No Changes Made On The Hospital Issue

According to County Judge Glenn W. Thompson, there had been no new developments on the hospital situation up to noon Wednesday. The hospital, built by the county about four years ago, has been the subject of widespread controversy since completion. The health association terminated its lease, effective December 1, due to inability to secure an adequate medical staff. Since that time the hospital has been kept open by the old staff but under a county board of directors. Dr. G. R. Spiller, the only M. D. in Cochran County, maintains an office in the hospital. The hospital is open for lease but to date no satisfactory bids have been offered the county by possible lessees. A public hearing will be held Friday, December 29, at which time the general public is invited to meet with Cochran County Commissioners' Court for further discussion of the hospital and its ultimate disposition.

January-February Draft Call Raised 80 Per Cent By National Officials

State Selective Service headquarters has been notified officially by national headquarters that the Texas combined January and February draft call has been increased by 80 per cent. Brigadier General Paul L. Wakefield, state Selective Service director, said today that a telegram was received from Washington late yesterday showing the new adjusted January and February call as 8,279. The original combined call for the two months was 4,596, an increase of 3,683. The adjusted calls to Texas followed Department of Defense action increasing national call for the two months from 90,000 to 160,000. State Selective Service headquarters is now preparing adjusted calls to local draft boards for January, the state director said. Calls to the local boards for February will not be sent out until January. "Texas is in good position to fill these adjusted calls without running short of examined and acceptable men," General Wakefield said. "We had a lot of men examined during August, September and October." The state draft director indicated that the state "must step up physical examinations for the months ahead," and said that "our headquarters already has been in conference with Army examining officials to get the job done." General Wakefield said that "only a few hundred men were examined in November and a similar amount scheduled in December." He revealed that about 4,000 men are being called for examination after Christmas, this decision being made after increased calls for January and February were received. The states director also revealed that physical examinations to be made in January, originally planned for 7,500 men, have been increased to almost 15,000. Local boards will receive adjusted calls later. No decisions have been made in regard to physical examinations for February. Selective Service director also said that a total of 128 doctors, dentists and veterinarians have been scheduled for physical examinations in January. No calls for induction of medical personnel have been received.

AN AMERICAN SUCCESS STORY

As we move into what may well be the most fateful year in the history of American freedom, with every family called upon to make keenly felt sacrifices, our citizenry needs to be fortified with a better understanding and a re-vitalized appreciation of the American way of life. The story related to me this week by Helene Forster thus is timely—for it is a part of the sinew and the soul of America. Here it is:

The rumblings of Hitler's National Socialism and the trappings of the police state had begun to move ominously onto the stage in Germany when, in 1924, Johnny and Helene Forster, of Dresden in Saxony, bundled up their two boys and their meager personal belongings and made their way to Hamburg where they got passage in the steerage of an ocean liner bound for America. Upon arrival in New York they had $12. They had no acquaintances, could not speak English. But for the first time in their lives they knew their opportunity had arrived. They were supremely happy.

Both Worked

Johnny Forster found work here and there, often hard manual labor. When he arrived home in the evenings the family would have dinner, then Helene would leave him with the babies and go to her work as charwoman in a Central Park mansion or Manhattan office building. In time the family moved to Chicago and Johnny got work at the stockyards. And, as the boys were by now in school, Helene worked daytimes too. They were thrifty, enterprising and, especially for the boys' sake ambitious. Their love for America grew. They were now naturalized.

On their modest earnings the Forsters furnished a home, gave their sons wonderful American Christmases—and saved a nest egg. Johnny got a job with a service station. In a few years he was operating his own, on a shoe string. And the couple continued to save money. One summer the Forsters took a trip south in their own car. In southern Missouri, on the west bank of the Mississippi, they found a little city they liked, Cape Girardeau, a perfect location for the business they had saved for and dreamed of.

Willing Sacrifices

On heavily traveled U. S. 61 just north of Cape Girardeau, the Forsters built a modern tourist cottage as a starter. This was in 1939. Soon the war was upon them and their plans were disrupted. They were faced with the demand for severe sacrifices. What they did about it is part of Helene Forster's story. "We tried to repay Uncle Sam a little for the happiness he gave us," she told me. "We never had known such happiness. Our sons went to the Navy and were in the fighting. My husband too. I kept the home and business going. We would do it again to preserve this freedom we so highly cherish."

