WE NOTICE that The Levelland Sun -News runs a column written by a "Certified Master Graphoanalyst", which sounds like someone who studies the inner workings of record players, or possibly someone who finds hidden meanings in pictures. Actually the author is a handwriting expert, one who can tell something of a person's character by his or her handwriting.

I don't doubt for a minute that such persons can accurately figure out a lot of things about most persons from their handwriting, because they have tested these traits of handwriting thoroughly and know that in most cases they apply. But I doubt that they apply in every case, and I also figure they read so much into some handwriting that its possible they could be entirely wrong.

For example, I read years ago that if you let the lines at the end of your words point downward, this is a sign of low moral character, untrustworthiness and possibly some other undesirable character traits. So I immediately started making sure all my words ended with the lines turning up so everyone who knew anything about analyzing handwriting would think I was a nice fellow. Unfortunately for my reputation, most people didn't seem to know much about the science.

I don't know much about it, either, but I have noticed that most people can't write very plainly. Women, of course, write better than men, probably because men don't consider it all that important to have neat handwriting. Neat script could be a drawback to some people, especially doctors. One of the rules of the American Medical Assn. is that no doctor will be permitted to practice if his handwriting can be read by the average citizen. If you know a doctor who writes neatly, beware — he probably is an impostor.

I remember a segment in the old "Get Smart" series on TV, in which all the top code experts in the free world had worked for months on a captured coded message from the enemy spy group. After they finally admitted defeat, Maxwell Smart went out with the paper for a few minutes, then came back and in and told them what it said. The chief asked Smart how in the world he managed to figure out such an incomprehensible note, and Smart said it was simple — he just took it to his pharmacist.

When I was teaching English to college freshmen (I done my best, but some of them never did learn to talk good) I had a couple of students whose handwriting was totally indecipherable. I suspected they wrote this way on purpose so I couldn't catch all the misspelled words. Finally I suggested the students type their outside papers if they had access to a typewriter. The only trouble with this idea was that some of the typing was harder to read than the handwriting.

Shower Honors Bride

Mrs. Tim Harrington, nee Connie Ham, was feted with a "bridal tea" Thursday, June 27th in the home of Mrs. Mike White from 4:00 - 5:30 p. m.

Miss Cathy Ham, sister of the bride, registered some 45 guests who attended.

Miss Clady Ham, the bride's other sister, presided when finger sandwiches and vegetable and fruit tidbits were served along with punch from crystal appointments. The serving table was laid with an ecru lace cloth over pale blue and centered with a blue floral arrangement.

Hostesses were Mesdames Raymon Maxwell, Pudd Wiseman, James Withrow, Wayne Swart, B. M. Wilson, Wayne Doty, H. H. Potter, Connie Franks, Leonard Pierce, Jerry Ray, Dale Hanna, Charles Burnett, Gary Pickrell, Calvin Wiseman, J. C. Withrow, Darwin Reid, Mike White, Marvin Bowling, W. O. Johnson. They presented the honoree a set of avocado green stainless steel cookware and a blender.

Mrs. John Hood and Mrs. Ellen Ham, grandmothers of the bride from Tullia, and Mrs. Don Ham, the bride's mother, were special guests.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Rev. and Mrs. Jewel Strong of Jefferson, Texas, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ann Graham, to Danny Allen, son of Mrs. Marie Allen of Sudan and Albert Allen. The Rev. Strong officiated the double ring ceremony at their home at 3:00 p. m., June 29, 1974.

The couple will reside in Dallas where Allen is employed by Texas Motor Freight.

The bride is a 1969 graduate of Crockett High School. She attended Southern Methodist University and is employed by Bell Telephone. Allen is a 1964 graduate of

CROP CERTIFICATION DEADLINE NEARS

Officials of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., High Plains producer organization with headquarters in Lubbock, are joining county office managers of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in urging all farmers to measure and certify crop acreages before the July 15 deadline.

"Those who don't sign up for the program stand to lose

20 percent of their allotted acreage, one-third of their farm's established yield, and all chance of being eligible for disaster payments, price deficiency payments or price support loans. It's as simple as that," says PCG Executive Vice President Donald A. Johnson.

The cotton section of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, which became effective this year, offers far less benefits to participating farmers than did the previous program. And county ASCS personnel across the High Plains fear that some farmers may fail to recognize the importance of "Signing up" this year.

The concern stems from an abnormally slow sign-up pace this year. Walter Wells, Lubbock County ASCS Of-rice Manager, reported on June 28 that only about one-fourth of Lubbock County farmers had signed to participate in the 1974 program. In previous years the percentage signed up two weeks before the July 15 deadline has been from 50 to 65 percent, he says.

This year's program authorizes disaster payments of about 12.7¢ per pound times the farm's established yield if planting is prevented by drought or if crops are lost to hail or other adverse weather. And the same payment may be made on the difference between a farmer's actual harvest and the established yield from allotted acres if production on the farm falls below two-thirds of what the ASCS determines would be a "normal" yield. Also, should the national average market price for U. S. cotton fall below 38¢ per pound, there is provision for a price deficiency payment to make up the difference.

"But whether or not any payments or other benefits are involved in 1974," Johnson concludes, "it is still important that every farmer sign up to participate in the program as a means to preserve allotments and yields for the remaining three years of the program."

An analysis of the world-wide situation by the supply-demand division of Cotton Incorporated, national producer research and market development organization, yields some encouraging conclusions, notes Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. As the transition from a cheap energy world to an expensive energy world progresses, the analysis states, "Cotton will emerge in an improved position due to its inherent advantages of being less energy expensive than synthetics and more comfortable in a world which will be less heated in winter and air conditioned in summer."

And it goes on to say "After examining the forest rather than the trees, the conclusion that the U. S. will increase its share of exports to a growing world cotton market is inescapable."

City Accepts Shop Bid

Mayor Arnold Reed and City Commissioners met June 20, 1974 for the purpose of reviewing bids on the construction of a 48x50 steel shop building for the City of Sudan.

The contract was awarded to Tusha of Lubbock on a bid of $10,890.00, after an evaluation of their bid along with that of one other firm. The bid by Tusha was deemed to be the most advantageous and in the best interests of the City of Sudan, according to Reed.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Sir: We always enjoy having Louzell here at Grand Canyon for the summer.

She is a joy and light in the midst of darkness and gloom. So many young homesick girls have had a happier day for Louzell's cheer.

Along with all this goodness she never gives up on the fallen angels among us. She's always there trying to get us to Church and singing of the glory God has for us if we will follow Him.

I am proud to call Louzell Serratt my friend and I'd like the people of Sudan to know how well we all love Louzell here. Linda Wilson Grand Canyon, Arizona 86023
