REHOUSING CAMPAIGN COM. APPOINTED

At a meeting of business and professional men presided over by Judge B. L. Russell relative to the Rehousing Campaign sponsored by the government, a permanent committee was selected. It is composed of W. G. Bowlus lumberman, chairman; C. L. Tyson, lumberman, vice-chairman; Ross B. Jenkins county agent, secretary; Sam Gilliland plumber; A. T. Vestal, carpenter; W. L. Bowlus, hardwareman; Ernest Cook hardwareman; Bob Norrell, cashier of The First National Bank.

It was pointed out by Judge Russell that it is the plan of the government to stimulate the trades and increase purchases in lumber, hardware, plumbing fixtures, and other building materials by the campaign.

The government will guarantee to the bank 20 per cent of the housing loan. If a person wishes to get a loan to repair his home, put in new bathroom fixtures, new kitchen equipment or what ever his home needs might be he is eligible to apply for the loan.

Mr. W. G. Bowlus pointed out that any person who had an income 5 times as great as the loan desired and presented a dependable character could get this loan. The First National Bank at Baird, is a designated bank to do this kind of business.

It is desired that any person wishing to investigate this type of loan, should discuss it with one of the above committee for more detailed information.

Funeral Services Held For Fay Snyder Sunday

Walphall pastor of the Christian church, Rev. Shanan, pastor of the Baptist church and Rev. Crawford, pastor of the Methodist church, conducting the services. Following the services at the home the Masonic Lodge of Moran, took charge and escorted the remains to the cemetery where burial services were conducted. Hundreds of friends gathered at the home and cemetery to pay a last tribute of love and respect to the deceased.

The following served as pall bearers: Worth Woolsey, Floyd Pool, Dick Pennington, Ralf Norman, Ray Elliott, Samuel Diller, Lawrence Wiley, Morris Collie.

Fay Snyder, who was christened Samuel Lafayette, in honor of his maternal grand father, the late S. L. Driskill, pioneer ranchman of Callahan county, was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Snyder. He was born at the Snyder ranch, near Moran, on August 6, 1903. The Snyder family spent much of their time at their home in Baird, where Fay spent many of his boyhood days and attended school. He was popular as a boy and grew to young manhood loved and respected by all and his death when just in the morning of life, brings sorrow to all.

Fay is survived by his father and mother, five brothers and two sisters, C. B. Snyder, Jr., of Baird; Eugene, Ralph, Morris and James Snyder, Miss Laura Snyder, of Moran and Mrs. Frances Cooley, of Illinois. All were present at the funeral.

The Value Of A News Paper To The Community

The value of a News Paper to a Community depends upon how well it circulates and how closely its articles are read.

A striking demonstration of this fact is illustrated by the incident related to The Baird Star by County Agent, Ross B. Jenkins.

It was his intention to call a meeting of his Wheat Committee Chairman in order to transact some needed business. He instructed his Secretary to give him the list of names while he framed the notice. It was his future intention that the Secretary mail out the notices. The Secretary understood Mr. Jenkins to say he would mail them out; and as a consequence neither mailed them. However, the notice was carried in The Baird Star and the report was that every Chairman was there on time at 10:00 o'clock, notwithstanding the fact that, some lived 30 miles away, and the small item in the news paper was their only notice.

This is a rushing civilization; equipped with dazzling machines of speed with instantaneous methods of communication which include telephone, telegraph, wireless television, and radio; but with all these new and useful inventions, probably the world will never see an invention that has so revolutionize and deeply affected the man as has the invention of the printing press. There are still millions of people who pause in the rush of life to read what his fellow man is doing. If it were not so, our boasted progress would be but little further than the bow and arrow stage and candles would light the homes of men.

He was assigned to the Machine Gun Company 142nd Infantry, with which "outfit" he served until his discharge June 3, 1919. He entered the service a "Buck Private in the rear rank" and was discharged a "First Class Private."

He says he is still a private in the army, but not the army whose banner is The Stars and Stripes. His army is "The Army of The Lord", whose banner is the Cross of Jesus Christ.

Tom Keblinger, 81, one of the first settlers of Callahan county, died at his home in San Antonio, Wednesday Jan. 2, 1935.

Tom Keblinger was a native of Virginia and came to Callahan county in the 70's. He worked with the Windhams and Gilliland's for some years and later went into the cattle business for him self, establishing a ranch in the Denton community, where he amassed large land holdings. His wife was the former Alma Kendrick, daughter of H. R. Kendrick, also a pioneer resident of the Denton community.

The Keblinger family moved to San Antonio in about 1910, where they have since made their home, but have returned to the old home in Callahan county to spend a part of each summer. Mr. Keblinger was unusually active, due to the fact that he spent most of his life out in the open.

President Roosevelt Tells Congress of his Great Work Relief Plan—Designed to Supplant the Downright Dole.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© by Western Newspaper Union.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT in his message to Congress, delivered in person at a joint session, offered the law-makers a "new and greatly enlarged plan" of work relief. He did not estimate its cost, but asserted that the system of outright doles should be dropped and the government should undertake projects of slum clearance, grade crossing elimination and other public works that would give employment to about 3,500,000 persons now without jobs. The figures to be proposed for this were reserved for his budget message, but he assured Congress that they would be "within the sound credit of the government."

Mr. Roosevelt declared the gains made in the year 1934 were greater than the losses and expressed "a strong hope in the coming year." He reasserted his belief in the "profit motive" but uttered a warning against wealth "which, through excessive profits, creates undue private power over private affairs, and, to our misfortune, over public affairs as well." This, naturally, was taken as applying especially to the public service interests, which have been so apprehensive of the administration's intentions.

As for a legislative program, the President made no attempt to outline one, but he did promise that definite legislation soon would be proposed covering old age and unemployment insurance, benefits for children and mothers, and other features of his social security plans.

He declared the nation was making headway toward the "new order," but under the framework of the Constitution, and he spoke of the increased industrial activity, benefits to agriculture and profits to merchants that have been realized. Then came this stern warning:

"Let him who, for speculative profit or partisan purpose, without just warrant would seek to disturb or dispel this assurance, take heed before he assumes responsibility for any act which slows our onward steps."

The President reported an unsettled condition in the foreign field, with the resurrection of old jealousies and passions and new strivings for armament and power in more than one land, adding:

"There is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful."

Discussing the matters that will be brought before Congress for action, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Among the subjects that lie immediately before us are the consolidation of federal regulatory administration over all forms of transportation, the renewal and clarification of the general purposes of the national industrial recovery act, the strengthening of our facilities for the prevention, detection and treatment of crime and criminals, the restoration of sound conditions in the public utilities field through abolition of the evil features of holding companies, the gradual tapering off of the emergency credit activities of government, and improvement in our taxation forms and methods."

"We have already begun to feel the bracing effect upon our economic system of a restored agriculture."

"The hundreds of millions of additional income that farmers are receiving is finding its way into the channels of trade."

"The farmers' share of the national income is slowly rising. The economic facts justify the widespread opinion of those engaged in agriculture that our provision for maintaining a balanced production gave at this time the most adequate remedy for an old and vexing problem."

"For the present and especially in view of abnormal world conditions, agricultural adjustment with certain necessary improvements in methods should continue."

THE Seventy-fourth Congress, elected on the sole issue of support of the New Deal, began its first session on the dot and devoted its first day to the organization of the two houses and the swearing in of new members. The lawmakers assembled in the Capitol were a serious looking lot, and with reason, for they have on their hands a big job, that of making the New Deal permanent; and in the doing of it they must solve some of the most perplexing problems that our national legislators ever have faced. It would seem that the Democrats will have no trouble in passing any legislation they wish, for they have an overpowering majority. In the Senate are 69 Democrats and only 25 Republicans, plus one Progressive—Robert M. LaFollette—and one Farmer-Laborite—Henrik Shipstead. The House is comprised of 322 Democrats, 102 Republicans, seven Progressives and three Farmer-Laborites. The administration Democrats do not anticipate any trouble from the Republicans; it is from the radical members of their own party that their woes are likely to come, and the help of the Republicans may be necessary to curb those left wingers. The majority leaders in both houses can be counted on to hold the radicals under a tight rein if that is possible.