She had written me expressing gratitude for our radio series, "Land of the Free." The lack of understanding and appreciation of the American way of life, especially among some of the younger people who stop off at their now greatly expanded tourist court, worries the Forsters. "They talk," she said, "as if they knew nothing at all about the value of freedom. How lucky we people in America are."

Where Else On Earth

"Words in any language cannot adequately tell what we feel about our country," she said. "Where else on the globe can anyone starting with two babies and $12 show what we have. It is like a miracle. Sometimes my husband and I go across the highway and look from there at our place. We pinch each other to be sure it's really true. We had to work hard, but it was a pleasure. Our boys had a wonderful childhood, all the things my husband and I just dreamed about when we were young—and not in America."

"These Communists cannot tell just one little success story like ours. Our system of government is the best on earth. I know, because I know the difference. And I am sure there are millions of Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews who have success stories like ours. Joe Stalin can't write a single one—and yet people sometimes talk such rubbish. I guess they really don't know the facts."

That's my guess too. So we all have the job of getting the facts and passing them on to others. The freedom flame must be kept burning high in American hearts during this crisis.

Heart Disease Is Leading Killer For Those Over Forty

This is the time to plan for the New Year that is just around the corner, says Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer.

This is the time for the person forty and over to take stock of the situation as far as he is concerned. The best way to prepare for a continuing happy life is to begin early. An important thing is the periodic check-up by your doctor. A health problem discovered early is always easier to correct. Prevention is the watchword. The principal foes of health to confront in the middle years are heart disease, cancer, high blood pressure, hardened arteries, diabetes and arthritis.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death. A person with a damaged heart should learn his limitations and not exceed them. Many persons with heart disease lead useful and productive lives by following their physician's instructions.

Cancer is the second leading cause of death. Many types of cancer can either be cured or brought under control if found early and diagnosed. This is another important reason why the periodic medical check-up is a "must."

Diabetes is a condition in which the body cannot use sugar. Did you have the Free Diabetes Test during "Diabetes Detective Week," November 12 to 18? If not, go to your physician now and have this test.

Three of the diseases common to the after-forty group are concerned with the circulation of the blood. These are apoplexy, hardened arteries, and high blood pressure. You will want your physician to check your blood pressure.

A great deal can be done to arrest certain forms of arthritis. The person may be put on a special diet. The doctor may advise the removal of some hidden infections.

Information on prevention of these disabling diseases will be sent you on request. Let's plan to keep well during the New Year.

Farm Workers Must Meet Certain Requirements for Draft Deferments

Emphasizing that the draft law provides no blanket deferment for farm workers, Brigadier General Paul L. Wakefield, state Selective Service director, declared today that local boards are required to consider each agricultural worker's case individually, just as other men's cases are considered.

General Wakefield said that regulations issued by the President provide for a deferred classification for farm workers only when the following conditions are met to the satisfaction of the local board:

1. The man must be "employed in the production for market of a substantial quantity of those agricultural commodities which are necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest."

2. "The production for market of a substantial quantity of agricultural commodities should be measured in terms of the average annual production per farm worker which is marketed from a local average farm of the type under consideration. The production of agricultural commodities for consumption by the worker and his family, or traded for subsistence purposes, should not be considered as production for market."

The state draft director observed that "this still doesn't give the complete picture," and added that a man, to be eligible for farm deferment, must also meet the requirements in the section of the Selective Service regulation defining necessary employment.

He quoted as follows: "A registrant's employment in industry or other occupation, service in office, or activity in

THE LAW AND YOU

By ROBT (Bob) KIRK
County Attorney, Lamb County

Do You Know whether you may take down a party fence or dividing fence without the consent of the adjoining land-owner?

By statute it is made a criminal offense for an owner or part owner of a party fence to remove the same, without the consent of the adjoining owner, or without giving him notice as required by Statute.

The party desiring to remove the fence should go to his neighbor and tell him what he intends to do, and ask him if he will agree to the same. If the neighbor agrees that the fence may be taken down, the first party may proceed to remove the fence. If the neighbor objects to the removal of the fence, the one desiring it taken down, shall give written notice to the neighbor, his agent, attorney, or tenant, that at the end of six months he intends to remove the fence. If an agreement is not reached during that time, at the end of the six months the first party may proceed to remove the fence. The failure to comply with the statutes in this matter will subject the offender to a fine.

