FORTIETH YEAR

SUDAN, LAMB COUNTY, TEXAS

NUMBER 33

WOODWORK BY DALTON

I SUPPOSE I'm as guilty as anyone when it comes to griping about the regulations on driving, especially about auto insurance situation, and the radar traps and crooked judges you occasionally hear about. But when you compare our driving freedoms with those of Soviet Russia, we've got it made.

As a matter of fact, in Russia, I probably wouldn't even be able to get a license, although I consider myself a reasonably good driver. (However, my 10-year-old said I was the "worst driver in the world" when I ran off the road the other night after being blinded by the lights of an approaching car).

The Russians have intricate traffic rules, according to the Texas Good Roads Assn., even though traffic is very light by U. S. standards, and getting a license to drive is difficult.

Americans living in Moscow usually must depend on Soviet chauffeurs, because very few Americans have ever passed the Soviet driving test. Among other things, you have to be approved by a panel of doctors—not just one—which includes an eye doctor, a cardiologist, back specialist and a guy who tests reflexes in the soles of your feet. You have to work out traffic problems on a gimmo that looks like a parcheesi board, and here's the clincher: You have to be able to take apart and mount an engine. (With some of the funny looking cars we have nowadays, lots of us can't even find the engine).

In addition, the Commies make traffic accidents a serious offense. Even if you just scrape somebody's fender you can lose your license for a year, and if you accumulate three violations, you lose it for life.

In the interests of safety no more than two persons are permitted in the front seat of a vehicle.