In the speaker's chair sits Joseph T. Byrns, chosen unanimously by his fellow Democrats. He is too much of a compromiser to suit many of them, but is now tied to the administration, which declined to oppose his election. John H. Bankhead of Alabama, like Byrns one of the old school, won the leadership of the House after a brief struggle. Senator Joseph Robinson of Arkansas was re-elected majority leader of the Senate, and Senator Lewis of Illinois continues as whip.

In their pre-session caucus the Democrats voted to reduce materially the Republican representation on House committees, and decided to abrogate the 145 rule for discharging a committee and bringing a bill to vote within a week. The number now required for this action is 218. This latter action will provide another restriction on the radicals.

TWO thousand eight hundred bills were introduced and referred to committees on the first day of the new Congress, Number 1, handed in by Representative Wright Patman of Texas, provides for the payment of the adjusted service certificates of veterans immediately in cash, through the issuance of greenbacks. Patman and other supporters of this plan call it "controlled inflation."

Lenke of North Dakota, Republican, introduced a measure for the liquidation and re-financing of agricultural indebtedness. The liquidation would be carried out at a reduced rate of interest, according to the bill, by establishing an efficient credit system, through the use of the federal farm loan and federal reserve banking systems. Lenke also provided for the creation of a board of agriculture to supervise the program.

Continuance of the HOLC was proposed by several congressmen. The bond issue of this agency would be increased anywhere from one billion to four and a half billion dollars in the various bills introduced on the subject.

A 100 per cent payoff for depositors whose funds are tied up in trust companies was sought in two bills written by Representative Clarence J. McLeod of Michigan.

Many bills were introduced providing unemployment and old age insurance.

wait for the opening of Congress to start his fight against immediate payment of the veterans' bonus. The commander of a Legion post in Texas wrote him for information on the matter and Mr. Roosevelt replied at length, detailing his reasons for opposing the payment. He argued that the obligation is not immediately due; that of 3,500,000 certificates outstanding, 3,038,500 veterans have borrowed $1,600,000,000, or more than the present worth of their bonus certificates; and that when the veterans borrowed 50 per cent of the face value of the certificates in 1931 they used the funds to discharge their debts.

This last point, according to National Commander Belgrano of the American Legion, is one of the strongest arguments for immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates.

"The foundation of good business is good credit," said Commander Belgrano. "The money due veterans would be used to satisfy bills at the corner grocery, would help pay rents that are long past due and would go to hard pressed merchants to discharge the accounts of harder pressed veterans."

Speaker Byrns admitted that the cash bonus bill would pass the House "because there is no opposition to it there," but he added that if the measure is finally enacted the administration will insist on some additional taxation to meet the estimated $2,000,000,000 expenditure. It is believed the Senate also will pass the bill, but leaders doubt its passage by Congress over the Presidential veto.

IF LOUISIANA wants any more public works money from the administration, it must "clarify" some of the new laws which its legislature has passed at the behest of Senator Huey P. Long. This is the gist of a letter sent to Gov. O. K. Allen by President Roosevelt, and the "kingfish" is not pleased by it. He told the reporters he would make his reply on the floor of the Senate at the first opportunity. The President's warning applied especially to the Louisiana moratorium law passed in November. Since its enactment the PWA has held up payments on about 60 Louisiana projects.

Geological explorers from the Byrd expedition, near the South pole, report important veins of mineral quartz, discovered in mountains along the coast of Marie Byrd Land.

If the geologists should bring back actual samples rich in gold, how quickly men would find a way to reach those mountains, how indifferent to death they would be in the effort to get there!

We have piled up in Washington already $5,000,000,000 worth of gold. What would happen if Byrd should discover a mountain containing $1,000,000,000,000 in gold? That would be overdoing it, for instantly our $5,000,000,000,000 in gold would shrink in value to almost nothing, and the gold metal would be only metal, not precious.

In Kansas a terrific dust storm, hiding the sun, suggests that the Agricultural department help farmers by developing some temporary covercrop that could be sown on wheat and corn fields when the crops come off, a nitrogen-fixing plant if possible. It would protect dusty surfaces from high winds and be plowed under, contributing humus, before the next planting.

In the Northwest, farmers have used the "duckfoot" cultivator, which cuts a path 60 feet wide, going through the roots of weeds and not destroying the protection of the stubble from wind and the washing of heavy rains.

A wise motto of earlier days was: "When in doubt, refrain."

In Russia and other countries where the will of one takes the place of slow decisions by the majority, the maxim reads:

"When in doubt, shoot."

Moscow reports 14 more executed to avenge the killing of Sergel Kirov, making 117 lives taken to expiate that one murder.

A Long Swim Money Flows West $5 for $3.39 Not So Barren

The new year, 1935, latest contribution of Father Time to the long chain of beads called "eternity," is here, and we are in it.

We shall continue to read opinions and rumors, plans and criticism of plans, in our slow progress to prosperity's shore. It is a long swim when you are thrown overboard in the middle of Lake Superior. This country was thrown overboard in another lake of superior prosperity and unlimited expectations back in 1929.

Farmers, newspapers devoted to the farmers' interest, big bankers of the East, are interested in the fact that the money tide that for so long flowed from producers in the West to accumulators in the East, is now flowing in the other direction.

The money tide goes out toward the farms of wheat raisers and stock, in the West and Middle West, and to the cotton farmers in the South. It is as though the Great Lakes had been tilted upward at the eastern end, and the waters sent rushing toward the Rocky mountains.

The tide will not flow long in that western direction, probably. Men that have the mortgages and collect the interest accumulate the money, in the long run.

Long ago, a man wagered that he would stand on London bridge offering genuine gold sovereigns for a shilling each and find few takers. The gold sovereigns were genuine, but nobody would buy. Mel Smith, a circus official called "Lucky" Smith, bet that Los Angeles citizens would refuse to buy genuine $5 bills for $3.39. Hundreds walked by, looked at the genuine bills. Some cried "Fake!" Only two purchased. "Lucky" Smith won a $100 wager.

Many Americans wish they had been as skeptical about certain stock back in 1929.

The distinguished George W. Russell of Ireland, who signs his writings "AE," says, "I am always struck by the terrible barrenness of rural life in America." He thinks we must "find some way to enrich it," and if we don't, "then the disease which destroyed ancient Italy will eat into America. You will no longer feed yourselves, and you will be struck with palsy of bread and circus."

Mr. Russell may find greater richness in Irish farmhouses, but it is a richness of the character and of the mind, not of surroundings. There is little barrenness about, other than intellectual, in our rural life with its automobile, radio, moving pictures within easy reach, rural delivery, porcelain bath tubs, mail order catalogues, prayer meetings, revivals, annual circuses, the public library, soon reached by automobile.

Next summer our ships of war, "venturing almost to Oriental waters," will engage in far-flung war games covering more than 5,000,000 square miles of the Pacific ocean.

How interesting that will be, and how rapidly those ships would come running home to hide away in port if a few large bombing planes should sail out from Asia, from Tokyo or Russia's Vladivostok, over those 5,000,000 square miles of the Pacific, and drop explosive bombs and poison gas bombs on the battleships!

Geological explorers from the Byrd expedition, near the South pole, report important veins of mineral quartz, discovered in mountains along the coast of Marie Byrd Land.

