WOODWORK

BY DALTON

A COUPLE OF NEA writers, Carlton Smith and Richard Pratt, in their column, "Your Personal Finance" recently reported how a person becomes a member of the "affluent society." The formula for success is now available to all, and it turns out to be just as simple as our forefathers thought it was: You work hard—long hours and weekends.

Nearly one of every five breadwinners in the nation is discovering that a long work week is the price of ticket to the leisure class—except they don't have much time for leisure. It was reported that many executives, highly-paid professional men, and business owners work more than 60 hours a week, some more than 70. For most of us, this kind of affluence is hardly worth the price.

What the writers didn't say is that vast numbers of salaried persons work at two or more jobs. In cities like Lubbock, Plainview and Amarillo, persons we know who are employed for 40-hour or 48-hour weeks, invariably have part-time jobs somewhere else. And some hold down two full-time jobs. Most feel that this is necessary, not to be wealthy (as the NEA team suggested), but simply to meet the expenses of living.

HAIL THE rugged outdoorsman who takes his brood bravely into the wilds and roughs it amidst nature's wonders. Everybody these days seems to be loading up with tents and lanterns from Sears & Roebuck and going off into the forests and hills for a week or two of primitive living. I like it myself.

It seems, though, that most of us aren't too hot for the primitive bit. The Associated Press recently noted that the new breed of American camper likes the soft life and demands some of the comforts of home while allegedly roughing it in a national park. Says the AP: "This new style camper is a gregarious sort and would rather be crowded next to others of like mind than by himself in a remote area. He wants the great outdoors to be equipped with electrical outlets and convenient plumbing and is more interested in parking space than in hiking trails."

These electrical outlets, it stated, often are wanted for such things as television sets and hair dryers, two of the things many of us want to flee from.

Maybe I'm a softie, but I'm not that soft. I don't mind the power outlets, but neither will I fuss if they aren't there.

Scripture: I Corinthians 13,
I John 2:15, 25; 3:10, 11.

".... And though I give my body to be burned, and have not love, it profiteth me nothing." Have you read this 13th chapter of I Cor. and looked at the power and great need of love? How much do you love? Is your service to man given because of love - love of God and love of your neighbor as yourself? Are you doing a service for others? Have you ever heard anyone say, "But they do so many good things..." How long will it take for us to grow in the knowledge of God enough to realize that it is not what we do, but what we are and our motives for what we do, that is of first importance.

If love is so important, so necessary—why do you suppose there is so much hate?

Look at this chapter on love and what it can do. We may speak in many languages, make beautiful speeches, understand all mysteries and knowledge, even have enough faith in God to remove mountains, give all our goods to feed the poor, and give our bodies to be burned, yet if we have not love, it is nothing and profiteth us nothing.

So, what is this perfect love, the ideal for which a Christian strives? This love, which is in a Christian's heart because while we were yet sinners, Christ loved us and willingly died for us. How much have you grown up in your love for Christ Jesus, the Lord?

What is the evidence of this love within our hearts? Love suffers long and is kind, envies not and is not puffed up. Love seeks not her own, but seeks for her neighbor's good; is not easily provoked, is not glad for sin, but rejoiceth in the truth. Love engenders in a person faith, patience, hope, endurance of all things. Love never fails.

"When I was a child I spoke as a child..." Have you begun to put away childish things?

Faith, hope, love - but the greatest of these is love. "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord."

Is Jesus Your Savior and Lord?

Have you praised God for His love and blessings today - even for life itself? Let us be Thankful!

MAY BIRTHDAYS

May 10, 1926—A detachment of U. S. marines landed at Bluefields, Nicaragua, following outbreak of insurrection there. The force, under Rear Adm. Julian L. Latimer, was withdrawn June 5.

May 17, 1930—Earle Sande rode his 3rd Kentucky Derby winner, the great Gallant Fox, who went on to win the Triple Crown. The prize was $50,725.

May 21, 1881—The American Red Cross was organized by Clara Barton at Washington, D. C.

May 24, 1883—The Brooklyn Bridge was opened for traffic.

LEWIS LLEWELLYN

Is This a Time For Hatred?

Is this a time for hatred? Dr. Nathan Hare, a professor at San Francisco State College, says it is—and he quotes the Bible in support of his position.

Dr. Hare, who was to have headed the "black studies" department at the college—until Dr. Hayakawa, acting president of the institution, announced that his contract would not be renewed—said last month, "The Bible says there is a time for everything and I think this is a time for hate."

In Chicago, after memorial services for Dr. Martin Luther King were held on April 3 in some of the city's high schools, Negro students poured out of the schools and indiscriminately attacked white people, throwing bricks, bottles, and stones at passing cars.

A Negro journalist who was an eyewitness reported that the "outburst was a demonstration of hate."

Sharp Contrast

There can be little question that there are some in our nation who are feeding the fires of hatred, attempting—with far too much success—to pit one group of people against another.

This is exactly the opposite of the attitude of Mary McLeod Bethune, noted Negro educator who was the founder of Bethune-Cookman College, at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Dr. Bethune said, "I leave you love. I leave you hope. I leave you a respect for the use of power. I leave you faith. I leave you racial dignity. I leave you a desire to live harmoniously with your fellow-man."

What a difference between this statement and that of Dr. Hare!

In his eulogy of former President Dwight Eisenhower, President Nixon said, "He was genuinely puzzled by frenzy and by hate because he was incapable of it himself. He was puzzled by the hatred he had seen in our times."

It is true that the Bible says, "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven: a time to love, and a time to hate."

The quoted passage is from the third chapter of Ecclesiastes. However, this book records the thoughts of Solomon—not the commands of the Lord—as anyone who takes the time to read the book should readily understand.

Hatred—or Love?

It is possible, by taking Scripture quotations out of their context, to make the Bible appear to support almost any notion that anyone may wish to promote.

Satan is quoted in the Bible as it would be possible to take his words and quote them, saying, "The Bible says..." But it would not be a valid use of the Scripture.

Nor is Dr. Hare's statement a valid use of the Scripture. Everyone knows that Jesus taught love—not hate.

Perhaps this would be a good time for us all to pray the prayer of St. Francis of Assisi: "Where there is hatred, let me sow love."

THOUGHT FOR MEDITATION

A service I can give to you, is something I should gladly do, Not in return or paying back, To recompense some kindly act, Not to expect, to long or yearn, For something given in return, But service I would gladly do, Because I'm really wanting to.
