NOW THAT school's out comes the time for going on vacations for many persons, and also each individual's private observance of Spend Your Money Like Crazy week.

Actually, of course, it's more likely to be two weeks of vacation for most company employes. And there are people who have worked for some of the bigger companies who get off three or even four or five weeks with pay each year. We can't imagine a vacation of more than two weeks, nor could we afford one. Two weeks of spending cash like water flowing and running from one place to the other are just about all I can enjoy. (This really is rationalization; I'd love to have a month off).

If you're like us, the first thing you do in planning a vacation is look at your money. You immediately see there's no way you can afford it, but you go ahead and go anyway. Then you get the map out and study a possible route. You've got to figure how many nights of motels and how many meals of eating out you have to plan for. Then you try to map a route which will let you spend a night in the home of your aunt or cousin you haven't visited in four years, so you can get a free night's lodging and maybe an egg for breakfast. And you also have to decide if spending a night with the gabby old girl is worth it.

I sure hope none of my downstate relatives read this, because I really do love all my aunts, uncles and cousins. Especially in the summer.

The Texas Highway Dept. has published a report on 1974 tourism in the state, noting that visitors from outside the state spent more than $2 billion last year, a whopping increase of 46 percent over the previous year. Many interesting statistics are in the report, and one page tells how the travel dollar of each out-of-stater was spent in Texas. The breakdown probably would be about the same for a Texan visiting in his own state or in some other state.

Of each dollar spent, 24 cents went for food, 23 for the car, 22 cents for lodging, 12 cents for entertainment and 19 cents for "other."

This last category interested me a great deal, because they don't explain what "other" is. I strongly suspect that the people they interviewed are about like I am when I go on a trip. There's about a fifth of their money that they can't figure out where it went. It just goes.

BASEBALL Babe Ruth

The Sr. Babe Ruth won Saturday at Olton 2-0 when Kyle Martin pitched for the locals. The two teams met again at the local park Sunday afternoon losing 11-5. Pitching for Sudan were Craig Pickett, Carroll Legg and Kyle Martin. Carroll Legg hit a home run in the game with Martin, Edgar Tamplin, Brian May, and Mast Davison, also scoring.

On the mound for Sudan Monday, June 9, was Steve Ritchie for the first three innings in the Jr. Babe Ruth game with Littlefield, and Joel Williams coming to relieve him the last few minutes of the inning. Ritchie walked seven and struck out four of the Tasty Taco team members, and they scored eight runs with four of them in the first inning. Sudan's Victor King scored their lone run in the first. Littlefield put out three Sudan men soon in the second inning allowing no runs. In the last half of the inning, Tasty Taco scored two runs. During the third period of play, each team scored two times. Brett Poe and Joel Williams made a big double play following a strike-out by Littlefield's Rosemond. In fourth inning action, Smith made the only score for the visitors; Ritchie slammed one over the fence band camp slated Clean-up Campaign

The annual South Plains College Junior Band Camp is scheduled June 16-20 for youngsters who will be enrolled in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades this coming fall.
Students need to have a minimum of one year's experience in their school band program before signing up for the camp, said Jack Nowlin, camp director and director of the SPC Texan Concert Band.
"The camp is designed to help in the further development of the young bandman, and to give him the encouragement and enthusiasm necessary to excel," Nowlin said.
Two bands will be organized during the camp - Band I for first year students, and Band II for more experienced students.
Instruction also will be available in music history, music theory, twirling, and drum majoring as well as clear instruction for the various musical instruments, Nowlin added.
A concert at 3 p.m. Friday, June 20, for parents and friends, will culminate camp activities, Nowlin said.
Students will need to bring either their own lunch or purchase a meal from the College snack bar or cafeteria.
Tuition fee is $15 for each student. There is an additional $2 fee if the students want to swim each day in the SPC Natatorium. Student will need to bring a swim suit and towel if they plan to do so.