If the geologists should bring back actual samples rich in gold, how quickly men would find a way to reach those mountains, how indifferent to death they would be in the effort to get there!

We have piled up in Washington already $5,000,000,000 worth of gold. What would happen if Byrd should discover a mountain containing $1,000,000,000,000 in gold? That would be overdoing it, for instantly our $5,000,000,000,000 in gold would shrink in value to almost nothing, and the gold metal would be only metal, not precious.

In Kansas a terrific dust storm, hiding the sun, suggests that the Agricultural department help farmers by developing some temporary covercrop that could be sown on wheat and corn fields when the crops come off, a nitrogen-fixing plant if possible. It would protect dusty surfaces from high winds and be plowed under, contributing humus, before the next planting.

In the Northwest, farmers have used the "duckfoot" cultivator, which cuts a path 60 feet wide, going through the roots of weeds and not destroying the protection of the stubble from wind and the washing of heavy rains.

A wise motto of earlier days was: "When in doubt, refrain."

In Russia and other countries where the will of one takes the place of slow decisions by the majority, the maxim reads:

"When in doubt, shoot."

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Washington.—It will be remembered that prior to America's entrance into the World war, the then President Woodrow Wilson pursued an announced policy of "watchful waiting."

We are seeing a simulation of that course at present although the country is at peace and not at war. The policy of watchful waiting, adopted by President Roosevelt, has reference not to international relations but to domestic affairs. To be specific, it relates solely to the political situation in the new Congress. The President is confronted, as everyone knows, with a huge bloc of extremely radical members in the House and Senate and he has his hands full in compelling the Congress to rubber stamp administration legislation.

Recent developments, White House pronouncements and other straws tending to show which way the wind blows indicate definitely that Mr. Roosevelt is going to avoid open clashes as far as possible. He is not going to test the mettle of the radical group too far without being sure of his ground.

Therefore, we may expect to see considerable delay in enactment of new banking legislation and in dealing with highly controversial questions centering in section 7 (a) of the national recovery act. Likewise, there will be hesitancy on the part of the administration to push forward a program of revision for the Agricultural adjustment administration and the policy of waiting may be expected to be disclosed in some other phases of legislation such as the unemployment insurance scheme.

I do not mean to convey the impression that there will be an entire absence of bills—some of them already are in the congressional hopper—dealing with these various questions. But definitely, it can be said at this time that the White House is watching congressional developments to determine just how far to the radical side it must go in order to avoid a wide open split between the ultra-radicals and the New Deal contingent. Just where the conservatives will figure in this picture is yet too early to determine except that certainly they can prove themselves to be thorns in the sides of the Democratic leaders at most inopportune times.

To better indicate problems confronting the President with respect to his relationship with Congress, it is necessary only to call attention to that most controversial of all questions—section 7 (a) of the recovery act. This provision has had numerous interpretations placed upon it and its effect generally has been to assist the international unions in strengthening their organizations throughout American industry. Section 7 (a) specifies, in effect, that the union in any factory having the most votes speaks for all of the employees in their dealings with the plant management. This provision is what the American Federation of Labor describes as collective bargaining. It has resulted in many cases in disruption of the so-called company unions, organizations having no affiliation with any other union but usually fostered by the corporation of which the workers are employees.

The consensus among unbiased observers here seems to be that the Federation of Labor overplayed its hand last winter in enforcing such a far-reaching interpretation of section 7 (a) as to give the larger union the voice of all employees. At that time NRA, with Donald R. Richberg guiding the policy, committed itself definitely in favor of such a construction. Current developments are generally accepted as showing that either the NRA administration or union labor failed to look far enough into the future to foresee the reaction that is now taking place.

As a matter of fact, tremendous pressure is being exerted on individual members of the House and Senate for a revision of this section, and something will come of it before Congress adjourns. Of course, when union labor acts in concert, it usually turns the gizzards of politicians very white from fear, but in the present instance, the politicians are torn between the devil and the deep blue sea.

Industrialists after all, are the boys who usually contribute to campaign funds. The politicians do not dare ignore that segment of political strength, either. Consequently, it is apparent now that there will be an attempt to rewrite section 7 (a) in a manner that will eliminate its ambiguities and take away from Mr. Richberg, now the policy director of NRA, the authority to do so much interpreting.

At the same time, the President has a problem of some consequence on his hands in the AAA. Chester Davis, the administrator, is generally regarded among Washington observers as a man with both feet on the ground. Such is not their view, however, with respect to some of the other individuals in the department.

Take H. R. Tolley, for example. Mr. Tolley has the title of director of planning for the Agricultural Adjustment administration. His relationship with Mr. Davis is almost identical with that between Undersecretary Rexford Guy Tugwell and Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture. Mr. Davis is known to lean upon Mr. Tolley, but Tolley and Professor Tugwell do not always see eye to eye. So there is a personnel problem that may or may not become acute.

But as regards the congressional situation Mr. Tolley carries much more water on his shoulders than does Professor Tugwell. Readers will recall efforts made in the last session of Congress to "strengthen" the agricultural adjustment act. Professor Tugwell supported those amendments and, having his head out of water, he became the target. Actually, the best information available is that while the voice was that of Tugwell, the hand was the hand of Tolley.

The common gossip now is that Mr. Tolley is presenting, rather preparing, proposals for "strengthening" the act and that he has not taken Mr. Tugwell into his plans. This being true, the suggestion is frequently heard that Mr. Tolley may commit the administration in certain directions toward regimentation of the farmers to an extent which Mr. Roosevelt does not desire to go.

Mr. Tolley is said to favor inclusion of the fruit and berry and specialty crops under federal control. This is believed to come from his California background, but regardless of its root it must be admitted its sponsor is making headway with the plans.

None can tell, however, until the details of the Tolley program are out in the open exactly what congressional reaction will be. Suffice it to say at this time that there are numerous Democrats, important Democrats at that, who do not go along with Tolley or with Tugwell, and the prediction is frequently made that Tolley's name may receive treatment as rough in congressional debate as did the name of Professor Tugwell last winter.

With respect to banking legislation radicals and conservatives likewise are at each other's throats, only this fight has become bitter already. Governor Eccles of the Federal Reserve board has been made the target of a vicious attack by Senator Glass of Virginia, recognized everywhere as the outstanding financial authority among Democrats at the Capitol. Senator Glass openly charged Governor Eccles with exceeding his authority in a recent ruling requiring state banks that are not members of the Federal Reserve board to reduce their interest rate paid on time and savings deposits. These banks were reached through the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation of which they are members and with whose regulations they must comply. The Virginia senator holds that the Federal Reserve board under the guidance of Governor Eccles was responsible for this action and he was not careful in tearing off the bark in a letter stating his views. Senator Glass has forced a temporary halt in the order.

While the Eccles-Glass row may be regarded as purely a controversy between two individuals in positions of high authority, it is much more than that. It presages trouble on any banking legislation that goes farther afield than has occurred heretofore because Senator Glass is an unequivocal fighter for retention of the independence of the Federal Reserve system from treasury domination.

It is not difficult to see why Senator Glass fears such policy as the interest rate reduction. He thinks that the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation already has been figuratively swallowed by the treasury and he believes that the administration also desires the treasury to swallow the Federal Reserve board. The next logical step if the latter is accomplished, is for the treasury to seek establishment of a central bank where the currency would be under control of politicians instead of responsive to business needs as it is now with the twelve regional Federal Reserve banks in operation.

