NOW IT CAN BE TOLD: The real reason the services are after Cassius Clay is to lighten the load of some equipment used in Vietnam. I read the other day that the Viet Cong are being chased from their underground tunnels by blasts of hot air. Cassius can replace some of the machinery used to do this.

IN THE PAST, I have commented that I am against mob action in any form. I now must amend this to add the word "usually," because a mob of 120 Dutch sailors took action the other day in a way which should gladden the hearts of all decent folk.

This group of Dutch sailors stormed into Amsterdam's Central Station Hall last Tuesday night, rounded up scores of beatniks who have been annoying passengers, then gave them all military-style haircuts.

At a given signal, the sailors pulled out scissors. Some of the long-haired goons were injured in the shearing operation.

The sailors said they decided to teach the beatniks a lesson because the navy men feared that their girl friends might be molested by the beatniks, who had been hanging around the station for months demanding money from passengers.

So far as I could determine from reading the Associated Press story, no official action was taken against the sailors for their mob scene, an oversight which speaks well for Dutch authority.

A DENTON legislator recently told a House committee in Austin that there are many qualified people who would like to teach but who do not have the required education courses.

The committee approved the legislator's bill, designed to bring people without education degrees into teaching.

It always has seemed a little strange that a qualified person in some particular field could get a job teaching in college but could not get one teaching in public schools.

COMMUNITY FAIR FOR SUDAN NEXT FALL

Acting upon the belief and popular opinion that educational objectives can successfully be made the predominant feature of a fair, that a community fair for general benefit as an agency for promoting desirable educational goals, that such an occasion can be held in a suitable location, that the fair should be a harmonious blending of the best of the community, that the fair should be a responsibility for co-operation in the community, and that a community fair is one of the most efficient means of arousing community spirit and community action, more of our citizens have been invited to participate in a community fair to be held in the latter part of September. From this exhibit, Sudan's part of a country exhibit will be selected for the South Plains Fair at Lubbock, September 20, October 1, 2 and 3. The business men of Sudan are getting behind the proposition to hold a community fair, and it is hoped and expected that the business of this community, who shall include Sudan's best territory, will do all they can to produce something for the fair that is of educational interest. There is nothing that will put a community on the map quicker than a well planned and well executed fair. Sudan's community fair will be held in the latter part of September. Let every citizen help to make the fair for the fair. Wash the paper!

IT IS time for reminiscing in Sudan and also time to look hopefully into the future—for we are half-a-century old this week (the town, that is)! Some of the items on this front page were taken from the Sudan News throughout the years, whose first edition was published here in 1925.

We are proud to print this special edition in observance of Sudan's fiftieth anniversary. Included in this issue you will find historical and humorous events that happened to many of our early citizens.

We hope all Sudan residents will take notice that perhaps in recent years we have let the civic spirit of Sudan lag. What Sudan once had in community arrived in Sudan and a lonely sight to greet them was the boarded-up railroad depot.

Mr. Boesen was a land representative of the Wilson, Furneaux and Temple Land Company of Dallas and at the time of their arrival the Sudan Hotel was being erected by the land company.

Arriving about the same time was the Perry Barnes family. Barnes was foreman of the 77 Ranch, owned by Wilson and Furneaux, and the family lived at the 77 headquarters where the O. C. Markhams now live. However, the Barnes being ranch people moved on to other parts and are now living in Colorado.

The land where Sudan stands was once Collingsworth County School land granted to the county by Gov. J.S. Hogg in 1892.

In 1893, the County disposed of 17,712 acres of the school land situated in Lamb and Bailey County (Lamb County was then part of Castro County). The land was sold to the highest bidder, G. T. Oliver, for $1.30 per acre.

The Fairview Land and Cattle Company later purchased a portion of the land and in 1916,

LITERARY WINNERS ANNOUNCED

Results of the Interscholastic League Literary district meet were announced by Kenneth Noles, high school superintendent.

Sudan winners were: Ready Writing—Nancy Lance, 3rd; Science—Donna Gaston, 3rd; Typing—Alton Noblett, 3rd; Number Sense—Judy West, 2nd and Brenda Drake, 3rd; Prose Reading—Danny Martin, 2nd; Jan Harper, 3rd; Poetry Interpretation—Robbie Rudd, 2nd, Sue Noles, 4th; Informative Speaking—Donna Heard, 1st; Rodney Bowling, 1st; Persuasive Speaking—Diana Clark, 1st; Ronnie Brown, 1st; Slide Rule—Harry Williamson, 1st, Rex Boyles, 4th; Spelling and Plain Writing—Sherry Whitesaker and Dick Black, 1st.

