Sudan and surrounding areas have received from one to over three inches of rain the past few days. This is a much needed moisture but some say they have received enough or too much for this time of the season.

Severe thunderstorms, some reportedly accompanied by funnel clouds and large hail battered much of the South Plains Monday night.

Sudan received high winds and rain of a reported inch to a little over an inch through early Tuesday morning bringing the total for the last few days to 3 inches. By noon Tuesday, sunny skies prevailed with some high clouds.

Woman Helps In Palo Duro Flooding

A 53-year-old grandmother from Sudan went on camping trip with three children and ended up leading the survival efforts of 20 persons when their Palo Duro Canyon campground was flooded last weekend.

Mickey Stevens, her two grandchildren, Jeff and Ti Meisner, 14 and 11, of Lubbock and their friend, 11-year-old Terry Clark of Lubbock, arrived at Sunflow Campground deep in the canyon about 7:30 p.m. Friday May 26.

It was raining, so they made camp and went to sleep at dusk.

The tent the children were in leaked and they got in the camper with Mrs. Stevens about 10 p.m.

"It hadn't rained over an inch and a half or 2 inches she said. "It didn't seem to rain in the canyon like it did outside.

"I went back to sleep and slept good till about 11 o'clock. I don't know why I woke up. I don't remember hearing a thing."

Still somehow uneasy, she opened the camper door and got out, "and the water was up to just below my knees."

She woke Jeff and then woke three sets of campers nearby. She started the pickup and had Jeff walk ahead of it in the headlights to keep from running it off the road. Within a few minutes they had it onto the main road and out of the campground from the west side of the road.

The Prairie Dog Town Fork of the Red River hurried over its banks from a deluge of rain in the canyon watershed between Canyon and Hereford 25 and 30 miles away and was getting deeper as they drove the pickup out.

"By the time we got to the top of the hill, where had been was probably 5 1/2 to 6 feet under" she said. Mrs. Stevens and her grandson left the pickup and 10 girls at the road and went back in.

Swimming in places, they reached a car where the Ronnie Walker family of Amarillo had climbed onto a roof to escape the water. They took the children, 2 1/2 and 1 1/2, while Walker helped his wife out through about four feet of water.

For two hours we could hear two girls hollering help, she said. "We could see some lights but could not reach them. They were on top of their van. Finally they were swept off the top of the van and Jeff and some of the men went down and threw a rope to them and pulled them in about the length of a city block from the van."

"Then we found a lawyer in a tree and pulled him in. The girls were Heather Marth and Nancy Laurel Baldwin, N.M., Mrs. Stevens said. The attorney is Jefferson Lankford of Louisville, Ky.

"A couple from Germany, Anke Mollenkott and Manfred Zumppe of Wilhelm, West Germany, were in a tree for 2 1/2 hours and finally swam out. We didn't know they were there."

After the sun came up and the rain slackened, the five children and 15 adults on the hundred yards so of main road that was not underwater. Seven cars and pickups were submerged in more than six feet of water the two-block-square campground, which is beyond the fifth water crossing in the canyon and near the end paved roads.

Mrs. Stevens had packed the camper with provisions. Two plastic tablecloths and a shower curtain were stretched out from the camper to make shelters from rain. Blankets were distributed and food was taken for the dismal breakfast.

Later that morning, a Department of Public Safety helicopter piloted by Bill Meador of Lubbock made the first of several stops it would make at the worst-flooded part of the eight-mile-long state park.

No one was injured there, so Meador left without picking anyone up.

He came back Sunday and took out Mrs. Walker and her children and the two younger children of the Stevens group.

Jeff stayed there to help his grandmother. They worked Sunday to salvage what they could from the cars and pickups as the water started to go down.

Meador came back Sunday afternoon to carry out some of the adults who wanted to go. Several stayed to try to get their vehicles out of the canyon.

The decision to stay carried some danger because they were told Lake Tanglewood just north of the park at Buffalo Lake at Umbarger between Canyon and Hereford might break their dams and flood the canyon again.

Eight of them stayed after Sunday, Mrs. Stevens said. Jeff, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schroeder of Delmar, N.M.; A Force Maj. John Hill of Clovis; Ronnie Walker and M and Mrs. James Williams of Pittsburg, Kan.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams also had an unusual story tell when they got home.