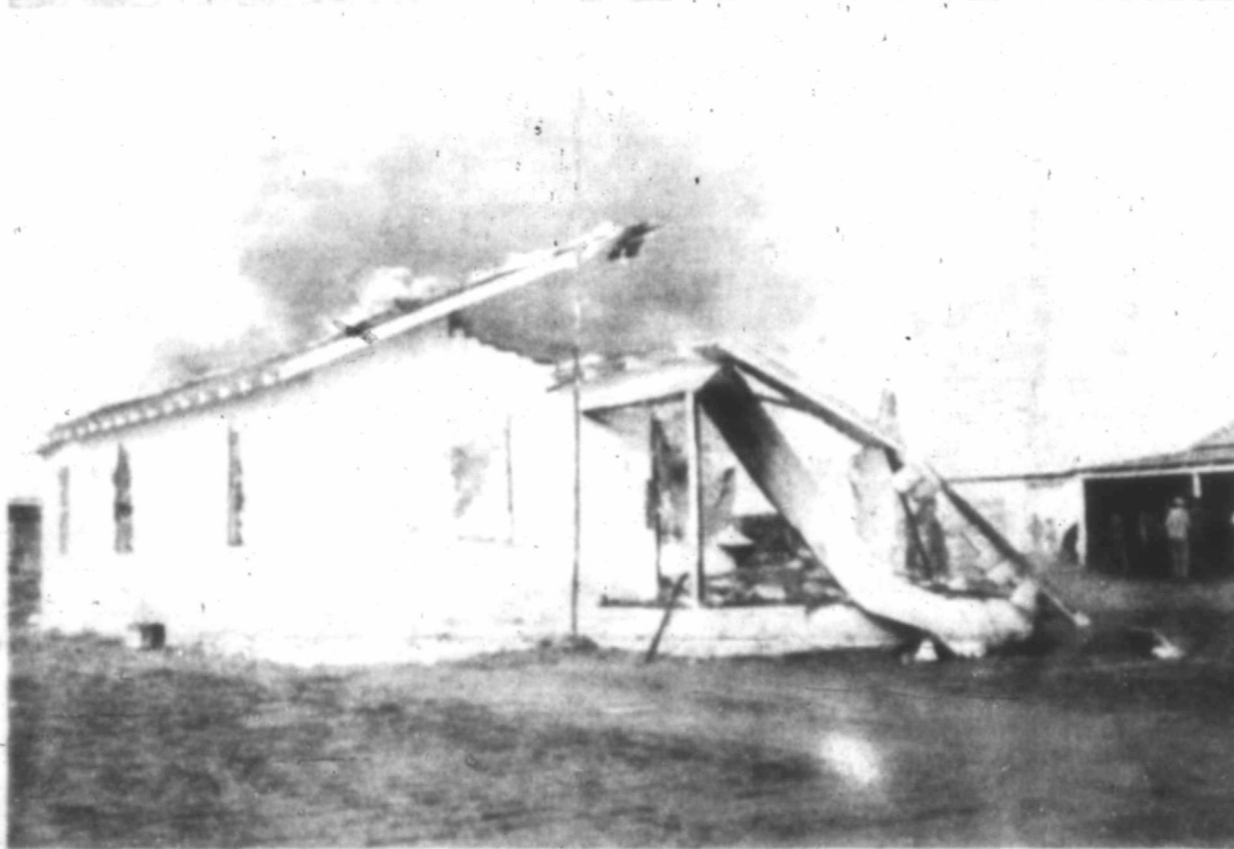

I really never had considered applying for a Soviet drivers license, but now I know I won't. With my nearsightedness, they'd probably decide I was even a menace as a pedestrian.

Which reminds me of the drunk who told the policeman: "But officer, I gotta drive—I'm in no condition to walk."

SO FAR, I've missed only one game from last week's 11 choices, although my pick of the Yankees may be a poor one by the time you read this. Anyway, forgetting that one for the time being, my record for the year is 39 right, 14 wrong, batting .738. This week:

First, I'll go way out on a limb by picking Arkansas to stop the Texas stampede by about 9-7. I also believe Sudan will give Springlake a good tussle before losing about 20-7, but don't be surprised if the Hornets pull the big upset. Now that I've convinced all that I've lost my mind, I'll add these:

Anton 19, New Home 14; Amherst 20, Meadow 14, Morton 25; Slaton 20, Petersburg 27; Malou 7; Rice 7, SMU 0; Hale Center 28, Silverton 7; Farwell 40, Kress 8, Phillips 13, Dal-

TOUGH SPRINGLAKE COMING TO SUDAN

The Sudan Hornets, still ailing from a rugged Prims game two weeks ago, will open the District 3-A campaign here Friday when rugged Springlake comes to town.

The Wolverines were everybody's pre-season favorite, although many now are leaning strongly toward Farwell and Hale Center. Springlake has lost one game this season, a 54-14 shellacking by Seagraves, but since has rolled along with ease.

Last week Springlake trounced Amherst—a team which almost beat Sudan—by 45-8. Amherst, however, was miss the services of its best running back, Leon Hardwick.

Sudan Coach Henry Hall, in his first season here, said early this week that his two injured backs, Smith and HB Corley Baker, are improving. Smith will be replaced by sophomore Mike Bellar at quarterback and although Baker may get to play a little on defense, his status is doubtful. Hall indicated that a sophomore, Danny Martin, may get the starting nod at halfback.

Hall, who viewed the Amherst-Springlake game on Sudan's off week, said the Wolverines are hart 8, Texas A&M 14, TCU 7; Baylor 18, Texas Tech 14; Memphis State 20, West Texas State 10.

big in some positions, but, he smiled, "we coaches always think we can see weak spots."

Hall said that Jerry Don Saunders, one of Springlake's star backs, was particularly impressive as a kicker.

Saunders is a 186-pound junior quarterback and fullback, and Thomas Gregory, one of the top

The Sudan Rotary Club will sponsor its annual pancake supper at the school cafeteria prior to the Sudan-Springlake football game, with serving to be from 5 to 7:30 p. m.

pass receivers, is a 185-pound senior halfback. Floyd Bennett, a 155-pound junior, is a top halfback, and QB Doug Messer is small at 140.

Richard Mitchell, 185, and Ken Dawson, 190, are the Wolverines' tackles, while the Hornet tackles are considerably lighter, with Kennel May crushing the scales at 162 and Robert Williamson at 165.

Another change the Hornets have made for the game will place James Barker at offensive end, Hall said.

Sudan football fans were reminded that this week's game starts at 7:30 p. m. Instead of 8 as have the previous games. All district games will start at 7:30.

