of one thing at this time: they will learn, after the election is raked out of the fire, the Knights of Labor have the chestnut, while they have only scorched knicknacks.—[Ft. Worth Gazette.

The President of the Farmers' Alliance Defines His Attitude in Politics. A Gazette correspondent from Decatur, says: I have just had a lengthy conversation with Mr. A. Dunlap, (his associates call him plain "Andy"), president of the Grand State Alliance. Before I repeat what he said, I will give a brief photograph of the man, who stands at the head of the most powerful organization in Texas to-day, may be of interest to Gazette readers. A slender man, medium height, brown bushy hair, angular face, mustache and chin whiskers—there you have a tin-type of "Andy" Dunlap, president of the Farmers' Alliance. But to understand and appreciate the man he must be seen. He is a typical Scotchman with all the Scotch directness of expression and dry wit. His dress is plain, but with no affectation of grange fashion. There is something about the man—an impression of keen individuality—which would attract the casual passerby on the street. In conversation this crops out more vividly and no one could help enjoying his homely yet sharp and pointed way of putting things. The first impression he makes upon you is that he is fearless; the next that he is honest. There is no concealment about him whatever, and though showing all the sagacity of the sharpest Scotchman, he evidently cares but little what others may think of his opinions. Considering the position he holds and the honors which possibly he beyond it, his boldness is remarkable of the iron will of a Jackson.

On the position of the Alliance with reference to politics and parties, President Dunlap spoke with charming plainness and some emphasis. Said he: "The Alliance was organized as a non-political institution, it has so been declared by resolution at a state meeting, and no sub-Alliance has any authority whatever to take political action as an Alliance. The agitation now going on in some quarters did not come from the farming element in the Alliance, but from office hunters who want the farmers' vote."

Mr. Dunlap said that in those counties where nominations had been made the men most active in bringing them about were beginning to see their mistake, and were so writing to him every day. He said that the fact was becoming generally recognized that demagogues were attempting to use the Alliance to boost their own office, but he did not anticipate any success for their schemes. The Grand State Alliance will meet at Cleburne some time in August, and take prompt action emphasizing the non-political nature of the organization.

Speaking as to the relations of the Farmers' Alliance to other social organizations, President Dunlap said that present conditions made class organizations necessary.

and that this necessity was becoming more urgent all the time. He avowed very frankly that there could be no interest in common between the Farmers' Alliance and the Knights of Labor, except such interests as are shared by all citizens of the republic. One order was made up of employers and the other of employees. The Knights of Labor, he said, had been designed to embrace wage-workers alone, and its troubles he thought had grown out of departures from this intention of its founders.

"The Alliance," said Mr. Dunlap, "purposes the improvement of the home—the development of the social and educational interests of the farmer. Its work is intended principally for the frugal, and when the frugal is all right political interests may be trusted to take care of themselves."

Much that President Dunlap said was rich with political wisdom. He talked like a man who felt a sincere interest not only in his own class, but in his race. I learn that his duties as president of the Alliance demand more than half his time, while he usefully gives for nothing. His mail is large and constantly increasing, averaging now between seventy-five and one hundred letters a week. He lives in the southwestern portion of Wise county, near the line of Parker (his postoffice being Springtown, Parker county), where he has a prosperous farm. When he was asked why he didn't move to town, where he could better attend to his official duties, he naively replied that nobody else could run that farm as he wanted it managed.

Andy Dunlap is the Powderly of the Farmers' Alliance. If his advice is heeded the time will soon come when its membership instead of 100,000 in Texas will embrace every farmer in the state, and soon its influence will go as far and as wide as the Union itself.

It will certainly restore the hair to its natural color, and cleanses the head of dandruff, and restores the hair soft, glossy, and beautiful." F. T. SUNDLER, 1015 Spruce st., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "After unsuccessfully trying a number of preparations to prevent my hair from falling out, and, realizing that I was fast becoming bald, I tried, as a last resort, Hall's Hair Renewer. I have used only two bottles of it, and my hair is now growing again, and is the best preparation in the market for checking the falling out of hair, invigorating the hair roots, and promoting a new growth."