The first place winners will compete at the regional meet April 22 in Lubbock.

J.B. Wilson and J.H. Furneaux of Dallas purchased land from the cattle company, including League 223 and 224. In 1917 Wilson and Furneaux recorded a plat of Sudan and the dedication of the plat was filed Oct. 9, 1917.

Before the year of 1917 ended three more families arrived, the E. L. Weldons, William Furneaux and the C. M. Furneaux. These three families built the first farm homes in the community, with C. M. Furneaux and wife, Frances, building the first one.

Except for a few cowboys riding the range, the only inhabitants to greet these early pioneers of the plains were cows, antelope, coyotes, jackrabbits and rattlesnakes.

While the hotel was being completed the late P. E. (Pete) Boesen and wife lived in a small shack in back of the hotel (later called a "chicken coop" by Mrs. Boesen).

The year following, 1918, saw the town named Sudan, a school organized, trees planted in the park and the arrival of the first depot agent, thus, the old boarded-up depot took on life.

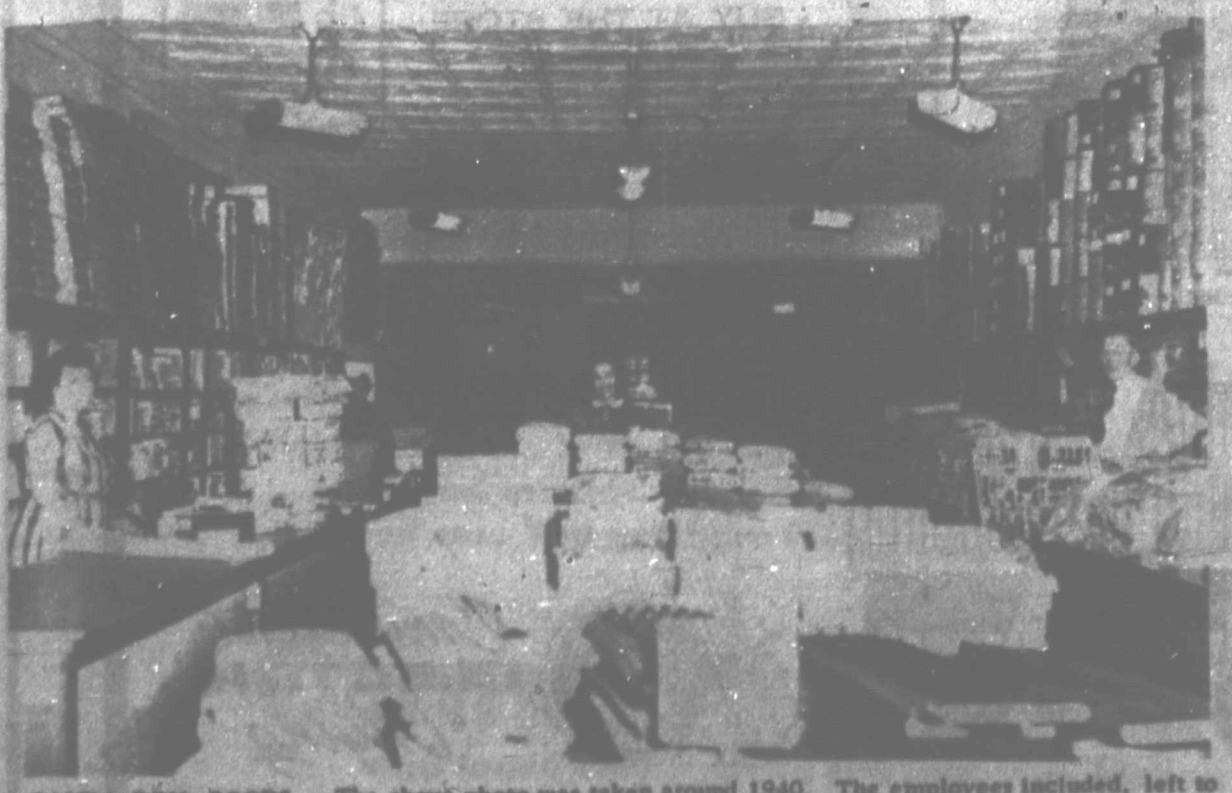

The question has often been asked, "How did Sudan get its name?" In the early days those living here had to go to the nearest post office in Littlefield for their mail. Desiring a post office of their own, a petition requesting a post office was circulated and signed by every man, woman and child in the area. Favorable conditions were promised but a new and exclusive name had to be chosen. Four men gathered in Dallas, among them the late P. E. Boesen, to discuss the naming of the town. Boesen suggested the name "Sudan", some say because of Sudan grass growing near the town, while others say he told them he just chose the name at random with no particular reason.