They were asleep in a tent when the flood water lapped and were carried away. They could not unzip the tent they bumped and rolled along wetly in the dark as Williams finally got out a knife and cut their way out. They swam and waded to dry ground.

"We held a prayer service while we were the thanking God we got out," Mrs. Stevens said. "I don't see how we did."

Only Mrs. Stevens was able to bring her vehicle out when the water finally receded enough Thursday. The other cars and pickups "were completely ruined, completely covered with mud," she said.

Her husband, W.O. Stevens, who farms south of Sudan did not know his wife had had such an adventure until she got home.

"He wasn't really worried while we were gone because he thought we were in a real high campground and were all right," she said. "He said he was glad he didn't know."

The Lubbock All Girls Basketball Camp, scheduled for two week-long sessions at Lubbock Christian College this summer, is filling its enrollment fast. The two sessions are scheduled for July 3-7 and 17-21.

The camps are under the direction of LCC basketball coach Darrell Price. Any girl 10 years or older may attend the camp, however there is a limit of 50 campers for each session. Agribusiness Exposition

The second annual High Plains Agribusiness Exposition will be held at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center August 25, 26, and 27, according to Danny J. Cunyus, show director.

In a news conference held at the Civic Center Thursday morning, Cunyus noted that the 1977 Exposition was the first major farm show held in this area with over 150 exhibitors. "Response from last year's exhibitors wishing to be in the 1978 show has been very encouraging," said Cunyus.

Plans are currently being formulated for forums on marketing, farm management, import-export opportunities and energy. The forum format has been developed to continue the Exposition's efforts to provide an occasion for anyone interested in agriculture to become more aware of advances and problems in the field, according to Cunyus.

Officers and management for the organization include Danny J. Cunyus, director; Karl Richey, coordinator; Gerald Griffin; Robert D. Rogers, all of Lubbock; and Joe Cunyus of Lockney. An advisory board composed of High Plains farmers will be announced later.

The Exposition will be free to the public, Cunyus added, and will contain 124,975 square feet of exhibit space inside and adjacent to the Civic Center.

Companies interested in additional information about the show or who wish to book space may contact Danny Cunyus or Karl Richey at 806-763-3851.

Veterans Administration

Some 70,000 widows, wives of totally and permanently disabled veterans and their children are enrolled in college or other training with Veterans Administration financial help, according to Max Cleland, Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

The VA provides up to 48 months schooling to eligible spouses and to children between the ages of 18 to 26, Cleland said. But the VA chief warned that some spouses would lose their eligibility for these valuable benefits if they don't act within eight months.

The eligibility of a spouse ends on November 30, 1978, or ten years from the date the veteran was found to have a total and permanent service-connected disability, or ten years from the date of his or her death, whichever is later.

A child's VA educational eligibility ends on his 26th birthday plus any time period after his eighteenth birthday required to process the application, unless extended under certain conditions.

Nearly 375,000 spouses and children have trained under this program. Full information on VA dependents' education program can be obtained at the nearest VA office, veterans county service office, or national service organization.

Women Active In Army

In the last five years the number of women in the active Army has more than tripled, according to General Bernard W. Rogers, Army Chief of Staff. This increase and the entrance of women into many non-traditional skills presents challenges. The Army has a commitment to the integration of women and to provide fundamental guidance to insure this integration is completed smoothly and rapidly.

Today women are successfully performing a wide variety of duties, many of which were considered solely in the male domain just a few years ago. A recently approved combat exclusion policy opened more specialties to women than ever before. However, equal training for men and women was only recently implemented.

Qualified women now have the opportunity to serve in all but a few specific combat units and combat specialties. Women are an essential part of the force. They will deploy with their units and they will serve in the skills in which they have been trained, according to General Rogers.

Women are an integral part of the Army. With this in mind, we must insure that women are provided an equitable opportunity for assignment in their specialty, given adequate training and held responsible for the full range of duties prescribed for their assigned positions.

The first considerations in the assignment of women in the Army have been, and will continue to be, the mission of the Army itself and the uniquely demanding nature of Army service in wartime.

Within that context women can make many important contributions; indeed, they are doing so now. The burden which rests on leaders at every level is to provide knowledgeable, understanding, affirmative and even-handed leadership to all soldiers.

