In a meeting last week the Sudan Community Improvement Association voted to back the bond election that has been called for April 22nd. This election will be in regards to the improvement of the city water supply, sewer, and additional land for water rights.

During their monthly meeting at First National Bank last week, mayor Nolan Parrish reported on his meeting with the High Plains Water District and SPAG. He said they felt we have a good chance of getting help from both these groups, that everything is in the City's favor.

An application has been made by the City both to South Plains Association of Governments and Farmers Home Administration for a grant and long term financing.

Also in the meeting it was announced that the City had set-up a city week starting April 3rd. The improvement group noted that this will work well with their plans for the State contest that they have entered as the judging will be April 24th.

The records committee of the Community Improvement Association reported that they had made good progress with their scrapbook which will be submitted within the next few days.

Several groups were represented, both civic and churches, along with interested persons. You are encouraged to join this group in the betterment of our community as they need the help of everyone.

Telephones Out Saturday

Local telephone service was lost for several hours on Saturday, March 18.

The "office locked up" so to speak and no calls were able to be processed, due to a "testing error" in Lubbock.

In searching for a long distance problem, eleven long distance trunks from Sudan were inadvertently disabled due to the nature of the clearing of the equipment. This in turn disabled local switching equipment.

As soon as General Telephone was notified by radio, repairmen were dispatched and the trouble was cleared up around 4 p.m.

General Telephone employees are still investigating to make sure there is no other cause.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Ray:

The March 5th Lubbock Avalanche Journal carried an editorial that put into words so well what many of us in the small communities have begun to realize in the past few months. No longer can we be the silent majority! No longer can we take for granted those precious freedoms that were bought by the blood of our loved ones. If we are going to continue to live in the "land of the free and the brave" we must start exercising that freedom and courage others purchased for us. We simply must get informed and involved, individually and collectively.

Never before in history has our legislative system had so much power in directing our lives and those of our children. Yet basically it is still a good form of government. If it is not functioning in the way it was intended perhaps we ourselves are to blame. How much do we really know about our legislative system and the officials we elect to represent us? Too many of us have become apathetic or discouraged and have let a few people do our thinking and acting for us. It's high time we shared those responsibilities.

As city and county elections draw nearer there is no better place for us to begin to take a good hard look at the directions of our future than at our local scene.

Let's begin with our city elections, then county, state and national. Basically we should look for most of the same qualifications at all levels of government. Remember that building a good foundation at a local level is most important. When considering a candidate for an office evaluate his potential performance by asking yourself some of these questions.

1. Is the candidate of good moral character and standing?
2. Is the candidate well enough informed to make intelligent decisions?
3. Has the candidate shown an active interest in the past for the area that he now wants to represent?
4. Is the candidate strong enough to defend your area regardless of the pressure that may be applied by others?
5. Will your candidate listen to the needs of your community and represent those needs regardless of the community's size?
6. Is your candidate aware that needs vary with size, situation, and location, but are just as important as those presented on a larger scale?
7. Is your candidate enthusiastic?
8. Is your candidate progressive-minded?
9. Does your candidate have a positive attitude?
10. Would your candidate sacrifice your community's needs for personal gain or power?
11. Will your candidate consider long range adverse or beneficial effects of each vote he casts?
12. Will your candidate be available for discussion and feedback?

Select your official prayerfully! We can remain one nation under God indivisible with liberty and justice for all.

If you do not have a yellow registration card showing that you have registered to vote your vote will not be counted. If you are not sure, call your county tax assessor's office today!

I would like to thank you, Diana, and your staff for the great job you are doing through your newspaper in creating public interest. Allowing us to express our interest and concern through this news media has stirred our own sense of awareness.

Sincerely,
Louise Landers

Rural Heroism Award

Quick action by a 12 year old northeast Texas boy is credited with saving his mother's life when her clothing caught fire in an incident that occurred at their home August 7 of last year.

Scot Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. LaFray Mitchell of Lake Creek in Delta County, received the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council's "Rural Heroism" Award for 1977 at the annual meeting of the Texas Safety Association here today. The council is the farm and ranch section of the Safety Association. Ben Bullard, assistant safety director, Texas Farm Bureau, is president of the council.

Presentation was made by Millard Shivers, director of rural development for Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Texas and chairman of the council's awards committee.