Too much attention should not be paid, in the opinion of astute observers here, to the mass of radical bills now flowing through the routine channels of introduction and reference to committees. Some of them, it is true, will become the basis of legislation later on but every House member or senator with an idea drafts it into the form of a bill and presents it in order that at sometime or other his name may be attached to the legislation. But it must be remembered that with the radical strength existing in both houses of Congress some of these bills may get further through the legislative mill than they ordinarily would reach. This fact apparently justifies Mr. Roosevelt's waiting policy. But at the same time, I hear, it is subjecting the administration to a fresh outburst of criticism among that segment of the population which would like to know what the administration policy is.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for January 20

PETER'S LESSON IN HUMBLE SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—John 13:1-17; 1 Peter 5:5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility; for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.—1 Peter 5:5.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Jesus Washed Peter's Feet.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How Peter Learned a New Lesson.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Dignity of Lowly Service.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Serving Christ Through Serving Others.

I. Christ's Amazing Love for His Own (vv. 1-3).

Jesus was fully conscious of what was immediately before him. He knew that the cross, with all its shame and anguish, was upon him; he knew that his disciples would shamefully forsake him in a few hours; he knew that one of that number would be the instrument in the hands of the devil in his betrayal; he was fully conscious of his deity; he knew that all things were in his hands. He did not withdraw his love from them because of their weakness and the shameful failure which he knew would soon be made manifest. He not only loved them to the end of his earthly ministry, but loved them unto the "utmost." The word "end" means "utmost." Love to the utmost therefore means that he bestowed upon them his love, even to the extent of taking their place in death.

II. Christ Washing the Disciples' Feet (vv. 4-11).

He did not regard his hands too holy to do this menial service. The true Christian does not allow his rank in society to keep him from acts of lowly service.

1. Steps in this service (vv. 4-6).
a. He rose from supper.
b. Laid aside his garments.
c. Took a towel and girded himself.
d. Poured water into a basin.
e. Washed his disciples' feet.
f. Wiped them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

These steps symbolize Christ's entire work of redemption. His rising from supper represents his rising from his place of enjoyment in the heavenly glory. His laying aside his garments symbolized his putting aside his vesture of majesty (Phil. 2:7, 8). His girding himself symbolized his taking the form of a servant (Phil. 2:7). The water in the basin symbolized his cleansing blood; his washing of the disciples' feet, his actual cleansing of them through his word (John 15:3; Eph. 5:26); his taking his garments again, his returning to his place and position in glory.

2. Peter's impetuous ignorance (vv. 6-9). When he realized what the Lord was doing, he refused to have his feet washed; when he realized the peril of refusal, he desired to be fully washed.

3. The significance of this service to those participating in it (vv. 8-11).
a. It is a spiritual cleansing (v. 8). Fellowship with Jesus is possible only as we are continuously cleansed from our sins (v. 10). The cleansing here is not the washing of regeneration, but that of sanctification. He that is regenerated, that is, washed in the blood of Christ (symbolized by baptism) does not need a repetition of the act; he only needs the cleansing of sanctification, symbolized by the washing of the feet. After regeneration the believer is contaminated by his sins as he walks through this world. Christ's blood cleanses of all sins those who confess them.

b. A badge of brotherly affection (v. 14). This act showed Christ's abandonment to the service of his disciples. It is a lesson much needed today. We need more and more to practice brotherly love.

c. An expression of humility (v. 15). This was a lesson much needed by the disciples, and much needed by us today. They had just been disputing as to who should be the greatest in the kingdom. Thus their selfish ambition was expressing itself. On every hand we see manifestations of pride, vanity, and even arrogance, of those who are professed followers of the lowly Jesus.

d. Equalization (v. 16). The disciples thus stooping to serve each other in the name of Jesus Christ will have burned out of them the caste spirit.

III. An Example for Us (vv. 14-17). The disciples of the Lord are under solemn obligation in the spirit of humility to serve each other, even as Christ served his disciples. This obligation rests upon his Lordship (v. 14). To refuse obedience to him is to set oneself above his Lord. The way to happiness is implicit obedience to the Lord.

Stop and Listen

Do not sometimes feel, in trial or perplexity, that others might help us if they would only stop and listen? But they will not, and in their constant hurry we know it is little use to speak. Let us quote the lesson for ourselves, and give what we ask.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

"I think the people looked first to the President, anyway; and the President had the good sense to kick politics in the face and take full authority upon himself to do anything and everything which he thought would keep the country in operation. There was some trouble in the army and navy, still more in the National Guard, especially with soldiers who were fathers and wanted to remain with their families. I suppose there are nearly half a million men doing police duty right now."

Hendron looked keenly at Tony. "That's all according to the plan that the League worked out before the news broke. A man named Carey is largely responsible for it. He's an economist. I believe he's a guest at the White House right now, and has been for ten days."

"I've seen his name," Tony said, and continued: "As I was saying, it hasn't made as much difference as you would imagine. I saw one nasty riot in Baltimore, between soldiers on one side and cops on the other, but in half an hour it was all over. I think that the work of keeping the public informed has been marvelous. The radio goes twenty-four hours a day, and the newspapers appear as often as they have anything fresh to print. People are kept encouraged and reassured and directed. Of course, part of the general calmness is due simply to mass inertia. For every person that will get hysterical or do something foolish, there are about ten who will not only fall to get hysterical, but who will not even recognize that their lives are presently going to be changed entirely. The whole city of Philadelphia, with the exception of the university, is almost unaltered. Anyway, that's the impression you get of it."

"And the unemployed have been corralled en masse. There is a project to turn the entire basin of the Mississippi north and west of Kansas City into an abode for the coast populations, and the unemployed are building there. I understand, quarters for ten million people. Most of them are temporary. They are also planting vast areas of lands in crops. I imagine that they are going to compel the migration when the interior of the country is prepared as well as possible to receive it, and when the danger of tidal waves draws near. As a matter of fact, every industrial center is working at top speed, and Chicago is headquarters for their produce. I don't just remember the figures, but an appalling quantity of canned goods, clothing, medical supplies, and things like that are being prepared and distributed to bases in the Mississippi valley. Granted that the valley remains inhabitable, I really believe that a majority of our population will be successfully moved there and installed for an indefinite time."

"It's wonderful, isn't it?" Eve said. Tony nodded. "The machinery which organized millions of men during the war was still more or less available for this much bigger undertaking, from the standpoint of plans and human cogs. The hardest thing is to convince the people that it must be done; but the leaders have recognized the fact and are going ahead. A sort of prosperity has returned. Of course, all prices and wages are rigidly fixed now, but there is more than enough work to go around, and keeping busy is the secret of holding the masses in emotional balance.

"I can't give you a really good picture of it all. I really know very little of it. It all came in dashes—things read in newspapers, things heard over the radio, things told me; but this country at least has grasped the basic idea that there is going to be trouble, and great trouble, in a short time."

"Quite so," Hendron said. "Now how about the rest of the world?"

"The rest of the world?" Tony repeated Hendron's inquiry. "I don't know much about the rest of the world. What I do know I'll tell you; but the information is garbled, contradictory and unreliable. For one thing, many of the European nations are still foolishly trying to keep their plans secret in order to protect their borders, and so on. In fact, I wouldn't be at all surprised if they fell to fighting. There seems to be small thought of co-operation, and they stick fiercely to national lines."

"England's labor troubles festered the minute she tried to institute compulsory work for those who tended her utilities. I believe London was without power or light for five or six days. There was a vast amount of sabotage. The police fought battles through Piccadilly and Trafalgar square with armed mobs."

"Australia and Canada, on the other hand, acted very much as the United States has acted. They got down to brass tacks and the doing what they can for and with their people. So is South Africa."

"The French are very gay about it, and very mad. The whole country is filled with sputtering, ineffective people. They're playing politics for all it's worth, and new cabinets come and go, sometimes at the rate of three a day, without ever getting anything accomplished at all. But at least they have kept functioning as a nation. In Germany a few communists were killed; and so were a few Jews."