Mayor Arnold Reed has announced that a "Clean-Up Campaign" has begun here in view of the Bi-Centennial to improve the appearance of the City of Sudan.
In this campaign, residents are asked to clean up your own lots and yards as well as vacant lots around you. If you have a mowing problem, such as a large area that is infested with weeds and cannot take care of it, please notify the city office and they will send someone to help. Also, if you have old rubbish or garbage, tree limbs, please place them in the alley or call and they will be picked up. Old buildings down town or elsewhere, including old sheds or garages, should be repaired or torn down with the rubbish placed so city employees can pick it up. Old cars and trucks and other unsightly items should be disposed of.
If everyone will participate, in this "Clean-Up" Campaign we can have a clean city which each one of us can be proud of.

Epsilon Sigma Alpha recently sponsored a contest for youth from the seventh through ninth grades and presented awards to the top three winners at the graduation exercises.
The contest is based on leadership, participation, school and community activities, scholarship and attitude, and were recommended by teachers. Two students were picked from each class. They had to write on an unknown subject, "What Sudan Could Do To Participate In The Bi-Centennial Celebration", in an allotted time of 30 minutes. Then they were interviewed by a panel of judges from Muleshoe.

expect any one to visit here and we really couldn't expect to have too big of a celebration, but we could have a lot of fun and participate in the celebration. We could have patriotic half-time shows at the football games, roadside stops for travelers, and maybe even parades celebrating the country's birthday. Even though we are a small town we could do just like all the other small towns across the country and do our part in the Bi-Centennial Celebration.

By Darren Provence
Sudan could put on an all day celebration and this might help the town's morale and encourage the townspeople to support the United States government. I must admit, everyone has been down on the government these last few months with Nixon's Watergate and finally his resignation. The city could send money to the government to sponsor a nation-wide celebration. Some of this money could go to buy food and clothes to the needy overseas and show them the United State's good side instead of always letting the bad side be shown, such as war.
At the end of the all-day celebration that I mentioned in the first paragraph, the fire dept. could cook a whole beef over a fire and then have a fireworks demonstration. This might give the Sudan inhabitants faith in our country and nation.

By Becky Byerley
Most of the people of Sudan think that since Sudan is so small that they don't have to do anything for the Bi-Centennial. But Sudan ought to get out and do something (Continued on Page 2)

Participating from the seventh grade were Kathy Swart and Becky Byerley; eighth grade, Skokie King and Sabrina Vincent; and ninth grade, Dennis Harvey and Darren Provence.
The first place winner was Dennis Harvey who received a medal and ID bracelet from the sponsoring unit; second was Darren Provence and third was Becky Byerley. They were also presented ID bracelets.

The winning articles are as follows:
By Dennis Harvey
Sudan is a small town of about one thousand people; but I don't suppose that really makes a lot of difference. When the Bi-Centennial gets here Sudan could have just as good a celebration as a large city. We could have fireworks, picnics, and all kinds of fun.
Of course, we couldn't have any real fancy, expensive facilities like the big cities.

Workshop Stated

A three day painting workshop at the Garden Art Center at 4315 University in Lubbock on June 16, 17, and 18 from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day. Fee for the instruction will be $30.00 and must be paid prior to the beginning of classes. A deposit of $10 will assure you of being enrolled.

Another course will begin June 19 and continue on June 20 and 21 with the time as above. Night classes for working people will also be held on these days from 7 to 10 p. m. They will be painting only (no design) for beginners and intermediate. The night classes only will be $15.00.

Instructor for each course will be Conny Martin who has taught children's classes for sixteen years. She has been teaching adult painting, drawing and design at the Garden Art Center about nine years. She has taught three day workshops in many area towns and will teach in Rockport, Texas in March 1976. Her paintings are in many private collections, in public schools and in West Texas Museum. She has won many awards in area and state exhibits.

The aim of the above mentioned day classes is to help beginners and intermediate painters learn how to paint more on their own and to know how to judge their own work without outside help. The principles of design and composition will be presented in such a way as to be easily recalled when working alone. The painting demonstrations and assignments will not be directed toward a finished painting, but will be reference material to help one understand more about their chosen subject matter and the selection and use of color. Emphasis will be on inspiring students to be more original and creative.

