WOODWORK By DALTON

IT HAS been said that if a person listens long enough around here, he can hear anything. Ralph Stewart first told me that when he was principal at Sudan several years ago, and it applies to most communities. There's a good deal of truth in that observation, because of the tendency of people to gossip and to be pretty careless at times about their facts.

By the same reasoning, one might say that if you read enough, you eventually will find someone who writes the opinion you want to read, and you then may praise this writer as a smart fellow whose opinions agree with yours, and ignore all writing to the contrary.

You may then go ahead and do what you wanted to do all the time, feeling comfortable in the knowledge that you have some "expert" to quote in support of your views. This type of rationalization is common with cigarette smokers and chocolate pie eaters. They know what they're doing is bad for them, but they keep searching until they find someone who asserts boldly that there's no proof that what they're doing will hurt them.

I love all foods which are bad for me, and conversely can't force down those things which are supposed to make up good diet. On the two occasions I have undergone physical examinations in the last 10 years the doctors told me I was too fat (you pay all that money to get insulted) and my cholesterol level was higher than it ought to be... and all the time I felt like I was about a quart low.

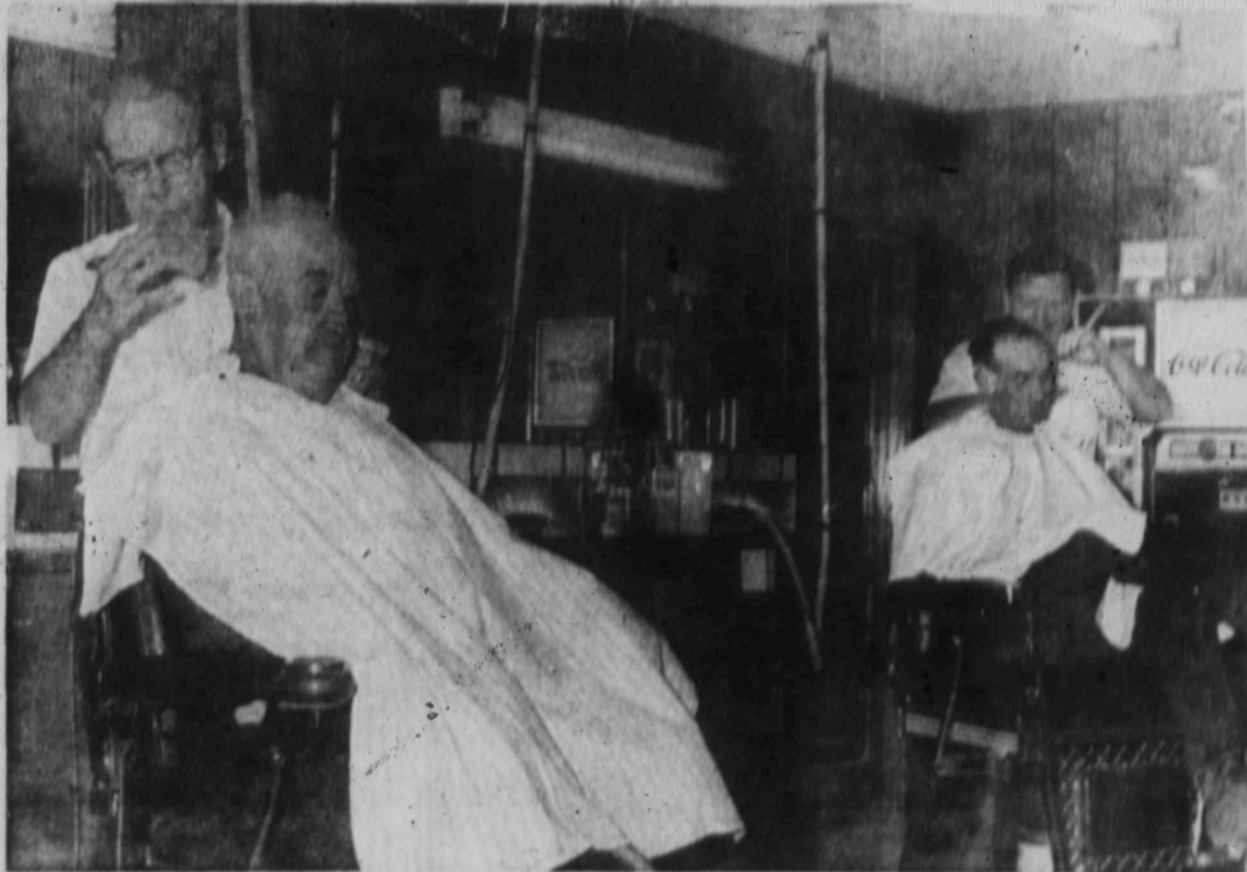

Anyway, they both told me to stop eating so many eggs and pork chops and bacon. It's funny to me that doctors never tell you to quit eating turnips or egg plant or cottage cheese or peanut butter and Vick's Salve sandwiches. The rule of thumb seems to be, "If it tastes good, don't eat it." But thank goodness—I have found a doctor who says eating eggs won't increase my cholesterol level. (He isn't perfect, though; he wants us to quit eating so much candy and cakes).