Scot was cited for his action when his mother, Mrs. Mary Dee Mitchell, caught fire from an exploding jug of flammable liquid as she was attempting to light a charcoal grill. Mrs. Mitchell by mistake used gasoline to ignite the fire and the jug exploded engulfing her in

The national parks are strange and wondrous places. Their natural beauty often lulls people into thinking they are placid and tame, but danger can lurk in a national park the same as it can elsewhere in nature.

In 1976, 152 people died of accidental causes while visiting the 286 areas of the National Park System. In 1977, 183 died. With a record 280 million visitors expected in the parks in 1978, Southwest Region Director John Cook is working to reverse the rising trend of accidents.

Some element of risk is inherent in any wilderness experience," Cook said. "We can't mar an area's natural beauty by fencing everyone in. But if everyone takes an active part in their own safety, many deaths can be avoided."

Cook recommends that visitors take a few minutes at the park visitor center for information about park conditions and special features. Rangers know the parks best and the advice they can provide may spell the difference between a pleasant visit and a tragedy.

Cook outlined the major hazards in the southern and southwest parks and suggested ways to avoid them.

Drowning is one of the principal causes of death in the parks and one that particularly appalls Cook because it can almost always be prevented if the rules are followed. "For safety's sake," he said, "always observe posted warnings, never swim alone, wear life preservers at all times on boats and check with rangers before swimming in unposted areas."

Auto accidents are another leading cause of park deaths. "Rubber necking is a big factor in car accidents," Cook said. "Awd by the scenery, people will stop their cars on a blind curve or a tight turn or drive across the center line."

"The visitor should not try to see the park from the car, but stop frequently at turn-outs to enjoy the sights," he said. "Park roads are built in a way that causes minimum impact on the environment. They are safe at posted speed limits, but they are not superhighways."

Falls also take their share of lives. "To minimize the danger of a fall, visitors should stay on marked trails and proceed cautiously," Cook said. "Watch for loose rocks on steep trails or in cliff areas; And always alert the park when you are on an extended hike."

Wildlife presents another hazard. "The park is not a petting zoo," Cook emphasized. "Cute baby animals may have protective parents nearby. Small mammals might carry disease and there are some poisonous reptiles in the parks. All these animals are protected and should be avoided."

Heat can be a serious problem, especially in desert areas. Both cars and people can overheat and need extra water and special care. "If you have car trouble, don't walk out for help," Cook advises. "Heat prostration can happen quickly."

And above all, Cook warned. "Watch the children. Your knowledge cannot help a child who is beyond your protective reach and warning voice."

For a safe trip, Cook advises visitors to keep the National Park Service safety slogan in mind: "Have a SUPER trip." SUPER is an acronym for Safe, Use, Preserve and Enjoy the Resources, with an emphasis on the "S". If you are planning to visit a National Park

Portraits Of Aging

"Portraits of Aging" will be shown in the Fallbrook area on Channel 31 Cable, Channel 61, KCHD-TV at 6:30 Friday, March 31. It is a sensitive depiction of our older citizens. It is not a documentary that points out only the problems of aging, but rather shows how older persons celebrate living and learn to deal with problems in a positive way.

The film was produced by Miller Productions Inc. for the Office of the Governor, Committee on Aging, represented locally by the Area Agency on Aging. It is sponsored, without intrusion, as a public service by Levi Strauss and Company, Bert Kruger Smith, author of many books, including "Aging on America" and "The Pursuit of Dignity" served as the chief consultant.

Divided into six sections, the show focuses on older Texans of different ethnic and social backgrounds. All have found ways of coping with growing older which gives them a common thread to share. The people themselves tell their own stories. The film can be an inspiration to both older and younger citizens.

Make The Switch!

Mr. Farmer:

Wouldn't you switch from dry to liquid fertilizer if:

1. The cost per acre were the same
2. Your chemical could be added and applied at no extra cost
3. You could have your fertilizer/chemical applied with much more precision
4. The liquid you applied was already ready for the plant to use and not waiting to be dissolved

The season is short and this is the year to save expenses wherever possible.

Let us save you your money and time by applying both liquid fertilizer and chemical in one trip over the field. Call or come see Ricky Burk at:

the first time it is swallowed. Therefore, a small piece of wire or any metal object may go down as easily as a stiff piece of grass or hay. Later, when the feed is brought up for chewing the cud, this heavy object does not come up. Instead it is moved into the second stomach where it settles to the bottom and stays there.