Periodic Physical Examinations Are Essential In Keeping Good Health

The use of laboratory facilities to follow up on threats to health which may become evident during the physical examination will vary according to the location of the sign you doctor may have found. There are two tests which have now become practically routine in any medical check-up, however, the urine analysis and the blood count.

Since urine is a waste material of the body, the composition of the urine may lead to information as to what ingredients the body is throwing away that it needs for proper functioning. A sample of urine is broken down into the various chemicals it contains to ascertain whether too much of any essential material is being thrown off. Albumin and sugar in the urine do not necessarily point to disease; if the amounts discarded by the body are excessive, however, it will usually lead to a more detailed examination and probably repeated urine analysis as well as other types of tests.

The amount of urine which the body throws off will vary with the temperature, humidity, exercise, excitement and consumption of fluids. Under normal circumstances the amount is so variable that it is unimportant, but if the amount is consistently over a period of time, too little or too much it may be an important health signal.

The other waste materials of the body may be subjected to laboratory examination if conditions within the body suggest it is advisable. Various forms of worms and other parasites may invade the intestines, creating minor and major difficulty, and an examination of the stools will usually detect their presence.

The sputum, too, may bring a health threat to a definite head after a laboratory examination. The color, odor and amount of material coughed up may contain the answer to an illness in the respiratory tract.

Diphtheria has changed a great many of its symptoms over a period of years but a study of the patches diphtheria usually forms in the throat may lead to the definite knowledge that though it has disguised itself in other ways, the illness is diphtheria.

When thyroid disorder is suspected, the basal metabolism test becomes an important part of the physical examination. This test is conducted by your breathing into a mask which is attached to a machine and the rate at which you inhale oxygen and convert it into carbon dioxide is computed. Since the lowest rate at which you "metabolize" is being sought, you report for this test with an empty stomach, fresh from a good night's sleep.

The empty stomach is important, too, for the test of the stomach juices. Sometimes there will be a preliminary test with a tube eased down your throat into your stomach to extract some of the juices. That gives the picture of your stomach. Sometimes the test starts with the next step where you are given some unedible cookies to munch upon. After your stomach has gone to work on them with the juices, then that tube is eased back down into the stomach and the cookies and juices are extracted. Since those stomach juices are very important, you can see that this test might play a vital part in a complete physical examination where digestive difficulty seems indicated.

The various skin tests for diseases, the patch test for tuberculosis and the Schick test for the effectiveness of diphtheria immunization are among the seemingly endless variety of health measures that can be included in a check-up. The vaccinations, inoculations and immunizations that are part of the child's physical examination may have to be repeated in adults under certain circumstances. X-ray pictures of various parts of your anatomy may be necessary, too, for your doctor to complete the picture of diagnosis of your health. That is why he cannot tell until he starts checking you over just how extensive or expensive the physical examination will be.

He advises only such tests and analyses as he considers necessary for your good health.

Designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, the 153-foot high building has no first floor, no supports directly under the side wall. A central core anchored 54 feet in the ground carries the weight. Twenty-one miles of glass tubing circle the building between bands of brick. The company president, H. F. High Plains Water Group Suggests Changes to Water Code Committee

The Texas Water Code Committee has made a "proper and wise" decision in treating surface water conservation separately from underground water conservation, according to a memorandum from the High Plains Water Conservation and Users Association.

Major points of the memorandum, read by W. O. Fortenberry, president of the High Plains group, at a Code Committee hearing in Austin, Dec. 12, were made public today by the association.

The memorandum contains 8 suggestions for consideration of the Code Committee in drafting its final report on revision of Texas water laws to be recommended to the 52nd Legislature.

Each recommendation is aimed at making clear the Code Committee's announced intention of dealing with surface water only and leaving present underground water laws unchanged. The Water Conservation group suggested that words be inserted in certain definitions to eliminate any doubts.

As the Code Committee's preliminary reports stand, many sections refer to "all water resources," members of the High Plains group have explained. If it is not the committee's intention to include underground water, we wish them to specifically exclude it so that their proposals cannot be misconstrued later on, they said.