PP&K Winners Listed

Winners through three places in five divisions of the Ford Post, Pass and Kick contest were announced this week by the sponsor of the local contest, Gatewood Motor Co.

About 70 boys participated. The 13-year-old division winners will be announced later, it was reported. Other winners:

8-year-old—Byron Lynn Jr., first; Mark Hanna, second; and Shawn Chisholm, third.

9-year-old—Kevin Wiseman, Kim Ingram, Norman Chisholm.

10—Bruce Fulcher, Bo Lance, Roger Bellas.

11—Johnny King, Gerald Chisholm, Gregory McNabb.

Mrs. Charles Perry and son, Mike, of Lubbock were guests Sunday night in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Meeks. Also visiting Monday in the Meeks home were their daughters, Mrs. James Arnold Jr. of Summerfield and Mrs. Mack Campbell of Littlefield.

Mahons Visit Here

More than 100 persons visited with Cong. and Mrs. George Mahon in Sudan Tuesday as the couple was honored with a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Nix.

Mahon spoke to the high school civics class taught by Tex Paris, explaining the functions of the appropriations committee which he heads in the House of Representatives.

It originates the funds for all agencies of the government, including agriculture, defense, public works and others.

Following the Sudan visit, the congressman and his wife were honored at Littlefield, and later went on to Lubbock.

Mahon said he likely would meet President Johnson downstate next week and accompany the President on a flight to Lubbock.

Halloween Carnival Set

Princesses and their escorts have been chosen by each room in the Sudan Schools and the race is on to see which room can collect the most money for their princess.

The Queen's Race is sponsored by the PTA and 70 percent of the proceeds will be kept by the rooms to spend as they wish. Coronation services for the elementary and high school queens will be Saturday, Oct. 31, prior to the Halloween Carnival.

The Halloween Carnival is also sponsored by the PTA and is held for the entertainment of the area children on Halloween night.

Everyone is invited and parents are urged to bring their children where 15 local organizations and school classes will have booths including fishing ponds, fortunetelling, cake walks, dart boards, offering prizes and fun.

METHODIST MEN'S CLASS TO SERVE COFFEE

All members of the men's class of First Methodist Church are urged to be present at 9 a. m. Sunday when the class will have coffee and donuts at the Fellowship Hall of the church.

A. A. Pinkerton is president of the class.

ABSENTEE BALLOTING BEGINS AT COUNTY CLERK'S OFFICE

Absentee Balloting for the Nov. 3 General Election began Wednesday at the county clerk's office in the courthouse in Littlefield. Voting may be done in person at any time during the clerk's regular office hours from Oct. 14 through Oct. 30. The office will be open from 8 a. m. to 12 noon and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday. Anyone wishing to vote absentee because of expected absence from the county on the day of the election may vote absentee upon presentation of the proper poll tax receipt or exemption certificate, according to County Clerk Charles Jones. Persons desiring to vote absentee because of physical disability may vote by making proper application by mail. Approximately 90 ballots mailed Oct. 14 to persons who had previously made application by mail indicate a high degree of interest in the forthcoming election.

Two Ways To "Get a Lift"

IT TAKES 750,000 pounds of liquid oxygen and kerosene to launch the Saturn rocket and keep it blasting. The same weight in coffee beans is consumed every 2 1/2 hours in the United States throughout a year. That's 5,000 pounds every minute of every hour of every day. We're the world's largest coffee consumers, drinking more than 136,000,000,000 cups each year.

A service I can give to you, is something I should gladly do, Not in return or paying back, To recompense some kindly act, Not to expect, to long or yearn, For something given in return, But service I would gladly do, Because I'm really wanting to.

Moths Create Haves And Bikinis

WITH summer just a memory, it's time to store away your wool knit swim suit. To prevent hungry winter moths from turning it into an unwanted bikini for next summer, the DI-CHLORIDE home economists suggest mothproofing. Be sure your suit is well cleaned before you mothproof it with spray, nuggets or crystals. Then store in a plastic bag or tightly sealed container.

