BY DALTON

THE AGRICULTURE Department, of all people, recently conducted a study of average measurements of women in America. Know what they found out? The average woman's tongue is 8 inches long. Please, girls, I'm only joking.

LAST WEEK the parents of an Oregon soldier were trying to get the Army to rescind an order to send their 21-year-old son to Vietnam. The parents claimed their son was mentally retarded and has the mind of a 10-year-old.

The Army, however, told an Oregon congressman it found no reason to give the young man a mental disability discharge. This must mean that the soldier passed the mental, which in turn would cast doubt on the family's claims. Of course, as everyone knows, however, it's quite possible the military loused up somewhere and inducted him anyway.

If he really has the mentality of only a 10-year-old, he doesn't belong in the Army, unless they want to make an officer out of him. Actually, he sounds more like Pentagon material.

IN DALLAS recently a group of scientists were told by a professor that good protein in a pregnant woman's diet may play a key role in the development of healthy offspring. This was reported by the Associated Press, which made no comment on the name of this fellow who was talking to all these people about what a person should eat. His name? Dr. Bacon F. Chow.

WHILE I'M on the topic of the Army, and while I'm criticizing them, we might note that the Army is promoting a bunch of Negro officers to the rank of colonel, with the announced objective of stimulating Negro enlistment as career servicemen. In other words, the reason these officers are being promoted is because they are Negroes, not because they deserve promotion, although they may all be deserving, so far as I know.

There seems to be something wrong with the motives stated in this action.

FIRE DEPT HAS EMERGENCY PHONE

The Sudan Fire Department's new emergency telephone number is 227-4321. This number is located at the City Hall and in these firemen's residences: Pete Phillips, Bob Taylor, Pat Kent, Orville Hill, and Mack Templeton. If at any time an emergency arises, a person can dial the emergency number and one of the above persons will take the call. This number is to be used for any kind of emergency—not just a fire.

Stickers with the emergency number will be mailed to local residents in the near future. If any person does not receive one,

Bellamy - Spencer Vows Read In Shreveport

The wedding of Miss Helen Mae Spencer of Houston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Clinton Spencer of Shreveport, La., and Ronald Gene Bellamy of Houston, son of Mrs. Gus Bellamy and the late Mr. Bellamy of Sudan took place Saturday evening, Dec. 28 in the chapel of Noel Memorial Methodist Church.

The former Miss Spencer chose a formal length gown of ivory silk peau de soie and re-embroidered Alencon lace, fashioned in empire silhouette. The lace bodice featured a bateau neckline and bell sleeves. Motifs of the lace were applied on the A-line skirt and the chapel length train fell from the shoulder in the Watteau fashion. She wore a shoulder length mantilla of matching Alencon lace. Her cascade bouquet was of feathered carnations centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Gibbs Mood attended her sister as matron of honor and another sister, Mrs. George Robert Hays, was bridesmaid as was Mrs. Gary L. Beckworth. They wore formal gowns of Christmas red velvet designed on A-line. Matching French bows adorned their hair and their bouquets were white poinsettias.

James Franklin Hunter was best man and the groomsmen were D. Ralph Bellamy and H. Gibbs Mood. Ushers were Gus E. Bellamy, Leslie Lee Spencer, and Roy Ingram.

Following the reception in the church parlor, the couple left on a wedding trip to Biloxi, Miss. They will reside in Houston.

Cotton Price Support Formula For Payments

Since the announcement of 1969 cotton program provisions, several have asked about the formula by which the price support payments plus the price support loan equals 65 percent of parity on 100 per cent of allotments as required by law for 1969. Donald Johnson, executive vice president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., says he has answered several letters and telephone calls on the matter and feels the following explanation is in order.

The formula for setting the price support payment level is a part of the law itself and is not overly complicated if the proper figures are used.

The law states that the payment rate, when multiplied by the farm domestic allotment percentage (65 percent), divided by the permissible acreage (100 percent in 1969), and added to the national average loan rate, shall not be less than 65 percent of the parity price of cotton for the month in which the rate is announced.

"Where most people make their mistake," Johnson says, "is in using the loan rate for Middling-inch cotton instead of the national average loan rate as prescribed in the law."

The loan rate for Middling-inch cotton in 1969 is set at 20.25 cents per pound. But the loan rate for the national average of the crop figures 54 points lower, at 19.71 cents. The price support payment for 1969 was announced to be 14.73 cents per pound, paid on domestic allotments only.

So, using the formula, you come up with 14.73 cents times 65 per cent, or 9.57.

Divide this figure by 100 per cent and you still have 9.57. Add it to 19.71 and you get 29.28.

Parity was 45.04 cents per pound, 65 per cent of which is 29.28 cents, the same figure which comes out of the formula.

More practically, consider that you plant all of a 100 acre allotment with a projected and actual yield of 500 pounds.

The price support payment will be made on 65 per cent of your total projected yield, or 32,500 pounds. Those pounds times 14.73 will give you a payment of $4,787.25.

All of your production, 50,000 pounds, will be eligible for the loan. The loan rate, assuming your crop conforms

W. E. GREATHOUSE RITES HELD

Funeral services for Wiley Early Greathouse, 82, a retired Oklaunion farmer who died Friday morning in a Houston nursing home after an illness of several months, were conducted Sunday afternoon in the Sullivan Funeral Home Chapel.

T. G. McCord, former minister of Oklaunion Church of Christ officiated, and burial was in East View Cemetery at Vernon.

He was the son of the late Paul E. Greathouse of Sudan and had visited in this area since 1929 with his parents, brother and sisters.

Surviving are two sons, Johnson W. Greathouse of Dallas and Gene V. Greathouse of Houston; one brother, Marvin Greathouse of Sudan; four sisters, Mrs. Lula Bernethy and Mrs. Best Stark, both of Sudan, Mrs. Blanche Stark of Tyler and Mrs. Pearl Stokes of Kilgore and three grandchildren.

to the national average, will be 19.71 cents per pound, so you'd be eligible for another $9,855.00.

Put these two total figures together and total cotton income is $14,642.26; almost exactly the same as the $14,640.00 you get by multiplying 65 percent of the parity price for cotton (29.28 cents) times your 50,000 pound production.

Of course the overall, or blended, price of your cotton will not necessarily be 29.28 cents per pound. This will only be true if your crop conforms exactly to the national average quality and if you produce exactly your projected yield.
