JANUARY 31 TAX DEADLINE

by Dalton

THE FARMER'S ALMANAC, a traditional publication in this nation since the pilgrims stumbled over Plymouth Rock (or anyway, soon after that) is out again. It is filled with lots of information, some useful, some whimsical, some useless. A gain, the best thing about it is the joke section. An example of the jokes:

Q. Do you know what good clean fun is?

A. No, what good is it? Or how about this one?

The telephone rang in the maternity ward and an excited voice came through. "This is Harold Smith, and I'm bringing my wife in—she's about to have a baby!"

"Calm down," the attendant said. "Tell me, is this her first baby?"

"No," the voice replied. "This is her husband!"

Four important tax deadlines face taxpayers and employers in Texas during January, W. T. Coppinger, District Director of Internal Revenue Service for North Texas, said today.

Employers are reminded that the deadline to give employees their 1972 W-2 forms is Wednesday, Jan. 31, 1973. The form should show earnings, income tax withheld and Social Security information. January 31 is also the deadline for reporting Social Security and withheld income taxes for the calendar quarter ended December 31, 1972. If employers make timely deposits of the full amount of the tax due, ten additional days are allowed to file the return. The Director said that employers who received a pre-addressed Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return", should use this form to report their tax liability. Other employers can obtain blank copies from their local IRS office.

The last day of January is also the last day to report and pay any balance of Federal Unemployment Tax not over $100.00 for 1972, using Form 940. If the balance of tax due is over $100.00, the employer must make a deposit with FTD Form 508. If the full amount of the tax is deposited on time, employers may then file the return no later than February 10, 1973.

Texas farmers and fishermen who did not file a declaration of estimated Federal individual income tax by January 15 may have a tax deadline of March 1, 1973. Coppinger said that if at least two thirds of the gross income was earned from farming or fishing, and no estimate was filed by January 15, 1973, these taxpayers must file their 1972 Federal income tax return and pay any tax due by Thursday, March 1, 1973, to avoid penalty for underpayment of estimated tax.

Among the differences spelled out in the article (and I have no idea if the article is accurate) are these: The average woman's body is 35 per cent muscle, and the average man's body is 41 per cent (then how come my wife always wins when we Indian wrestle?), the "tired businessman" is an old joke, but it is women who are most likely to get physically tired, partially because of blood differences—a man's blood is 75 per cent water (yeah, ice water). Women consume mere aspirin—70 per cent of women complain of headaches and five women are migraine sufferers for every two men so afflicted. One man in 25 is color-blind, and only one woman in 2501.

Researchers on the potential of women conclude that in most occupations, if positions were based solely on aptitudes, men and women would be found in approximately equal numbers. In other words, women can do a job as well as men.

I believe I'll leave that one alone, too.

YOUNG-HOMEMAKERS TO HOST SENIOR CITIZENS

The Young Homemakers will host Senior Citizens February 9, 1973 when the theme will be "Cherished Crafts Through The Ages." They are asking that the Senior Citizens bring their hobbies, handiwork or craft to display during the program.

A style show "Fashions Through the Ages" will be held and if Senior Citizens wish, they may wear something from the past.

The Young Homemakers are setting up a contribution center at the First National Bank for the March of Dimes drive Saturday, with receipts given for each donation. Members of the Future Homemakers of America will assist in the drive by conducting "hold-ups" on Hold-Up Day, Saturday, Jan. 27.

KEY '73

"Key '73". It sounds like a very unique title doesn't it? Just what is Key '73? No, it isn't just a "word" followed by two numbers. It is a movement! Not only that—it is a "Doing"—an interdenominational evangelistic movement around the continent calling us to witness God's word. Are we going to be bypassed by this spirit-filled movement? No! We are going to react, and we are going to do it NOW!

All people who wish to find out about this Key '73 and its work for Jesus are urged to come to the Key '73 meeting at The Methodist Church Tuesday, January 30th at 4:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Key '73 is a voluntary movement of more than 150 Christian denominations who are co-operating with each other in a massive campaign during 1973. Following the theme, "Calling Out Continents to Christ", the participating denominations have planned things to do which will bring the common beliefs of all Christians forward to be seen by all. These events range from a massive Bible distribution that aims at placing a portion of scripture in every home to summertime rallies for Jesus.

