FORTY-NINTH YEAR

SOMEWHERE between the ages of 3 and 90 just about every man has a compelling urge to just drop everything and run away, usually to no place in particular, but just to some place where he'll get a better deal. Many men actually do this, making an effort to vanish without a trace so no one can ever find them. Most aren't successful, but a few are. This is a form of abdicating our responsibilities that most of us feel we can't condone. But it doesn't keep us from wanting to do it, sometimes.

Each year, thousands of teenagers run away from home, and this is a tragedy in many of the cases. But we're talking now about the adults who have this yearning to thumb their nose at everybody who is giving them static and just run off somewhere and start all over.

I hope if I run away again that it turns out better than it did the last time I tried it. My older brother and I ran away once when we were kids at Newport, Texas sitting on the line between Jack and Clay counties (it's so small, it can just about do it, too).

We must have been about 8 and 6 years old at the time, maybe younger. I don't know what prompted us to run away, but I think the main reason was that we wanted to go see the Crazy Man. We lived with our grandparents, and grandma had warned us emphatically not to go near a certain house in the south part of town—"that old man is crazy, and don't you kids ever go around his house!"

There really wasn't much danger of our doing that, anyway, since he lived what seemed like a long, long way (about a mile) off, and we never went anywhere without telling grandma where we were going. But we did have this strong desire to see the Crazy Man, once we'd been told to steer clear of him. So one afternoon, off we went without telling anybody, on a big adventure.

Memory has a way of distorting things, so I don't recall just how long we were gone, but it probably was an hour or two. It seems that we eventually got to the man's house and stood around in the road outside for a long time, but he never did come out. Finally we got tired and hungry, since it was getting late in the day, and we went back home. From that point on, I remember what happened pretty well.

Grandma used to make us go out and get a switch so she could whip us with it, and we sort of expected this, but she never did whip us very hard because she loved us. Anyway, I think we got a whipping for running away, but then she tacked on a punishment more awful than anything our young minds could ever have dreamed of: she ordered us to go to bed without any supper.

We of course were stunned, and as soon as she said this, the hunger pangs started knifing through our middles every which way. But we didn't get any supper, and after a while we went to bed.

I remember lying there in bed in the dark, trying to comprehend what had happened, and growing weaker all the time, although we undoubtedly had had a big breakfast and dinner and cookies afterward. I soon became convinced that I was going to die of starvation. I knew that grandma and grandpa weren't really mean; it was just that they didn't realize what they were doing. "I'll die before morning," I thought. "Then they'll come in here and find my dead body (I had it pictured as a skeleton) and then they'll really be sorry for what they did."

I was a little disappointed when I woke up healthy (but hungry) the next morning, because I felt it would serve them right if I died of starvation. But believe me, I remembered that punishment more than any whipping, and I never dreamed of running away again as a child.

We never did get to see the Crazy Man, either. If he really was a little off, the poor guy probably was just born 30 years too soon. He'd fit right into today's society.

BAND PARENTS HOLD MEETING THURSDAY

A motion was made and voted on that each student is to pay a $3.00 fee when checking out the

A mob of "fired-up" Bulldogs provided all the thrills and excitement last Friday night as the welcome mat they displayed for the Hornets, proved to be a "booby trap". The result was a convincing 15-8 defeat for the Hornets and a thorough physical pounding at the hands of their arch rivals—the Amherst Bulldogs.

Neither team was able to muster an effective offensive drive during the first quarter, but as it drew to a close, Amherst was "knocking at the door". Following a costly pass interference against the Hornets, Stanley Miller sneaked one yard to paydirt which capped the 50 yard drive and Butch Sutton split the up-ripts to give the 'Dogs a 7-0 edge.

The ensuing kickoff gave the Sudan fans one of their few chances to cheer. Taking the ball at their own 20 yard line, quarterback Mitch Chester put the Hornet offensive into overdrive. A 22-yard gallop followed by a 22-yard thrust, both by Chester, mixed in with steady gains by runningbacks Danny Williams, Pat Hedges, and Mark Hanna, put the ball on the Amherst 10. Williams then took a pitchout from Chester around right end and behind a fine block by Hanna, slipped into the end zone. Pat Hedges "bulled" his way to the goal line for the extras behind the fine blocking of Terry Graves and Don Noles.