SHORT AND SWEET

Although Halloween, meaning holy evening, takes its name and custom from the Christian day for honoring saints, the origin and symbols of the feast pre-date Christianity. The eerie symbols of today's celebrations come from ancient mystic rites and stories commemorating the wandering of evil spirits on what was once the eve of the new year, October 31. The omen of the black cat derives from the Druids who were the first to observe what is now known as Halloween. The Druids considered it a day of judgment and held solemn ceremonies. They believed that condemned souls entered bodies of animals on this day. Cats were sacred because they were thought to be human beings who had been changed into that form as a punishment for evil deeds.

"Texas Units to the West of the Mississippi River"

"I, John Baylor, lieutenant colonel, commanding the Confederate Army in the Territory of Arizona, hereby take possession of the said Territory in the name and behalf of the Confederate States of America." With these words the commander of the Second Regiment Texas Mounted Rifles proclaimed himself governor of that great expanse of land below the 34 degree line that stretched from Texas to California. The place was Mesilla, and the date was August 1, 1861. As Baylor and several hundred followers undertook the initial steps in an ambitious project to expand the borders of the Confederacy into the distant west.

After being reinforced by Sibley's Brigade, three regiments raised in San Antonio, the Southerners continued to advance up the Rio Grande Valley of New Mexico. By March, 1862, they had taken the Santa Fe-Albuquerque area. They had occupied Tucson with a small command and they were patrolling within eighty miles of California. It was then, however, that Federal relief columns arrived to challenge Confederate possession of northern New Mexico. The climax came at Glorieta Pass, near Santa Fe, when the main rival forces closed in a battle that could have great bearing on the future of the west. During the fighting, Union soldiers had the great fortune to destroy the Confederate supply train. Thus deprived of all resources, Sibley ordered a withdrawal. Heavy enemy pursuit, however, caused this retreat quickly to degenerate into a rout. About half of Sibley's 3,000 men were lost in this disastrous campaign that ended only when the United States occupied western Texas from El Paso to the Davis Mountains.

About the same time, other Texas troops participated in the Battle of Pea Ridge, an unsuccessful three day effort to defeat the enemy invader in northwestern Arkansas. Commanded by Brigadier General Ben McCulloch of Texas, a half dozen Lone Star regiments repeatedly assaulted Union positions. McCulloch, constantly exposed to heavy fire, was killed while preparing for another charge. "A bold soldier never died for his country," declared Major General Earl Van Dorn, overall Confederate commander at Pea Ridge, when told of this great loss.

Southwestern military considerations of 1863 were dominated by United States efforts to gain full control of the Mississippi River and, thus, to split the Confederacy into two parts. While Grant took Vicksburg, northernmost Confederate stronghold on the river, Nathaniel P. Banks was to attack Port Hudson, Louisiana, the lowest Mississippi River installation still in Southern hands. Before concentrating on his main objective, Banks unleashed a series of diversionary attacks to keep the weak defenders of Louisiana off-balance. To deter these preliminary thrusts, Texas units were ordered to the neighboring state. One such command, Pyron's Texas Regiment, as described by a distinguished British military observer as it left Galveston for Louisiana service:

"First came eight or ten instruments braying discordantly, then an enormous Confederate flag, followed by about four hundred men moving by fours--dressed in every variety of costume, and armed with every variety of weapon; about sixty had Enfield rifles; the remainder carried shot-guns (fowling pieces), carbines or long rifles of a peculiar and antiquated manufacture. None had swords or bayonets -- all had six-shooters and bowie knives."

A short time later Banks shifted his troops to the east side of the Mississippi River and undertook his operation against Port Hudson.

In the spring of 1864, Texans were again called forward to reinforce the small Louisiana defensive forces of Major General Richard Taylor. In a try at grand strategy, the Union hoped to drive two pincers into the heartland of the trans-Mississippi west. One very powerful expedition, again under Banks, was to push up the Red River of Louisiana while a second formidable force, commanded by F. Steele was to cut its way through southwestern Arkansas. If these two great wings could join together near Shreveport, their combined strength could well knock the Confederate Southwest out of the war.

