THIRTY-NINTH YEAR

SUDAN, LAMB COUNTY, TEXAS THURSDAY, JANUARY 1st, 1964

NUMBER 46

WOODWORK

Jeff Harper Rites Held

TO MY MIND, George Dolan, who writes the front page column, "This Is West Texas", for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, is a columnist's columnist.

What I mean is, George quite often writes the kind of column all the rest of us wish we had written first. (Of course, even when we're admiring what Dolan has written, we always have a little tinge of jealousy and the feeling that we could have written the same thing just as well, only we didn't).

What I personally like about Dolan's column is that he aims primarily to entertain. He does inform, sometimes, but he leaves the profound messages to the rest of the paper, and to the other columnists. It's possible, of course, that Dolan falls in the category of us (we?) who have no profound messages to give. But a more charitable view is that George gets a bigger kick out of writing with the light touch.

Naturally, with having to write a column every day, Dolan sometimes has to be a little more than his percentage of excellent columnist is higher than most who have to write one every day. A daily columnist by necessity has to get a lot of his ideas from his contacts, and has to steal a lot of stuff from other writers, speakers, etc. The trick is to steal something from someone who doesn't have the same circulation area that you have, so most of your readers will think it's original.

Along this line, Dolan would do well to exchange columns with Joe Aaron, who writes a daily column for the Evansville, Ind., Courier and Press. Joe writes a highly humorous column (he won a national award year before last) and he and George could steal from each other indiscriminately and nobody would be the wiser.

Both of these guys have jobs like I would want if I ever went back into the daily newspaper field. And I believe that I am gradually progressing to the point that I could be a columnist of their caliber.

The reason I think so is that my hair is getting shorter and shorter on top, an obvious qualification for the job. I used to work with Aaron in Indiana and, although he is younger than I am, he's as bald as Y. A. Tittle.

I don't know Dolan personally, although we have mutual friends. However, he runs his picture with his column, and his scalp appears to have just a little more cover than the Playmate of the Month in a certain weekly circulation magazine.

