SNOOPY once said in a Sunday comic strip that good writing comes hard. It comes even harder when there's a blooming cricket beeping like crazy in the office.

I came in early one morning to write something brilliant and enduring about some timely topic. But after sitting in what was supposed to be the silence of the empty office for 10 minutes and listening to that cricket, I couldn't think what it was I was going to write about. I even turned on the air conditioner to try to drown out the sound, but all that did was chill the place while the dumb cricket just kept on beeping.

Finally, in disgust, I got up and tried to locate the varmint. I followed the sound over toward one corner of the office, but when I got close, the sound stopped. I don't know if those things can smell you, see you or sense you, but when you get close to one, she always stops beeping.

(I say "She" arbitrarily. Actually, I'm not too hep on the gender of insects, but something about its actions sounded female to me).

I searched the area pretty well, but couldn't find my early morning tormentor. So I went back and tried to start writing, but as I say, by then the wisp of an idea I had entertained earlier was gone.

I stared at the typewriter a few minutes and the beeping started again. I went back toward the corner and it stopped. I ran like mad back to the machine to try to get something written before the noise resumed.

I didn't accomplish much in the way of writing, but I did get quite a bit of exercise.

LETTER TO EDITOR

From far up north in Blythe Ontario, Canada, comes Judy Ives, an exchange student, seventeen years old, beautiful, talented and a fine lady in every respect. She is sponsored by the local Lions Club of Blythe, and the Amherst Lions Club. She is making her home at the Cleon Johnson home in Amherst, Texas.

Through the fine cooperation of the Johnson family, she started riding with Lamb County Sheriff's Possee early in June. In her homeland she has several horses and riding is one of her hobbies. She made her first ride with Lamb County at the Brownfield Parade and rodeo. There she saw her first real Cowboy Rodeo that night. Through the kindness of the Johnson Family and other members of the Possee she is decked out in full uniform and everyone is proud of her; and it's nice to introduce her at any gathering.

Cleon and Joyce Johnson together with their family, are wonderful hosts with this fine young lady and are always proud to present her. She was taken to see Heritage of Texas at Pala Duro Canyon, and many other places of interest in Texas.

Lamb County Sheriff's Possee certainly has enjoyed her as an associate member, and she no doubt will always remember the good citizenship we have shared with her.

She plans to return to her native home and country in the near future, but she will long be remembered by the Rider's of Region 1.

Locally, insurance is available on cotton, grain sorghum and wheat. It has covered such disasters as drought, excessive moisture, insects, plant diseases, wind and freeze in its 36-year history.

According to the Contract Service Center at College Station, Texas, producers in the Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma region have protected their crop investments this year for a total value of more than $50 million. Due to drought conditions this season, the Corporation will be paying indemnities to many insured producers. GIRLTOWN, USA WILL BE PROJECT FOR TFWC

Girlstown, USA, will be the project of Caprock District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, for 1974-76 announces Mrs. Harold Green of Tahoka, the district president. The 67 clubs of the district, which covers 20 counties, will join together in this project. Mrs. Bill W. Davis of Lubbock has been appointed chairman of the project, which is called "Caprock District Education Fund." This will be a permanent fund, using only the interest each year to help with the educational needs of the girls. Contribution, gifts, memorials, honorariums, inheritances and life insurance may be given now or any time in the future. The girls will receive the benefits for as long as there are girls at Girlstown. All gifts are deductible for income tax purposes. Checks should be made out to "Girlstown, USA, marked for "Caprock District Education Fund," and mailed to Box 1305, Tahoka, Texas 79373, or to Girlstown, USA, at Whiteface. For honorariums and memorials received, an appropriate card will be sent to the designated persons. A plaque will be presented to Girlstown, listing every club, individual and business that contributes a minimum of $50.00. An appropriate book will be given listing those who give less than this amount; therefore, every donor will be recognized and the name on display.

OPERATION PEACE OF MIND

Operation Peace of Mind, the Houston-based telephone hotline for runaway children, was the topic of intense discussion at Tampa, Florida, August 28 and 29. Representatives of 26 governors were on hand to examine ways their states could be linked with the 24-hour service. It was explained that the hotline was begun by Governor Dolph Briscoe a year ago because of the grisly discovery of the bodies of 27 young men in the Houston area. Hundreds of concerned parents from all over the United States were calling Houston to see if one of the corpses was that of their runaway child. Originally, the operation's costs were defrayed by private contributions with a recent assist by a Criminal Justice Division grant of $21,000.

Governor Briscoe opened the volunteer staffed service with the idea that if runaways called and their message that they were alive and well was relayed to their parents, then they indeed would have that wanted peace of mind. At that time, no one dreamed how the idea would grow and develop to the status it has received throughout the country. Over 4,000 runaways from 47 states have called Peace of Mind since last September to let someone they care about know that they are safe. Many calls have resulted in the runaways voluntarily returning to their homes and families.

