In many a city and town of Texas today, community leaders are making plans for an important annual event which many folks have been eagerly looking forward to all year. regional fairs and festivals taking place in every section of the state, the culminating event being the State Fair of Texas in Dallas. October 7-23.

Texas possibly has a bigger percentage of large, widely patronized fairs than any other state. Several of Texas big regional fairs attract more visitors and have more impressive fairgrounds than state fairs in some other sections of the nation.

The State Fair of Texas is, of course, the largest annual fair in the United States in terms of attendance, with over 2½ million visitors from all parts of America, and a magnificent fair-grounds with facilities valued at $35 million.

As with most fairs the country over, Texas events carry a heavy emphasis qualivestock and agriculture. Entertainment naturally covers a wide range, from carnival sideshows, rodeos, folk festivals to the Broadway musical comedy "Pajama Game" which will be presented at the State Fair. Competition in making jams and jellies, succulent cakes and pies and other examples of traditional homemaking skills still occupies a big place in the program of most Texas fairs.

Fairs in Texas date back over 100 years. The first fair to be held in the state may well have been one in Corpus Christi in 1852, which featured bullfights, a circus, cockfights and fireworks. During the same decade Dallas County became the first county in the state to organize a fair. The State Fair was founded in 1886.

A good fair regardless of size can be a valuable asset to its community, in the opinion of James H. Stewart, general manager of the State Fair and vice president of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions.