BAKING WITH CANDY

Two great tastes that taste great together are chocolate and peanut butter. Proven popular in candy, the flavor combination is also a winner in the homemade oven-baked treats, featured here. Crunchy peanut butter cookies become something extra special if, before baking, you make a thumbprint depression in the center of the cookies, then, as they come hot from the oven, fill each center with a milk chocolate covered peanut butter cup. Kids'll eat 'em up!

Just plain delicious is our Peanut Butter Candy Cake. Its great taste comes from sprinkling chopped peanut butter cups on top of the batter before baking. The baked cake is then lavishly frosted with a creamy cocoa frosting.

Don't miss out on these two candy-inspired chocolate-peanut butter treats. They'll become family favorites.

BUTTERCUP CANDY COOKIES

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup peanut butter
- 1/2 cup packed light brown sugar
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1-3/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg white
- 1 tablespoon water
- 1 cup crushed corn cereal
- 1 10-ounce package Reese's Bite Size Milk Chocolate Covered Peanut Butter Cups (40 cups)

Cream butter, peanut butter, brown sugar and sugar until light and fluffy; blend in egg. Combine flour, baking soda and salt; add to creamed mixture. Roll dough into 1-inch balls. Combine egg white and water; beat with fork until foamy. Roll balls in egg white mixture, then in crushed cereal. Place on ungreased cookie sheet and press with thumb or finger tips in center making a depression about 1-inch wide. Bake at 375°F for 8 to 10 minutes or until set. Remove from oven and immediately place a peanut butter cup in center of each cookie. Cool on cookie sheet 1 minute; carefully remove and cool on wire rack. About 40 cookies.

COCOA BUTTERCREAM FROSTING

- 1/2 cup Hershey's Cocoa
 - 2-2/3 cups confectioners' sugar
 - 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - 1/8 teaspoon salt
 - 4 to 5 tablespoons milk
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Combine cocoa and confectioners' sugar. Cream butter and salt with one-third of the sugar mixture. Gradually add milk, vanilla and remaining sugar mixture; beat until desired spreading consistency.

Energy Saving Ideas

WASTE LESS. SAVE MORE

"In our homes, 41 percent of all the energy we pay for is actually wasted. In our commercial buildings, 48 percent of all energy is wasted and industry wastes 49 percent." That's the opinion of J.W. Kennedy, an air conditioning expert and advisor to the Alliance to Save Energy. Europeans have eliminated much of this waste, says Kennedy, partly due to wider use of heat reclamation systems and large heat pump systems.

"This has happened because in Europe energy has historically been costly and in short supply," Kennedy said. "This has forced Europeans to be strict conservationists, and it has pushed them to design and employ systems that use energy efficiently. System designs employing large heat pumps and heat recovery principles are being installed there at twice the rate as they are in this country." In a recent address at Energy Expo '78 in Rhode Island, Kennedy highlighted a number of energy-efficient systems now in use in Europe. He said that they all have two things in common: they were designed and selected on the basis of lowest operating cost, instead of lowest first cost as systems are in the U.S., and they did not depend on some future breakthrough to become justified.

The Alliance to Save Energy is a national voluntary group dedicated to helping Americans save energy. Kennedy is president of the York division of Borg-Warner Corporation and is a member of the board of advisors to the Alliance to Save Energy. "In this nation," says Kennedy, "we must begin to phase available technologies and accept the concept of buying systems on the basis of lowest energy cost rather than lowest first cost, or simply face the inevitability of paying more and more to keep our homes and buildings less and less comfortable in the coming years," Kennedy said.

SCREWWORMS DETECTED IN THE ROLLING PLAINS-The first screwworm cases for the season were found in the Rolling Plains during May. This report was received from the Texas Animal Health Commission.

Two cases of screwworms were found in Coleman County and one case each was confirmed from Stonewall and Mitchell counties. There were no reported cases in our area for 1977.

Ranchers should be on the lookout for possible screwworm infestations by continually checking livestock for suspicious wounds. All suspect samples need to be sent to the Mission Screwworm Laboratory for positive identification. Collection kits and vials for mailing worm samples can be obtained from the Lamb County Extension office.

We all need to be screwworm vigilantes this year. Extra precautions with fresh wounds need to be taken to prevent the spread of these early infestations.

CATLEMEN URGED TO CONTROL ANAPLASMOSIS-Anaplasmosis continues to cause more than $100 million in losses to the nation's cattle industry each year, and blood surveys have shown that about 16 percent of the cattle slaughtered from Texas have the disease.