Both teams swapped punts for the remainder of the half with Amherst missing on a 42 yard field goal attempt on the final play of the half. At this point the Hornets held a slim 8-7 edge but "Lady Luck" was about to strike a fatal blow.

Following the kickoff, Amherst drove to their 38 yard line where they appeared to be stopped. However, a late-hitting penalty on a third down play revived the Bulldogs and thrust them into Hornet territory. Once again the Hornets held, however, and Sutton punted to the Sudan 8. Two penalties later, the Hornets were forced to punt from their endzone. An erratic snap out of end zone was the result and the two-point safety gave Amherst a 9-8 lead.

Moments later, Mart Davison gave the Hornets a reprieve when he pounced on a Bulldog fumble 43 yards from paydirt. The Hornets were quick to give it back to the Bulldogs, however, as Miller intercepted Chester's pass. Hedges and Richard Tamplin both recovered Amherst fumbles early in the fourth quarter at mid-field, but in both instances, the Hornets fumbled the ball away. The last fumble came as the Hornets appeared to be driving for a score, but a stunting lineman crashed into the backfield causing a bobble on the Amherst 27 yard line.

From that point, it was Amherst's game as they controlled the ball and the tempo. It took 17 plays and valuable time for the 'Dogs to march 73 yards. Sutton went the final yard for a TD and a 15-8 lead. Mart Davison slipped through to block the extra point try but it was all over for the Hornets as they fumbled the following kickoff.

The statistics, as far as the Hornets were concerned, were much worse than the score. The 'Dogs lead in first downs 15-6 and total yardage 277-129. Six turnovers also proved to be a thorn in Sudan's offensive game.

Coach Warren had high praise for the Amherst squad. "They came to play and defeated us physically as well as mentally." The Bulldogs are definitely going to be a contender in their district. "They controlled the game which is evident in the fact that they ran 74 offensive plays as compared to only 30 by Sudan. Our kids realize they are better athletes than they showed Friday night and are out to prove themselves against Plains next Friday.

Although the Hornets' performance was far below average, the game nevertheless produced a few outstanding performances. Line Coach Tom Essex was particularly pleased with two of his juniors; noseman Mart Davison and defensive end Craig Harper. Essex stated that "Mart played an outstanding game and was the leading tackler with 18. His quickness in being able to stunt across the line was a constant threat to the Bulldog backfield." "Craig was able to keep the 'Dogs from running around his end and although he made a few mistakes, they were always hustling mistakes."

Defensive backfield coach Gary Campbell also had praise for one of his "charges"—Terry Graves, the Rover. "Terry played a good defensive ballgame as illustrated by his 14 tackles. Of course, when a defensive back has that many tackles, however, it is usually an indication that as a team they were not doing a good job defensively.

Coach Warren singled out quarterback Mitch Chester as the outstanding offensive back. "On our touchdown drive, Mitch directed the option as well as it could be run. He picked up 60 yards on 5 carries for the night.

drinks. Adults will be charged $1.50 and children $1.00 for the supper.

Lewis Fields was named winner of the free football tickets in the Football Scorecard Contest but was not present so the win went to Mrs. Ann Hedges. However, she was ruled ineligible and the tickets were presented to Hoyt Robertson. The winner has to be present to get the tickets with total points and point spread considered.

The organization voted to sell pie and coffee following the homecoming game which will be played with Bovina on October 19.

The film of the Amherst-Sudan football game played Friday night in Bulldog Stadium was shown with comments from coaches.