By early April, Banks had occupied Pleasant Hill and was advancing on the town of Mansfield. It was here that Taylor, now with impressive Texas support, committed his forces against the Federals. In a very hard fought battle, Banks was defeated and compelled to withdraw to Pleasant Hill. Taylor retained close contact and, after additional difficult fighting on the second day, could report that Banks was retreating to Natchitoches. Although one rather ungrateful Louisianan described the Texas cavalymen as looking like "baboons riding goats," it cannot be denied that Texas troops played a vital role in Taylor's victory. Seven Texas brigades and divisions, representing dozens of Texas regiments, took part in the Confederate attacks. A short time later wonderful news arrived from the Arkansas front. At Polson Springs, Marks' Mill and Jenkins' Ferry, the Southern forces, which included Walker's Texas Division, successfully repulsed Steele.

These represent peak military operations that occurred to the west of the river. There were also, of course, hundreds of smaller engagements. In many of these the security of Texas homes and the possession of Texas soil were directly at stake.

ARE YOU COMPELLED?

Scripture: Romans 7:15, 18-25; 13:9-14; II Corinthians 5:14. Do you have a compulsion? Yes, but doesn't everybody? One important thing is: By what or whom are you compelled? There are spiritual, mental, and physical compulsion—soul, mind and body so integrated into one being that you can hardly separate them.

In the day of the ministry of Jesus on earth, anyone whose actions indicated a compulsion which could not be explained was said to be possessed by a devil.

If we are compelled, if we have a compulsion to do that which we wish we would not do, how can we overcome this compulsion? I know! I have found the way: "Find a stronger compulsion!" Find a compulsion that will overcome, be stronger than the one you have which is destroying you.

The Scripture says: "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good."—Romans 12:21.

Jesus said: "I have overcome the world."

What compels you? I have many physical compulsion. My unbrushed teeth feeling unclean compels me to brush them. My hunger compels me to eat. The cold compels me to put on a coat, or heat compels me to seek a cooler place. Bodily weariness compels me to seek rest, etc.

Mental compulsions are harder to define or explain, but first must come a recognition of a want or need, then a desire. So I am compelled by the desire to analyze whether this is a need or want. And in order to do so, I am compelled by the desire to fulfill the need to know more, which causes me to seek, to read, to study, to look, to listen, to taste, to feel, to talk with others who have had (in my opinion) more time or opportunity to learn. Then we do "influence" each other in two areas here: in being or proclaiming something that brings another person to the light of recognition of a need, and also to inform or give out knowledge and ideas to fulfill another's desire to learn. But I choose (this is important) what I read, that at which I look, what I taste, what I do, etc.

I believe that by all this we can begin to grasp that we have compulsions of which we are almost unaware (such as hunger, cold, heat, etc.) in fulfilling them. But also, that some of our compulsions we develop or learn by association, by much thinking, and by doing (such as, once being trained to be clean, we are compelled to keep clean by our desire to feel clean). Someone trains and influences us in childhood, youth, and sometimes in adulthood, to make certain choices, to learn certain things which form our compulsions. Then we, being individual with our own thoughts and ideas, learn to "entertain", to dwell on or to hold on to our thoughts that create a desire which we put into action. Therein lies the need for childhood training, or pre-training that will give us a measuring stick, a standard that will help us to recognize whether our choice and desire is good or bad. Thus, we get back, in this writing, to the integrated being of soul, mind and body.

What or who compels you? Are you compelled by the crowd? (Everybody else does this, so who shouldn't I do it?) Are you compelled by the desire for alcohol, by sex, greed, sugar, lust for power, for riches, for popularity, or by the desire to please man instead of God? Are you overcome by an evil compulsion that causes you to cry out "who will deliver me from this...?"

But man is also a spiritual man, not just mental and physical. What or who compels you? Yes, I am compelled! For I was dead spiritually until I accepted Jesus, and now I am alive and I am compelled by the strongest compulsion known to man: The Love of God for me! The love of Christ constrains me, and compels me to seek Him continually and to serve and worship only Him. The victory that overcomes the world is our personal faith in Jesus! Our faith in His power to take us like we are (when we are willing to turn from evil and go with Jesus) and save us from our sin and death, and keep us safe in Him throughout this world of time into the next world of eternity.