"Mussolini is struggling to keep his control—so far, with success. As for Russia, little is known. Of course it is a terrible blow to the Soviet. I believe the government is carrying on rather bitterly, but as best it can. China is still just China. So you can tell very little about it. In South America the news has served merely to augment the regular crop of revolutions."

Tony put down his fork. "That's all I know." He reached for a cigarette and lit it. "What to expect tomorrow or a week from tomorrow, no one can say. Since it's impossible to tell just how high tides will be, how far inland they will rush, and what areas will be devastated, and since not even the best guess will be any indication whatsoever of where the land may rise, where it may fall, and what portions of it will witness eruptions and quakes, it may be that even the gigantic steps being taken by some governments will be futile."

After dinner Leighton ushered Ransdell into the apartment. Tony was furious. He had hoped to have Eve to himself.

"How he had hoped to have her, and with what further satisfaction, he did not define; but at least he knew that he wanted Ransdell away."

"He has flown five times to Washington for Father," Eve explained. "And he's wonderful in the laboratory. He has a genius for mechanics."

The South African listened to this account of himself with embarrassment; and Tony realized that under any other circumstances he would have liked him. In fact, originally Tony had liked David Ransdell immensely—until he had realized that he also was to go with him—and with Eve—on the Space Ship!

CHAPTER V

Brighter and brighter, and higher and higher, each night the strange stars stood in the southern skies. Indeed, one ceased to resemble a star at all and appeared, instead, as a small full moon which grew balefully each night; and now the other also showed a disc even to the naked eye.

Each night, also, they altered position slightly, relatively to each other. For the gravitational control of the larger—Bronson Alpha—swung the smaller, Bronson Beta, about it in an orbit like that of the moon about the earth.

Their plain approach paralyzed enterprise on the earth. Throughout the civilized world two professions above all others adhered most universally to their calling: day and night, in the face of famine, blood, fire, disaster and every conceivable form of human anguish, doctors and surgeons clung steadfast to their high calling; and day and night amid the weltering change of conditions and in the glut of fabulous alarms and reports, the men who gathered news and printed it, labored to fulfill their purposes.

FROM THE OPENING CHAPTERS

David Ransdell arrives at New York from South Africa, commissioned to deliver a case of photographic plates to Dr. Cole Hendron. Tony Drake calls at the Hendrons' apartment. Ransdell arrives and Eve Hendron, with whom Tony is deeply in love, introduces Tony to Ransdell. Newspapers publish a statement by Hendron saying that Professor Bronson, famous astronomer, has discovered two planets, which have been brought under the attraction of our sun. The result of the inevitable collision with the earth must be the end of our world. The approaching bodies are referred to as Bronson Alpha and Bronson Beta. Bronson Beta will pass, but the other will hit the earth and demolish it. To devise means of transferring to Bronson Beta is what is occupying the minds of the members of the League of the Last Days. Hendron plans to build a "Space Ship" with the idea of landing on Bronson Beta with refugees from the earth. Tony rounds up suitable men and women to build the ship.

Tony saw more of the world's activities than most of its citizens at this time. He had scarcely returned from his first tour of the eastern cities when he was sent out again, this time to the Middle and Far West. That journey was arduous because of the increasing difficulties of travel. The railroads were moving the Pacific and the Atlantic civilizations inland, and passenger trains ran on uneasy schedules. He saw the vast accumulation of freight in the mid-western depots. He saw the horizon-filling settlements being prepared. He saw the breath-taking reaches of prairie which had been put under cultivation to feed the new horde in the high flat country north and west of Kansas.

Along the Pacific coast he observed the preparations being made for the withdrawal from the western ocean. Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, were digging up their roofs. Millionaires drove eastward in great limousines with their most priceless treasures heaped around them.

Tony's work was varied. He continued to send back by ones and twos those scientists whose counsel Hendron desired, and the flower of the young men and women who might be useful in the event of a great cataclysm.

Hendron's own ideas were still uncrystallized; he felt with increasing intensity the need for gathering together the best brains, the healthiest bodies and the stanchest hearts that could be found. He had a variety of plans. He had founded two stations in the United States, and was in the process of equipping them for all emergencies. Under the best conditions, the personality of his group might divide into two parts and move to those stations, there to remain until the first crisis passed so that afterward they could emerge as leaders in the final effort against doom.

Under the pressure of the impending destruction, his scientists had pushed their experiments in obtaining power from atomic disintegration to a point where the power of the atom could be utilized, within limits, as a propulsive force.

Hendron had thereupon succeeded in bombarding the surface of the moon with a projectile that was, in its essentials, a small rocket. He had settled the problems of hull composition, insulation and aeration, which would arise in such a vessel, if made in a size to be occupied by men.

The chief problem that remained unsolved was a metal sufficiently resistant to the awful force Hendron employed. Even the experimental rockets often failed in their flight because the heat generated by the atomic combustion within them melted and blew away the walls intended to retain it. So, at the Hendron laboratories, the world's metallurgists concentrated their forces upon finding an alloy capable of withstanding the temperatures and pressures involved in employing atomic energy as a driving force.

Tony visited both of Hendron's stations. One was in Michigan and one in New Mexico. He brought back reports on the progress being made there in the construction of laboratories, machine shops and dormitories.

He found Hendron sleepless and telly calm in the midst of his multitudinous enterprises. But Eve showed the strain more than her father, and during the first evening, which they spent together, she expressed her fear: "Father's greatest hope was that his ship would be successful. There is more information than has been given out about the Bronson bodies. We admit that they will come very close. Terribly close. We do not admit yet precisely how close."

They were standing together on the balcony overlooking the brightly lit and still noisy city. Their arms were locked together in defiance of their oath to the league.

"He'll succeed," Tony said. "He has succeeded, except that every rocket he builds is limited in the distance it can fly and the power it can use by the fact that its propulsive tubes melt. There isn't a metal nor an alloy in the world that will withstand that heat."

Tony did not answer. After a long silence she spoke again. "It's an awful thing, Tony. Look down there. Look down on the city. Think of the people. Look at the lights, and then imagine water, mountains of it. Water that would reach to here!"

Tony held her arm more tightly. "Don't torture yourself, Eve."

"I can't help it. Oh, Tony, just think of it!"

"Well, that's the way things have to be, Eve." He could not say any more. When Tony went down, the street was still filled with people. All the people were talking. They walked, but it did not seem to matter to them what direction they took or what chance company they shared.

The strange small moon, growing larger each night, shone palely in the sky.

Tony hailed a cab. His eyes settled on his shoes when he sat down. Into every thought darted the face of Eve as he had last seen it—a face growing hourly more haggard. He remembered the downcasting of her eyes.

When Tony arrived at his apartment he called a number in Greenwich, Connecticut, waited an abnormally long time, then asked a maid for Mrs. Drake. His voice was warm and calm. "Well, Mother. How are you?"

His mother's reply was controlled, but nerves stabbed through every word she said. "Tony, darling! I've tried and tried to reach you. Oh! I'm just an inch short of fainting. I thought something had happened to you."

"Sorry, Mother. I've been busy."

"I know. Come right out and tell me all about it."

Farm, Livestock and Poultry Hints

(By Ross B. Jenkins, County Agent)

Peanut Meetings Posted

The peanut growers of the county are requested to meet with County Agent, Jenkins at three places during the week of January 14th to 19th.

On Tuesday, morning, Jan. 16th at 10 o'clock the growers in the vicinity of Cross Plains will meet and receive cards to sign before the contract is presented. That afternoon a like meeting will be held at Atwell.

On Saturday afternoon, Jan. 19th a meeting will be held at Clyde.

