WOODWORK

by Dalton

LAST YEAR at this time we reported on a trip to Carlsbad, N.M., and how rugged the climb up to and through the New Cave is. This year, we went back again as guests of the Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce, and the climb up to New Cave is just as steep and demanding as it was then. Or so we were told by the other news media people who climbed it. This time, we decided to forego the trip to the cave, taking a tour of some rugged country in the Guadalupe Mountains National Park instead.

If you go to Carlsbad, you should go to the New Cave or the older famous caverns if you haven't been, and take the trip up toward McKittrick Canyon in the national park if you can. But whatever you do, be sure to visit the botanical gardens just outside the city of Carlsbad and see all the plants and animals (it's a zoo, too).

They have buffalo, a bear which whirls around, ducks on the pond, reptiles, a mountain lion, a beautiful eagle which it seems a shame to keep caged up, and many other forms of wildlife.

One of the critters in the zoo is an otter, but I never had seen one of those, and with all those other animals around, I couldn't tell one from the otter.

Carlsbad is a nice place to vacation, and the President's Park, built around the canal through the city, is very nice, with boat rides, train rides, and such stuff.

Incidentally, we had to drive 70 miles for breakfast in the mountains, but you really don't have to do that, since there are places to eat in the city.

FUELISH CAMPAIGN: Various groups of concerned folks all over the country periodically make a big push to get people to cut back on their use of gasoline, but we doubt seriously that any move to get people to do so voluntarily will have any noticeable effect so long as plenty of gasoline is available, even at today's high prices.

From Houston this week comes a release from the American Automobile Assn., Texas Division, that says nearly half of the fuel used by the nation's cars is consumed during trips of 10 miles or less, and about a third of all auto travel consists of such trips. "Because short trips involve frequent stops and starts and require more travel with a fuel-robbing cold engine, gasoline consumption increases," the release said.

The AAA suggests combining shopping trips and other errands, pooling cars, telephoning people instead of going to see them, and so forth.

Folks aren't going to do any of these things until or unless gas again becomes unavailable, whether the shortage is real or artificial, as many still believe it was.

THE GARZA ST. Golf Fiend was all upset last weekend when his caddy kept looking at his watch. He was even more upset when he was told it wasn't a watch, it was a compass.

Turbulent clouds spawning two unconfirmed tornadoes in the Sudan area some three miles west of town Saturday evening, sent many residents to shelters, while others paced up and down anxiously watching clouds. Some seven tenths of an inch was reported at that time in Sudan.

We all have scrap metal around our home or farm that is useless to us. With very little effort, you can gather it up and on your next trip to town bring it in to these dealers and they will sort, weigh, and pay you for it while you wait. Copper, brass, lead, bronze, and aluminum will bring the highest prices.

This firm has built a fine reputation for reliable dealings and the editors of this 1975 Review recommend them to all in this area who have scrap metal to sell, or have need of selecting some materials for their own use.

Help beautify America, take your scrap metal to Lamb Salvage Co.

Offshore Oil Drilling Attracts Variety of Fish

Venice, La. (AP)—Every fisherman claims some special technique helps him catch more fish than another. But few can take credit for some of the latest fish attractions found in the Gulf of Mexico.

There are more than 2,000 drilling and production platforms built by the oil industry in a continuing search for domestic oil supplies. And the story is virtually the same at each platform was built—within a short time, perhaps a few hours, fish become plentiful in an area where few were seen before.

The concept is not a new one. Tires, automobiles and other discarded items create artificial reefs which attract different kinds of fish. But these usually get in the way of passing boat traffic, creating hazardous conditions in most places.

Easy Access

The special steel towers serve the same function as the artificial reef, yet they permit easy access by the fishing boats. Experience has shown that they work well in bringing flounder, mackerel, red snapper, tuna, sea bass and others depending on the water depth and distance from the shore.

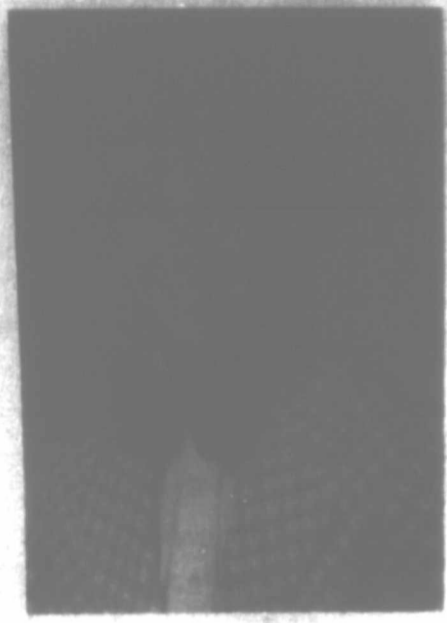

We're showing short of putting up "Fishermen Welcome" signs, said oil company Field Superintendent Doug Martin. "But we do welcome small boat

City Receives Tax Check

Comptroller Bob Bullock issued checks totaling $19.9 million Thursday to Texas cities in the second round of monthly city sales tax payments.