Do you know Jesus? Be compelled by a compulsion that can overcome ALL others. For while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Seek first the Kingdom of God for Jesus said if we loved Him, we would keep His commandments, which are:

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind", and "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Will you give yourself to Christ? And, being forgiven, will you try, for His compelling love and mercy for you, to think and act like God's child?

Are you compelled? Be compelled by the strongest compulsion, the love of God that never forsakes or leaves you, and will not let you go when you are His. If we fall, He loves us still, and helps us up again.

Take Jesus — He is the One!

Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Mr. Congressman:

Because of your busy schedule and the fact that you are unable to be in the district during much of the campaign, I am taking this opportunity of requesting your convictions upon some of the vital issues which concern the voters in our area.

I want to acquaint you with mine.

I believe that the power of God is paramount to the freedom of man, and that our founding fathers created a government to preserve the God given rights of man.

Because I believe in these rights, I think that the children in our public schools must be allowed to pray, each according to the dictates of his own conscience.

I have the conviction that we should uphold the separation of church and state, not the separation of the state from God.

I believe that the words "Under God" should remain in the Pledge of Allegiance and the phrase "In God We Trust" on our coins.

It is my opinion that Chaplains should be sustained in the military service and in Congress.

The U. S. Government is confronted with one of the most critical periods of its history, as it faces Godless, atheistic communism. As God fearing citizens of this nation, we must stand up and be counted in this time of crisis.

Very truly yours,
JOE PHILLIPS

MANY ACCIDENTS NOT INVESTIGATED

Twenty-five per cent of all traffic accidents which occurred on rural highways in Lamb County last year were not investigated by law enforcement agencies.

Sergeant D. S. Lawson, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area, said that his office investigates every accident they are notified or become aware of.

The sergeant stated, "the driver of a vehicle involved in an accident resulting in injury or death of any person shall immediately by the quickest means of communication give notice of such accident to the local police department if such accident occurs in town; otherwise to the office of the county sheriff or the nearest office of the Texas Highway Patrol."

The sergeant also said, "the law requires the driver of a vehicle involved in an accident resulting in injury to, or death, of any person, or total property damage to an apparent extent of $25 or more, shall within 10 days after such accident forward a written report of such accident to the Department of Public Safety. Any person who shall fail to make such a report shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished."

HOUSEWARMING HONORS WAYNE ROGERS FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rogers were honored with a housewarming Friday evening when a number of friends called at their new home.

The host and hostess gift included bar stools.

Host and Hostesses were Messrs and Mesdames Gayle Brown, Gilbert Masten, M. C. Engram, Marvin Tollett, Jimmy Alsop, Shelby Morris, Kenneth Burgess, Bob Drake, D. W. Williamson, Henry Williams, Louis Fields, Lynn Olds, Cresty Rudd, B. A. Narramore, Dalton Wood, Bill Cartwright, Arthur Nelson, C. A. Epps, C. L. Seefeld, Rev. and Mrs. Jack Riley and Mrs. E. E. Crow.

Visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rogers last weekend were her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Davis of Lefores.

FHA GIRLS GOING TO STATE FAIR

The Sudan FHA chapter will leave Friday night after the Springlake football game for the State Fair of Texas at Dallas. Forty-three high school girls are planning to make the trip. Accompanying the girls will be Miss Joann Henry, FHA sponsor; Mr. and Mrs. Truman Parrish and Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Hayes. The group will return to Sudan Sunday about 5:30 p. m.

METHODIST HAVE WORKERS CONFERENCE

An Adult Workers Conference was held at First Methodist Church Tuesday night when plans were made for a church school attendance program through the adult division.

The group discussed recruitment and the possibility of establishing a new class.

Present were A. W. Ormand, Shelby Morris, Radney Nichols, Lenda Wood, Mary Tollett, Willie Rosson, Nell Gentry, Eloese Curry, Thelma Shaffer.