The plan has three option plans either of which each producer may choose. He may sign a contract based on the 1933 acreage and reduce that amount 10 per cent, or take the 1934 acreage and reduce it 10 per cent; or he may choose to take the average of both years 1933 and 1934 and make no reduction. The government proposes to pay a rental of 2-5 cent per pound on the actual 1934 production if the tonnage was as great as 500 pound per acre, but in case production fell short of that amount not less than $2 per acre will be paid. There are no restrictions as to marketing in the agreement. It is simply aimed at holding the acreage to as low as it was this year or slightly less and to maintain a fair price for the 1935 crop.

The contract will not be paid but in one check and it will be made about the month of October. This program is expected to find some 400 or more signers in Callahan County. The October payment will give the supervisors time to check acreage and get their findings into Washington in time to forestall any rush in getting out the checks on time.

It is hoped all interested growers attend one of the meetings as it offers a fair rental and interferes little or none with the regular peanut plantings ordinarily made.

An Open Letter To The Public

This is the last opportunity I will have of announcing our Revival Meeting through the columns of The Star before it begins. I know every true Christian is deeply concerned about the outcome of every true revival meeting. We all want to see our Lord's Kingdom advance and grow until "The knowledge of the glory of the Lord covers the earth as waters cover the sea". But, we seem sometimes to forget our individual responsibility and to let go unimproved our opportunities for furthering the cause of Christ.

May I not call every Christian's attention to the opportunity this meeting provides them of serving Christ? We, therefore, cordially and sincerely invite every Christian in the community to participate freely and fully in this meeting. Though held under the auspices of the Methodist Church this is not a Methodist revival. In the truest, deepest sense we want to make it Christ's revival. No denominational lines shall be drawn in the preaching. No one shall be embarrassed because of their peculiar beliefs if they hold them as a true Christian.

There are three quite definite things we want this meeting to do:

1. We want it to glorify the name of our Christ. That means it must be Christianly motivated and conducted. That takes us away from petty, contentious, schismatic things. This gives us a foundation upon which we may safely and successfully build. We seek in this meeting the glory of no institution, enterprise or person—but exclusively the glory of God.

2. The second thing we expect to accomplish through this revival is the inspiration and edification of all true believers in Jesus Christ. We are sure this is perfectly in keeping with the first thing we seek—The glory of God. We all ought to be bigger and better Christians. I wonder if the smallness of us who profess to be Christians is not the greatest hindrance to the establishment of God's Kingdom in the world.

3. And the third thing we expect to accomplish is the salvation of lost men and women, lost boys and girls. How urgent and desperate the need of the unsaved for Christ. How this deep, dire need ought to Challenge every Christian. How it ought to appeal to us. How it ought to stir us.

Christian people, won't you join us in a great campaign to glorify God, to build up the people of God and to lead the lost to "The Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world"? We need, we invite your prayers and cooperation.

P. E. YARBOROUGH,
Pastor, Methodist Chhrch.

Saved by new Vitamins of Cod Liver Oil in tasteless tablets.

Pounds of firm healthy flesh instead of bare scraggy bones! New vigor, vim and energy instead of tired listlessness! Steady, quiet nerves! That is what thousands of people are getting through scientist's latest discovery—the Vitamins of Cod Liver Oil concentrated in little sugar coated tablets without any of its horrid, fishy taste or smell. McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, they're called! "Cod Liver Oil in Tablets", and they simply work wonders. A little boy of 8, seriously sick, got well and gained 18 1/2 lbs. in just one month. A girl of thirteen after the same disease, gained 1 lb. the first week and 8 lbs. each week after. A young mother who could not get or sleep after baby came got all her health back and gained 10 lbs. in less than a month.

You simply need try McCoy's at once. Remember if you don't gain at least 2 lbs. of firm healthy flesh in a month get your money back. Demand and get McCoy's—the original one—approved by Good Housekeeping Institute as the original McCoy's—there are none better.

BAIRD, TEXAS

SUCH IS LIFE—

To Mark 300th Year of Boston Common

Pageant Next Summer to Depict Historic Events.

Boston.—Saved from modern road builders and street widenings only by the high-powered indignation of the Boston Common society, the tercentenary of fifty acres of cowpaths, lawns and shrubbery, uncrossed by rapid transit line or highway, will be celebrated next summer.

Of course, thousands of persons are inconvenienced each day because of the disinclination of Boston antiquarians to let go another foot of land from the Common for needed street widenings or permit the building of roads across it, but other thousands revere it for its place in American history and the breathing space it affords in the heart of downtown Boston.

For this reason, a committee is now raising a fund, tentatively placed at $300,000, to reconstruct the scenes and homes of vanished days, the duels, ducking stools and hangings, during the 1935 celebration of its three hundredth anniversary.

As It Was 300 Years Ago.

With the help of the Emergency Relief administration, the committee, headed by Everett B. Mero, hopes to draw from the past a representation of three hundred years of history—to show the plot as it was when Quakers

Richest Briton

Joseph Rank, mill owner, is regarded as England's richest living man. Few Englishmen would name him as the wealthiest in the British Isles, for despite the immensity of his wealth, he lives simply. Rank, who is now eighty, was born at Hull. His father owned a small flour mill, and at fourteen he went to work for him for a tiny stipend. When his father died, he inherited the mill, and then proceeded to build modern mills at strategic points throughout the country, and in that way amassed his fortune.

and pirates dangled from its elms; as it was when young Woodbridge and his rival duelled at forty paces for the favors of a Boston belle.

The committee, if sufficient funds are raised, hopes to reproduce the Common's ducking stool; show the smoker's circle where "henpecked" devotees of nicotine repaired when driven from the home; reproduce the spinning bee of 1753 when young ladies revealed their matronly traits for the edification of their swains. The anti-slavery meeting of the '50s, Earl Percy and his Redcoats before the Revolution; William Blaxton (or Blackstone), Boston's first settler who sold his land, now the Common, to a community which he found too crowded and moved to Rhode Island; Beacon street "when respectability stalked unchecked"; the coming of the railroad in 1830; the water celebration in 1848, when a public system was first installed; the arrival of Lafayette on the Common, June 17, 1825, when he came to attend the Bunker Hill exercises; recruiting for the Civil war in tents near Tremont street—all this and much more is in the scope of a celebration which could almost depict a nation's history and progress as well as a city's.

First Woman in Boston.

Anna Pollard, a woman noted for her plain face, her fine tavern on Beacon street, and the fact that she was the first woman in Boston, may well find some mention in the ceremonies. She was a favorite of the Harvard class of 1638 as well as of 1639 and 1640, and others who loved her entertainment until at last she went to her reward. In those days Beacon Hill, according to a recent description, was "the tenderloin district."

More than sixty of America's great—soldiers, poets, statesmen, Presidents, preachers, architects—were wont to roam in leisure hours the routes that criss-cross this patch of tree-studded green in the heart of a city.

Fish Found Alive in Shell of Oyster

Snow Hill, Md.—Dorsey Carmean, of this city, found a fish in an oyster when opening oysters. The fish, while sluggish, was still alive, tightly closed in the shell.

It is supposed that the fish entered the shell while the oyster had its mouth open to feed and was imprisoned when the shell closed. The clean and unspotted condition of the shell was sufficient evidence that the fish ate the oyster. The fish was a bullfish, 3 1/2 inches long. It had become oyster-colored.

The World's Greatest Need

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

Questionnaires seeking information on every conceivable subject frequently come to one's desk.