Coach Wiginton gave a scouting report on the Plains Cowboys who will "hit the trail" for Sudan tomorrow (Friday) night and the game at 8:00 p. m. which holds special meaning for the hosts—the Sudan Hornets. In last year's encounter between the two schools, the Cowboys romped to a lop-sided 39-6 victory which was the only gust, purchasing of gasoline pump at the bus facilities for Gulf Oil Corporation, purchasing bass trombone for High School Band, and band marching contests which included South Plains Fair September 24, Lovington, N.M., on November 3, and UIL contest in Lubbock November 6.

Mrs. Frances Ramos was hired as teacher-aide in the kindergarten program, and Wesley Hargesheimer hired as new bus foreman.

The Tax Collector's monthly report was accepted.

A discussion was held on approval of funds and the sharing of such funds by the State Department in equipping the General Farm Mechanics classroom and shop facilities, as well as a discussion as to prices of the school lunch program. The decision was made to leave prices as they now stand through the month of September. Also discussed was the physical examination requirement for bus drivers for the 1973-74.

The meeting closed following an enrollment report with a total of 488 in the Sudan school system which is up from the 1972 end of school average daily attendance of 445.

physical defeat the Hornets suffered all year. Sudan will be out to avenge that loss and also the loss in last weeks clash against the Amherst Bulldogs. The game has special meaning for Coach Jim Warren too, who coached the Cowboys several years before moving to Sudan and who also graduated from Plains High School.

The Cowboys are coming off of a win against Class AA Cooper who they defeated 3-0 at Plains last week. Coach Al Scott and Bo' Lance assisted Coach Wiginton in scouting the game and all were highly impressed with the Cowboys. "1973 was supposed to be a rebuilding year for Plains who suffered heavy graduation losses from last year," stated Coach Wiginton, "but they played Friday night as if they were title contenders."

The Cowboys lost only two games last year with one of those to Cooper who advanced to the quarter-finals and the other was at the hands of state finalist, Clarendon in Class A quarterfinals, 20-6.

Defensively, the Cowboys are very impressive. Leading the stingy defense is Jeff Gentry, an all-state linebacker as a Junior last year. Gentry and Jere' Lowe anchor the defense at middle linebackers in the 4-4 alignment. Mike Blount is another returning starter at halfback, as is Jeff Redman at tackle. Defensively the Cowboys start four seniors and seven juniors and average 165 per man.

On offense, the Cowboys rely on Gentry to tote the pigskin. He carries the ball 75% of the time and is an effective ground gainer at the tailback slot. Running from the power I, Gentry is joined by three juniors in the backfield: Nelms,

The projects, under the supervision of District Engineer George C. Wall, are in Bailey, Hale, Lamb, Lubbock and Parmer Counties. Part of a program authorized by the 63rd Legislature, they will cost an estimated $116,000.

Camping and/or the Simple Life

If you're a devotee of the year-round camping life, you already have a good idea of the variety of Recreational Vehicles available to you. If you're new to this "advanced camping," you'd be smart to rent different kinds of campers and trailers before buying, to determine which kind of equipment suits your own wild-life style.

One step up from the plain canvas tent is the camping trailer, a compact unit that unfolds at the campsite, with very little effort, into a comfortable tent sleeping six or more. Formerly made only of canvas, these camping trailers once had a tendency to mildew if packed wet.

The good news here is that now camping trailers are available in a variety of materials, including soft plastic or even solid-wall plastic for the sides. These camper-trailers can be packed wet or dry with no fear of deterioration.

Chassis-mounted campers, regular campers or motor homes don't need to be put up and taken down. Drive up to the campsite, hook up to electrical outlets, and you're ready to rough it—with as many comforts as you want. Your RV might be equipped with bathtub and shower, four-burner range and oven, refrigerator with freezer compartment, standard forced heat and air conditioning.

For the pure at heart who believe that camping implies a return to the simple and good things of life, it's possible to substitute ingenuity for luxury. Turn your own van or station-wagon into a Recreational Vehicle for the family. Pack it with beds, a butane stove, ice chest, pots and pans and enough groceries for the occasion. Do stock plenty of modern convenience foods so that the cook gets a vacation too.