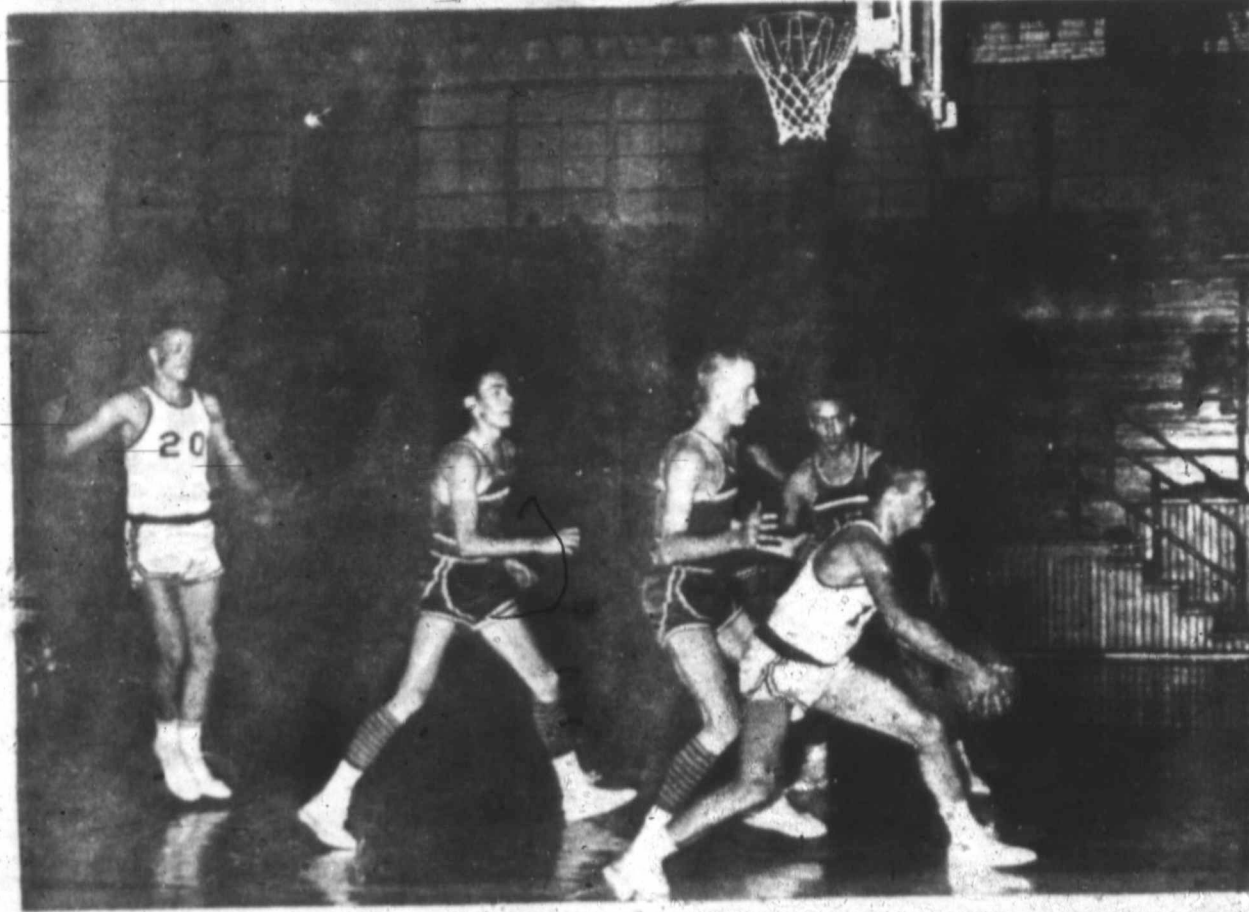

George, who writes about West Texas, but never seems to get out this far, had an excellent bit in Tuesday's paper about cigars and disease. Among other things, he noted that cigar smokers have one of three choices:

- "1. Quit.
- "2. Switch to pipes or cigars.
- "3. Keep smokin' 'em more, but enjoyin' 'em less, haunted by that list of diseases..."

"Quitting," said Dolan, "calls for still another choice. There are methods ranging from hypnosis to suicide."

Dolan passed along one guy's method, which worked for the first smoker, anyway. Whenever you wear a smoke, put the cigarette in your mouth, but don't light it. After 10 minutes, throw it away. This is important, he said; you mustn't put it back in the pack. At the end of the day, you can then count up and tell yourself happily how many cigarettes you didn't smoke that day.

Dolan sees this system as the only one that has a chance of winning the endorsement of the tobacco industry.

HORNETTES NOW 19-1

WIN STREAK EXTENDED

By LINDA V. WILLIAMS
The Sudan Hornets clipped Springlake 45-36 Tuesday night, turning in their third straight district victory.

Sudan outscored Springlake in every quarter except the last and never trailed in the contest.

Jackie Norman pumped 20 points to lead the Hornets to a win, also aided by Candace Mudgett's 16 points.

Beth Dent led the Wolverines' scoring with 25 points.

Springlake's Rocky Cain collected 26 points and blazed the trail for the Wolverines' 64-39 conquest of the Hornets.

Springlake pulled away 17-5 in the first period, and had a 10-point margin at the half. Even so, Sudan outscored Springlake 2 points in the second quarter. The story remained about the same until the final period when the Wolverines leaped ahead to a wide margin victory.

Leading Sudan's scoring was Tommy Thomson with 14 points, and Robert Williamson 13. Denny Masten collected several rebounds for the losers.

Also contributing to the Wolverines' scoring was Greg with 19.

Friday night Sudan and Hale Center split games; the Sudan girls winning 48-21, and Hale Center boys 53-38.

Miss Norman with 18 points and Miss Mudgett with 17 led the Sudan scoring attack.

High scoring honors were shared by many in the boys' game. Danny Allen and Danny Masten netted 8 points each; Tommy Thomson and Corley Baker ripped 7 each.

The Hornets now have a 19-1 record for the year.

The Lubbock Classing Office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Cotton Division classed 117,000 samples during the week ending January 10. This is about 10,000 less than the previous week and brings the season's total to 1,512,000 samples. Last year on the same date the total for the season was 1,655,000.

$1,000 Reward Offered

Large Sudan aircraft owners this for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of whoever committed $500 worth of vandalism on airplanes here around Jan. 2.

The damage was caused by someone firing a .22 rifle or pistol into the planes at Sudan airport. Officers have been working on the case, comparing shell cases found at the scene with various guns in Sudan.

"We know the officers have a tough job getting information about anything like this, and we hope the reward offer will cause someone to come forward with information which will help them," a spokesman for the aircraft owners said.

DeLOACHES OBSERVE

Entertaining Shut-Ins

Many club women have asked for suggestions for good public service projects for their groups. There are many public service activities from which to choose, but one which is really rewarding is taking music and news to shut-ins.

Spinnet organs of the harmonic drumbar type are easy to transport, and many clubs have one or more members who take organs to homes and hospitals regularly.

