DRIVING down the street the other day, I had the car radio on without really listening, until I finally was so irritated by the repetition in an alleged song that I tried to figure out what they were saying.

I'm still not sure, but it sounded like "Dumb Ditty Duckworth If You Don't Give Up. " I must have listened to the song for a minute or so, all the time holding my right hand in a death grip on the steering wheel to keep it from cutting off the radio. It was at a time when nearly all the radio station music was Christmas-type stuff, but I'm blamed if I could see any connection between Dumb Ditty Duckworth and Santa Claus, not to mention the birth of a savior. Finally I could stand it no longer, and I changed stations. Sure enough, this one also was playing Dumb Ditty Duckworth, or that's still what the mumbles of the singing group sounded like. It's a dumb ditty.

where during the holidays, you'd better take a plane. Flying by auto and even by homemade wings is a little dangerous. Some guy in England decided he'd fly over a bridge or something the other day with some homemade wings strapped on. He fell in the water in front of a big crowd right after he leaped.

However, if you plan to fly by airliner, you might be able to get some kind of discount off the full rate, but it's not too likely during the holiday period, when the airlines probably can get most of their passenger seats occupied.

If you're willing to wait until the holiday rush is over, some airlines might offer you a pretty good deal, according to NEA writer Richard Pratt. He points out that one airline offers night flights at 20 per cent off the daytime rate. Another moneysaver offered in one form or another by most airlines is the family plan: If dad buys a standard ticket, mom and the kids all get cut rates. A common arrangement is for 25 per cent off the wife's ticket and twothirds off each of the children's tickets.

He also mentions excursion fares, student fares and "triangle fares. " I was pretty interested in that last one, figuring it might involve me and my wife and one of the hostesses, but this is just a gimmick for flying a triangular course which takes you out of the way of your regular flight to visit some big attraction like Mexico City.

The lovely Christmas poinsettia came from Mexico, and received its name from Dr. Joel Poinsett of Charleston, S. C. who introduced it to the United States. It is another flower that only has red leaves, not petals, surrounding the tiny flowers.

It will grow in gardens in the South, and reaches heights of two to ten feet.

It is associated with Christmas mainly because of its red and green coloring, and some say it is a replica of the star of Bethlehem that guided the shepherds to the Christ child.

The Bible tells us, "Perilous times shall come"-and the newspapers tell us that they have now come.

Dr. Walter C. Langsam, president of the University of Cincinnati, has said, "Current problems being experienced on campuses are only one manifestation of a much broader problem. . . . The real danger facing our nation is not turmoil on campuses, but a national revolution." You may consider Dr. Langsam's statement to be too extreme Perhaps the trouble is that Dr. Langsam and others who are trying to alert the people of the nation to the clear and present danger are losing credibility because they are using the wrong word, "revolution," instead of the applicable one, "rebellion."

A rebellion, you know, is an attempted revolution.

A revolution is a rebellion which succeeds in overthrowing the government,

The American people are certainly not in a mood to believe that people like Jerry Rubin and David Dellinger and Bobby Seale are going to succeed in their attempt to destroy our nation. But only a fool would refuse to take seriously their intention to do this if they can.

Are You Part of Problem?

Bobby Seale, chairman of the Black Panther Party, has been widely quoted as saying, "Everybody falls into two categories. You are either part of the problem-or part of the solution. Being part of the solution means you're going to grab a shotgun and take to the barricades, killing if necessary. Being part of the problem means you're on the other end of the shotgun. There is no in-between. We will take steps to eliminate the problem." If this were just talk, we premium micronaire range tendered to the loan this year brought $101.25 plus $2.25, or a total of $103.50. A similar bale tendered in 1971 will figure $93.40, about two cents per pound less. The initial payment rate for cotton will be 15 cents per pound, with a supplementary payment to be made later if the average market price of middling-inch, good micronaire cotton for the first five months of the marketing year drops below 20 cents. The payment will be made on base cotton acreage allotments equal to about 67 per cent of this year's total allotment. The payment yield for 1971 will be the average of 1969 and 1970 projected yields and the 1970 actual yield. An adjustment of this average will be due if (1) yield in 1970 was adversely affected by abnormal weather or (2) total production on the farm in 1970 was at least equal to the pounds on which payment was made in 1970. The cotton set-aside requirement for 1971 has been set at an acreage equal to a maximum of 20 per cent of base allotments. This was announced as tentative, and could be lowered following a survey of planting intentions to be conducted by USDA in late December and early January, but most observers do not expect the 20 per cent requirement to be changed. Two rows or more skipped in cotton can be used toward satisfying the set-aside requirement.

The options open to farmers in 1971 are far more numerous than ever before. Prior to the days of acreage controls and various types of price supports farm operators made planting decisions purely on the basis of production and price potential for the various commodities. In recent years allotments, overplanting penalties and the availability of economic benefits to government program "cooperators" to a large degree have dictated farm determina-

The law for 1971 requires neither cross-complaince between crops nor cross-compliance between farms, giving producers the option to be in the program on one crop and out of the program on another. There is almost no limit to the number of choices available. This vastly greater freedom for farmers on the High Plains will doubtless bring about significant changes in the structure of High Plains agriculture over the next three years.

We are all good Christians at Christmas time. We endorse the pretty stories of Baby Jesus. We may even teach our children, "Gentle Jesus, meek and mild, look upon a little child."

We love to think about the miracle of birth. We glorify the rise of the stable-born child to legendary immortality.

There's no doubt about it, Christmas is inspiring. Why else would we give gifts to almost everyone we know, and many people we don't even like? There must be a magic in Christmas.

Don't kid yourself.

The only magic in Christmas any more is advertising.

Jesus was not born to plug babyhood, not to celebrate fertility, not to encourage personal achievement, not to inspire pleasant thoughts, and certainly not to stimulate the national economy.

Those are man-made reasons for Christmas. And if we want to celebrate those "virtues" let's rename it "Merry Man-mass." And some day it may come to be known as "Merry Humanmass.'

Worth Celebrating

Jesus Christ was born to show us what God is like, and then to enable us to live in Godlikeness.

His birth is worth celebrating only because of His life. We understand only what we can contact with our senses. Consider the difficulty you have knowing what truth is, or beauty, an honest man. You know beauty when you see it in a painting or a flower. You know love when you experience it with another person. Apart from a particular expression of truth, beauty, or love, there is no way to know such an abstraction.

Among Sudan residents con-

Similarly, it would be impossible truly to know God if Jesus had not come to earth to show us what God is really like.

That is worth celebrating! God became man in physical form to teach us about God's spiritual existence. Jesus furthermore demonstrated what it is like to live a God-like spiritual life within our physical and temporal limitations. Jesus showed that God is real.

Jesus showed that God is knowable.

Jesus showed that God is an adequate companion for living an adult human life.

"We Beheld His Glory"

That is Christmas, not the birth of a baby, but the beginning of the life of Jesus Christ.

"And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only-begotten from the Father, full of grace and truth." "For the law was given through Moses; grace and truth were realized through Jesus Christ. No man has seen God at any time; the only begotten God Who is in the bosom of the Father, He has explained Him."