The location of this second stomach, called the reticulum, is between the diaphragm and the very large, first stomach called the rumen. Due to this location the object is often forced to move forward by the constant movements of the large, first stomach behind it. When enough force is produced and the object is sharp, it will begin to penetrate the stomach wall.

Hardware disease is more likely to occur in cows around calving time. This is because of the extra pressure placed on the stomach by the unborn calf and especially by the straining that occurs at delivery.

Soon after the object penetrates the stomach wall there will be enough infection in the area to cause even more pain for the cow. One of the first signs seen in hardware disease is lowered milk production, if the cow is milking at the time, and loss of normal appetite.

These signs are often missed by the owner, especially in beef cattle on pasture and dry dairy cows not being fed daily. Shortly after the first signs appear, other evidence of pain can be observed—a slightly arched back, reluctance to move, and a stiff appearance, especially in front legs. Breathing and heart rate are usually increased, but not a great deal. Dairy cows and thin beef type cows will usually show a "tucked" appearance.

Some cows with pain of hardware disease will grunt when forced to walk, but most will only grunt when pressure is applied under the body just behind the breast bone or sternum. Many times this expiratory grunt can only be heard with the aid of a stethoscope held over the windpipe or trachea. Other aids to "diagnose" the presence of hardware used by veterinarians are blood test for evidence of infection, metal detectors, and even surgery, when it is a very valuable animal.

Many cows will have metal in their stomach which never causes trouble. This is often true of very small blunt objects. Therefore, when using a metal detector one must consider all other signs also. Many times not finding metal present with the detector is more meaningful than finding it.

A typical case of hardware disease is one that shows signs for one to four days and then the cow seems normal again, with or without treatment. Therefore, in pastured cattle this may go unnoticed. The object may be walked off with scar tissue, and never cause trouble again. Or it may change locations and anytime later cause trouble.

Sometimes, after the object has gone through the stomach wall and the local infection is overcome by the animal's body, the object will start to move again and penetrate the diaphragm. This usually takes two or three weeks before it is noticeable to the owner. The object is now very near the heart and infection develops in the thin-walled covering of the heart. Fluid accumulates in this heart sac and may be heard with aid of a stethoscope. Soon after this, the animal will show outside evidence of a heart problem. The most common indication is swelling around the brisket and under the lower jaw.

When a cow shows signs of hardware disease for the first time, there are three alternatives. The first—sell for slaughter immediately. Second—have surgery done to remove the object, or in very valuable animals, just to make sure that hardware disease is the problem. Third—the animal may be treated with antibiotics, feed withheld about two days, and then ten very little for ten days. Many cases will improve and no more attacks occur. If an animal does have a second attack, then immediate slaughter is probably the best way to handle it.

To prevent this condition, make sure all farm workers are aware of the danger of hardware disease and are very careful about allowing cattle access to items likely to be swallowed. Properly dispose of baling wire. Avoid dropping nails and staples during repair or construction of barns and fences. Some owners, especially dairymen, use magnets in the stomach to attract all metal and prevent its movement.

Some objects which have been removed by surgery include many types of wire, nails, tacks, staples, bolts, screws, glass, bone, rocks and tin. Among the rare items found were a safety razor blade, lady's bobbin pin, machine needle for sewing, lead, socks, coins, metal parts of shotgun shells—metal from feed grinders—and many unidentifiable pieces of metal.

Some people believe that one can talk but don't for fear of going out to work.

BUY GARDEN SEED WISELY-When the time comes to plant your garden, avoid spending your hard earned money on bargain seed.

A prime rule for success in home gardening is to get the best seed you can. You may have to shell out a few extra pennies, but the added cost will pay off in better yields and better spirits at year's end.

Because seed, like used cars, varies in quality from dealer to dealer, buy from a reputable seed dealer. The best dealer offer treated seed to protect young seedlings from attack from soil borne diseases and insects.

Regardless of where you buy seed, be sure percentage of germination is marked on each package or seed bin. This tells you what percentage of the seed is viable or capable of living and growing. For best stands, buy seed that is at least 80 percent viable.

