The Bible Says

"Wives, be in subjection unto your husbands, as unto the Lord...Husbands, love your wives and do not be bitter against them..." Ephesians 5:22 and Colossians 3:19.

Last week we looked at the four words for love in the Greek language. Married love is a combination of three. The three are: eros, or the physical love; philia, or the brotherly love; and agape, or the selfless love. A man has the privilege of enjoying his wife in the physical sense (see 1 Corinthians 7:4) A man's best friend is also his wife. If this is not true, she could be his worst enemy. A wife's best friend is also her husband or should be. And finally, but not lastly, there has to be the love that is totally interested in the other person and not in self. Without this, as you can see from looking at the other two, marriage is strictly based on what I can get from my wife or what she can get from me. A very miserable existence at best.

What then does a man mean when he says "I do not love my wife any more?" He can only mean, "I do not feel that she is my friend and I have no physical attraction to her." There is no way he could mean I do not "agape" her any more, because agape cannot die.

What is the answer? Well, I do not claim to have all the answers, but we can look at marriages that are happy and seem successful and get some ideas. To what are we dedicated? If we are dedicated to a beautiful, loving, cheerful, and smiling person, (the one we dated before marriage) what happens when she or he has a "bad" day? They disappear! But let's suppose for a minute that we are dedicated to making our marriage work no matter what! (in sickness as in health, in prosperity as in adversity and so on.) I believe I heard that somewhere! Then when that person we love so much when they are pretty becomes not-so-pretty, we do our best to love them into being pretty again. That takes unselfishness. That is agape.

Through learn by doing activities, these 4-H's become skilled and confident in presenting their ideas formally to an audience. As a result, they are better able to get their message across clearly and convincingly in informal, everyday situations.

The 4-H public speaking program teaches 4-H's to: --Choose an interesting topic, research it thoroughly, organize material carefully, and then write an outline. --Speak clearly and loudly