Cattlemen should take steps to eliminate the threat of anaplasmosis in their herds.

Anaplasmosis is an infectious disease of cattle caused by a small parasite that destroys red blood cells. The disease is especially wide-spread in warm, humid areas where it is spread by certain insects, primarily biting flies such as horse and deer flies. Certain ticks can also spread the disease along with the use of contaminated bleeding or vaccinating needles, dehorners, ear notchers or nose tongues.

Infected animals generally show no visible symptoms during the four-to-six-week incubation period. Then they become weak, may go off feed and refuse to drink water. Later they may become constipated, stray away from the herd, or become unduly excited. Advanced cases become pale around the eyes, muzzle or teats or show yellowish-tinged skin. Seriously infected cattle either die or begin to recover in two to four days after the first symptoms appear.

Older cattle are more severely affected than younger ones, and calves under six months generally do not show recognizable symptoms. Of course, animals that recover are carriers of the disease.

To prevent losses from anaplasmosis, cattlemen may want to begin a vaccination program. However, they should first seek the advice of their local veterinarian. Tetracycline antibiotics can be used as a continuous feed during the season when fly vectors are most prevalent. These may also be given intravenously in early cases. Of course, controlling insect vectors with dust bags, back rubbers or a regular spray program will help reduce the incidence of anaplasmosis.

Cattlemen should watch their herds closely for signs of the disease and to call a veterinarian if the disease is suspected. Cattle showing symptoms should be handled carefully since they are weak and may die rapidly from too much activity or excitement.

PROTECT SQUASH FROM VINE BORERS-Squash vine borers can completely destroy squash plants in the home garden.

Squash vine borers attack all kinds of squash and will occasionally attack cucumbers and pumpkins.

The adult of the squash vine borer is a beautiful wasplike moth about 1-1 1/2 inches long. It has metallic blue front wings and the hind wings are transparent. The body is ringed with bright red, black and copper. These moths fly about the garden during the day and deposit small flattened, brownish eggs on stems and leaf stalks. When the eggs hatch the small borers enter the stems and bore up and down the vines. Full grown larvae are thick white caterpillars with a brown head and are about an inch in length.

Plants infested with vine borers begin to wilt and turn yellow. Heavy infestations will kill the plant. The larvae will feed from four-six weeks, and infestations can be detected by the sawdust-like grass which the larvae push out of holes they make in the sides of the vines near the base of the plant.

Infested plants may be treated by slitting the vine with a razor blade or sharp knife at the point of infestations and puncturing or removing the larvae.

Chemical control of this pest is difficult unless the pesticide is carefully applied to the infested area of the vines near the base of the plant. Sevin or Methoxychlor dust may be used.

FACTS ON FATHERS

In parts of old Africa, the best gift a young man could give his father was the skin of his first lion. In pre-revolutionary China, a prized present for Pop was a longevity robe: a silken robe embroidered with the Chinese characters for "long life."

Life in modern America calls for another kind of gift. Many young shavers, and others, are pleasing fathers with a new shaver. One that stands out like no other electric razor has a chic silver-colored body to help men start the day with elegance and it has a better shaving angle than ever before. It features three Microgroove floating heads with 36 self-sharpening surgical steel blades and nine closeness/comfort settings to regulate the degrees of shaving closeness. Made by Norelco and called the Rotary Razor Adjustable Tripleheader Charger, it also has a pop-up trimmer that's 24 percent wider for increased efficiency.

Customs vary in the way fathers treat children, too. In parts of Russia, for instance, people never played with their offspring, and fathers were despised for holding their little ones' hands past the age of 4. In New Guinea, however, fathers tend to be very gentle with children, delighting in feeding them by hand, and parental "don'ts" are few. Surprisingly to some, the youngsters don't grow up spoiled, but are gentle replicas of their mild parents.

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS
Tips To Help You

DOUBLE THE LIFE OF YOUR CUT FLOWERS

Imagine buying a bouquet of cut flowers on Monday and still being able to enjoy them the following Monday. Impossible? Not when you fill your vase with distilled water and floral preservative. Findings of Ohio State University's Horticulture Department have shown that distilled water, used with a floral preservative, can extend the life of cut flowers up to 100 percent. Devoted flower lovers may have already made this discovery about distilled water which, until now, has been used mostly in steam irons and for cleaning contact lenses.