The Key '73 movement is the largest cooperative program in the history of North American Christianity. Participation includes most Protestant denominations, many Catholic dioceses and individual parishes as well as many evangelistic associations such as The Billy Graham Association, Campus Crusade for Christ, and The American Bible Society. Nearly 95% of all Christians are related to Key '73 through their denominations.

You are missing a great opportunity to share in the building up of the Body of Christ. If you don't share, see if you want to participate in Key '73. Come to the meeting and discover if you fit into this work for Jesus.

On January 13, 1973, the local volunteer Sudan Fire Department answered a call to a grass fire at 5 p. m. at the rent house occupied by John Drake on the property of R. D. Nix. The fire was brought under control with no damage reported.

Another grass fire was reported Jan. 17 at 4 p. m. by Mrs. J. D. Chester with no damage there.

A call was answered at 3:45 p. m. on Jan. 18 to a rent property storage house and grass fire owned by Willie Williams.

STOCK SHOW TO BE HELD SATURDAY

The Sudan 4-H and FFA project show will be held this Saturday, Jan. 27, at the FFA project barn. All trophies for the show will be furnished by Pay & Save, and all of the ribbons will be furnished by the First National Bank.

Many of the animals which will be shown Saturday, are already at the barn, with other animals to be brought in Friday night and Saturday morning. All animals must be in place by 10:00 a. m. Saturday with judging to begin at 1:00 p. m. with lambs, followed by swine and steers in that order.

A showmanship award will be given in each of the three divisions.

Judge for the three divisions will be Roy McClung, county agent of Cochran County. Show superintendent is Jack Downs, assisted by Kenneth Noles. Swine superintendent is Leonard Pierce; Wayne Swart, sheep superintendent; Louis Fields, steer superintendent.

A "work day" will be held Friday when parents of FFA and 4-H members will help get the barn and area around the barn ready for the show.

At the present time, there are approximately 66 animals entered in the show which includes five steers, 32 lambs, and 29 gilts.

"Everyone is invited to come to the show and watch the placing of these animals. I feel the quality of the animals this year is as good as we have ever had and in some areas better than usual", states Don Ham, the local FFA advisor.

that the "rebounding, especially, defensively was below par, however our fast break, zone press, and man defense showed improvement."

Richard Tamplin was chosen as HUSTLIN' HORNET for the game with 21 points, 15 rebounds, and 3 assists.

A "cold" third quarter for the locals gave Vega the needed impetus to "swat" the Hornets Friday night at Vega 54-39.

The Hornets trailed 24-26 at halftime when they came on strong in the second frame when Kim Ingram managed six points, after the Vega lead of 8-0 in the first quarter was cut by the sharpshooting Don Noles who specializes in 25 foot set shots.

Keith Downs kept the Hornets in the game as Vega dominated the third quarter. Downs blocked five shots and got six rebounds. Hanna displayed great passing ability as he accounted for six assists and 10 points in the game.

Kim Ingram also scored 10, Noles 9, Tamplin 6, Downs 4, with E. Jefferson and R. Lynn

BASKETBALL RESULTS

The Hornets fell to a 2-3 district record at Kress with a 57-66 loss. Tied at the end of the first quarter, the Hornets trailed during the remainder of the game.

Both teams hit 36% from the field with Sudan leading in field goals 26-23. The difference came at the free-throw line where the Hornets hit 5 of 14 while Kress hit 20 of 35. Three Hornets left the game on fouls.

Mark Hanna led Sudan scoring with 16 points with most of the team members seeing action.

The Hornets fought back "gamely" Tuesday night against the Springlake Wolverines but were edged 35-58 after relinquishing a one point lead with two minutes to play.

Trailing 14-20 after the first quarter, Sudan narrowed the gap 28-30 at halftime. The lead swapped hands in the third and fourth quarters but the largest lead the Hornets could muster was two points. For the game, Sudan managed only 13 of 28 from the charity line while Springlake hit 14 of 22.