The memorandum presented to the Water Code Committee points out: "Although your avowed purpose was to consider surface water problems only, it is known that at your earlier meetings testimony affecting underground water was intruded upon the Committee... Since the hearings, you have released your Preliminary Report. As a consequence, we have several timely suggestions which we offer for such use as you desire in placing your recommendations in final form for Legislative consideration."

"From time to time changes in underground water laws have been considered by the Texas Legislature. The High Plains association has been equally active in opposing unwise changes as it has been in lending support to changes believed to be constructive. It is significant that essentially all municipal, industrial and agricultural users (large and small) of underground water in the various sections of Texas have reached the same conclusions as High Plains people and have acted accordingly."

"The High Plains Water Conservation and Users Association," the memorandum points out, "is the coordinating head of 14 water conservation organizations composed of users and owners of underground water in the High Plains of Texas. As such, the High Plains association represents some 15,000 well owners, as well as bankers and businessmen in the High Plains. This association speaks for an area where 155 million acre feet of water is in storage in an underground water reservoir underlying more than three million acres of land. Usage of water is estimated to amount to more than one million acre feet of water in some years. This association, then, speaks for 80 percent of the substantial users of underground water in the entire State of Texas.

"These High Plains people are keenly aware of the value and importance of underground water and are determined to protect and conserve it."

Morin has just returned from a dealer preview of the new cars at Oklahoma City, Okla. He described them "really outstanding in appearance, riding comfort and roadability."

February Draft Call Shows Large Increase Over January Inductions

February draft call for Texas—2,559 men—exceeds by 522 the call for January, Brigadier General Paul L. Wakefield, state Selective Service director, announced today.

The January call, received in early November, was for 2,037. The December call, now being filled by state Selective Service Boards, is for 2,008.

Local board quotas for the February call will not be made up and sent to the local boards until sometime after the first of the year. Calls are usually sent to local boards about month before deliveries are to be made.

The February call of 2,559 brings the number of men called from Texas since the beginning of the conflict in Korea to 15,084. First call was filled in September for 2,513.

The 2,559 Texans called for in the February induction period is the state's share of a national quota of 50,000 announced several days ago in Washington by the Department of Defense. National quota for January is 40 thousand.

Calls are made by the Secretary of Defense on the national director of Selective Service in Washington, who allots quotas to the states on the basis of federal draft regulations. Under the same regulations, state directors fix quotas to their local boards.

General Wakefield, the Texas state director, described Texas as "prepared to supply men to fill the February quota." He said that Texas "has plenty of men examined and acceptable to fill December, January, and February quotas."

The highest monthly quota received by Texas since Americans entered the fighting in Korea was for November, a total of 3,453. General Wakefield said this quota, as well as all others, have been filled.

The state director revealed that approximately 7,500 draft registrants will be given pre-induction examinations in January in preparation to fill calls for March and later months.

Real flowers and berries are off the usual millinery trail. In this gay holiday creation by Alyn Wayne of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Ass'n., two white carnations are combined with holly and juniper berries. In four seconds by the stop watch, this hat can be transferred to the shoulder as a corsage. For variations, those with a youthful figure may wear the flower accessory at the waist. This move also provides a convenient balance of color with a dark suit.

— by ann england —

Recently we were complimented by Rev. C. C. Stephens saying to us, "Ann, you are a good listener," which reminds us that Samuel Johnson once said, "The true art of memory is the art of attention." So when you folks think we have a good memory (we've been complimented on this too) just remember that we pay attention (most of the time).

Why just the other night, at that perfectly delightful party the Willard Coxes and Cricket Hickman gave, Mr. Lewis Owen mentioned something about our remembering things so well. However, Mr. O is quite a flatterer so we aren't sure he wasn't just being nice. His pretty wife was there with him and they do make the best looking dancing couple.

This holiday season has been especially nice—so many lovely parties, visits etcetera. Of course we missed any number—much to our regret but it is utterly impossible to get around to everything.

Then too, on Friday eve we took off with the spouse for Santa Fe. Missed a white Christmas, could only see a bit of snow on very highest mountain tops but did have such a grand trip.