White Teacher In A Black School

What happens when a young white man goes to teach in schools that are primarily Negro... especially when half or more of the children are violent and retarded?

The young man was Robert Kendall and his story—'White Teacher in a Black School'—is a dramatic, compassionate book to be read for excitement as well as for its indictment of seemingly indifferent school administrations which insist on passing grades for pupils who enter class on all fours and "study" the yellow pages of the phone book.

There was a faculty "frolic" at which teachers made such fools of themselves that the students got out of hand and a near-riot resulted. On this occasion Mr. Kendall fought to prevent a mockery of the traditional pledge to the flag.

Shocking? Yes! But even more happened. This is imperative reading for teachers, parents and everyone concerned with race prejudice and the educational system in America today.

Published by The Devin-Adair Co., 23 East 28th St., New York. 'White Teacher in a Black School' by Robert Kendall is a book club choice and is winning wide acceptance in book stores at $4.95. As one commentator said, "Once you open this book, you won't be able to put it down until you've read the last page."

FFA NEWS

The Sudan FFA chapter was visited last week by Calvin Brinta of Crosbyton, state FFA president, who was here on the week of the election of Carol Gum as the Sudan chapter Sweetheart.

Miss Gum, formerly of Amarillo, moved to Amherst this year, and is a sophomore at Sudan High, where her stepfather is teaching speech and English. She was a cheerleader at Amarillo, and is class cheerleader here.

Brinta has been an energetic worker in FFA since joining, and in his Greenhand year achieved the rank of chapter farmer. The next year, he earned more than $500 and the Lone Star farmer degree. He also has been state vice president. To achieve this office is the goal of every FFA member, and to do so takes hard work.

Don Ham, vocational agriculture teacher, and three Sudan FFA members left Monday for a trip to the national FFA convention in Kansas City, Mo. Accompanying Ham were Bill Black, Jerry Bellar and Blake Wallace. They will be in Kansas City five days and return Sunday.

Here's A Tempting Sandwich Idea

Sandwiches have gained momentum in menu planning. Whether the next sandwich you serve is for lunch, supper, or a late evening snack, make it a "souper" one. One that pleases all around the table.

A terrific idea for this popular food favorite is spread-a-burgers. They're tempting open-face quickies. Easy-do's, spread-a-burgers combine ground beef, chicken, eggs, or tuna, with a canned condensed soup, and seasonings. This tasty mixture is spread on toasted frankfurter or hamburger buns and broiled.

As a lunch or supper menu pass crisp carrot and celery sticks or canned hot cherry peppers. Follow with a tray of apples and doughnuts; mugs of milk for the youngsters; coffee for adults. For snack-time eating, spread-a-burgers stand on their own, made like this:

BEEF SPREAD-A-BURGERS

- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef
- 1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed tomato soup
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 can (2 ounces) chopped mushrooms, drained
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon leaf oregano, crushed
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- Dash garlic powder
- 6 frankfurter buns, split and toasted

Thoroughly mix beef, soup, onion, mushrooms, and seasonings. Spread mixture evenly over bun halves; cover edges completely. Broil about 4 inches from heat for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 6 open-face sandwiches.

NOTE: If desired, sprinkle burgers with 1/4 cup shredded mild process cheese during the last 5 minutes of broiling.

Now! '65 Chevrolet

'65 Chevrolet Impala Sport Coupe—with new Surreplan™ roof.

If what you see moves you, wait'll you take the wheel

(V8's with—GRRR!—up to 100 hp).

One look at those longer, wider lines tells you it's the kind of car you just couldn't buy before without getting into the higher price brackets. But one drive will tell you a lot more.

You've got your kind of engine going for you. There's an even half dozen of them available this year—anything you name from a quieter, sweeter running 6 to a V8 with the authority of 100 hp. And the road feels like satin because our engineers came up with a new Full Coil suspension system, teamed it with a Wide-Stance design, and made our famous Jet-smooth ride smoother and more stable than ever.

Beginning to feel like it's your kind of car? There'll be no doubt about it when you drive the real thing at your Chevrolet dealer's.