They are sent by students pursuing advance courses of study, by business concerns and professional institutions, and in some cases are sent as advertising propaganda. Of the many received, we cannot remember one which seriously asked the important question, "What is the world's greatest need?" The financier would doubtless file an answer something like this: "The world's greatest need is a return to economic prosperity." The college president would doubtless reply that education is our greatest need. Social workers engaged in labors to reinforce humanity with high moral purposes would acclaim character as the world's most desperate need. All very good. The trouble is that none of these questions go to the root of the matter. The world may need all of these things but the greatest need is the power to bring about these results. It is not difficult for a physician to write a prescription after he has made the diagnosis. Were we to make a diagnosis of the world's moral and economic condition today, we would soon discover that the greatest need is not for "things" but for "spirit"—an attitude of mind and heart.

The spirit of good will is basic to all economic, social and moral recovery. Our racial problem is solved when the spirit of good will removes our prejudice against those not of our blood. The economic problem is solved when the spirit of good will removes the danger of that doctrine that only the fittest have a right to survive. The spirit of international good will solves for us the problem of universal peace. We have tried peace pacts, courts of justice, and gentlemen's agreements. We fought a war to end war. We failed miserably. Why not try the method of the Prince of Peace, the "spirit of good will"?

Butter Yellow for Walls

Butter color is a new shade of yellow for walls, taken up by a prominent interior decorator and rapidly becoming a vogue. It is especially effective in a room where a pleasant, sunny air is needed—as a breakfast room or dining nook. One or two pieces of furniture may be painted the same, with upholstery and pillows to match. Contrast is obtained by window curtains and solid-hued rugs or carpet in raspberry color.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

HOME ironing can be the finest sort, or it can be just the opposite. It all depends on how it is done. This concerns not only the right handling of the iron and its varying degrees of heat, but how the material or garments are positioned on the board, whether they are ironed on the right or wrong side, whether they have an ironing cloth between the goods and the iron, whether they are pressed across the goods or lengthwise of it, or on the straight of the goods which means with the weave, etc. While there are many details to pay attention to, they soon become second nature to heed. Since at one time or another every woman irons or presses garments, or goods, or both, it is well to acquire early the correct knack.

Cotton and linen can be ironed either on right or wrong side. Damask linen, such as tablecloths, napkins, etc., should be actually damp, pressed on right and wrong sides with a hot iron, and have a polishing pressing on the right side. It will then have a high gloss, like new damask, and a body to the texture obtainable in no other way. Silk damask is treated like silk, not linen, and is ironed with a slightly dampened cloth over it and with an iron of moderate heat. Avoid a hot iron when pressing silk. It is detrimental. If a damp ironing cloth is not used, iron on the wrong side. If creases do not come out entirely (as desired) they may be dabbed with a damp cloth and then pressed again.

Effect of Ironing on Colors

Should the color of the silk change by this, it will be necessary to press it with a damp cloth over it to make the color uniform. Wait until the material is cold before doing this, however, as some colors change under heat but resume their original color when cold. This is especially true of purple in all its tints such as orchid, lavender, etc. in other textiles as well as silk. Such a curious changing and restoring of color through pressing and cooling is to be expected.

Pongee must be evenly damp all over or else dry when ironed or it will be spotted where there was moisture. These spots and streaks will come out as soon as the material is dipped in water and then pressed either while damp or after the material is dry.

Decoration of Mantels

The decorative treatment of mantel-pieces and walls above and about them has always been a fascinating problem. Styles of mantels vary with fashions. Sometimes they are wide, sometimes narrow and sometimes they are eliminated altogether. But this last does not eliminate the decoration since the wall above a mantel is so allied with it that it becomes part and parcel of the treatment.

There are three distinctive over-mantel treatments which can be very beautiful. One is to have the space hung with a handsome old brocade, damask, or other suitable textile, or perhaps a tapestry of a pictorial character. Another is to have a picture hung in the space. A third way is for a mirror to be over the mantel. All these are accepted ways of decorating the space. For some years past the mantel mirror has been out of style, but it is gradually assuming its old popularity. Mirrors are very much in evidence today, and there are few places which lend themselves better to its reflecting beauty than above a mantel. There may be side lights in the wall or on the mantel which, in their duplication in the reflecting surface, supply extra illumination at no extra cost.

PRETTY FOR THE SMALL DAUGHTER

Mothers who like to dress their small daughters after the simple smart English manner will love this design. At first glance, nice as it looks, there seems to be very little to it. But look again—Isn't that double yoke attractive, ending in two demure little scallops that button down in the front? And the side pleats, which make it such a pleasant frock in which to romp are also decorative in a charmingly discreet manner. The sleeves may be long or short, and a hidden charm is a pair of more than ordinarily well-cut bloomers. Make it of cotton or sheer wool.

Pattern 9826 may be ordered only in sizes 1, 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 requires 2 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

The Conscientious Candidate

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Sitting by himself in a hotel room I found an old friend of earlier days, chewing a toothpick, and gloomily regarding a cheering crowd outside the open window where a man was standing in an automobile and addressing an obviously approving crowd.

"Is that your candidate?" I inquired. "Not any more," was the surly reply. "I thought you were one of his managers."

"Listen, that lad hasn't got any managers, I was one, but I ain't any more, and moreover, I won't be. I'm waiting for the next train that will take me back home."

"What was the trouble?" "It would take more than between now and train time to tell you. That fellow hasn't got any political brains. I was up all night last week, writing him a speech—the regular speech that used to go big in all the campaigns I've been in. When I showed it to him, he read it, believe it or not, read every line of it, and then he said:

"But you've made a lot of promises here that I can't carry out. Nobody could carry them out. Don't you realize that I'd be expected to carry them out if I was elected?"

"Listen, I said, 'you're new in this game, but you're smart, or any way I think you are, and you can learn. Nobody pays any attention to campaign promises except a few cranks, and they won't bother you after election day. You'll have a secretary to keep them from bothering you."

"What you've got to do is to let us old hands tell you what kind of promises will get votes, and then go and make them, and take the bows. You just attend to the talking—you're good at that—and we'll get somebody up from headquarters to hand you the speeches. The ones you've been writing ain't sound. You keep talking about not being able to perform impossibilities. That won't make you any votes. Now, don't worry, it will be all right; you just leave that speech with me and I'll leave in it anything that ought to be there, and let one of the bright lads I've brought along fix the rest of it for you."

"But," he says, "I wouldn't make a speech that somebody else wrote for me."

"You wouldn't, hey," I says. "Well, smarter guys than you has made 'em and grabbed off big jobs by makin' 'em, and after they was elected they managed to squirm out of 'em, like they all do."

"But that wouldn't be honest," he says.

"It wouldn't be stealin', or burglarin', would it?"

"Pretty much the same thing, yes."

"Now, what could you do with a bird like that?"

"Well, what did you do with him?"

"There wasn't nothing to do, of course, but just let him take the bit in his mouth. And a terrible mess he's made of it."

"Why, do you know the very next day he told a crowd out in front of the hotel that when he was elected he wanted 'em to come down to the Capitol and tell him if there was anything wrong with the way things was going, and if they had any complaints, and so forth. What do you think of that? After he was elected mind you. He'd listen to 'em after he had the job and didn't need to listen to 'em."

"I sat down then and tried to have a serious talk with him, and explain that nobody ever took campaigns seriously, and that he was to leave what happened after he was elected to older and wiser heads that had grown gray in politics."

"He was a little huffy at that, but I thought he could take his medicine, even if it didn't taste good, and set to work tellin' him, as I would tell a little child, what it was all about. And what does he do but turn on his heel and walk off!"

"The next morning I went up to his room, where he was makin' a lot of party leaders—poor old boys past fifty—chuck one of them medicine balls at each other just because he liked to get exercise that way."

"He was all smiles when he see me, and chucked the ball at me, meannin' to be playful, and it hit me on the ear and hurt. But I was so pleased to think he'd come around to my way of thinking that I didn't say anything till the other boys had gone.

"Then I said: 'Well, I see you ain't mad any more, so I suppose it's all right.'