After the post office was secured, Boesen served as the first postmaster.

A cottage to house a depot agent was also built during the year and Clay Pomphreys was the first depot agent.

erected and was known as Boesen and Shaughnessy Mercantile Co.

In the year 1919, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Slate purchased the mercantile store and he served as postmaster until 1933 with Mrs. Slate as assistant postmaster.

Slate purchased the first cotton crop grown in the area from Bill Tull while the cotton was still in the field. The crop was grown north of town.

In 1922 the farmers of the area met and decided there was money to be made in raising cotton and they they needed to build a gin and did. Four men, Simon Hay, P. E. Boesen, W. W. Carpenter and Mr. Carrouth, agreed to build the gin. The gin was operated that fall under the management of Carrouth, and 1200 bales of cotton were ginned that first season.

In the earlier days banking was done at the nearest bank in Littlefield, but in 1923 the Sudan State Bank was organized with William Furneaux as president, Clyde Barrow as cashier. The bank became A National Bank in 1925 with P. E. Boesen as president, W. H. Lyle as cashier. Later Lyle bought the bank, operating it until 1951 when Guy Walden and other purchased it. The Sudan bank also has the dubious distinction of being robbed twice.

The town was incorporated on Sept. 28, 1925 and Vic Nelson was appointed mayor. The population at that time was thought to have been around 600. The 1950 census numbered 1,330, but at one time the population of Sudan was over 1700.

Electricity was made available in Sudan in 1925 when an individually owned plant was constructed. Electricity is now available to all homes and businesses in the area from Southwestern Public Service.

On Oct. 9, 1923, the gin was sold to John Dean, who came here from Oklahoma. During the fall of 1931 cotton was hauled to the gin from as far away as Roosevelt County, New Mexico.

In 1924 Dean built another gin, later owned and operated by W. V. Terry and is now the Watkins Gin Co. A Co-Op Gin was built by Dean in 1925.

The farmers also felt the need of a grain elevator and in 1925 five men built the Sudan Elevator. They were Dean, Billy McNeely, P. E. Boesen, Simon Hay and Zeb Payne.

In 1943 a second elevator was built and operated by O. L. Shannon and in 1948 he added warehouses for grain and cotton storage, then in 1949 a compress.

The compress and warehouses were purchased in 1955 by Guy Nickels, Woodrow Fleming and H. A. Mills, and was known as the Central Compress and Warehouse Company. It is now known as one of the outstanding compresses in this area. However, Sudan's first compress was built in 1937 by the Union Compress Company and has remained in continuous operation since that date. A. C. Daniell is presently superintendent.

Another growing industry in Sudan is the Sudan Livestock and Feeding Company. The company was started in 1940 by Ben Davidson of Clovis, N. M. as a small feeding project and has grown steadily into one of the largest feeding operations in the state.

The first lumber yard was known as the McAdams Lumber Yard and another lumber yard known as the Peasheadle (now the Foxworth-Galbreath) was built.

The original Sudan News was established in 1925 with W. H. Weimhold as owner. Prior to that a Newsbulletin was printed called the "Signal". Present day publishers of the Beacon-News are J. W. House Jr. and Dalton Wood.

The first copy of the "Signal" was printed Jan. 16, 1925 with Jess Mitchell, publisher and Eva Franks, reporter. Slogans used on the front page read "where the Landless Man meets the Moneyless Land".

The first issue of the Sudan News, furnished by Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Slate, published July 2, 1925 by W. H. Weimhold recorded "J. J. Blanchard, a very progressive farmer of Wilbarger County, was the first man who gave a check for the Sudan News after we arrived with our equipment."

A favorite slogan of Weimhold's was "Boost or Move!" and in the fall of 1931 reported that 20,000 bales of cotton and 2,000 box cars of grain were shipped from Sudan that year.