For any other information, you may call the Garden Art Center at 762-6411, states Mac Carow, vice president of the Lubbock Art Association.

for the Bi-Centennial. I think it would be nice if President Ford could come and give a speech. But he never would because the Sudan people wouldn't write and ask him. But the American heritage is Sudan's, too. We could paint signs and posters and put them up around town. We could have a big picnic celebration where we had fireworks and entertainment. If people would just get out and do stuff, we could have a real good Bi-Centennial.

Camp Cooking? Be Creative!

Planning a weekend camping trip? In these cost-conscious days, an economical outdoor excursion is an ideal source of family fun. How to feed a hungry brood of hikers? Be creative! Here are some tips.

A weekend menu can use one food several ways. Ground beef, mixed with different ingredients, doubles for lunch and dinner. A tasty breakfast cereal like Quaker 100% Natural Cereal helps hikers start the day and totes along later for trailside munching.

Before buying food for your trip, plan meals carefully. Outdoor recreation broods big appetites, so don't skimp. The elaborateness of each meal should depend on your equipment, and on how much time you want to spend cooking—and cleaning up.

Lightweight convenience foods such as instant oatmeal, instant soups and drink mixes add ease to outdoor cooking. Snack foods should be convenient to carry. Quaker 100% Natural Cereal, for instance, is compactly packaged to stow snugly in backpacks and other tight quarters.

Finally, if you're planning that classic of camp cookery—roasting hot dogs and marshmallows—try to

MR. AND MRS. TOMMY WAYNE SEYMORE Couple Solemnizes Wedding Vows Here

The First Baptist Church of Sudan was the scene of the wedding of Doyleene Poe and Tommy Wayne Seymore Friday night, June 6, when double ring vows were exchanged. The center aisle of the church was decorated with votive candles and yellow ribbon on the pews. The altar was decorated with an archway with yellow flowers and greenery with two white doves at the top. It was flanked by spiral candelabra holding yellow tapers and baskets of yellow daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Officiating was the pastor of the church, Rev. M. V. Summers.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Poe, and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Seymore.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a classic Spanish Baroque wedding gown of Alencon lace in a petal white over white silk, with accents of petal white silk organza. The Long slender candle stick sleeves of the white Alencon lace fell to her wrist and were enriched with a ruffle of silk organza. The princess skirt fell to a graceful A-shape at the front, and swept to a cathedral train at the back.

The hemline was encircled with a deep ruffle of silk organza accented with garlands of Venise lace flowerlets. THE BIBLE SAYS---

By Art Lynch

"A good name is better than precious oil; and the day of death, than the day of one's birth." Ecclesiastes 7:1. Solomon wrote the book of Ecclesiastes, in an effort, show emptiness of a life that had been centered on self-gustification. Death is the great equalizer. We all leave this world with the same amount of goods, none. However, as I sit here trying to think of how to say goodbye to a dear friend and departed loved one, I realize we will take something with us, our name. Weaver Barnett possessed a good name. He was never rich as this world counts riches; he was never great as this world counts greatness; but he did possess a good name. As Weaver introduced me to the City of Sudan and its citizens, he spoke kindly and never harshly. He often spoke of many of you who are reading this right now but have not met me, and he always spoke good. I do not recall one time he said anything derogatory about any one person. When someone would comment about a certain teen-ager being "difficult", Weaver would always say, "That boy has had it rough!" He would come in to my study many times and sit for a while and we would discuss people. He liked to talk about people. He was interested in people. If only more of us were interested in people instead of things! I sure miss those talks. I believe if we listen to our older generation, listen now mark you, we can learn so much that will help us along the way. Weaver was easy to listen to. It gets lonesome around this old building now; he was always here doing something. He loved the church and his Lord. He loved me. He loved you. My wife misses him too. He was always doing something for her. Sudan misses him. He had a good name! Good-by, old friend. Thanks for the light along the way. He had a good name! Good-Thanks for the encouragement to never quit, and thanks for the example of never quitting. Thanks for showing me that a "good name is better than precious oil."

Have you ever stood on a rainy day
Watching it pour and pour,
And suddenly there was a rainbow,
And the sun came out once more?
Have you ever felt in the dark of night
Alone and in despair,
And suddenly it was light again,
With bright hope everywhere?
We all have our rainy days sometimes,
Our nights that are dark and long,
And suddenly hear God's small still voice,
And again our faith is strong!