"You suppose what's all right?" says he.

"Why, the quarrel between you and me. I knew you wouldn't take that serious."

"No," he says, "I didn't take it serious. Here's another speech I wrote this morning." He handed it to me, and I put on my spectacles to read it, and found he'd said again that when he was elected he was going to be the people's man, and that the first professional politician who came to him to give advice or offer instructions would be chucked out of the window."

"Well, I just turned on my heel and walked away. Here am I, an' out there is he, givin' a talk to the people about the danger of trick politicians comin' into the offices an' tryin' to influence elected officials, and how, if he was elected, the first thing he'd do would be to try to get to ask for a law makin' attempts to influence an official a felony. A felony! Think of that!"

"What are you going to do about it?" I inquired, as he paused to catch his breath.

"Well, the trouble is, we can't do nothing about it. We ain't got nothing on him like we have with a good many of the men we nominate. He ain't made us no promises, which mebbe was our fault, for we thought he'd be so glad to have us tell him what to do that he'd come in askin' for advice every day.

"It's too late to head him off now, and the worst thing about it is, he's makin' headway, and maybe will get elected in spite of all we can do to stop him, an' that'll be a lot, believe me."

"Look at him, out there, tellin' 'em he won't make no promises unless he knows he can carry them out, he won't have no boss directin' him in the discharge of his duty to the people, an' he thinks the mandate of the people is more important than the orders of all the political bosses that ever put their heads together in a back room."

"I suppose we got it comin' to us. We nominated him, because we took it for granted that he'd be a good boy and do what was right. But we have learned our lesson. He'll probably be elected, for he goes good with the crowd, an' he may get re-nominated—such fellers do, sometimes. But when he quits, an' we put in another man, that man is goin' to be our man, an' he's goin' to admit it in writin' before he gets his name so much as mentioned in the convention hall."

A sound of loud cheers came through the open window. The old politician grinned. "He's bad business for us," he said. "But I can't help admirin' his nerve, at that."

Expect Census to Show Changes in Population

The census of agriculture, which will be taken early this year, may be expected to reveal many and important changes in land tenure in the United States and even show a violent disturbance in the balance between rural and urban population. Signs of the times that have been persisting since the last farm census point the way. The 1930 census was taken in the twilight of an industrial prosperity that has had few rivals and well along in the depths of farm despondency that also stands out in history. The backward march from population centers to the farm had not started in force. So the population count of 1930 was made at what was very close to the peak of the ascendancy of urban population over rural.

It is doubtful, of course, if we ever recross the line that was crossed between 1910 and 1920, when urban population exceeded rural for the first time, but there are many reasons to be found in support of belief that the 1935 count will be nearer balance. What will come to pass when industry is back on its feet and the business of urban centers is humming, as it has hummed before, is another matter. But we must in all fairness consider the happy time to come when the farming industry is back on its feet and humming and renews itself as a drawing card.

A similar count for the forthcoming census will reveal a great difference in rural urban population, with a larger number of rural folk living if not working on fewer acres, many of them no doubt on a subsistence basis. Belief is that millions of former city workers who came from the farm have gone back there. To this factor must be added the unquestioned fact that rural births have more than balanced rural deaths, while the birth rate in cities in steady decline supports the thought that the 1935 count of populations will serve to change the ratio by which 55 per cent of the population of continental United States is urban and only 44 per cent rural.

There are before us many schemes leading to the country, some of them good and some not so good. We are looking forward to the rehabilitation of the farm and farm life and, in natural sequence, revival of the smaller centers of business and industry that are classed rural and will probably always remain rural in the separation established by the census department. Decentralization of industry has its advocates who view industrial workers in the character of part-time farm workers on their own subsistence acres. Great areas of submarginal land are to be withdrawn and the land that is left worked to better advantage, with more workers on the fewer acres. Unemployables will be farmed out on their own small holdings, and the country made attractive to persons who are unhappy in the cities.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Plum Puddings
As good a plum pudding as was ever made anywhere, a plum pudding that is exported in great quantities to England where plum puddings were invented comes in cans all ready to eat. If your grocer hasn't got it, and you ask for it early enough, he'll get it for you, and all you have to do is to heat the can thoroughly in boiling water and open it with the attached key. It opens easily because a herringbone scoring around the can prevents the key from breaking the tin strip, and enables you to turn out the pudding whole. Top it with whipped cream and a sprig of holly, and there you are!

Or Make It Yourself
But some people never can feel that a plum pudding is a plum pudding with the proper Christmas character to it unless they have personally put in all the good things that go into plum puddings. For people who feel that way about it, here's the recipe for a Christmas Plum Pudding: Combine one-half cup grated raw sweet potato, one-half cup grated raw carrot, one-half cup suet, one-fourth cup molasses and one-fourth cup sugar. Add one-half cup chopped vacuum-packed walnuts, one-fourth cup thinly-sliced citron, one-fourth cup currants and one-fourth cup chopped candied orange peel, and mix well. Add two tablespoons white grape juice and two well-beaten eggs. Sift together three-fourths cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg and one-fourth teaspoon cloves, and add to first mixture. Pour into a greased pudding mold, cover and steam three hours. Serves eight.*

Lights of New York
by L. L. STEVENSON

Short is the memory of Broadway. No matter how bright the glare of the spotlight as soon as the one on whom it shines steps out of its brilliant rays, he is forgotten. There was Dan the Dude. Reputed to be worth at least a half million dollars, he was known from one end to the other of that thoroughfare that has been called the gay white way. Hat check girls, waiters, cigarette and flower girls, musicians and others of the hot spots hailed his frequent appearances with joy. So did the parasites, since Dan the Dude's pockets had no fish hooks. When his hand came out it held that which talks with an extremely loud voice along Broadway. So, while he paved the way with the long green, friends flocked about him in numbers.

That the source of the wealth of Dan the Dude was more or less mysterious made no difference at all. On Broadway, the important question is not, "How did he get it?" but "Has he got it?" The having of it is sufficient answer for all Broadway purposes. Dan the Dude, however, was once questioned as to the origin of that which he seemed to regard so lightly. He replied that he bet on horses that ran fast. That apparently was his sole occupation. He was seen not only at the local tracks but also at other well known tracks about the country. But he always came back to Broadway.

Something happened to Dan the Dude. Maybe it was the depression. Maybe his judgment as to which horse was the fastest of the field lost its keenness. At any rate, places where he had been well known saw him no more. He wasn't missed. News that his money had gone had spread. It seemed that occasionally he stopped to chat with friends on Seventh avenue and was given small loans.

A well-dressed man registered at a hotel in midtown. Shortly afterward, he looked from a window at the street.

The crumpled body was taken to the morgue. There was no identification and it looked as if the final resting place would be on Harts Island. In a Seventh avenue cigar store, the description of the man was noted. That saved Dan the Dude from the potters field. Broadway had forgotten him. But as Broadway usually does, it recalled him enough to contribute to his funeral!

Such SAFETY and ENDURANCE at HIGH SPEED

THINK what this means to you. You need the same reserve safety, blowout protection and dependability that Ab Jenkins demanded when he recently smashed 77 World Speed Records on the hot salt desert track at Bonneville, Utah, where temperatures were as high as 120°.

Car owners today travel faster and farther because the modern highway is built for fast driving with its wide roads and gradual turns. High speed driving creates heat in tires that eats the very life out of tire cords unprotected against friction. That is why you need Firestone High Speed Tires.

Firestone Tires proved they have something other tires do not have—an Extra Reserve Margin of Safety—provided by Gum-Dipping—the heat-resisting Extra Process used only in Firestone Tires.

Come in—let us equip your car with a set of new Firestone High Speed Tires—so that you may have this Safety and Blowout Protection.