We both attended noon services at St. Francis Cathedral on Christmas Eve. It was beautiful and very impressive. The spouse said, "I've never been to a Catholic service and I'm not sure I'll know what to do."

The Christmas party at Nice-warners last Wednesday night was super. Geneva had her house looking extra special; the food was superb and company grand. We were Mrs. Gowdy's guest and felt honored.

Everyone was all dressed up in her finery. Katie Lee Ross looked especially nice in a dark green, embroidered, strapless evening dress.

Mrs. J. B. Knox was wearing black velvet with a flame colored gladiola corsage.

Think Mrs. H. S. Hawkins was also wearing velvet, her corsage was of white carnations; her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Scott Hawkins who has a date with the stork in the not too far distant future, was mighty attractive in a quilted chinese jacket and long black skirt, her corsage of red carnations just matched the red lining in her sleeves. Understand Mr. H. S. presented both his wife and Armielove with the beautiful flowers.

Francie Hawthorne had on a full plaid taffeta skirt and long-sleeved black velvet top (she got hot too). Mrs. Ermon Miller, a most attractive gal, wore black with a sort of boat neck and a gorgeous corsage.

Red, White and Ooh!

By Betty Barclay

SHINY, bright red looks ever so well against a creamy white background. When the bright red is cranberries made into a glaze with orange-flavored gelatin and the creamy white is smooth, delicious vanilla pudding, it tastes good, too. Put this combination into a crispy pie shell, and you have a dessert that's beautiful to look at and OOH! so good to eat.

Glazed Cranberry Cream Pie
1 package prepared vanilla pudding; 2 cups milk.
1 cup cranberries; 1 1/2 cups water; 1/2 cup sugar; 1/2 package (3 1/2 tablespoons) orange-flavored gelatin; 1/2 cup orange juice; 1 baked 8-inch pie shell.

Place pudding powder in saucepan. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook and stir until mixture comes to a boil and is thickened. Cool, stirring once or twice. Pour into pie shell.

To make glaze, combine cranberries and water in saucepan and cook 5 minutes or until all cranberries have burst open. Add sugar and continue cooking to a temperature of 220° F., or until mixture is clear and syrupy. Remove from heat and add to orange-flavored gelatin. Stir until gelatin is dissolved; then add orange juice. Chill until thickened. Spread over cooked pie. Chill.

Note: If desired, 1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind may be added to pudding after removing from heat.

BABSON SAYS PRESS IS MOST VALUABLE ADVERTISING

NEW YORK — Newspaper advertising is by far the most valuable in terms of reader coverage, according to the actual results, Roger Babson, syndicated columnist on economic trends, believes. The noted economist emphasizes that actual experience bears out the statement that 90 per cent of all advertising is to the benefit of the advertiser.

"A newspaper is the greatest advertising medium in the world," Babson says. "All newspapers, regardless of size, are highly educational. They are vastly more important to the retailer, manufacturer and wholesaler than any other medium. They are the primary source of information for the citizen and the business man. They are the backbone of the community itself and they are the primary source of information for the advertiser. They are the primary source of information for the advertiser. They are the primary source of information for the advertiser."

WORKING STUDENTS

Many and ingenious are the ways Texas boys have found for earning all or a part of their college expenses in order to secure an education. The old standby jobs of janitor and mess hall waiter have long been popular with working students at the A. and M. College of Texas, while others have found new and novel ways of their own after the standard jobs were filled. One of the Southwest's leading auctioneers today worked his way through school as a student auctioneer at A. and M. A present member of Congress divided his working time between the horse barn and mail delivery. Many biology students have earned extra money catching poisonous snakes for study or to "milk" them of their poison for sale to manufacturers of medicines. One enterprising lad raised beavers on the campus and sold their pelts. Records of working students at A. and M. show that on the average their grades are as good, if not better, than those of boys who do not have to earn a part of their own expenses.

Legion to Launch Drive For Toys

American Legion posts Tuesday will launch a drive for toys to be sent to Western Europe's unfortunate children. It collected 3,000,000 playthings in last year's "Tide of Toys."