The May payments were up from the $16.1 million rebated April 15 when the monthly system replaced the old quarterly rebate system with its 60 to 90-day lag time.

Sudan received a check in the amount of $978.74.

Bullock said the big payment will come in June when city allocations are made of the quarterly returns paid by merchants since April 30. The great bulk of that money hasn't reached the Comptroller's office by the May 2 cutoff date for the May payments.

The May rebates were made from money received by the Comptroller between April 4, the cutoff for April's payments, and May 2, Bullock said.

Checks put in the mail Thursday went to 700 of the 809 cities fall below the $500 level at which monthly payments aren't made.

All rebates, regardless of size, will be issued in June, Bullock said.

The Bible Says

By Art Lynch
 Josiah was one of the greatest kings Judah ever had. His life is recorded in the book of 2 Kings, chapters 21, 22, 23 and 2 Chronicles 34. One of the outstanding phases of his life was while he was a teenager. He reformed the entire nation of Israel and turned them away from idols back to a living God. Teenagers are very special to me, since I have three. I like their confidence, their courage, their optimism. I like the way they walk... limber and free and friendly... Young people with tomorrow in their eyes. I like teenagers. A teenager is a great American middleman - too young to be old, too old to be young. Teenagers are the vanguard of tomorrow. They are a fresh breeze in a stale world. I like teenagers. They challenge barriers. They rush old ramparts. They are not afraid to stick a pin into old balloons of yesterday.... their very youth makes teenagers pioneers. They think over mountains... "I can't" isn't in their vocabulary yet. They are the future of the world with young hope in their hearts... bright faces... eager smiles... alert eyes... energy in motion.... They are the doctors of tomorrow, the mothers, the teachers, the generals, the bosses, the judges, the senators, the presidents. I like teenagers! They make things happen. Mozart was a famous musician at 13... Napoleon an officer in the French Army when he was 16... Longfellow was a full-fledged college professor when he was 19... Alexander The Great was a general of the army that conquered the world at 16... This same spirit fills our American teenagers of today. When it comes to young people, most adults forget to remember. We make fun of their songs - but we forget the crazy tunes of our days... We scoff at their clothes - and forget the off-beat fads when we were young... We are irritated when teenagers ignore our wise counsel... and forget we did the same with our elders. I like teenagers. It would be a sorry, boring, dull, inactive, standstill world without them.

Students who received a 4.0 GPA (all 1A's) have been noted.

Students on the honor list from Sudan were Cecilia Bandy of Rt. 1 (4.0), Charlotte A. Brownd, Walton K. Downs, Cynthia King (4.0), Janice Sokora, and Jackie Withrow.

MAHON ANSWERS COMMUNICATIONS REGARDING AGRICULTURAL MATTER

Legislation relating to different agricultural matters has been the concern of various Texans, according to communications received by George Mahon.

Mahon stated that the House of Representatives last week voted to sustain the President's veto of the Emergency Agriculture Act of 1975, and he actively supported the effort to override, feeling that while there were two sides to the issue, enactment of the legislation would tend to introduce some stability into agricultural markets and promote greater availability of credit for farmers. In addition, he felt that passage of the measure would serve to increase production, which would benefit both consumers and our national balance of trade. Mahon stated that efforts to override the veto fell short. Secretary Butz, who urged the veto of the bill by the President, has now come forward with a statement seeking to assure farmers that the USDA would seek to be helpful should there be such a requirement due to failing commodity markets.

For many weeks Mahon has been seeking to secure passage of legislation which would provide additional Farmer Home Administration operating loan funds. Additional loan funds were included in the Emergency Employment Appropriations Act, which he introduced as Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. The measure passed both the House and the Senate, but final approval by the Congress is still pending, and there is the threat of a Presidential veto. Mahon said some way would be found to provide FmHA loan money.

Concerning the livestock situation, Mahon announced that last week the House passed legislation amending the Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974. This measure would increase the present loan guarantee from 80 to 90 percent, guarantee a "line of credit" instead of the one-time loan, and increase the repayment period to seven years. He supported this bill, although he did not believe the legislation went far enough in helping the cattle-feeding industry. It is not possible to tell at this time what the ultimate outcome would be.

Mahon said they had been successful in efforts to convince officials of the Small Business Administration and the Farmers Home Administration to revise regulations and increase the availability of credit to feedlots. Revisions in their size for cattle feedlots were made, and FmHA is planning to compose new regulations enabling feedlots to be eligible for assistance under the Rural Development Act. The present agricultural situation is of major concern to me," Mahon stated. "You may be sure of my continued best efforts to seek workable programs of assistance to farmers in order that they might weather this period of rising costs of production and unstable agricultural prices."

God seldom makes
Our loads in life
Too great for us to carry
He's always there
To help us out
So "let thine heart be merry!"
He knows when we
Have need of Him,
He knows the loads we Carry,
So trust in Him,
Hope for the best,
And "let thine heart be merry!"