The second hotel built in Sudan, constructed in 1920 by J. M. Gay of McKinney, is still in operation and is presently managed by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Pulcher. Gay was acting as agent for the selling of the Bar N ranch land owned by Mr. Newsom, called the Newsom Farm Land.

Another early day business included the C. F. Whitwell Blacksmith shop; the town's first lawyer, J. E. Dryden arrived in 1924 from Fort Worth; early day doctors were Dr. Purdie and Dr. G. A. Foot.

In 1925 Mrs. L. E. Slate and Mrs. G. A. Foot headed a campaign to establish the present day cemetery and also conduct a drive to plant trees and shrubs in the cemetery. An earlier burial plot was located north of town between the Gus Bellamy home, formerly belonging to J. M. Carrouth, and the Farmers Co-Op Ginn. However, the land was plowed under and the exact location lost.

During the term of John Dean, who was elected mayor in 1926, the first street lights were installed, numbering ten. The city is now lighted by over modern mercury-vapor street-lights.

Sudan kept up a steady progress and the city water well was drilled in 1929 and the water system completed. A. C. Findley, served as the first Water Superintendent. Later Frank White assumed this position and has served in this capacity for 34 years. The city dug a new well in 1954 to supplement the old one.

The thousand mark in population was passed in 1930 and it was also during this year that the city received natural gas.

The main street was paved in 1936; and in 1946 pavement was completed on several blocks of city streets. It is recorded the idea of paving the city streets was conceived on a frosty night in January, 1946, at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce when the president Reed Markham was leader of the project.

An open forum was held later and citizens and taxpayers attended the meeting and heard Water Supt. White explain the need for an expensive project to lower water mains throughout the city, unless the city paving was approved. April 2 was the date set for a bond election and it was passed with A. A. Stuart named chairman of the paving committee. City commissioners John R. Tucker and L. E. Slate worked to obtain agreements of the residents of the town.

On June 4, 1947 the first load of caliche was dumped on Second Avenue, just off main street before a happy group of Sudanites Mayor Hugh Vincent, Claud Wiseman, president of Chamber of Commerce; secretary, Gurney Allen, secretary; Frank White and Reed Markham were also in this group which witnessed the beginning of the long anticipated paving.

As two new additions, Shannon Addition and Boesen Terrace, were added in 1950 and 1952 more street paving was done in 1954 and the town boasts over 100 blocks of paved streets, making Sudan one of the best paved, if not the best, towns of its size.

The building of the modern city hall which is located in the city park, took place in 1937, and houses the present day jail, and the up-to-date fire fighting equipment. The Sudan Volunteer Fire Department was organized in 1929.

The building of the Sudan Community Center was in 1956 and members of the first board of governors were James F. Arnold, Mrs. Bob Dunke, Mrs. Wayne Howell, Odell Wilkes, Forrest Ferguson, Mrs. Doyle Watkins, Charles Logan, E. C. Mlyard, Joe Rone, Wayne Brown.

Showing the effectiveness of the early Sudan Chamber of Commerce was the high success of the first town's trade day held in 1925. Simon Hay was the president of the organization at the time and when the first trade's day was held people came from as far away as New Mexico and those attending numbered at least two thousand. Among activities and entertainment enjoyed at this first trades day were three legged races and horse racing. Also of-reknowned fairs were the "Dollar Days" held each month during the 30s at which time all day activities were planned.

In the 1940's a number of businessmen inaugurated the Sudan Fall Festival which became world famous because of the pageant, "United Nations" presented in connection with the festival. The three men credited with this idea are Joe Salem, Drew Watkins and Reed Markham. However, the Festival was dropped after a number of years.

Proof that Sudan was at one time civic and club minded were the numerous organizations which at one time were functioning in the community including the FTA, still functioning.

The good people of Sudan have never let fall by the wayside their churches and schools.

From a Union Sunday school and church organized in 1920 in the two room school house, has grown five churches, including the Church of God, Assembly of God, Methodist Church, Baptist Church and the Church of Christ.

In 1925 the Methodist Church was built to take care of its steadily growing membership; in 1935 a larger building was erected on Main Street. This building has been replaced by a new, well-equipped building.

The Church of Christ was organized in 1924 with fifteen members; by 1925 the membership had grown to fifty and a new church building was built to take care of its steady growth.