Another important thing to look for when buying garden seed is "date of testing." This refers to the age of the seed and if it was carried over from last season. To be on the safe side, buy seed with a recent testing date.

Of course, buying seed of recommended varieties is important for a successful garden. You may want to try new varieties on a small scale, but do not discard an old variety for something new and untried.

Seed left over from last year is probably safe to use, provided it was stored in a cool place in an airtight container. If you are uncertain about the age or variety of seed, throw it away and buy new seed for this year's garden.

CONTROL NOW TO AVOID GARDEN PESTS LATER-Now is the time to think about controlling some of the hard-to-kill pests on trees and shrubs around the home.

Dormant oil applications are particularly effective for controlling scale insects, mites and certain insects which are passing the winter in the form of eggs.

During the growing season, control of scale insects is difficult because of their hard, waxy covering. Other pests also are more difficult to control at that time, requiring careful timing of toxic chemicals.

Dormant oils kill insects and mites by smothering. When compared to pesticide oils are cheaper, safe to handle and don't harm the environment. Dormant oils also give good covering action when applied properly.

However, dormant oils will damage most leaves and should not be applied to evergreen shrubs and trees. There are different oils which are less concentrated and can be used safely on several evergreen plants.

Dormant oils can be applied anytime trees or shrubs are in a dormant state. The oil is most effective however, if applied in late winter or early spring just before bud break. The oil should be applied when temperatures are between 40 and 65 degrees Fahrenheit. Freezing weather within 48 hours of the treatment may cause the oil to be less effective.

When mixing and applying dormant oils, extreme care should be taken to avoid using excessive amounts. Also, thorough coverage of trunks and limbs is necessary for good control.

Some trees and shrubs may be damaged, even with application of normal amounts of dormant oil. Therefore, you should always read and follow the manufacturers instructions on the container label.

TIME FOR MACHINERY SAFETY TRAINING-With spring land preparation and planting activity increasing, now is a good time to give machinery operators the annual training required under occupational safety and health standards.

Although many required points may seem simple and a matter of common sense, failure to follow the correct procedure outlined causes the majority of tractor and machinery mishaps.

Minimum required points to cover regarding tractor operation include the following:

1. Securely fasten your seat belt if the tractor has a Roll Over Protective Structure (ROPS).
2. Where possible, avoid operating the tractor near ditches, embankments, and holes.
3. Reduce speed when turning, crossing slopes, and on rough, slick or muddy surfaces.
4. Stay off slopes too steep for safe operation.
5. Watch where you are going, especially at row ends, on roads, and around trees.
6. Do not permit others to ride.
7. Operate the tractor smoothly--no jerky turns starts, or stops.
8. Hitch only to the drawbar and hitch points recommended by the tractor manufacturers.
9. When tractor is stopped, set brakes securely and use park lock if available.

Minimum required points to cover regarding farm machinery include:

1. Keep all guards in place when the machine is in operation.
2. Permit no riders on farm equipment.
3. Stop engine, disconnect power source, and wait

THE FASHION PLACE

By Elaine Monroe, Fashion Director Sears, Roebuck and Co.

The generously curved larger woman, often called fashion's stepchild (although an estimated 25 million women wear size 16 or larger), may be fashion's newest darling. Happily, the more ample among us are starting to carry weight with the garment industry.

BIG FASHIONS for big women can be beautiful.

This season much more than the usual basic colors and shapes will be available. The bigger beauties can wear sundresses in feminine prints and the three-tiered silhouette.

Tops include a peasanty tunic with drawstring neckline, bow-tied and cow-collared blouses and shirts in shades such as rose pink and mint green. Color-cued coordinates feature blazers or sweaters to mix with tops and trousers in pimiento red, mint green and light spruce blue.

Where can the fine figure of a woman find such fashion? In the 40-page, full-color Apparel Catalog of Half Sizes and Women's Sizes for spring and summer '78 from Sears, available at any Sears selling unit.

Farm Profits Eaten Away By Inflation

AUSTIN--Even though farm prices had risen two percent as of Jan. 15, inflation caused profits to remain at a standstill, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has announced.

According to reports issued by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, prices received for major Texas crops and livestock averaged a two-percent jump in January. "But the report also indicated a two-percent increase that U.S. producers had to pay for commodities, services, interest, taxes and wage rates," Brown added.

"There is certainly no room for profit there," he commented.