This floral life-span increase stems from the fact that the preservative reacts more quickly and effectively with distilled water than with tap water. The chemicals in common tap water tend to slow down the preservative action and interfere with optimum results. Unlike tap water, distilled water contains no chemicals, minerals, or trace elements of any kind. You can use distilled water on your house plants, too.

First Aid Tips On Carpet Care

Peaky spots will appear on new carpets, no matter what precautions you take. When they do, it's important to act quickly to remove them before they set.

The following formulas, recommended by the National Institute of Rug Cleaning, will keep you well prepared for most emergencies.

Formula 1: Put 1 teaspoonful of neutral (non-alkaline) synthetic, soapless detergent in a jar or other container and add 1/2 pint lukewarm water. Apply the solution, where recommended, directly on the stain with an eye dropper. Sponge up with a clean, white, unstarched cloth, blotting at the outer edges of the stain. Repeat until working in. Blot up remaining moisture with damp cloths, sponging in the direction of the pile lay. Finally, sponge the area several times with other damp cloth and finish by blotting up remaining moisture with damp cloths.

Formula 2: Apply 1 tablespoonful white vinegar mixed in a teacup or glass with 3 teaspoons lukewarm water directly to the stained area with a medicine dropper. Agitate the saturated area gently with a clean, white unstarched cloth. Allow the solution to remain on the stain for about 15 minutes. Blot up remaining moisture with damp cloths. Sponge the area again several times with another dampened cloth and finish by blotting in the direction of the pile.

Here are some tips for specific types of spots:

1. Animal accidents. Sponge the stained areas with several applications of clean, lukewarm water. Use a clean, damp cloth to absorb as much of the moisture as possible, and then apply Formula 2 as directed. Allow to dry thoroughly. Apply Formula 2 again.

This treatment is effective in most cases, say experts from Bigelow, a division of Sperry and Hutchinson, who devised these remedies in response to consumer questions. When a color change takes place, however, no further treatment can restore it.

2. Baby Accidents. Treat these the same as animal accidents.

3. Beverages. Alcohol, coffee, tea and soft drink spills should be sponged with lukewarm water, using clean, white, unstarched cloths. Absorb and repeat several times. Follow with Formula 1 as directed. If necessary, apply Formula 2.

4. Chewing Gum. Use a non-flammable household dry-cleaning fluid. Apply it liberally on and around the outside of the gum. Allow it to remain three or four minutes; lift off the gum with a dull knife. If it does not release readily, repeat the treatment. (It's wise to pretest the fluid on an inconspicuous area of your carpet.)

5. Fruits and Fruit Juices. Sponge the spot with a clean white cloth dampened with lukewarm water. Follow with Formula 1.

6. Furniture Dye Stains. Wood dyes and stains from bottoms of chair and table legs sometimes spot carpets. When these occur, consult your rug cleaner.

7. Ice Cream, Milk, Desserts. Sponge with lukewarm water, using a clean, white, unstarched cloth. Follow with Formula 1.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP

In a number of ways, America's large companies are exercising good citizenship and serving the rest of us.

One example is Tenneco Inc., a company that helps meet the needs of your family in several ways.

Farm tractors from its J I Case Company are helping grow food around the world. And construction equipment from Case helps provide places for people to live, work and play.

Its agricultural marketing subsidiary brings fresh fruits and vegetables, almonds, dates and raisins to supermarkets across the country.

Exhaust system components made by its Walker Manufacturing Company are on one of every three cars on U. S. roads today, and its Monroe Auto Equipment Company is a leading producer of shock absorbers for cars and other vehicles.

Packaging materials made by its Packaging Corporation of America enable other manufacturers to preserve and protect their products during the long journey from factory to consumer.

Tenneco Chemicals, Inc., makes versatile plastics that are turned into such commonly used items as vinyl flooring, paneling, plumbing pipe, phonograph records and foam carpet underlayment.

Tenneco Oil Company supplies gasoline for cars and trucks, heating oil for homes and other buildings, and other petroleum products. This company is also aggressively exploring for new supplies of oil and natural gas.

Builder of great ships for the nation's trade and defense, Tenneco's Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company is constructing huge tankers for carrying crude oil and liquefied natural gas.

Its Tennessee Gas Transmission Company manages natural gas pipeline systems with more than 16,000 miles of pipe, providing energy for homes and industries in 25 states.