Announcing this, the legion said that some of the toys this year will go to American children whose fathers are fighting in the Far East. A shipment also will go to Puerto Rico. Donors were asked to observe four general rules:

1. Select toys sturdy enough for an overseas journey.
2. Write a personal note of greeting giving the giver's full name and address and attach it securely to the toy.
3. Ask the nearest legion post or legion auxiliary unit where toys are being received locally.
4. Do not give electrically powered toys or war toys.

Crosbyton C. of C. Asks For New Traffic Regulations, Controls

Directors of the Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce have made two recommendations for traffic control to the city commission and have complimented the public on its acceptance of another traffic measure. The directors have recommended that traffic through the city on Highway 82 be slowed and that out-of-town delivery trucks be requested to use the alleys instead of double parking in front of business places. The public was complimented by the directors on its acceptance of the 10-minute parking zone in front of the post office.

Plains History Gathered For Amarillo Library

Amarillo people are forward looking but are proud of the history of their region. The plains about them, they like to recall, were crossed by Comanche bands, by Coronado and his conquistadors, by explorers and traders, by gold-seekers and emigrants.

For the use of oncoming generations, local citizens have given the Amarillo Public Library a collection of about eight hundred books, maps, narratives and private papers on the history of the Southwest. This William Henry Bush Collection, to which it is hoped others will add, covers the period from Spanish days to 1890. A managing committee headed by Earl Vandale, president of the Texas State Historical Association, assures competence in the care and enlargement of the collection.

Establishment of such a collection of source material is a fine spur to the study of regional history. Other Texas cities can profit by following the Amarillo example.

Brazil has fixed 30 percent as maximum profit for retailers of drugs and chemicals.

Examination of the Blood Count and Color May Determine Many Diseases

There are so many diseases in which the diagnosis can be substantiated by microscopic study of the blood that flows through your arteries and veins, that even a partial list of them would fill many pages. Not only are the things that make up the blood separated and counted, but the shape of those things is studied, the age of them, and the manner in which they separate or group together.

The blood count has become a routine part of a physical examination. This "elementary" check up of the blood starts with a prick on the middle finger or the lobe of the ear, and the blood is sucked up into a tube. It takes just a tiny bit of blood but that tiny bit tells a great big story.

There are supposed to be 4 to 6 million red cells per cubic millimeter of blood and something between 5 and 8 thousand white cells. Needless to say, the time is not taken to count every cell. A spot of blood is put on a slide marked off with lots of little lines and the number of red cells is counted in one of the tiniest squares as an average number and then multiplied by the number of all the squares to find out how many of the gadgets are in the whole drop. The white cells are much bigger than the red, but the total number is figured in roughly the same manner.

The red cells aren't only counted, they are also studied for the amount of redness in them, that redness coming from hemoglobin. Hemoglobin is the pigment just as in paint, the more pigment you have, the richer the color; when you thin the paint you are reducing the pigment and making the color paler. But hemoglobin also is the oxygen-carrying red cap of the blood stream, and if the parts of the body which feed upon blood do not get sufficient oxygen, they can't do their job like they are supposed to. So hemoglobin is very important, but it is also rather elusive. Just exactly how much or how little you must have or how to count the amount you do have has never been fully ascertained. Hemoglobin is estimated only, not counted. Wide variations can be spotted, of course, in the study of blood, but when the variation, you might end up with some such description as "borderline anemia."

The shape and size of those red cells may also play a part in anemia. These are studied under a microscope after the blood has been smeared between two glass slides. All the cells won't be the same size but if the majority are too big or too little, your blood isn't giving you the best kind of treatment. Since the cells are supposed to be round, the microscope will also point out any change in that shape. When they get out of line, those cells assume a wide variety of different forms, varying from clubs to sickles, with each different form having its very own special medical term.

The clotting ability of the blood is very important at the time of operation, of course, and there are tests to study those parts of the blood that make it form a dam to staunch the flow of blood.

The Wassermann test to detect the presence of the family of germs that cause syphilis, among other diseases, the typing of blood including the intricacies of the Rh factor, the accumulation of chemicals in the blood, the time it takes for sediment to form when the blood is jiggled in the test tube, the composition of that sediment — there are so many different signs your doctor can pick up from the study of your blood. All of the tests aren't necessary, of course, but he will advise whichever ones he thinks will contribute information as to your health. And in your blood stream is frequently the final significant answer to any threat to your health.