The Baptist group began in 1921 with 16 members and following the burning of the old brick building, a new building was built with a seating capacity of 475.

The Church of God of Prophecy was organized in Sudan in 1935 with their first building being erected in 1942. The first church was destroyed by a tornado and was replaced in 1953 with a parsonage built in 1961.

The fifth denomination represented in Sudan is the Assembly of God, organized in 1944, which has its own church building and parsonage to care for its membership.

The enterprise of the people was never more manifest than in the way the school situation was handled. In the early days there were only three children of scholastic age in the community. Hence a public school had not been established. Fred McDaniel, manager of the McAdams Lumberyard had a small daughter who needed to be in school. The other possibilities were Marvin Bridges of the Sod House pastures, and Victor Hale of the Mashed O. Rather than see these youngsters go without schooling Mrs. McDaniels established a school in the lumberyard office and there instructed the three. In 1918, P. E. Boesen made a trip to Oton and secured an allotment of $150.00 with which to conduct a three months school.

Stella Weldon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Weldon, was the first "school marm", and was appointed by the county judge to assume the duties of teacher. Her pupils numbered four. The judge also appointed the board which consisted of P. E. Boesen, Perry Barnes and Fred McDaniel. A fourteen by twenty-eight foot school house was built and for two years school was conducted there. It was there that the first Community Christmas Tree was held.

The first pupils came to school on horseback and as they all lived in the same direction it is reported there were many a spirited horse race in those days to and from school. The pupils were Vesta Weldon, Vic Hale, Marvin Bridges; Vesta came two miles, Marvin, five and Vic nine. The fourth student, Iona McDaniel was the only one of the children living in "town".

In 1919 Miss Weldon decided to change occupations and became Mrs. Jack Rowan. She was succeeded by Miss Dixie Parker of Clarendon, who taught the same four as her predecessor with one extra, the little Brannon boy, whose dad was a well driller and the family camped in a tent just back and to the right of where the old Sudan Mercantile stood.

Other teachers coming in later years were Margaret Trent, later Mrs. Crosby, who taught the same five; Miss Novje Robinson later Mrs. Ewell Gassaway; Miss Roberta Robinson, who later married Hurlbert Slate of Amherst (a brother to L. E. Slate).

THIRD MOVE - The Sudan Mercantile, operated by Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Slate, moved into this new brick building in 1929. They first opened in a wooden building located where Sudan Tire Service is now, then moved to the first brick building built by P. E. Boesen in 1923, now the Salem building, before settling in this building, occupied until recently by Morris Hardware.

Another frame structure was added just to the left of the old one and other teachers included Ruby Tranthum, Alma Rae Harber, Winfred Bump, O. O. Hilburn.

The first male teacher hired was a Mr. Crawford, selected as principal in 1921.

When education facilities seemed to be lagging the citizens voted a $75,000 bond issue with which to build a new brick building. Opposition developed in the legislation and W. W. Carpenter and P. E. Boesen spent their time and means to go to Austin and straighten out the entanglement. Shortly after their return to Sudan the building burned and before the ashes were cold, plans were being made for a bigger and better school. More bonds were voted and while work of rebuilding was conducted school was held in the right wing of the damaged building, and in the old frame structure.

To Miss Sadie Sebring, who later became Mrs. Porter Wills, goes the credit of transporting the first children to Sudan schools. Miss Sebring lived about eight miles from Sudan coming and going in a Ford Touring car. The board paid her to pick up the children along the way. The next year three school buses were added, then came the need for eight; and in 1925 the teaching faculty had jumped to ten with need for more.

Another bond was voted for $100,000.00 to build the high school building, which was completed in 1927. This building also burned in 1930, but was rebuilt in time for the graduating class of '31 to use.

Members of the first graduating class in 1925 were Carrie Lee Carrouth, Clifford Shaffer, Howard Preston, Linda Campbell and Buford Carpenter.

The largest number to graduate from the school was in 1940 when a group of forty-seven received diplomas.

In 1947 the Masten stadium was erected with a seating capacity of 1200. In 1951 the school gymnasium was built and also seats 1200. New furniture was installed in the classrooms and new office furniture purchased during the time C. O. Gregory served as school superintendent; as well as the building of the new elementary school.

Some of the merchants and businessmen who were operating in Sudan by 1926 included the following:

L. T. Hunt advertised his established as the only Union Barber Shop in town, with baths, and Laundry Agency.

mer night has replaced the howl of the coyote.