John C. White, Texas Agriculture commissioner, sends along a copy of an address by Dr. Robert C. Atkins, New York City, a specialist in diet, nutrition, internal medicine and problems related to heart disease.

In essence, what he said was that most of the cholesterol in our blood is manufactured, not eaten, so we might as well eat eggs. However, for the 25 percent that can be blamed on diet, he points the finger at sugar, not eggs and pork products.

Now if I can just find someone who will declare that the height-weight tables are all cockeyed, and it's healthier to eat all the sweets you can get and that fat people really live longer and feel better than skinny ones...

SPEAKING OF appetizing meals, how about that guy who eats all the light bulbs? He ate 14 bulbs and a lens from the sheriff's glasses in front of a bunch of newsmen and officers the other day at McKinney. This sure sounds like an early April Fool's gag to me, but the Associated Press reported it as truth.

I knew a kid who drank ink when I was in grade school. He was always feeling blue inside.

And one last comment about eating: It's been said that indigestion is the inability to adjust a square meal to a round stomach.

Money for Your Education

Scholarship seekers can now utilize computer technology to search out scholarship facts relating to themselves. "Scholarship Search", a computerized financial aid program of American Educational Dimensions, Inc., has just completed an intensive research program that results in the storing of almost all available scholarship data in one computer.

Available data includes questions relating to their field of study, their race, institutions they wish to attend, their financial situation, and other factors which may be of interest to the student.

The program is available to students of all ages and backgrounds. It is a free service provided by American Educational Dimensions, Inc., a non-profit organization. For more information, contact the company at 500 South Main Street, Suite 400, South Tower, Orange, California 92668 or send your check for $20 and receive the "Scholarship Search" application by return mail.

For example, here are scholarships for students of Polish descent, left-handed students, Negro students who wish to study poultry farming, students interested in ecology, forestry, foreign service, and a wide array of subjects. Nearly everyone has scholarship potential, hence "Scholarship Search" guarantees that an applicant must receive at least ten potential scholarships, or the $20 fee is refunded. Most applicants receive twenty or more possibilities.

Further information on this program may be obtained by writing to American Educational Dimensions, Inc., 500 South Main Street, Suite 400, South Tower, Orange, California 92668 or send your check for $20 and receive the "Scholarship Search" application by return mail.

SALES TAX RELIEF ON PARTS....

happy to announce Ruling No. 95-0.13 made public by Robert S. Calvert on Article 20.04(N), dealing with State and City sales tax in the state of Texas.

REPAIR PARTS specifically designed for farm equipment sold over the counter or sold through the shop are now classified as FARM EQUIPMENT and, therefore are not subject to the sales tax. However, under the new ruling it will be necessary to continue collecting the tax on EXPENDABLE supplies such as hand tools, grease, lubricants, work clothes, bolts, washers, building materials, and personal items. Machinery or equipment includes those items purchased to be assembled into a farm machine or a piece of equipment such as parts. We feel that this is certainly a tax break for our farmer customers.

CAPPING CEREMONY HELD FRIDAY

Karen Doty was among the 18 students of the School of Vocational Nursing at South Plains College to receive her nurses cap in a ceremony Friday, March 24, at 3 p. m. in the Student Center Auditorium. The ceremony is held between the pre-clinical and clinical phase of training.

John Morton, a member of Board of Regents, gave the invocation with Dean Hunt giving the welcome and introducing platform guests including instructors, vocational nursing advisory committee and representatives from Gideons.

During the ceremony the students knelt before their coordinator instructor, Mrs. Nevelle Danner, as she placed and pinned the caps on each student. The Gideon representatives presented each student with a white Bible. Mrs. Brown, instructor, then lit a candle carried by each student from a Florence Nightingale type candle lamp.

Brenda Bryant, accompanied at the piano by Debbie Bridges, students from the Fine Arts Department, sang "One Little Candle".

A reception followed the Capping Ceremony in the Student Union Lounge.

Karen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Doty and is presently in the clinical phase of her training at the University Hospital, Lubbock.

My Neighbors

"Stretch the roast, company's coming," she says.

Chain Locks Add Sound

Sound effects have been added to the familiar chain door lock.

A new device just introduced uses the customary case-hardened chain recommended by police departments to bar burglars but also contains a shrill battery-powered whistle loud enough to 1) frighten the intruder and 2) alert either the occupant or his neighbors. The household can activate or deactivate the device with a key, so it can deter burglars whether he is at home or away.

Alkaline batteries are said to have 25 per cent greater energy density and up to 10 times more life than carbon-zinc batteries.