The visiting club group includes the organ player, one or more members who help, and others who go along-to talk with shut-ins and give them news.

The melodies requested are usually those everyone knows. They're easy to play on the Hammond organ, and easy to sing. Patients who can't walk or see can enjoy the music.

This type of activity is very worthwhile, for while most shut-ins today have radio or television or both to bring them news of the world, they miss the family and community events which are really important to them.

If you do adopt a public service project like this, the patients you call on will be pleased, and members of your club who participate will find that their lives have been enriched.

ADDITIONAL school science program, says the National Science Teachers Association, must start in kindergarten or first grade, must be made cohesive from level to level through grade 12 or beyond and must include a full range of contemporary knowledge and ideas.

PIPELINES may be the nation's best transportation bet for food and supplies in the event of enemy attack, according to Tube Town, Louisville. Welded underground pipes are virtually fallout proof and can survive the blast of practically any thing but a direct nuclear bomb hit.

March of Dimes Physician Sees Hope for Birth Defects Victims

By William S. Clark, M.D.
Director, Medical Department
The National Foundation
March of Dimes

How does a physician tell parents that their child has been born with a serious birth defect?

What words will convey the compassion the physician feels, but, at the same time, be honest and direct to face the facts that must be told?

This is a problem encountered 250,000 times a year in this country. Each physician must meet it in his own way, drawing on the best resources that his general education, his medical training and his outlook on life have given him.

I have had occasion to talk with physicians all over the country about these and other matters, because for the last five years, The National Foundation-March of Dimes has devoted much of its attention to the task of eliminating birth defects. The enormity of this task might be gauged by these facts:

One out of every 18 children born in this country today comes into the world with a defect. As the population increases, the number of children born with birth defects will increase proportionately. More full-term infants die of birth defects than any other condition, but thousands of children born with birth defects do not die. They live to face serious mental and physical problems for the rest of their lives.

The major victory over birth defects will come when research finds ways to prevent these crippling disorders. Currently, scientific research supported by your contributions to the March of Dimes seeks answers to these questions:

Why does something go wrong when a tiny body is being formed? Why does it go wrong 250,000 times a year in this country? Can some of this be prevented with present knowledge? What more do we need to know to prevent this from happening to other babies?

We seek still other answers in still other places. We seek knowledge about methods of treatment for birth defects and other crippling disorders in nearly 70 March of Dimes medical centers all over this nation.

These centers are connected with leading hospitals, where physicians on the faculties of more than half the country's medical schools now participate in this program.

From these centers has come one finding on which there is universal agreement by the world-renowned medical authorities advising The National Foundation: Early detection and proper treatment can often cure or minimize the disabling or damaging effects of many birth defects.

What reasons have we to say this?

One answer is found in a statement from Dr. Walter Bauer, chief of medical services of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, and chairman of The National Foundation's Advisory Committee on Research in Medical Care.

"The challenge of birth defects, the challenge of rheumatoid arthritis, have gone unmet through the ages, each devastating in its toll, each baffling the science and the art of medicine... a barren physiological battlefield where, until only a few years ago, little research had flowered into discovery, few seeds of clinical improvement had taken root.

For National Foundation centers, there was work to do from the moment they opened. Numbers of children requiring the kind of care the centers are prepared to offer have far exceeded the local estimates.

"One after another, as each unit has developed, the reports of their directors are uniform in their assertion that something important is now being done for sick or disabled or endangered children, for the medical community charged with their care, and for the whole community whose responsibility they are. For all these, something is being done that never was done before."

For the first time in history, a voluntary health agency has organized a concerted attack on birth defects, a problem as old as time. The National Foundation is the largest single national source of private support for research and patient care in birth defects.

As we enter another new year, we have every reason to expect that we will have more and more medical tools for physicians, so they can tell more and more parents of children born with a defect: "There are ways we can help your child lead a normal life. Yes, today there is hope."

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

By Vern Sanford

Many hunters, particularly those who hunt outdoors, are often in the habit of leaving their cars parked in a wooded area. This is a very dangerous practice, as it is easy for a thief to break into the car and steal the contents. To avoid this, it is best to park the car in a well-lit area, such as a parking lot, and to lock the car doors. It is also a good idea to remove any valuables from the car before leaving it.