The national impetus of the service began to grow when the Florida legislature, in an unprecedented action, appropriated $20,000 in funds to publicize the Texas hotline number throughout that recreation state, which ranks high in runaways. Governor Briscoe observed, "The extraordinary thing about Operation Peace of Mind is that it not only meets a Texas need to help runaway children, but touches every state and every parent's heart whose child is away from home. Because of the increasing interest on the project from other states, Governor Briscoe and Florida Governor Reubin Askew jointly initiated the Tampa conference to discuss various methods of publicizing the hotline number in all other states to help as many children as possible.

Grace Surguy, director of POM, said "the reason Peace of Mind works is that all calls are confidential. We only relay the message runaways want relayed - no more no less." "The runaway calls us on a toll-free number that is not traced and asks us to call someone to say they are okay. They generally call back later to see if there was any reply to their message," she added. "Most runaways are afraid to call their parents directly fearful that they might be rejected. It's a big decision for them to make that first telephone call," she continued.

"One of the most rewarding aspects of Peace of Mind is that the runaways call to us and the reply from the parents that the child is loved and wanted back home often makes the two contact each other directly and work out a reconciliation based on love and better understanding," Ms. Surguy concluded. The conference delegates have returned to their governor's with the details of how to best help the runaway children of America. Most have indicated an immediate willingness to begin implementation of publicity throughout their state of the Peace of Mind hotline number.

With the expected increase of publicity on the national hotline number (1-800-231-6946) and of the Texas WATS number (1-800-392-3352), Texas is preparing to add more in-coming WATS lines as the traffic demands. Texas will continue to supply the

Youths Get Involved in 4-H Auto Program

Youths involved in the national 4-H automotive program get right under the hood as they learn to operate, repair, service and maintain automobiles. Aided by The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, program sponsor and supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service, the 4-H'ers learn how to be more responsible, knowledgeable drivers in the program.

Young people who enjoy doing things frequently like to get their friends involved too. So it is with the national 4-H automotive program, conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service, with an assist from The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company for the 15th consecutive year.

Emphasizing highway safety and the development of favorable attitudes of highway courtesy, the program complements driver education classes. And meetings of 4-H automotive groups enlist the aid of local community resource persons. These experts help young people—drivers and pre-drivers—understand traffic laws and regulations, car maintenance, economies of operation, insurance and a host of other subjects, all dealing with motor vehicles.

Actively involved in the development of educational materials for the national 4-H automotive program, Firestone also provides a full schedule of incentives and recognition to 4-H'ers in the program. Up to four medals of honor are offered in each county. One winner from each state is eligible for an expense-paid trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago and eight national winners will receive $700 scholarships at that event Dec. 1-5.

Additionally, clubs and counties are eligible for recognition plaques offered by the national donor.

Anxious to share his automotive interests with other teens, Leslie Moore, 17, of rural Ninnkah, OK, helped organize two automotive clubs in his area. Moore and his groups conducted surveys on keys left in ignitions and the use local residents made of seat belts. The groups also set up a skill driving event and hosted an automotive care and safety information booth at the state fair.

Another 17-year-old, George McArthur of McArthur, CA, has found the 4-H automotive program an outlet for his mechanical interests. A junior leader, young McArthur and two of his buddies overhauled a 6-cylinder engine, mounted it on a trailer and used it to interest others in their 4-H automotive work.

Noting that girls as well as boys can participate in the 4-H automotive program Marilyn Morris, 18, Waukeo, Iowa, proved it as a 1973 national scholarship winner. Learning how an engine works by overhauling a lawn mower engine, she also did much of the mechanical maintenance work on the family car.

Information on local 4-H automotive programs and opportunities for participation is available from the county extension service office.

Somebody's trying to take something that belongs to you.

Right here in Texas

In fact, somebody's trying to take something that belongs to all of us: freedom of speech. Somebody's undermining your right to communicate, to listen, to have all available information on a given subject.

Somebody's trying to tell certain Arkansas companies they may not advertise their services.

But advertising is just another word for communication. It is public information; it gives you a choice. It encourages new and better ways of doing things and helps continue the development of newer, better and more economical consumer goods.

Now, however, the right of certain Texas companies to communicate with their customers is in danger. This could ultimately have more far-reaching effects on free speech as we know it.

Right now, we want you to think very long, very hard and very deeply about advertising and about the good it does in America. We want you to think about its effect on business, on your own entertainment, on radio, television, newspapers and magazines, on your right to know.

We want you to think about the effect advertising has on your company's sales, and how the sales of your company affect your own life-style.

Right now, we want you to think very long, very hard and very deeply about the issue of free speech. Then we want you to write Governor Dolph Briscoe, State Capitol, Austin, Texas 78711, and your legislators and your friends and tell them how you feel.