Then, while hot dogs roast on sharpened stakes, throw foil-wrapped ears of corn into the fire pit. Put Carnation Instant Hot Cocoa Mix into mugs, and just add hot water to make a delicious drink that's a treat for everyone. Dinner will be ready in minutes, proving that camping doesn't have to be complicated or sophisticated in order to be fun.

JOHN BLUE CO. LICENSED TO MAKE MODULE MAKER

John Blue Company of Huntsville, Ala., has been licensed by Cotton Incorporated to manufacture and sell the cotton module maker and related machinery throughout the U. S. cotton belt.

The module maker is the basic machine that makes possible new mechanized systems of handling, storing, moving and ginning seed cotton.

The module maker, loader transporter and automatic gin feeder were developed by Cotton Inc., the research, sales and marketing company sponsored by cotton growers through their dollar-a-bale program.

The module builder works anywhere. It compacts seed cotton into free-standing masses, or modules, measuring 8 feet wide, 7 feet high and 24 feet long.

Because the module builder forms its stacks on wood pallets, it eliminates problems with ground moisture—and works especially well in rainbelt areas. Cotton is compacted mechanically, with one operator, to a density of 12 pounds per cubic foot. A 24-foot module ordinarily holds 13,000 pounds of seed cotton.

James A. Gibson, vice president for sales at John Blue, said his company's version of the module maker will offer several features for added safety, speed and ease of operation. He also stated that Blue's machine will be heavier than 1972 machines.

Life Begins!

By Charles H. Robinson, Asst. P.R. Director
Bryan College, Dayton, Tennessee

Walter B. Pitkin's book, "Life Begins at Forty" has its sequel in "Life Begins at Fifty," authored by his son. The trouble is, though, that many never attain age 50, or even 40.

But here's good news for you! Life begins when Jesus comes in! Real life — life to the full — actually begins when your soul is brought into a right relationship with God through repentance of sin and faith in Jesus Christ.

In order to live — really live — you must know inner peace which does not depend upon circumstances for its continuance. This is possible only through a vital, personal relationship with Christ. Without that you are physically alive, but spiritually dead. You have not yet begun to live. Regardless of your age, let life begin for you today through your unconditional commitment to Jesus Christ as your Lord and Savior.

The reason that only 6 out of 100 people are left-handed is that 94 out of 100 persons have a dominant left hemisphere of the brain.

ORMAND, FORMER SUDAN RESIDENT RECEIVES AERONAUTICAL RECOGNITION

Reagan Ormand, 61, of Arlington, Texas was named Grand Champion at the Antique Airplane Association fly-in recently in a 1929 Alexander Eagle Rock biplane, the only one of its kind flying today.

Ormand is the son of Mrs. A. W. Ormand and brother of Mrs. Ken Minyard, both of Sudan. Old-timers here may recall when he used to fly over Sudan in his own plane just like the one above when he was only 16 years of age.

Ormand and Douglas Boren of Lubbock, also a former Sudan resident, and Jack Brouse of Arlington, are co-owners of the plane currently housed at the Lubbock airport.

Rebuilding of the old airplane began in May 1972 and was completed in February of this year. Reagan said, "We had all the parts. Everything is original including the engine. It had to be taken down to the bare bones, cleaned up and recovered with fabric. The wood parts were in pretty good shape although we had to make some repairs."

Ormand's airplane won grand champion honors in the antique and classic division of the Experimental Aircraft Association's (EAA) annual fly-in and convention in August at Oshkosh, Wis.

Reagan is a retired U. S. Air Force Lt. Col. who formerly flew transport planes.

Reagan's son, Tim who is an art student, hand-painted the perfect reproduction of the original factory insignia.

Paul Harvey presented the award won by Ormand and it was viewed on television which was seen by Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Slate, Sudan.

Readers Read Carefully

The Newspaper Advertising Bureau reports that a survey of 1,720 men and women, ages 18 and over, shows that almost nine out of ten adults who read one or more daily newspapers during a five-day span read them thoroughly.

The Bureau says that the typical reader sets aside a certain time each day for reading the paper and becomes involved by clipping news items or advertisements.