This method will effectively distribute the seal throughout the crankcase. Now remove the motor from the crankcase, being careful to keep it upright until all water has drained from the drive-shaft housing. Flush the cooling system with fresh water according to manufacturer's instructions. Be sure all water drain holes in the gear housing are open and free, and the flush plug is removed so that all water will drain out. This is very important. Trapped water may freeze and expand, cracking the gear housing and water pump housing. Remove the spark plugs and insert a small quantity of proper seal into each spark plug hole. Re-install the plugs and operate the manual starter to distribute the storage. Then lubricate swivel joints as directed in the owner's guide. When the six new seals are in place, fill with oil as directed in the owner's manual. For your own safety, never put into the oil pan until old grease has been cleaned out of the air vent line, indicating the house is filled. Next, replace the cover screw, filter screw and washers. Spray the entire powerhead with a coating of corrosion preventative to protect the finish of all parts beneath the cowl. The exterior of the motor also can be sprayed to protect the finish. Remove the propeller and clean the shaft with steel wool; then apply graphite grease and re-install the propeller. If you plan on leaving the motor on your boat, perhaps leaving the entire rig on a parked trailer, disconnect the battery terminals. Clean the battery, paying particular attention to the removal of corrosion around terminal posts. Apply exterior corrosion and rust preventative. Check electrolyte and add distilled water as necessary to bring to recommended level. It also helps to charge the battery until the specific gravity of the electrolyte reaches 1.260. Every 30 days re-check the electrolyte and take the specific gravity reading. Apply a booster charge when hydrometer reading drops below 1.150. This may save your battery from one season to the next. It is best to store the battery where it is not subject to temperature change. Keep your motor in a clean dry location. It should be covered, but be sure there is enough air circulation to prevent moisture build-up. Pour all the old fuel from your gas tank and slash a little fresh gasoline around in the tank to remove all oil until all excess fuel evaporates. If you don't want to go to this much work, take your motor to your outboard dealer and let him make the necessary maintenance. In the long run it will be much cheaper than if you have to take it back to him in the spring, after nature has had a chance to take its toll.

He said that these appetite depressants frequently produce serious side effects such as anemia, nervousness, sleeplessness or tremor. He pointed out that liquid diets lead to a variety of gastro-intestinal disturbances.

"The gastro-intestinal tract was designed to require a variety of bulk as well as liquids. When the normal eating habits of man are altered, malfunctioning of the gastro-intestinal tract frequently results," said Dr. McClure.

He stated that the safest and fastest way to reduce is by reversing Grandma's "old fashioned" warning of not eating candy before meals. The safest and fastest and most efficient way to curb your appetite is to elevate the blood sugar levels of the body.

As Dr. McClure explained, when the blood sugar level falls too low, the appetite regulating center of the brain turns on the appetite such as a thermostat turns on the furnace in your house. Dr. McClure further states that "certain proprietary products, such as Ayds, the special low calorie candy-like appetite depressant, are definitely more efficacious and safer than the so-called prescription items usually recommended by the medical profession."

women (and men) try to lose weight even at the risk of being loved less.

Doctors have recognized the problem and are frequently consulted on dieting or medication to achieve loss of weight.

Speaking before the New York Chapter of the American Academy of General Practice, Dr. Charles W. McClure, Professor Emeritus at Boston University Medical School and vice chairman of the American College of Physicians, warned doctors about the promiscuous use of all forms of appetite depressants.

TV's New Ideal: Magilla Gorilla!

Television, like the folklore of old, produces some unlikely heroes, and the newest sure-fire candidate is a gorilla.

The "Magilla Gorilla Show", a weekly half-hour cartoon series, made its debut this month on 131 TV stations comprising a special hand-picked network of local stations across the nation, sponsored by Ideal Toy Corporation, a leading toymaker.

Magilla is the star boarder in a pet shop, whose owner has a difficult time selling the warm, lovable, but rather unusual pet. Each weekly episode produced by Hanna-Barbera, TV's top animators, will begin with Magilla happily going off on a new adventure with a prospective buyer, only to be returned to the pet shop window at the end because, somehow or other, he never seems to quite fit the picture.

The Magilla Gorilla show will share the half-hour program with two other cartoon sequences—Mushmouse and Punkin Puss, which unfolds the running feud between a hillbilly mouse and cat, and "Ricochet Rabbit and Droop-a-long Coyote", a speedy Western sheriff and his slow-motion deputy.

Ideal Toy Corporation will back the $30 million TV package over the next five years, which includes the Magilla Gorilla show and a second half-hour to be introduced next summer, according to Lionel Weintraub, president of the toy firm.

"This is in line with Ideal's long range marketing plans calling for increased support for our dealers and retailers on a year-round basis," he said.