Coach Campbell commented,

Who's to Blame?

"The Buck Stops Here." I've always admired President Truman for keeping that motto on his desk. A courageous man it takes to accept responsibility for all the vagaries of American politics and government. Recently, however, I have come to realize that what Mr. Truman was doing was merely recognizing the fact of life that people will always blame the government. He didn't say "The buck stops here" because he honestly felt the injustices of our society were really his fault. He knew people wanted to believe they were, so he let them.

Passing the buck means shirking your responsibility and shifting the blame to someone else. It is cowardly of us as a nation to let any president bear our blame for us.

The Blame

Sovereignty in the United States is held by the citizens, and they too hold responsibility for their actions—even when those actions are performed for them through their governmental representatives. Are the authors of our Constitution to be blamed for refusing to ratify proposed articles prohibiting slavery? No. They were acting under pressures of expediency and compromise when morality had to yield to the practical necessity of establishing the union. The poet John Greenleaf Whittier had little right to call Daniel Webster "Ichabod"—meaning "the glory has departed"—when he supported the Fugitive Slave Act. The citizens were at fault for forcing on their legislator a moral choice they tried to abdicate. That he was compelled to choose slavery rather than civil war and the destruction of the union merely reflects the moral degeneracy of his nation's citizens, half of whom would rather go to war than give up their slaves. When Lincoln reversed Webster's choice, the war he feared ensued. Blame may have been bucked up to Lincoln, but it belonged with those inhuman citizens who supported slavery out of their greed.

It is "in" now to scorn the general apathy of our citizens and Congress, which is a non-judgmental way of saying that the people and their representatives condone a lot of unfair and corrupt behavior which they could correct.

The Guilt

All wrong-doing has consequences which persist and endure. As the Bible says, the sins of the fathers are made to live on in the children for sometimes three or four generations, or longer. Our forefathers' slavery has left its poison of racial prejudice in our system still.

Guilt, however, is individual. Before you try to put your finger on the blame-worthy cause of our country's turmoil, or your own moral weaknesses, face the truth squarely, point that finger at yourself, and say, "The buck stops here."

Drug Addiction Curb Launched by Sea Aid

The marine industry is helping to set a new course for young men who have been set adrift by drug addiction. Recognizing the need for skilled manpower in the marine industry, the South Street Seaport, with the help of the New York City Addiction Service Agency, has launched a new school to train former addicts in inboard and outboard engine mechanics electrical systems, and other skills leading to jobs in the marine industry.

graduate is virtually guaranteed through the efforts of industry professionals who are members of the Seaport committee that conceived and developed the program and is supervising its operations, says David Brink, program director.

Classes are held on board the old ferryboat General William H. Hart, docked at the South Street Seaport on the East River. The non-profit school hopes to graduate some 60 students at the end of its first year.

Insurrection Approved?

"Resurrection means insurrection." World Council of Churches General Secretary Philip Potter told the delegates to the triennial meeting of the Canadian Council of Churches, meeting in Winnipeg in November.

"Salvation means prosperity for people who have suffered and been oppressed," said Potter. According to him, the Bible has a pervasively political content.

It seems clear from what the World Council general secretary has said that one of two things is true; either he does not know what salvation is, or he does know and is deliberately intending to mislead his hearers.

Notably, he wants to be oppressed, and everyone would like to be prosperous, but to pervert the meanings of words to justify the perversion of the work of the church is indefensible.

Who Is Right?

These statements are consistent with the view that social and political action is the main concern of the church—that Christians should be more interested in correcting social and political inequities than in being reconciled to God through personal salvation.

But they are not at all consistent with the teaching of Jesus: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures up on earth... but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven... for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also... But seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

If Potter is right, Jesus was woefully ignorant of the real meaning of salvation, for he said, "A man's life does not consist in the abundance of the things which he possesses."

Regarding oppression, Jesus warned His disciples, "They shall deliver you up to be afflicted, and shall kill you." But He told them, "Rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for great is your reward in heaven."

If salvation were a matter of prosperity—in this life, its benefits would end at death, but the plain teaching of the Scriptures is that salvation is of eternal benefit.

