WOODWORK
MANY PEOPLE I know have been convinced for years that if the auto companies really wanted to, they could make cars which would get 40 or 50 miles per gallon of gasoline, even with the larger engines predominant in recent years. Apparently there may be some truth to these assertions, since the upcoming 1978 cars are going to get a lot better mileage than the 1976's, or at least, that's the claim.

The old Model A and the 1940 Fords and Chevies used to get pretty good mileage, or so my more aged friends tell me. But car engines gradually got more powerful, and cars grew a few inches and a lot of pounds every year until some of the new models in the 60's did well to get 10 miles per gallon.

I had a 1947 Ford coupe that was fun to drive, as were most cars in those days. I carried a bottle of water to pour on the fuel pump in the summertime, because every time you'd try to go up a long hill it would vapor lock. For awhile, it needed rings, so every other day I'd take the spark plugs out and scrape them off so they'd fire for a couple more days. In spite of all that, it had lots of zip. The steering wasn't too great, because you'd turn the wheel about half a turn before anything happened. The tail end stuck way up in the air and as you relaxed down the highway, it would sway in rhythm with the radio.

Like I say, it was fun to drive. But then along came Ralph Nader, who said folks ought not to enjoy their automobiles, so let's put seat belts, shoulder harness, air bags and emission control devices that make the motor die, so people won't kill themselves and others. And it gets worse, with such little things as buzzers and bells when you open the car door, ignition keys that won't come out of the ignition unless you hold your mouth just right, and flashing lights which let you know you have a heavy passenger in the front seat.

I wonder if the lives saved by all the junk they put on cars nowadays is not offset by the mayhem committed during the day by frustrated drivers who can't get their cars to run on a cold morning.

Future Teachers hold meeting

F. T. A. members of Sudan High School met Friday, Oct. 3, when projects were planned and officers elected.

There are 26 members in the organization this year with Gaylene Rogers the newly-elected president. Chyrel Phillips is vice president, Phil Kent, secretary, treasurer; Bert Byrley, reporter, and Bernadette May, parliamentarian.

Projects planned were a "chili supper" Friday, Oct. 10, at 5:00 P.M. in school cafeteria (prior to Happy-Sudan football game) a party for members October 16, and other sales projects.

Members other than those mentioned above are Laina West, Francine Nokes, Martha Withrow, J'Lee Miller, Steve Ritchie, Mike Jones,

HORNETS BLANK PATRIOTS, 10-0

FIRST PLACE WINNERS IN THE 1958 HONEST SHOWBOY Game; 8 year olds, Brad Sparty; 9 year olds, George Sanders; 10 year olds, Perry Hunt; 11 year olds, Stacey Conley; 12 year olds, Rex Buchholz; 13 year olds, Joe Martinez. Pictures of 2nd and 3rd place winners will be run next week.

The Sudan Hornets won their first district encounter of the year with a 10-0 score Friday night over the Valley Patriots. The loss by Valley ended a nine-game winning streak which included six shut-outs. They were last defeated when the Hornets won last year by a 20-0 score. The only team to score on them this year was Valley County Mustangs who made only one touchdown. Valley was the top and elected to receive. After making two first downs, the Hornets made a fourth and two on their own 42. The Hornets then drove to Valley's 20 where Valley recovered a fumble. Subsequently Valley was forced to punt. The Hornets took over on their own 25 and drove 25 yards in 12 plays with Ernie Williams getting the 10 on a one-point kick. The Hornets then began to play catch-up and forced an exchange of punts.

After a Valley punt to the Sudan 25, the Hornets gained a first down and then finished with Valley recovering the football on their 32.

Both teams then began to play catch-up and forced an exchange of punts.

After a Valley punt to the Sudan 25, the Hornets gained a first down and then finished with Valley recovering the football on their 32.

On the next play, Lamar Williams threw the Patriot quarterback for a 10-yard loss on a pass attempt. On third down, Dennis Flowers stepped into the backfield after an eight-yard gain. Facing fourth and 12, Valley threw a pass to Craig McWhorter on the Hornets' 25-yard line. The Hornets then ran two plays and on the last play of the half, Walter threw to Ernie Williams for a 40-yard completion. Williams was on a 7-11, Hornets.

On the second half, the Hornets set up on their own 30-yard line. They moved to Valley's 40-yard line where on a pass attempt, the Hornets were called for a holding. Assuming play and two attempted punts failed to get the touch-down. The drive ended six and one-half minutes of the clock and took 16 plays.

Valley then took over on the 10-yard line. On the first play, Ernie Williams made Valley's longest run of the night out to the Valley 40-yard line. On second down, Williams attempted a pass which was intercepted by Jerry Williams in the end zone.

The Hornets made two first downs and then Valley dug in and stopped the Hornets on their 45. On the fourth, Valley called the game and recovered the ball in the end zone.

The Patriots then drove to the Sudan 50 and a half-play later when they had a turnover. On the next play, Steve Whitlock tackled Ernie Williams for no gain. On the next play which was the end of the game, Ernie Williams and Ernie Williams stepped forward for a half-play loss. On the third down, the Hornets stepped forward, Ernie Williams stepped forward the ball from early on in the end zone. Only called to the ball on the next play, Ernie Williams stepped forward the end zone at the Sudan 50-yard line.

The Hornets, led by great blocking and line running, moved the ball 60 yards in 14 plays to Valley's 10-yard line. On fourth down, Ernie Williams kicked a field goal to give the Hornets a 10-0 lead with 4:55 left in the game.

Homecoming Announced

Please attend this Homecoming and make this the best homecoming ever.

Firemen Attend School

Sudan Volunteer Firemen attended a 10-hour fire-fighting course at the American Red Cross in Marshall last week. The eight-hour course was directed by G. E. Graham who is an employee of Southwestern Public Service of Marshall. The company furnished the needed materials and supplies. The training was held in the Department to provide better service when needed.

Some 14 persons completed the course. The Sudan Volunteer Fire Department received a call Sunday afternoon, Oct. 5, at 5:00 P.M. when a car
