FORTY-SECOND YEAR

THURSDAY, APRIL 14, 1966

NUMBER 8

WOODWORK BY DALTON

IF IT comes another big rain, like the one mentioned prominently in Genesis, I and my family will have a pretty fair nucleus for an ark.

(From rainfall reports for this year so far, and judging from farm conditions and past records in this area, no rain of such proportions is considered likely, however.)

At my house, we have a new litter of puppies, six of them, which makes seven in all, counting the mother dog. In a way, I should blame all this on Bob Drake, Plant X manager for Southwestern Public Service. I should hasten to add that his role involved giving us the mother dog in the first place.

Seven dogs do not an ark make, but we also have these pets at our house: Two baby ducks, gender unknown; two baby chickens, likewise; one grown male rabbit (and I do mean grown - he's bigger than the dog) and one very young female rabbit, a situation which could lead to some hare-raising experiences.

Also three goldfish, none of which appear to be expecting anything other than a daily feeding.

A neighbor bought one of the ducks, one of the chickens and one of the rabbits for our children. The duck, although tiny, is noisy. I never had given it much thought, but assumed that ducks quacked as soon as they began making noises at all, but baby ducks go "peep".

This one, shut up in our garage, went "peep" 7,568 times the first night. I have threatened to tape-record one night's peeping, put the recorder in my neighbor's bed and tie him to it while playing it back.

Better than that, I may give his kid a drum.

IN FERNDALE, Mich., there will be fewer secrets while the community is experimenting with transparent plastic garbage bags. Folks' neighbors will know if they drink beer or metrecal.

A 10-YEAR-OLD girl and her younger sister recently found two $20 bills on a street in Wichita, Kas., and turned them in to the police department. When no one reported a loss after a period of time, the girls were called to the station and told the money was theirs. A policeman said, "I suppose you will split this 50-50." The 10-year-old girl replied, "Not 50-50. We'll split it 20-20."

So he got an arithmetic lesson.

Central America filled with History and the unusual

Mrs. Ray T. Coffin, Jr., Vice Consul of El Salvador in Dallas, Texas, shows some of the artifacts reflecting the historical heritage of Central America. The Gold and Jade jewelry is from the tombs of the ancient Mayan and other Indian cultures of this area. Central America was the meeting place and the crossroads for the interchange of trade and knowledge of the Mayan, Aztec, and Inca civilizations. The pre-Columbian pottery as well as gigantic stone-works are found throughout this area. With the Spanish colonization came the teachers and missionaries, and the little "Santos" is from this period. The "Pieces of Eight" are reminiscent of the buried treasure hidden along the Caribbean and Pacific coasts by Captain Morgan and his fellow pirates. Much of this pirate's booty is still to be found. The sea, the lakes, and the mountains are filled with beautiful and exotic birds and animals, and Mrs. Coffin enjoys the love and affection of her little "honey bear," a native of this region.

THANKS

We, the Mayor and City Commissioners, wish to take this opportunity to express our appreciation for your support in the past City election. We pledge ourselves to do our very best for the City, and citizens of Sudan, and to conduct the city business in a business-like manner, and in a way that it will represent the most people in our town.

We all have the same thing at stake in our town, and should be interested in its progress and welfare. We think that there should be enough people interested in our city government to encourage candidates to run for the city offices. We think that a change in personnel in these offices are good for any town. We have several young men and older ones too that are plenty capable of being a good Mayor, or City Councilmen.

We urge the citizens of Sudan to encourage someone of their choice to put their names on the ballot for the next election, and in doing this, all of the citizens will have an opportunity to vote for the candidate of their choice.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS

The Father... doeth his works—(John 14:10)
We often work too hard at bringing this to pass because we believe it is up to us, that the outcome is entirely dependent on our personal efforts. But Jesus said, "The Father abiding in me doeth his works." We need to work from a spiritual level, to work in the faith that God is with us. His power in us is mighty to do all things.