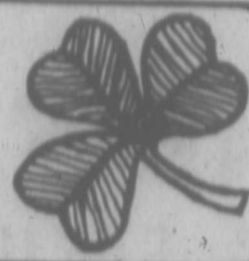

Why Approve Insurrection?

If Potter is right and the church should be oriented toward achieving prosperity in this life, rather than salvation from sin and a great reward in the hereafter, then Jesus was wrong.

But if Jesus is right, what is the general secretary of the World Council of Churches doing, when he declares that "salvation means prosperity for people who have suffered and been oppressed" and "resurrection means insurrection"?

Why does the spokesman for the World Council of Churches speak approvingly of insurrection?

What is his purpose?

Do you ever feel that products of a decade or so ago gave us more for our money than the things we buy today? It wouldn't be surprising since our memories of the past are often more nostalgic than factual.

Actually, you get more value for your dollar today than ever before, according to analyst F. Lee Moore, Jr., of Moore Research Company. In a wide cross-section of case histories, he found that values are ever-increasing in spite of the fact that price indexes seem to show the reverse.

He points out that consumers cannot really appreciate the changes that have taken place unless they make studies of products over the past ten years or more. Consumers and business have constantly substituted new and improved products for old. And comparing like-to-like but omitting the improvements hardly tells the true story.

Mexico Spells Out New Development Strategy

MEXICO CITY—Why has the Administration of President Luis Echeverria modified Mexico's development strategy? What are the objectives? What is the role of foreign capital within this new framework?

Undersecretary of the Presidency, Fausto Zapata Loredo, replied decisively to questions being asked both in Mexico and abroad. During a meeting of members of the Mexican Association of Sales and Marketing Executives, he said: "It is true the government has decided to modify our development strategy in view of the evident slowing of growth the country had enjoyed during the past three decades. We decided to change course when every sign indicated an imminent social crisis of serious dimensions."

A collapse of the system was widely signaled by a disproportionate concentration of income, growing unemployment, inflation and foreign dependence.

The new strategy, said Zapata, is designed "to achieve a more just distribution of income" by increasing employment opportunities and a broad social policy. Regional imbalances will gradually be corrected to permit better use of human and material resources, raise productivity, strengthen the domestic market and stimulate a more competitive position overseas. It will aim to reduce differences in income levels "and broaden the atmosphere of freedom."

Has President Echeverria decided to limit certain freedoms and impose a planned economy to achieve these goals?

Zapata pointed out that states that curtail freedoms in exchange for greater radius of action sometimes achieve "economic justice more easily." "We have not chosen this method. The Administration of President Echeverria is working to achieve development within a framework of liberty."

What is the Mexican government's position on the role of foreign investments?

Zapata explained that in taking office, President Echeverria said that foreign investment should not replace, but complement, Mexican capital. It is welcome as long as it establishes new industries and when it manufactures for export. This policy has not changed. "Foreign investment is necessary in a country where capital is not abundant."

But it would be an assault on Mexican sovereignty "to adjust our laws to match the interests or expectations of foreign capital." A development structure which grants decision-making powers to foreign capital and special privileges creates conditions of economic dependence and later political dependence.

In inviting foreign investment, Mexico offers foreign capital ample perspectives: decades of peace, political and monetary stability with free convertibility, abundant labor, extensive resources and a growing market. There are not many countries in the world, he affirmed, "where all these factors are available currently."

Survey Says Industry Is Towns' No. 1 Need

The need for new industry is the most important problem facing small communities, according to a survey conducted by the American Bankers Association, Washington, D.C.

In the survey of 12,500 smaller banks (those with resources of less than $50 million) nearly 75 per cent of the respondents rated new industry as the number one community need. And 80 per cent of the bankers said they are involved in trying to foster new industry for their towns.

"For each 100 people employed by industries in our community, retail trade goes up $1.3 million, personal income goes up $2.9 million," says Thomas R. Smith, chairman of the ABA's Agricultural and Community Banker Division, and president of the First National Bank, Perry, Iowa. "It also means five new retail businesses," he said.