And as tractors and modern equipment have replaced the horses and mules, this new phase of farming has called for a new look in business establishments.

Chemical plants are among the modern business houses and furnish chemical fertilizer, weed killer and insect spraying.

Gas plants and electricity plants supply the power for the large irrigation motors.

The tractors with it's equipment calls for less labor and gone are the large farm families. For most convenience most farmers now live in town, and because of the advanced means of transportation the small town businessmen must compete with the large city businesses, thus the decrease in our local business establishments.

As each year brings changes and the new becomes old and obsolete; the town will continue to change with the times and among its citizens will always be those who retain the "Pioneer Spirit" as each new phase arrives.

A CITY IN THE MAKING

By P. E. BOESEN
(Written in 1926 and published in the "Know Lamb County")
On April 12, 1917, the Madam and I landed in Sudan for keeps. I had previously arranged for the erection of the Sudan hotel, my company, Wilson, Furneaux and Temple of Dallas, co-operating with me in all the preliminary work to get the proposition ready for business. Pending the completion of the hotel we lived in a boxed garage on the rear of the hotel lot for nearly six months. In that time we had many visitors who took pot-luck with us and we may truthfully say we enjoyed immensely that period of camping out.

Late in August, 1917, we moved into the hotel. A grand opening had been announced and it was attended by the cattlemen and their families for fifty miles around. It was an old-fashioned prairie gathering and more than one hundred people enjoyed themselves in dancing and partaking of the banquet prepared for the occasion.

I have often been asked what was here when we came. There was a depot, solidly nailed up, and a pasture with cows grazing on it. Inhabitants besides the cows were antelope, coyotes, jackrabbits, rattlesnakes and prairie dog owls. A few cowboys rode the range, "Molly" (Hamilton) conspicuous among them. The ranch boss was P. H. Barnes, who now directs affairs at Green Valley ranch near Dawn, east of Hereford. To Mr. Barnes and his good wife, the Madam and I owe a debt of lasting gratitude for the pleasant times of our early days in Sudan.

The war across the waters was full swing, as we know, and America had not as yet joined the big fracas as an ally on either side. So the main topic of discussion, when the cowboys drifted in, was the war and who would come out ahead. Newspapers came in via the "Lizzie" express from the nearest post-office at Littlefield. We made our roads wherever we wanted to go, and when the newspapers carried the kind of a story we wanted to read we made a bee-line for home to take up the argument where we left last week and prove our assertions by the news from across the waters. They were, indeed, "hot times in the new town" in those days.

In the spring of 1918 we had the trees planted in the park. A dozen or more bespurred and unsaddled cowboys laid around while the work was in progress. They made up impromptu songs and semi-musically informed us how they would hang up their spurs and chaps in the limbs of the trees and bask in the shade of the elms and locusts ten years hence, telling the younger generation how the writer dreamed of starting a town in a cow country. They had the laugh on us then, but they are all gone and we are laughing last, for we are still here and the town is a living, thriving, throbbing reality.

Many times the question has been asked me, "How did you come to name the town Sudan?" In 1918 it was decided we were entitled to some service from Uncle Sam, so we applied for a post office. A petition was prepared and circulated, and signed by every man, woman and child in a radius of thirty-five to forty miles. Then it went to Washington, and we addressed our friends in Congress, asking their support in this movement. Favorable consideration was promised, but we had to decide on a new and exclusive name for our town. In the office of J. B. Wilson in Dallas, men had gathered to discuss the all-important question of naming the new village. Mr. Wilson suggested that three of us get busy and write a list of names from which we might make a selection. Mr. Furneaux and Mr. Temple jotted down all the names they could readily call to mind which were not already in use in Texas.

This writer looked on but did no writing. Being asked why by Mr. Wilson, he replied that he had only one name to suggest and that was "Sudan".

"Rub out all your names boys, Sudan is good enough," said Mr. Wilson. And that's how Sudan was named.

Mr. Wilson died several years ago, and in his passing Sudan lost a strong supporter—one who believed in her future and the writer lost one of the best friends he ever had.