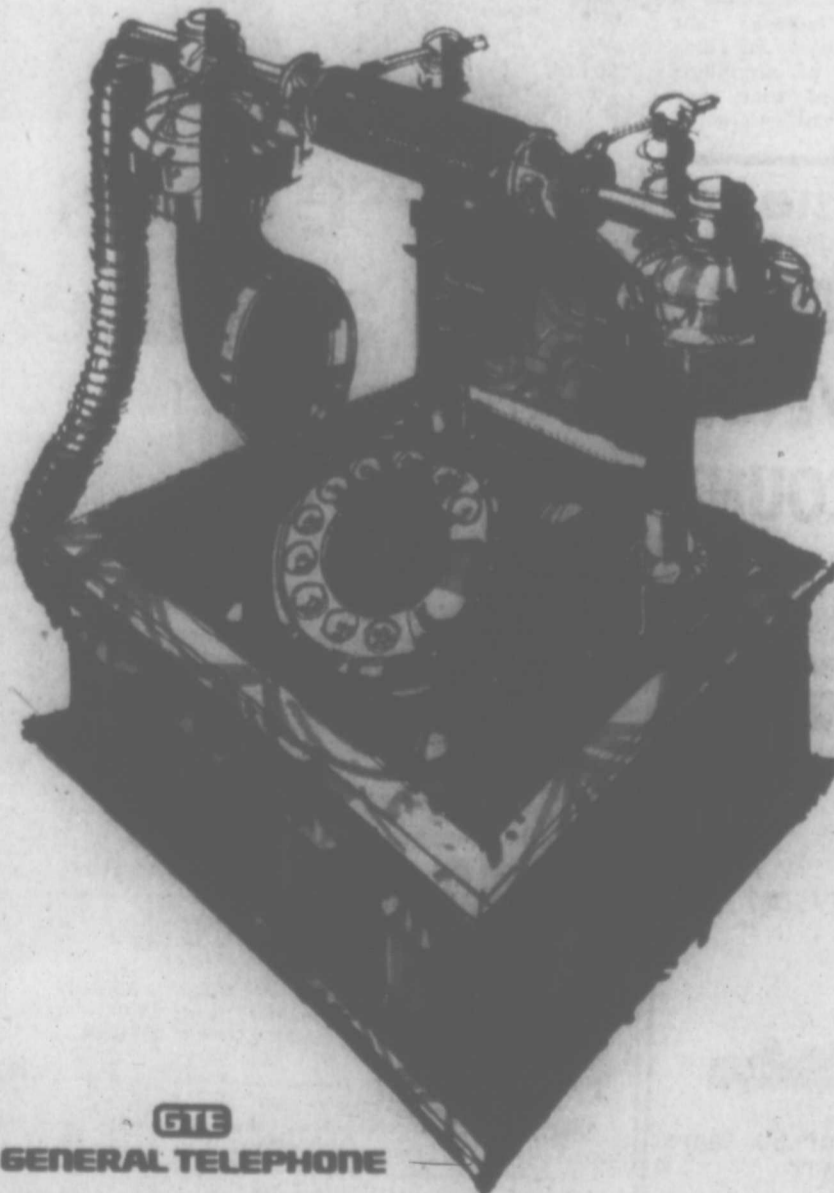

The ball is in your hands. It's up to you not to drop it.

Advertising is everybody's business.

"We are urging the Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) to abandon its proposal for extensive safety devices on existing farm machinery and to adopt a more reasonable compliance date for requirements on new machinery," says Donald A. Johnson, Executive Vice President of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. and Secretary of the Texas Association of Cotton Producer Organizations (TACPO).

A statement prepared by PCG on behalf of TACPO for presentation at OSHA hearings in Oklahoma City on September 4, cites a Texas Agricultural Extension Service study which concluded that the "retrofit" requirements in OSHA's farm machinery safety proposals are "economically unfeasible and impractical."

The statement, to be presented by W.W. Hart, Executive Vice President of the South Texas Cotton & Grain Association of Victoria, says that to require farm operators, especially the small ones, to bring old equipment up to OSHA proposals would cause a severe financial burden.

An example was made of four different types of cotton strippers. The "unfeasible and impractical" label was used in connection with the complexity of bringing an eight-year old, two-row cotton stripper into compliance. It was pointed out that the 1966 model stripper had all gears, belts and chains on the outside and that OSHA-proposed shielding might well cost more than the original value of the machine.

It was estimated that to "OSHA-ize" a 1962 model stripper of another make would cost around $500.00 and require over 28 hours of design, construction and installation time.

Extension Service agricultural engineers studied two different makes of 1974-model strippers and came up with $316.00 and $264.00 as the respective costs to bring them in line with OSHA proposals.

TACPO also commented on some of the proposals for requirements on new machinery manufactured after OSHA regulations become effective, emphasizing that a high percentage of farm machinery operation is done by farm operators and their families. This gives farmers, as machinery operators, a direct interest and concern that the final regulations be effective in improving safety, and as farm operators an interest and concern that the regulations be economically feasible and practical, the TACPO statement says.

Regarding a reasonable compliance date, TACPO called attention to correspondence from the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute which states that under normal conditions most manufacturers need at least a year to make changes in design and production, and went on to say, "Current material shortages are such that even more lead will be required under present conditions."

OSHA's proposal calls for protective devices on all machinery manufactured after January 1, 1975. TACPO pointed out that "Even if the regulations were final today less than five months would remain for manufacturers to redesign and retool their plants..."

TACPO recommended that an effective date for an agricultural machinery guarding standard should not be earlier than January 1, 1976, "and a firm date should be set only after ascertaining the ability of machinery manufacturers to comply without undue hardship."