A postmaster was the next requirement and the job was wished on the only man on the ground, the teller of this tale. In my office in the hotel a corner, four by six feet, was fenced off and the postoffice started in business. Only this after a well-dressed, easy going, soft spoken young fellow from the effete East had dropped in on me, asked me to tell him the main points of interest in Lamb County, ascertained that I knew in which direction the morning and evening trains ran and that I could read an address in case some mail should reach the new postoffice. Some of the office supplies came early, but a scale was not among them. We had started a store in the old frame building in the meantime, and took packages to the store to be weighed, guessing at the weight of the letters. Getting tired of this sort of post office management I finally advised the Department that unless they sent me some scales I would suspend business. The scales came, pronto.

We had a twenty-four hour mail service in the postoffice here in those days. Every man who had signed the petition reasoned that he was entitled to accommodation at any time. I was routed out of bed to see if there was any mail for the belated caller. But, it was all in the day's work in those good old days, and I wasn't doing any more for him than he would have done for me under like circumstances.

We built a cottage for a railroad agent, as we were getting tired of being ignored by the Santa Fe, their trains merely

MY HOMETOWN

(Editor's note: This poem was written by Supt. W. B. Biggers, who was superintendent of Sudan schools in the 30's. It was presented at a Rotary Club meeting and then published in the local paper.)

While a lad in Central Texas, struggling upward through the grades, I acquired a store of knowledge from my teachers—some old maids.

I was taught that all West Texas lay in a barren desert plain. Seared by hot winds, chilled by blizzards, swept by sand storms void of rain.

I was taught that care-free cowboys rode their mustangs hard as nails. Through the chaparral and cactus, rustling dogies for the trails.

The "Llano Estacado", thus called this Western Plain Lay a wasted, useless sand dune where the coyote held full reign.

Years passed by then adventure drew me, when a man full grown.

To this land of desert mystery, to explore this great unknown. Wonder seized upon my being! Knowledge gained through years of toil, Fled as coming o'er the "caprock", I beheld my first Plain's soil.

Disappointed to the fullest! There no sand dunes did I see, There no bear grass, there no cactus, no Coyotes to howl at me.

But, instead were waving corn fields, seas of cotton, cows and hens;

Sun-tanned farmers on their tractors happy o'er their bustling bins

Lovely homes along good highways, who beheld the glorious sight.

In the midst of all this beauty, nestled a lovely spot,

Lies a little city, where I chose to cast my lot.

It is not at all pretentious, modest and without renown, But, through the years I've learned to love this spot—SUDAN. It's my hometown.

My town is built, as others are of spirit, soul and body. It boasts some homes and buildings rare. And others which are shoddy.

Some streets are paved, and some well kept, while some are left untrodden, Because of trash and water holes which leave the surface sodden.

Good schools and churches line the streets; a city park is handy. A "calaboose" is near at hand—the gym sure is dandy.

The business houses are well kept; the slogan—"You can get".

They'll sell you anything you want, but please don't ask for credit.

The soul of my town is expressed through men who love their neighbor;

Who stand together day by day in worship, play and labor.

They're Scotchmen to the very core when dealing with the penny.

They'll cheat the socks right off your feet—that is, if you have any.

They'll tell you this and tell you that, and smile with doubt-meaning,

But watch them when you start to trade, they'll take you to a cleaning.

But after all is said and done, our men are worth the money. We overlook these little traits, in fact, we think they're funny.

We know they do what they think best to make an honest living.

They make mistakes, but so do I, so why not be forgiving.

They do not mean to upon their brothers in their dealing;

But when their work is laid aside, then brother meets with brother;

They simply want to get some "boot" so stifle human feeling.

They gather 'round the festive board to razz and josh each other.

They come the highest and the low—the master and the votary. They eat, they laugh, they sing, they play— The spirit of their Rotary.

There's Arnold, Loyd and Dennis Brown, there's Joe and Bill and Charlie.

There's Harold, Lee and Simon D., who pitches mail for Farley.

There's John and Ray and Wood and Reed; there's Ves and Billie Biggers;

There's Sylvan, Cliff and Forrest, too, and Herb, who keeps the figures,

And, then there's Sarge, the "Clovis Fan" who drinks his straight peruna,

And last the druggist, Old Bev

Allegiance to the flag they love— Old Freedom's Star flung banner.

They sing the songs their mothers sang; they sing of sunny weather They sing of Happy days to Come—"the more we get together".

At times they're dignified and staid when someone brings a lady.

Sometimes the "King Fish" calls them down when stories get too shady.

Sometimes a member makes a speech and holds the truth a' nought,

As he describes, with hands spread wide, the fish that John Dean caught.

And when the festive hour has passed, each goes back to his calling.

Each feeling that he has a friend and not afraid of falling.

Because he knows that should he fall, a tender hand will guide him.

For though they'll beat him in a trade, in life they'll stand beside him.

When lights burn low and trails grows dim; when burdens block the sunlight,

When sorrows come and death stalks near, and life seems black as midnight.

'Tis friends like these who lift the load from off our burdened heartstrings.

Who put us back upon the road that leads to where new life springs.

They have no method in their work; they razz, they josh, they bully;

They make you want to fight like _____ and then life comes back fully.

My town is full of men like these; they've built it with their labor.

They've stood together through the years; they've played the part of neighbor.

And so I would not trade my town for any habitation; .. I love her fame, I love her faults, I love her limitation. It's not the mortar nor the brick that makes a town attractive. But the men who mingle on the streets and keep their friendships active.

CHICKEN BOLOGNA—as it is called by common wisecrackers, "veal bologna"—is a result of research on blended meat products being conducted at Ohio State University. It's partly real meat and partly fine particles of chicken meat.

GOD'S GRACE--
YOUR FAITH!

Scripture: St. John 3: 16, 17.
"We have heard the joyful sound, Jesus Saves! Jesus Saves!"
Yes, we have heard and we have become joyful in the knowledge that Jesus Saves. But how often have we witnessed to the saving power of Christ, our Redeemer, Savior, Friend, and Lord?

What do you most need today? You need hope that you can live on forevermore! Because all humanity needs that hope. We have life, we know, and we want to live on; we do not want to die.

However, for some persons, this life has become so darkened, so filled with pain, so filled with sorrow, with weariness, and so filled with agony that they do not want to continue to live. And today we have more suicides, persons taking their own life because life has become unendurable. They have no hope that anyone can or will help them.

So, Christian, what about you and me? We know Christ as Savior and Lord, and we know that He can give any person a gift of eternal life that is filled with joy, love, delight, and peace. Do we tell it to others that they too, may have this abundant life?

Do we tell it to those who are about to "give up" in despair and hopelessness, that they, too, can have this new life of love and peace? Do we tell them that regardless of how sinful, how full of pain their life now is, Jesus can save and keep them in His love and power now and throughout eternity?
Do we live like we have this kind of life both now and forevermore?

May God help us to truly be His children, His witnesses that "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

"We have heard the joyful sound, Jesus Saves! Jesus Saves! Spread the tidings all around. Jesus Saves! Jesus Saves!"

Have all your neighbors really known
How much for them your love has grown?
They'll likely never know the facts
Unless we show them by our acts.
There's something we have often heard
An act will tell more than a word;
So kindly acts that we bestow,
Will surely let our neighbors know.

CITY IN THE MAKING...

officer of the present day, but he kept the depot open for any business that might chance to drift along.

In 1917 the families of Wm. H. Furneaux, C.M. Furneaux, and E. L. Weldon arrived in Sudan to start farming on lands they had previously purchased. In the fall of 1918 and through the year 1919 a few more farmers arrived. Through the winter of 1919-20, practically 36,000 acres of land around Sudan was contracted for by buyers from Oklahoma, portions of Texas, and various other sections. Owing to the unprecedented agricultural slump which swept the country about that time a large portion of these sales were never consummated.

As late as 1922 there were only as many as forty farms in this section. Thereafter, the farming population drifted in more rapidly and 1924 and 1925 they came in by the hundreds. With their advent the town of Sudan took on new life and has been keeping step with the progress of the country ever since. And there has never been any "rush-room" growth either in the town or country surrounding. That which has been built is permanent and substantial, and we have no fear of seeing vacant houses and deserted farms in this part of the plains.

It was in October, 1916, I first saw the Sudan country in the raw and my first impression of the country has been borne out. I sized it up then as the best body of agriculture land I had ever seen, either on the Plains or elsewhere. It has proven and is proving its excellence each successive year and those who are fortunate enough to own a chunk of the Sudan country, may indeed call themselves lucky. We have room for a few more families and I look for the coming summer and fall to bring them.

And that's the story of "how" of Sudan. It's a story to which chapters will be added as the years roll by, and it is at the hope of the writer that each chapter will be a bit brighter than its predecessor in telling of the material advance made by those in the country where Nature smells ever sweetly — around Sudan.
